THE EXPLANATION offered for this measure is that it is "to keep money in Alberta." Money that Albertans borrowed in good faith and can in many cases afford to repay this season! Money that they were glad enough to get at the time of borrowing and that many of them will pay back this year whether or not Mr. Aberhart's code of honesty calls for it. For to decent-minded people the greatest luxury money can buy is the acquittal of their obligations; and there are thousands of debtors in Alberta who this year, as on previous occasions, will buy themselves that luxury before they desire any other.

BRING ON YOUR SALESMEN!

Club Salesman—Listen, mister, if I offered you a dozen razor blades, a tube of shaving cream and these excellent prints all for fifty cents, you wouldn't turn a deaf ear to the proposition, would you?

Helpless Client—Eh!

But there can be little doubt that if the time ever arrives for these minerals being put to use, there will be miniature booms in various villages and settlements which have felt the loss of the business which they once derived from the mines and the miners.

SINCLAIR ENDS POLITICAL CAREER IN LEGISLATURE

WHITBY, Sept. 10.—In a simple speech, free of any bitterness, W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., last night wrote finis to a political career extending over twenty-six years.

Speaking at the meeting which nominated Gordon G. Conant, Crown Attorney for Ontario County, Liberal candidate for South Ontario, Mr. Sinclair said good-bye to his supporters of other years. His name was placed in nomination, but the one-time Liberal party leader confirmed his previously announced decision to retire.

Mr. Sinclair, who has represented the riding for the past twenty-six years, referred to his political career in a brief review. His only references to his relegation to private rank in the Liberal party came near the close of his address, when he said: "I ask that my failure to bring honor to you in the capacity of prime minister be overlooked. Let bygones be bygones. This is another day."

And again, in speaking of his political career, he remarked that, "unfortunately, I never got by the first book in public life."

Tribute to Mr. Sinclair was paid by the Chairman, W. H. Moore, K.C., and the party candidate, Mr. Conant.

BRITISH UNIONS SUPPORT ARMING

new technique of war is being evolved, not merely to wage war undeclared but to war on civilians."

"It isn't cynicism to say the safest place may be the trenches," Sir Walter said. "The league system is little more than a name. . . America, too, that great peace-loving democracy, on whose help we have so much relied, and whose moral force we have felt we could count on in an emergency, is disgusted with the quarrels of Europe and, possibly a little nervous about the consequences possibly entailed, it has drawn near something dangerously like isolation.

Partially Responsible

"The document (the report) clearly shows the responsibility the Allied Powers have for the situation. A more generous treatment of Germany after the war and more ready acceptance of the principle of disarmament would have brought a situation where we would never have known Nazi Germany. Hitler has been able to feed on grievances rightful to a considerable extent.

"I am bound to the conclusion that the British Government has no real faith in collective security. . . . Time after time Britain has turned her back upon support . . . Bit by bit, weakness, hesitation and refusals to face the Fascist aggressors have disturbed our people, and sooner or later we shall have a cry from the general public that the limits of restraint have been reached.

"Our duty is to rebuild the league, but in the meantime prime responsibility for the maintenance of peace will fall on the shoulders of one or two countries adequately prepared and ready to maintain peace. How in these circumstances can we escape the conclusion that rearmament is indispensible?"

pressure of 1,690,000,000 cats. One grain would be enough to affect the blood pressure of more than 1,000,000 men.

There is an apparently feasible method of getting it into the enemy's blood. It cannot be used as a gas, but because of its potency it can be fired in special type artillery shells.

The idea of using it in warfare for different purposes was proposed during the Great War but not put into action. Meanwhile as a humane physiological chemical it has become so important that a Nobel prize in medicine was awarded on acetyl choline researches two years ago.

LIFFORD LINE

A large group of invited lady guests of the neighborhood gathered at the home of Mrs. Gervin Mulligan on Thursday afternoon for the purpose of quilting two quilts for home use. An abrupt thunderstorm delayed the arrival of several ladies, but a fine amount of work was accomplished as the hours sped quickly by. A most enjoyable social time was spent during the afternoon and early evening. At six o'clock all sat down to a sumptuous supper served by the hostess, after which quilting was resumed for a short period. Among those present were: Mrs. Clare Staples, Mrs. Norton Mills, Mrs. Cairns Mrs. Lloyd Staples and Joe, Mrs. W. A. Neals, Mrs. John Henderson, Mrs. Harry Neals, Miss E. Lathangus and others.

Talks to the People — J. H. Burnham

What is known as the R. C. Separate School question now disappears from politics. Mr. Rowe said at Barrie, Sept. 7, that:

"Regarding the school question, he said: "We will defend and promote our great public school system. We acknowledge the constitutional rights of separate school supporters guaranteed by the British North America Act, and we will respect such rights."—(Globe and Mail.)

The national non-religious public school agitation also may be said to disappear with it. If religion is not good enough for the school it is not good enough for the church and without it what will all be? Soviet Russia says: "Let the old people continue to play with it (religion). It may make them happier but remove it from the schools and the next generation will know it no more."

WRONG PLACE IN INFORMATION

Because an information wrongly alleged that an offence under the Highway Traffic Act had been committed at George and London streets when it should have read at Water and London streets, the magistrate this morning dismissed a charge of failing to halt at a stop sign against Mrs. William G. Cornell, 98 Dublin street.

Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell in dismissing the charge after the Crown had closed its case expressed surprise that the mistake should not have been noticed earlier and commented, "This information is dated away back on July 19 last."

The charge against Mrs. Cornell was relative to an accident at the intersection of Water and London streets on the afternoon of July 19, in which Robert Snelgrove, 19 Argyle street suffered a broken ankle and other injuries to his right leg.

There is a further charge of reckless driving against Mrs. Cornell to which she has entered a plea of not guilty, and a similar charge against Donald O'Connor, 696 Water street as the driver of the car which is alleged to have mounted the sidewalk at the north west corner of the intersection striking down Mr. Snelgrove. O'Connor has also entered a plea of not guilty and both the charges stand adjourned for hearing until September 20.

W. B. Gordon is acting for O'Connor.

In evidence this morning in the charge against Mrs. Cornell that was subsequently dismissed, O'Connor testified he was driving his father's auto north on Water street when he observed the Cornell car coming east on London street. "I expected it to stop at the stop sign. I kept coming on and as I started to slow down I turned to the left to go behind the other car, but struck the rear bumper of it." He identified Mrs. Cornell as driver of the car in question.

The only other witness called by the Crown, a Mrs. Abraham Youngs said she was sitting on the verandah at her house on London street, when she saw the Cornell car proceeding east. Asked whether or not the car stopped before proceeding across the intersection the witness testified, "She went right through without stopping at 30 or 35-miles an hour."

At the close of the Crown's case, Mr. Elliott pointed out the Crown had failed to show in evidence that there was a stop sign and asked for dismissal on that ground.

"I won't put up with this thing of dismissing a charge on a mere technicality," Magistrate Campbell said.

A few moments later learning of the error in the information he dismissed the charge as previously stated.

BRITAIN, FRANCE WILL SPLIT PATROL

ized not as in ages past, by individual criminals, gangs or mutineers, but by the government of a European state—was bound to come to the world's attention."

Then he said this piracy had come from "submarines whose names have been painted over, whose national flag was concealed, whose crews were disguised uniforms!

"Only those states can avoid participating in this conference which consider themselves guaranteed against piracy—either because they organize it themselves as an instrument of national policy or because of their extreme intimacy with the pirates.

Litvinoff left no doubt as to his meaning.

"Everyone knows," he cried, "the name of the state which is pursuing this (piratical) object.

"The name is on everyone's lips.

"Those states which have suffered or may suffer cannot be denied the right of pronouncing that state."

He did not, however, quite say "Italy."

Litvinoff spoke after France and Great Britain through French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos, had called upon the conferees to join in a mutual assistance scheme to clear the Mediterranean of piratical submarines.

Draft of the protocol the British and the French delegates want the other powers to adopt already has been submitted, unofficially, to Soviet Russia and several other nations.

Early approval of the plan—perhaps by to-night—was forecast confidentially. It was learned authoritatively that it embraces a mutual assistance agreement among the nine powers.

Wedding Climaxes 12-Year Courtship

A childhood romance, continued by mail for over a decade, came to a story-book ending, when Robert Davies, of Hamilton, Ont., returned to Dysert, North Wales, and married Miss Frances Evelyn Parry. They are pictured here aboard the Canadian Pacific liner, Montrose, as they arrived back in Montreal after the wedding. Mr. Davies came to Canada in 1925 to earn a living, but the depression hit him and he had to wait 12 years before he could return to claim his sweetheart. They were married in Bethel Presbyterian church and now they are back in Canada to make their home.

Tea was served indoors, the lace covered table being centred with a lovely early autumn bouquet in golden tints, composed of coreopsis, brown-eyed Susans and gallardia. Tea was poured by Mrs. C. J. O'Neill—Coffey KINMOUNT, Sept. 10.—A pretty early fall wedding took place in St. Patrick's Church, Kinmount on Monday morning, when Genevieve E. Coffey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Coffey, was united in marriage to James Edward O'Neill, son of Edward O'Neill and the late Mrs. O'Neill. The Rev. P. P. Butler celebrated the nuptial mass and ceremony. The organist, Mrs. Ned Allen, played the wedding march.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a toe-length white satin gown, with puffed sleeves and trimmed with self-covered buttons at the back from the neck to the waist line. Her veil of embroidered silk net was held in place with a coronet of fine tucking and bridal blossoms, being arranged at the back in fan effect from which it fell in graceful folds to a long train. She wore white gloves and silver slippers. Her bouquet was of white and pink gladioli.

Miss Mary Coffey attended her sister as bridesmaid. She was attired in a gown of pink chiffon, with blue accessories, and carried a bouquet of mixed flowers. The best man was Joseph O'Neill, brother of the groom.

A reception for fifty guests was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, where the rooms were decorated with pink and white streamers and flowers, and the bride's cake centred the table.

The young couple left later for a trip to Niagara Falls and other points. The bride travelling in a smart blue suit with white accessories. Mr. and Mrs. J. E. O'Neill will reside in Kinmount.

Bloor Street United Church, Toronto was the setting for a charming wedding on Thursday evening, when Barbara Hume, daughter of Mrs. Grant and the late William Hume Grant of Toronto, became the bride of James Burgess Kinnear, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Kinnear of Oshawa. The Rev. Dr. G. C. Pidgeon officiated. Mrs. Lawrence played the wedding music and during the signing of the register, Mrs. Fred Hotson sang "I Love You Truly."

S. X. Plaunt of Ottawa escorted the bride to the altar where she was given in marriage by her mother. She wore an ivory satin gown fashioned on princess lines and a long tulle veil. Her bouquet was of cream roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

Miss Jeanne Sinclair and Miss Eleanor Jones were the bridesmaids, wearing gowns of taffeta in similar design, the former in forget-me-not blue and the latter in deep coral. Their bouquets were of Talisman roses.

The best man was Gordon Clegg of Peterborough, and the ushers were Douglas McLeod and Hartley Paterson.

A reception followed the ceremony and was held at the Granite Club, where Mrs. Grant, gowned in ashes-of-roses lace and Mrs. Kinnear in Royal blue chiffon, received the guests with the bridal party.

CLOTHES SMART FOR SCHOOL GIRLS

Nation's Style Experts and Stores Feature Stunning Dresses, Colorful Accessories For Classes, "Dates"

Lana Turner, wears tweed skirt, crepe "weskit" and plaid blouse.

By LISBETH

Right now everyone is concerned about the school and college girl. She is the Big Worry. She must be gotten ready for school no matter what other important matters are on hand.

Shop windows are full of suggestions for her, whole store departments cater to her, newspaper ads make suggestions—so do we stylists—so really she should be outfitted very nicely indeed, and the family be left to attend to other matters.

Illustrating this little yarn is a picture of a Hollywood high school girl who is said to be hailed by critics as the new "It" girl of pictures—the 1937 Clara Bow. She is wearing an interesting costume that might give a college or high school girl a suggestion—or her mother, anyway.

The skirt is tweed and gored. It might be almost any good woollen material. Its simplicity is its smartness. A plaid silk blouse is youthful and becoming, and over that is worn a regular "weskit" of dark silk. It is sort of a jumper blouse effect—if you know what I mean.

Everything Featured

Hats, hosiery, lingerie, pyjamas, dresses, some of them called "date" dresses, coats and whatnots are all especially highlighted for the college girl. Velveteen in one or two-piece stylings are shown for these young women and make smart and practical dresses for class, campus and "date" wear. They usually are seen in the new pencil silhouette and with bright touches as in brass buttons, and favorite colors are green, wine and brown.

If it's a fur coat our college girl is getting, the new "chubby" little jackets are very youthful and delightful for her. Another good bet for her is the combination of leather with fabric—a three-piece suit.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Heroes, it would seem, exist always, and a certain worship of them! We will also take the liberty to deny altogether that saying of the witty Frenchman, that no man is a hero to his valet-de-chambre. Or, if so, it is not the hero's fault, but the valet's: that his soul, namely, is a mean valet-soul." Carlyle.

Dear Friends:

The longer I live the more I realize that certain people are chosen to be leaders. They may not want the job. Moses didn't, nor Jonah, nor lots of others, but that was the part they had to take, and if they did not take it willingly, God made them do it.

And you cannot expect leaders to be exactly like others, for they have a different work to do. Not for them the simple little things, but they must right wrongs, they must be forever thinking of others, they must LEAD, and the ones who are the hardest on them if they fall down in any way, are the ones who do the following, after the way has been made clear for them.

If you have been chosen as a leader, all your side-stepping will only bring you misery. You will only come to the height you were meant for, when you have accepted this, and started to truly LEAD.

Never forget either, that there was only One Leader who was perfect. All others are human, even as you and I, and it is only when perfection is looked for, or demanded, that our leaders fall down.

Even in family life, if the Mother does not lead, there will be chaos. You may say, what about the Father? But he, as a rule, is out in the world earning a living, so most of the leadership is delegated to the Mother. If she falls down, family life falls down.

Our Lord said, "A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country, or among his own people." And that is just because they will not accord him his leadership, for they want to bring them down to their own level.

If we think a man is enough of a leader, so that we choose him as our representative in the government, we have a right to expect that he does not put himself and his own interests before the interests of those who chose him to lead.

We have done our part of the bargain by putting him where he can use his power of leading. But so many think they can do as they like, forget the promises they made, consider none but themselves, and when they do that, they are taking their first step away from leadership.

What I shall never be able to understand in politics is, why if a person has ever been elected as leader of a party, no one else seems to get a chance. They either have to die, or get too old to be of much use, before anyone else gets a chance to see what they can do.

Why also, if one has become a liberal or a conservative, do they always have to vote like that, even altho' the one who is trying for election seems utterly unfitted for te job?

We read such captions as "Vote as you like, but vote," but why vote for a leader you despise. Just because they belong to one party does not always fit them to lead, unless into trouble.

It is said the vote has not done much for women, but what do women have to do with choosing a leader? One party sticks one man out, and the other party sticks another man out, and if the women see no good being able to come from either, they say, "what's the use of voting at all?"

After all, women are human beings just as men are. They could be a lot of help if men would let them. They help get a home together, they work shoulder to shoulder with men, they have brains and intelligence, so why not let one of them have a try at leading once in a while? Even men say that women could not make a worse mess of things than men have done.

I honor men in many ways, and I think it would be to their interest if women could work with them in politics. What do you think? Your Friend, ROBERTA.

Causes of Strain On a Child's Eyes

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Good vision does not necessarily mean healthy eyes. This is true in childhood. In middle age the converse may be said to be true— poor vision, at least for reading, goes with perfectly normal eyes.

The child in school is asked to read a chart and he reads the 20-20 line, which is the accepted standard for normal vision. Yet he may have to strain his eyes to achieve this normal vision. Sooner or later with the continual strain of achieving normal vision in school, he will begin to have symptoms—of headaches, or nervousness, or inattention.

The three optical faults which induce eyestrain are far-sightedness, near-sightedness and astigmatism.

Far-sightedness does not mean good vision in the distance. The eyes have to strain even when looking at a distance. Normal eyes focus distant objects with complete relaxation. Only when doing close work do they have to focus; but focusing in a normal eye is not the same as strain.

Result Is Strain

In far-sighted eyes the image falls too far back even when the eyes are looking at a distance, and the retina does not receive a clear-cut image until the focusing muscle starts working and brings the image upon the retina. That means the focusing muscle never gets a rest.

This results in constant strain and leads to nervous symptoms of that strain. Such a child was one aged eight who at home was disobedient, irritable and nervous. At school he was indifferent to his work, backward, and his teacher called him lazy. No one for a while suspected his eyes might be the cause of the trobule, because he could always read the smallest line on the test chart, until finally one doctor suggested a "thorough" examination. This means a complete check of the physical health of the eyes and a determination of the total optical error.

Strain on Muscle

These far-sighted children have just such a strain upon the focusing muscle that it is hypertrophied and much stronger than normal, so it is generally agreed among competent oculists that it must be put at rest with medicine before the exact amount of optical error can be measured.

One of the best text books on the eyes says, "In every case of hyperapia (far-sightedness) occurring in children and young adults, te accommodation should be paralyzed and the total error estimated so as to serve as a prescription for glasses."

When this was done to the child whose case we have recounted, and proper glasses prescribed for him, his impovement was remarkable. He wasn't really lazy or indifferent, but you can't expect a young fellow to be full of pep when some of his muscles are always on a strain.

Velvet Dress for College Is Ideal

This pretty dinner dress modeled by Mary Carlisle, is ideal for the college girl. It is made of black chiffon velvet, and falls in a straight line over the hips, but widens toward the floor and is cut up in front to reveal a coral-colored slip of fluted chiffon. Bodice is heart-shaped and accented by a bit of coral chiffon, and the short, puffed sleeves also have inserts of this material. It was designed by Patricia Perkins, Los Angeles dressmaker.

(Examiner Correspondence)

Services were held in the Merlin United Church, under Masonic auspices. The members of Century Lodge A.F. and A.M., of which deceased was a member, attended in a body and took charge of the service at the grave.

Masons acted as pall-bearers and flower-bearers. Rev. H. B. Parnaby, pastor of the United Church, had charge of the service at the church and delivered a splendid address. He referred to deceased as a general business man and one who took an interest in the community and a lover of his home.

eral services, and talked of doubling Ontario's debt to provide employment. Premier Hepburn said his Government not only closed Ontario House, but sold it so it could not be re-opened.

Conservatives had accused him of spending $40,000 on new automobiles for ministers after selling those used by the former Government at scrap prices.

"We bought no cars, and I happen to be the only Premier of Ontario who has never charged up one dollar against the province for travelling expenses," said the Premier. The ministers' salaries were reduced and the cars sold at public auction with the money placed in the Treasury.

Friends of the former Conservative Government obtained benefits from renting places to the administration for liquor stores. Agents also obtained commissions on sales of certain brands of liquor to the Commission, charged the Premier.

A Property Deal.

"Why, the former Minister of Highways was actually involved in leasing of property by his brother-in-law to the Board at three times the rent it was worth, and so anxious was the Board to help the brother-in-law that they paid him six months' rent in advance."

Mr. Hepburn declared $19,000,000 worth of liquor was sold during the last year of the Conservative regime while in his Government's first year sales were $26,000 less, but the profit to the treasury was $2,000,000 larger. This indicated just what the Conservative "tool gate" cost the province.

address challenged the Premier to debate C.I.O. and Oshawa General Motors strike issues. The Premier "has so far refused to meet me face to face," said the mayor, because Mr. Hepburn knows, "I have the correct facts which I will divulge before this election is over."

"Labor Policy a Bluff"

The Labor policy of the Premier was "a bluff" as he knew he was powerless to carry out threats to throw foreign labor agitators in jail, Mr. Rowe said at Port Hope. Mr. Hepburn's criticism of John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization caused an increase in the membership of the C.I.O. in Ontario.

"There are more C.I.O. members than before he (Mr. Hepburn) and George McCullagh (publisher of The Toronto Globe and Mail) started to advertise it," he said.

Mr. Rowe demanded an investigation to ascertain if a gallonage tax was levied on hotel keepers since the campaign started. The public should know where these funds are going.

"After October 6 we will institute a royal commission into the whole liquor administration unless Mr. Hepburn advises me he will hold an investigation to determine why certain hotel keepers received letters saying they had to pay a tax on a gallonage basis."

Lay Awake in Agony With Neuritis

Kruschen Salts Brought Lasting Relief.

Ordinary headaches are bad enough, but they are as nothing compared to the awful pains of neuritis in the head, says this woman. Read how Kruschen completely banished the pain:—

"I had neuritis in the head and right arm. I suffered untold agony with my head, and I dare not think what might have happened had it continued. Everybody knows what a headache is like, but it is as nothing compared with the awful pain of neuritis in the head. I spent sleepless nights tossing with pain. I began taking Kruschen Salts, and after some months of the treatment I have effected lasting relief." —(Mrs.) L.M.

Neuritis, like rheumatism and sciatica, frequently has its roots in intestinal stasis (delay)—the unsuspected accumulation in the system of harmful waste matter, which leads to the formation of excess uric acid.

Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals. Other ingredients of Kruschen assist Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the natural channels. —(advt.)

MANSON COMSTOCK DIES AT HIS HOME HEALTH BEEN POOR

Taken suddenly after a lengthy period of failing health, Manson Comstock, twenty-five years associated in the firm of A. Comstock and Sons, died at his home, 219 Sherbrooke street, early this morning. He was 58 years of age.

Prominent in fraternal circles, long a devoted curler and a service club worker, Mr. Comstock was widely known in the community. He was born in this city, son of the late A. Comstock and Mary A. Martin, and spent his lifetime here.

Educated in local schools, Mr. Comstock made his first entrance into business as a young man with the hardware firm of McKee and Davidson and continued with its successor, the Peterborough Hardware. Shortly before the war, he entered the undertaking and furniture business which his father had founded and remained in active partnership until the present.

Among his leading interests were his fraternal associations. He was a member of the Corinthian Lodge, A.F. and A.M., and also the Moore Preceptory, Scottish Rite and Ramesses Temple Shrine. Long was he a member also of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

He was an able curler and was prominent in the membership of the Peterborough Curling Club. Fond of hunting, he missed few of the annual hunts of the Ketchecum Hunt Club since the club's organization. Until his failing health forced him to restrict his activities, he was active with the Peterborough Rotary Club. He was a member of the Peterborough Club.

At one time Mr. Comstock held a commission in the old 57th Regiment here.

Surviving are his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Stewart Widdup of Los Angeles and Grace at home; one brother, John of this city, and three sisters, Mrs. R. H. Boyle of St. Catharines, and Mrs. J. McIntyre and Charlotte Comstock, both of this city.

The funeral is to be held Monday, service at the residence at 2.30 o'clock with interment in Little Lake Cemetery, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church will officiate.

MELON PATCH IS CLEARED OUT

NORWOOD, Sept. 10.—A number of boys or young men raided the garden of W. A. Richardson on Peterborough street and helped themselves to a lot of melons. It is alleged that on the same night a goodly number of melons were sold by well-known local boys at the lacrosse game between Oshawa and Norwood.

It is also further alleged that after the game some of the boys returned to Mr. Richardson's garden and cleaned out the rest of the patch delivering the melons to a bunch of out-of-town fans who parked their cars on the street nearby.

The next morning some of the boys were sneaking around to investigate the patch thinking Mr. Richardson was away from home. Mr. Richardson seized their bicycles and locked them up. In order to obtain their bicycles the boys told the whole story of the night before, including names of boys involved and some of those received the stolen melons.

Mr. Richardson states he has been the victim of raids on his garden and fruit for a number of years and his patience is exhausted. It is alleged some of the boys have admitted their part in the affair.

CYCLIST SUFFERS MINOR INJURIES

Riding a borrowed bicycle, Mary Armstrong, 14, of 373 Bethune street received superficial injuries to the calf and shin of her right leg, when she rode in front of a southbound motor car at the intersection of Water and Murray streets at 4 p.m. Thursday. She was attended by Dr. A. W. McPherson. The girl was riding west on Murray street, according to police report, and was unable to stop at the intersection because the cycle allegedly lacked brakes. The bicycle ran into the pathway of a car being driven by W. J. Garner, 360 Belmont avenue, striking the front bumper of the car.

Glimpses Of War On Many Fronts

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(AP)—General Francisco Franco today was asked in a cable sent by 26 Canadian and American educationists, statesmen and religious leaders to spare the lives of 2,000 captured civilians held in Santander, Spain, and said to be facing execution for remaining loyal to the Madrid government.

Among those signing the message was H. J. Cody, president of the University of Toronto.

MOSCOW, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Official Soviet circles voiced strong objection today to the Italo-German suggestion that the problem of Mediterranean piracy be put up to the 27-nation Spanish non-intervention committee.

"That long-suffering body has been the arena for sabotage activity of the Italo-German Fascist aggressors," one source asserted.

PEIPING, Sept. 10—(AP)— A detachment of 4,000 Japanese troops was reported today to have been wiped out by a Chinese ambush in the rocky hills west of here. The Japanese line was said to have been thrust back five miles.

Reliable Chinese reports from Mentoukuo front, where the Japanese operation is threatened by a wide Chinese flank attack, said the 4,000 Japanese were drawn into a trap by retreating Chinese.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 10.—(CP-Havas)—The Shanghai representative of the International office of the League of Nations for Refugees drew attention today to the plight of 25,000 white Russians in Shanghai who have suffered heavily as a result of hostilities.

Some 3,000 lived in Hongkew and Yangtzepoo where all their homes have been destroyed. Many others are threatened with ruin because of the severe limitation of retail and luxury trade in which many are engaged.

LONDON, Sept. 10—(CP Cable)—British nationals in Shanghai have not been advised to leave. Those wishing to leave were requested to notify the British authorities, but so few requests were received that special arrangements for evacuation were not considered necessary.

HENDAYE, France - Spanish Frontier, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Asturian troops with their backs to Gijon and the sea were reported to have slain more than 1,000 Spanish insurgents and to have recaptured a position against the advancing forces. The Madrid Valencia government's bulletin admitted, however, that the insurgent offensive was not halted.

The insurgents were driving forward between the coast and one of the highest mountain ranges of Spain, the Picos de Europa.

CLAIMS ALEX. HALL SOUGHT ARREST C. I. O. ORGANIZER

WHITBY, Sept. 10.—If Mayor Alex. Hall of Oshawa had succeeded in having Hugh Thompson, C.I.O. organizer, arrested and rushed out of the Motor City during the General Motors strike, industrial chaos and strife would have rocked the whole Dominion, Liberals of South Ontario were told last night.

Gordon Conant, Crown Attorney for the county, who was unanimously chosen Liberal candidate in the riding, revealed for the first time how he was approached by Mayor Hall and asked to issue a warrant for the arrest of Thompson for alleged breach of the Criminal Code.

"I do not profess to know all the details of the negotiations and conferences that went on," said Mr. Conant. "But there are things I can tell you about the strike that even the Prime Minister doesn't know, and I think it is in the interests of the people that I tell what I know.

"Shortly after the strike started, there arose the question as to whether employees would be allowed to enter the parts and service building. The company contended it was not production, but was performing a necessary service to the motorists of the Province. The strikers were hesitant about it.

"On Friday the matter came to a head. I went to bed that night concerned, but I felt common sense would prevail.

Called at 2 a.m.

"But at 2 o'clock in the morning," continued Mr. Conant, "my telephone rang. It was Mayor Hall on the phone. He said: 'Is that you, Gordon?' I asked him what was on his mind, and he said Thompson had issued a statement which he thought was against the Criminal Code. He asked me, as Crown Attorney ,to have Thompson arrested and taken out of town that same night.

"I asked him what the statement was and the Mayor read it to me. I haven't a copy with me, but it was to the effect that if men and women entered the parts and service building the strikers would not be responsible for their safety.

"Alex. Hall repeated to me that he wanted Thompson arrested immediately and taken out of town. I told him that the matter could wait until morning, at least, for investigation, and in any case I did not think Thompson had issued a statement contrary to the Criminal Code.

Would Go Higher Up

"He said if I would not do anything he would get some one higher up to act,' related Mr. Conant. 'I gave him a few names, and I think one of them was the Superintendent of the Provincial Police.

"Next morning I got the morning paper and read Thompsons statement. To make sure I was right in my belief, I telephoned Ira Humphries, K.C., Deputy Attorney-General, and asked him if he thought the statement contained intimidation. He said no, there was nothing criminal in it.

"A little later that same day I was talking to a Provincial Police officer and in the course of the conversation I mentioned Mayor Hall's 2 a.m. telephone call. I asked the officer if the Mayor had spoken to him about it.

"He said yes, the Mayor had come to his hotel room and asked him to arrest Thompson and rush him out of town. The officer heard the story and refused to accede to the request.

Hat in Thompson's Room

"As the Mayor was about to leave, the officer said, "Mr. Mayor, where's you hat?" Mayor Hall's reply was, 'I must have left it down in Thompson's room.'

"And next day and every subsequent day, Hall and Thompson were as thick as that," said Mr. Conant, putting two fingers together. "Perhaps you people know what it all meant. I'll tell you what it meant to me. It meant that the Oshawa strike was nothing but political opportunism for some people. It meant an opportunity to embarrass Mitch Hepburn. It meant trafficking in the blood and sweat of the workingmen.

"Do you know what would have happened if Thompson had been arrested?" demanded Mr. Conant. "There would have been bloodshed in Oshawa. The cry would have been broadcast that this man, this demagogue Thompson, was being persecuted and had been made a martyr. And industrial strife would have spread throughout Ontario. And well Alex. Hall and Hugh Thompson knew it. What is more, the gold mines of Ontario would have been closed down in a few weeks. If Alex. Hall had had his way, they would have been closed down. I am not exaggerating. If Thompson had been arrested, as requested by Hall, we would have had industrial chaos in Ontario. No question about it. This is the situation, and you should know it."

Notice of a resolution for a by-law which would require through traffic of commercial vehicles to avoid use of centre Peterborough streets has been served on the City Council by Alderman G. N. Gordon, K.C. The resolution will be moved at the next meeting of the Council, Mr. Gordon stated.

The resolution to be introduced will read as follows:

"That the city solicitor be instructed to prepare a by-law relating to the motor vehicle traffic in the City of Peterborough, requiring all commercial vehicles entering the city or leaving the city of Peterborough, on Provincial Highway Number 28, to enter or leave the said city limits by Provincial Highway Number 7 unless such vehicles require to be stopped for the purpose of loading or unloading within the area lying easterly of a point where Highway Number 28 and Highway Number 7 connect, and also for the purpose of requiring commercial vehicles in the same way entering or leaving the City of Peterborough, or passing through the city to enter or leave by Armour road and Monaghan road so that these vehicles may reach the provincial highways required to be used for the purpose of their business.

JOHN STOKES.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

The deceased was the unfortunate victim of electrocution on Tuesday morning, while employed by the Tweed Hydro-Electric System.

The late John Foster Stokes, who was fifty-four years of age, was born in the County of Prince Edward, a son of John Stokes and Sarah Henry. He spent his youth in the vicinity of Thomasburg, and later joined the staff of the Ontario Hydro having been employed in Western Ontario. THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, September 11

Stellar forces of a particularly stabilizing and steadying influence are presaged for this day. There should be definite progress made in putting old matters, long stagnant or crystallized, on firm foundations for future soundness and enduring dependability. Good organizing ability and sound judgment will tell; also the co-operation of elders or old institutions. In private life be prepared for a sudden and possibly devastating romance. But on all sides the atmosphere of the mysterious, novel, inexplicable and unique abounds.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year in which there will be strong and dependable influences at work for a stabilizing of the fortunes, with increase in value of possessions and long retired or inactive securities or investments. Crystallizations may break up to make way for definite and enduring progress. In private life there may be sudden emotional climaxes or romances of surprising and devastating force.

A child born on this day may be profound, studious, responsible and practical and, at the same time, romantic, adventurous and artistic. It may have strange emotional or psychic experiences or creative urges.

MOTHER IS ASKING FOR HER CHILDREN

City police have received requests from two different sources in which information is sought bearing on the whereabouts of persons believed to reside in this district. Anyone who can be of assistance in this connection is asked to communicate with the police department here.

Mrs. Ada Pruner, 383 Albert street, Oshawa seeks information of her two children, Violet and Irwin, whom she states she last saw eighteen years ago in this city. She believes they may still be here.

The other query was from Edith U. Perry, Long Island, Maine, who desires to locate heirs of William Brighton Robinson, son of Thomas Robinson and Mary Irwin. He was born at Toronto on April 13, 1870.

Her letter states, "Knowing that many Robinsons settled in and around your city from United Empire Loyalist times, and as we understand that Toronto has no vital statistics records going back to that time, we thought there may be some descendants of this Robinson family in your district."

Norwood Arena May Close This Year

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Sept. 10. — Norwood's $11,000 skating rink may not open this winter, according to rumors circulated about this village. The eighty shareholders have been meeting their notes every year since it was built, with the exception of very few, and have not been receiving dividends. The first year the Arena opened, said one shareholder, it did pay, but every year since they have been going behind with a greater amount. The issue, it is expected, will be decided at the next regular meeting of the shareholders in November.

The charge against Mrs. Beatrice Cornell, 98 Dublin street, of failing to obey a stop sign on July 19 when a car driven by one O'Connor struck and injured Robert Snelgrove at the corner of Water and London streets, was dismissed by His Worship Magistrate Campbell who presided at Police Court.

OPENING IS POSTPONED.

Dr. J. A. Bannister, principal of the Peterborough Normal School, received word to-day from the Ontario Department of Education, that the opening of the school has been postponed indefinitely because of the outbreak of infantile paralysis. The opening had been scheduled for Tuesday next, September 14, but in view of the later development, Dr. Bannister has no idea just when the school term will commence.

TALL SUGAR CANE.

S. J. Savigny of Smith Township has a crop of sugar cane on his farm that is setting some new records in the matter of height. The Examiner saw one stalk the other day that measured exactly seven feet, nine inches, and that is much taller than usual around this part of the country.

JUDGMENT FOR $88.70.

A judgment for $88.70 was awarded Dan Michaluk in a suit against Mrs. T. E. Guthrie and her son, E. Guthrie, in Division Court, on Thursday before Judge Smoke, concerning charges in connection with cutting of wood. T. J. Carley, K.C., represented the plaintiff and G. N. Gordon, K.C., the defendants.

OXFORD GIRLS WON.

Three Otonabee girls who represented Peterborough County as a team in girls' domestic science judging at the C.N.E. on Thursday failed to place. Alma Robinson was the only individual winner, taking a sixth place in the summer clothing project in competition with 50 girls. The other two girls on the team were Laura Taylor and Rita Torpey, all three being members of the Zion project group. Oxford County won first place.

DIVISION COURT.

T. V. Whittington of Whittington Service Station sued Hugh Davis of Capitol Taxi in Division Court for the sum of $188.80 alleged to be owing him for gasoline and oil, while he faced a counter-claim by the defendant Davis for $200 which was claimed owning on repairs. On the counter-claim His Honor Judge Sheldon Smoke allowed $39.95 and reduced the amount of the bill for gasoline and oil by $24.19. The net result was that plaintiff received judgment for $123.41, and costs. Jacob Low was counsel for the plaintiff and T. J. Carley, K.C., for the defendant.

NORMAL SCHOOL OPENING DELAYED

TORONTO, Sept. 10.—All public, separate and secondary schools of Toronto have been ordered kept closed until September 20 by the Board of Health. The command went out to the Board of Education and the Separate School Board yesterday following an emergency meeting of the Board of Health.

This action was taken partly as a result of information received from the Department of Education, advising that payment of grants to the Toronto schools would be legal only if the delayed opening of the schools was ordered by the local Board of Health. Such action, it was felt, was necessary, also, in view of the present situation in connection with the infantile paralysis epidemic.

Normal Schools Closed.

Opening of Provincial normal schools, scheduled for Tuesday, September 14, has been deferred until an abatement in the infantile paralysis epidemic takes place, Hon. Dr. J. L. Simpson, Minister of Education, announced last night.

The Board of Health originally recommended that the Board of Education and separate School Board defer opening of the schools until September 13. This action has been taken by the two boards.

The Board of Education was debating a motion to postpone opening of the schools until September 27, when Dr. Gordon Jackson, M.O.H., arrived at the School Board, and directed that the schools be closed until September 20. With the discovery that it was necessary for the Board of Health to give "orders" so that nothing would be lost by way of granda, the Board of Education merely instructed that the orders of the Board of Health be placed on the minute books.

MAY CHOOSE OUSE AS RIGHT PLACE FOR NEW HATCHERY

COTTESLOE, Sept. 10.—Hopes of the Peterborough district for a fish hatchery would seem to be about realized.

Mr. McKay, chief biologist in the department of Game and Fisheries, along with Mr. Tones of the department, have been over in the vicinity of the Ouse River and by all accounts have an option on certain properties in the vicinity north of the village of Norwood in Dummer township.

In the days of the Drury government while E. N. McDonald, present reeve of the township, represented the old riding of East Peterborough, the then deputy minister, Mr. McDonald, made a trip to the Norwood district, having in view the small creek east of the village for a hatchery.

There was not enough water supply in this creek, and the water temperature was too high for the venture.

Since then the district has been very thoroughly combed, with a view to finding a suitable location, and only a short time ago, Rork Ferguson, M.P. guided Mr. McKay to the Big Ouse, where he found what is reported to be an ideal location for a fish hatchery.

It is one of the few creeks fed from spring lakes and numberless springs in low lying timber lands, where the snow stays in the spring for some time after it has gone in other places.

The crown is in control of approximately 1,000 acre sof the land in the upper streams, and it has been a great place for deer, several hunters each fall, finding this a very convenient place to get their count.

Dummer township will welcome an effort on the part of the department of Game and Fisheries to utilize those practically waste lands for the benefit of the Province.

There would seem to be a wonderful chance to develop a real game preserve in this district, just off of No. 7 Highway and in a district close to good farming country, yet which has been for many years, considered of very little value.

The whole district will be very glad to know the department has at last found a place that would seem to be suitable and hope that the matter of property rights can be satisfactorily settled.

Keene Softballers Remain In Hunt For Southend Cup

Villagers Gain 5-3 Victory In Nip And Tuck Local Battle

Keene stayed in the hunt for the Southend League title and Warne Cup by nosing out the DeLaval team 5-3 in a nip and tuck struggle last night (Thursday) before a large crowd of fans. McCarthy and Shine hooked up in a great pitching battle, the youngster beating his more experienced rival, pitching superb ball, allowing only 2 hits, walked 4 and struckout 9. Shine allowed 6 hits, walked 3 and struckout 5 but did not receive good support.

Keene took the lead in the opening innings, scoring 2 runs on hits by Renwick, Wood and O. McCarthy. DeLaval counted with one that innings and tied things up in the second on Shine's hit, a stolen base and an error. Keene again took a one run lead in the 3rd only to have the homesters again deadlock in the 4th but the winners scored lone runs in the 5th and 6th. McCarthy bore down to hold that lead for the balance of the abbreviated 7 innings affair.

Woods, Keene's shortstop matched McCarthy's pitching with some swell defensive plays as well as having 3 of the winners 6 hits, the rest of his teammates also played heady ball to win a hard fought game. Shine and Pearson had the losers' only hits with Wright and Gordon looking best in the field.

Lineups:

DeLaval — Gatfield, 2b; Wright, ss; Wiley, 3b; Pearson, c; Gordon, cf; Shine, p; Abbott, lf; Doxsee, 1b; McGillen, rf; Griffen, rf; Frick, 1b.

Umpires—B. Ashmore and T. Miller.

These two teams clash again on Saturday afternoon at 4.00 p.m. at the Brinton diamond, in the fourth game of the 3 out of 5 games. DeLaval still having a 2 to 1 edge to date.

Beats The Men

Fifteen-year-old Wanda Natalie has attained considerable prominence at Galveston, Texas, because of her uncanny ability at playing billiards. Wanda, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patsy Natalie, thrilled an audience when she won her sixth straight victory and the Class B championship of Galveston from picked men billiard players. This is believed to be the first time a woman player ever emerged victorious over a field of such players. She has twice made a high run of 25 for perfect exhibitions. She is seen here in action.

BISONS RETAIN SLIGHT CHANCES

TORONTO, Sept. 10 (CP)—Baltimore's playoff stock in the International League jumped upward a few points today with news all is well with their star southpaw, Carl Fischer.

The slender, 32-year-old hurler, who figured prominently in the march of Buffalo Bisons to league and play-off championships last season, is counted on for some heavy duty in the post-season series by Manager Bucky Crouse. Fischer won three games for the Bisons in Governors' Cup clashes last year.

The Orioles haven't clinched their berth in the first four yet, since Buffalo Bisons are hanging on like a drowning man onto a stick, but their ace portsider brought them on the verge of it with a fine performance yesterday.

Fischer went the route for the first time in his last three starts when he beat Jersey City Giants 2-1. Carl held the Jerseys to six hits, struck out seven and walked but one.

The Bisons, faced with elimination the next time they lose, kept hoping with a 5-2 win over Toronto Leafs. Ken Ash, of no-hit fame, outpitched Earl Caldwell. Rochester closed out their home season with a 4-1 victory over Montreal Royals. Syracuse and Newark had a day off.

The above rink were last night (Thursday) declared winners in group No. 2 of the men's schedule. In their last game they met and defeated George Soulby's rink by 20-11, thereby cinching group honors.

IT IS MORE than likely that the games committee will meet in a day or so and draw up a schedule for the remainder of the season. We have already a number of entries for our twilight doubles on Monday night. It is just possible there might be a waiting list so don't be left out . . . Tonight will be mixed at 7.30. We have only two or three more Friday nights to bowl, so why not come out and join the crowd.

FIVE LOCAL RINKS are entered in the St. Matthew's double tournament for the Loblaw trophy and prizes to be played at fourteen Toronto clubs on Saturday. They are Sedgewick and partner; Dearborn and Downey; Northrop and Dyer; William and partner; Gimblett and Sackville. Two rinks are entered from the district also, Mathison and Williams of Havelock; Carleton and Carleton of Stirling.

Cricket Notes

The Peterborough Club was scheduled to play Eglinton C.C. in Toronto on Saturday, but owing to the city reverting to standard time the match has had to be cancelled. However, there will be a game at the Oval on Saturday, September 11, as the two local teams have arranged to play their third match of the season on that day.

KINGSTON HORSE WINS IN FUTURITY AT TORONTO TROT

TORONTO, Sept. 10.—It was a case of "just too much class" for Just Pete at the Canadian National Exhibition yesterday, as the Kingston-owned gelding annexed first honors in the $3,500 Trot Futurity for 3-year-olds.

Owned and driven by H. Corcoran, Just Pete proved much the best as he chalked up a straight-heat victory. In the first heat he had a good length margon over the Gwnes Stable's Kentucky Lee while in the second test there was no argument, as he sped home with easily a length and a half margin over the same horse.

In the third heat, which featured a minor spill, Just Pete again showed the way to Prince Charlie, Greatmore McKillop and Adrian Grattan Jr., in that order. Coming into the stretch the last time around, Kentucky Lee (champion) hit the bad dirt on the rail, and a spill occurred. The horse continued around the track again before being halted.

GAMES TO COUNT LACROSSE SERIES

Tonight's big lacrosse game between Oshawa 222 and the Peterborough Auburns, with the group championship possibly hinging on the result will get under way at 8.30 o'clock at the local lacrosse bowl and promises to be by long odds the most exciting battle of the season. The massacre of the Petes at Oshawa the other night when the unionists went to town to the tune of 17 to 5 has the Peterborough squad hot behind the collar and they are going out there tonight, full of fight and determination, to sew up the series by outscoring the Oshawa gang in the second game of the series. Don Crowde and Ned Vitarelli will be unable to play but it is hoped that the local battle array will be intact; otherwise and that the whole machine may be able to hit its usual stride. If it does Peterborough fans are in for some of the liveliest lacrosse of the year for the Oshawa team is red hot right now and inspired by its brilliant win at home will put on the pressure all the way. Weather conditions are most promising and a record crowd will be in the stands when the battle begins.

SPORTS DAY by DAY

Dizzing Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

WE HAVE been looking for it for the last day or two and last night it arrived. We mean the first all-star Central Ontario League team of the season. Every year about this time the fans and sometimes the sport writers start in picking these imaginary lineups. It is an interesting and harmless pastime and while it does not get anywhere it is a least entertaining. A youthful Peterborough ball fan comes to bat with the following as his array of all-star talent based on the season's performances of the four Central Ontario League clubs. First base, Wallace, Oshawa; Second base, Jubenville, Oshawa; Shortstop Clark Peterborough; Third base, Calladine, Peterborough; Right field, Buck, Kingston; centre field, McQuaide, Kingston; Left field, Burton, Peterborough; pitchers, Paczkowski, Kingston, Kitchen, Peterborough, and Biddle, Oshawa; catcher, Starr, Peterborough.

* * * * * *

MR. FAN has picked himself a pretty fair ball club in the above lineup. With his battery selections we absolutely agree his infield would be strong defensively and fairly effective on the attack, and his outfield would carry considerable punch as well as fielding ability. Personally of course we cannot see how a Central Ontario League all-star team could leave off the veteran Oshawa outfielder Mathews who after a slow start this season has been batting at a terrific rate in recent games and it would not be difficult in view of Tommy Foley's hitting during the second half of the season to put up a strong argument in favor of his being given all-star rating too.

* * * * * *

ALL ROADS will lead to the Peterborough lacrosse bowl tonight when Oshawa 222, surprise winners of the first game in the group playoffs will endeavor to head off a desperate Auburn team, out to avenge that defeat and remain in the running by taking the second game of the series. While the locals will not be at full strength tonight reinforcements will be available and the team should be considerbly stronger than on Wednesday night. The Auburns know that instead of a walkover they will be fighting with their backs to the wall and the whole squad is in a battling mood that guarantees a memorable struggle from the first faceoff.

WRITING in the sports column of the Kingston Whig-Standard about the unexpected ending to the softball game on Tuesday night between the Kingston Dukes and the local Westclox, Fred C. Beaudry admits that the Kingston fans were responsible for the fiasco and that Umpire Herb Payne had no other alternative than the course he adopted. Says the article: "As regrettable as it could be was the windup of the Dukes-Peterborough game last night at the Cricket Field and there is little question but that softball has been done a great injury as the result. The game wound up in Peterborough being awarded the decision, when a crowd of fans swarmed around the play and made further play impossible. We can understand players raising a squawk even to the point of being ejected from the game, but we never could figure out just why a crowd of fans should pull the stunt of swarming on the field and preventing the game from continuing. No matter what a person's opinion is as to decisions made by an umpire behind the plate, the fact always remains that the official is in charge of the game. The pity of it is that a lot of fans become so forgetful as to allow their emotions to run away with them. We hold no brief for any umpire; in fact it seemed that Umpire Payne, the Peterborough official behind the plate, left a lot to be desired. But in the last analysis he is entitled to protection and last night he resorted to his only alternative, that of pulling his watch and finally handing the game to Peterborough via the forfeit route. The whole affair was uncalled for on the part of the fans and the sum total of their thoughtlessness was the loss of the game to Dukes and a swell black eye to softball."

THE Chicago Cubs lost a good opportunity to gain a little on the Giants yesterday when the National League leaders broke even in a doubleheader with the Brooklyn Didgers. Carl Hubbell, Giants ace, pitched the losing end of the twin bill. However, the chance was muffed by the Cubs, who went down to defeat at the hands of the St. Louis Cards and it was Warnecke, former Chicago pitching star who did the gunning for the winners. A freak of yesterday's big league doings was the fact that Boston Red Sox made six errors against the new York Yanks and still beat the world's champs decisively.

THE disappearance of the Oshawa Blue Devils from the rugby picture this season will be regretted particularly as the dropping out of the Motor City team may have repercussions that will badly disturb the setup in Central Ontario. The Blue Devils have always had a fighting and colorful squad and they will be missed from the grid wars. This group has been developing into about the strongest district unit in the O.R.F.U. and it is unfortunate that the Oshawa team has found it necessary to retire from the stage for this year at least.

* * * * * *

A CANADIAN youngster who only a year or two ago was convorting around the diamond in O.B.A.A. fixtures in Ontario stepped out on the rubber for the Washington American League club yesterday after the starting pitcher had been severely shelled and for the balance of the game—a matter of seven innings, held the Philadelphia A's to a solitary hit. He was Joe Krakauskas whose home is in Hamilton and who won fame as a left-handed twirler in Brantford before he turned professional two seasons ago.

* * * * * *

JAKE BIDDLE'S left arm may have lost some of its cunning but after yesterday's playoff game in Oshawa it will be difficult to make the Kingston Ponies believe it. Oshawa evened the series by walloping Joe Daley's crew 11 to 2 and Biddle went the full route for the winners, striking out eight of the Ponies and blanking them until the last frame by which time the Ontario champs had piled up a big lead. Old Jack Williams was assigned the job of holding the GM-men in check but the ancient left hander was far from equal to the task, taking a terrific beating from the Oshawa hitters. The Ponies gave up the fight early for when a relief pitcher was needed the job was handed to Harold Buck, the right fielder, who has done little throwing in years.

* * * * * *

HERE is what the Oshawa sport writers has to say about the downfall of the Auburns in Oshawa the other night: With the cheques down and the "money series" going, Kelly Degray, Oshawa's veteran ace, led the 222 team to a brilliant victory, Oshawa's accurate passes, which shifted the play to all sides with amazing speed, Oshawa's passing attack had the visiting team dumbfounded and they couldn't compete with the homester's brilliant attacks. "Red" Creighton turned in another starry game in the nets or Peterborough would not have held Oshawa to 17 goals. On the other hand, led by Kelly DeGray, Oshawa's rear guard made the path to their goal, a rocky road to travel. Peterborough ball carriers found themselves checked hard and close all the time and Ted Clark, in the Oshawa net, also turned in a brilliant display to held the visitors to only 5 goals for the night—the owest total Peterborough has had this ayear, even including their game against Orillia Terriers. Oshawa's attacking force and their defense strength were boih at the best they have been this season. It was a typical example of giving the best display in playoff competition and if the Unionists can come through with another display on Friday night in Peterborough, they'll end the series in two straight."

OSHAWA CLUB TIES UP SERIES WITH 11-2 WIN

OSHAWA, Ont., Sept. 10. — Oshawa General Motors tied up the Central Ontario Baseball League finals at Alexander Park last night when they defeated Kingston Ponies 11-2 in the second game of the series. The next game is in Kingston on Saturday, with the fourth game back in Oshawa on Monday evening.

With their southpaw ace in splendid form, "GM Men" were full value for their win last night. "Jake" Biddle struck out eight Kingston batters, several of them at very opportune times, and except for the final frame, when he obviously eased up, the Ponies were never able to score or even get past second base. Biddle showed all his old time zip and control as he held the Ponies in check while on the other hand the "GM Men" pounded the veteran southpaw. "Chief" Williams, quite freely, especially in the fourth and fifth innings.

How They Scored.

In the first inning, Hurst singled and then Bennett's hard drive took a bad bounce past McQuade and went for three bases, Hurst scoring. Bennett was tagged at the plate trying to score on a fielder's choice. Williams held Oshawa fairly well for the next two frames, but they broke loose in the fourth canto and scored enough to win the game. "Moose" Matthews started things away with a two-bagger and scored on Rowden's single. Rowden's hit went between McQuaide's legs and "the doc" kept right on going to the plate. May singled, advanced on Jubenville's single, a fielder's choice and scored from third when Williams tried to catch Wallace off first base. Wallace went to second also on the bad throw and scored from there with some brilliant running when Biddle grounded to Buck at first base.

Score by innings:

Mick Cochrane Signs Contract As Tigers' Non-Playing Pilot

'Pepperpot' Writes Finish To Active Career Behind The Plate

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (CP)—Old Pop Time marked up the final out for one of baseball's grander playing careers today.

Mickey Cochrane was definitely and officially through as a catcher; in future, he'll be bench manager only for his Detroit Tigers.

And all over the big leagues, the reaction was the same:

"He was a great guy while he had it."

Mickey was the sparkplug of one world championship team and backbone and manager of another. But, in addition to all that, he's a "right guy." The boys all like Mickey, and baseball will have to go a long way to find another "man in an iron mask," with his playing ability, his "pepper" or his personality.

Signs New Contract

His 34 years and the effects of a "beanball" that fractured his skull early this season have made him hang up his mitt and mask for keeps. Yesterday he wrote finis to his playing career by signing a new contract as non-playing pilot of the Tigers for next season.

While Mickey prepared to leave tonight for a tour of Europe, the rest of the big time dug in again for their stretch drive.

In the National League, the Giants were three games in front by virtue of a split in their doubleheader with their beat-loved "haters," Brooklyn Dodgers. Carl Hubbell was belted 5-1 in the opener, but the New Yorkers came back to take the nightcap 9-2.

Boost Margin

This even break boosted their league edge a half game since the Cubs' finally lost their jinx hold on the Cardinals and were given a thorough going over, the gas house gang winning 8-2 behind Lon Warneke.

The Red Sox stopped stooging for the Yankees for a day and hammered out a 12-7 victory over the American League leaders with a 16-hit attack. This defeat, coupled with the Tigers' 10-9 victory over the Indians, cut the Yanks' pace-setting margin to 11 games.

Dutch Brandt's four-hitter gave the Pirates a 1-0 decision over Cincinnati Reds. Vince Dimaggio's three-run homer did the same for Boston Bees over the Phillies, by a 5-3 margin.

The Senators slugged the Athletics twice, 13-6 and 12-10, with a total of 30 hits. The White Sox outlasted the Browns 9-8.

USE HEEL OF CLUB FACE TO OVERCOME INCONSISTENCY IN PUTTING

Number 82

There is nothing more pitiful than the player who is inconsistent with his putting. When he is short one time and much too strong the next, or, if he pulls one putt to the left and then pushes the next one to the right, you want to concede every putt under 10 feet to lessen the agony.

Every player suffers from this inconsistency on the greens at some time or another, but there is a comparatively simple way of avoiding it. Inconsistent direction or force in striking the ball always finds the ball being struck at different points on the clubface.

This variance in the striking point in itself is enough to cause all of the inconsistency in direction and power, as you can demonstrate to your own satisfaction simply by bouncing a ball on the different parts of the blade.

Just hold the putter in your left hand so that the shaft and blade are in a horizontal position with the striking surface facing upward. Then drop a ball first on the heel of the clubface and then on the toe. You will immediately feel a solid striking when the ball drops against that section nearest the shaft and a weakness when it drops near the toe.

Simply apply this to your putting and always aim to strike the ball with the heel of the clubface. It will afford you consistency in both direction and distance.

Next: Clubhead on Ground.

TWO CANADIANS AMONG LEADERS OPEN GOLF TITLE

TORONTO, Sept. 10 — (C.P.). — For years the Canadian Open Golf tournament and Leo Diegel were almost synonymous and it may be that again. The old warrior with the cramped putting stance, four times winner of the event led the field to-day with another veteran, Harry Cooper, as they started on the second 18 of the 72-hole competition.

Diegel and Cooper, victor at Ottawa in 1932, shot 67's, three under par yesterday and held a two-stroke advantage over Billie Burke of Cleveland and Ed Oliver of Wilmington, Del.

Golfers with a sentimental touch and those who remember how much Diegel has done for the open are pulling for him to extend his wins to five. When the event was only a secondary competition, Diegel came to Canada, practically discovered the open and touted it to other pros in the United States. The influx of stars from across the border has much to do with the open becoming a top-ranking tournament.

Diegel narrowly missed leading the field along yesterday. He had a six-foot putt on the 18th green for a 66 and missed it.

Poor Showing

Lawson Little, the defending champion, and Slammin' Sam Snead the pre-tournament favorite—both lengthy off the tee—were deep in the ruck when the final scores were posted.

Little played poor golf on his outgoing nine and had to come home in 35 to post a 74. Snead posted a 75, the same score as his partner, Bobby Gray, Jr., of Windsor, Ont.

As they started out on the second round, only two Canadians appeared to be in the hunt for a crown no native son has won since before the war. Bobby Alston, the slender Ottawa professional, and R. H. Green of Kingston, Ont., both posted 72's yesterday.

New Record Holder 'Chaired'

After Stanley C. Wooderson, ace miler of Great Britain, had broken the world's record for that distance, he was "chaired" by his enthusiastic teammates and supporters at New Malden, Eng., as shown in this picture. Wooderson, competing in the mile run at the Blackheath Harriers' inter-team and relay meeting, was timed in four minutes, six and three-fifths seconds for the distance. The previous record was four minutes, six and four fifths seconds, held by Glenn Cunningham, the Kansas star from the U. S.

Six-Team Rugby Circuit Likely For Central Ontario District

Lindsay, Cobourg And Petes In One Half-Play Interlocking Schedule

Possibility of a six-team Intermediate Rugby Loop in Eastern Ontario loomed last night when it was suggested that Lindsay, Cobourg and Peterborough play an interlocking schedule with the recently formed three-team group consisting of Kingston Signals, Belleville and Royal Canadian Air Force.

The possibility was mooted when Oshawa failed to send a delegate to the local meeting, leaving three teams, and Cobourg and Lindsay promptly declared that a three-team group could not be operated as a financial success, and stated further, unless different arrangements were made they were definitely out of the rugby competition for the year.

Oshawa Not Interested.

Lou E. Brooks, O.R.F.U. convenor at Peterborough, who presided at the meeting, phoned Oshawa and was told that the Motor City would not be likely to have a team in competition. He then phoned W. A. Fry at Belleville, suggesting the six-team hook-up which would give every team five home games and sufficient gates to keep the various entries out of the red, Mr. Fry stated he would take the questions up with the officials of the three teams and advise Brooks if a meeting to be held at Cobourg on Monday next for the drafting of a six-team schedule would be satisfactory.

F. F. Dutton of Cobourg, in giving his club's viewpoint, stated that a three-team group would mean two home games and a deficit for the team, whereas, if the team lost one game they were practically out of the running for the year.

In view of a definite lack of intermediate teams in Western Ontario the six-team group here would be the strongest in the province with the possible exception of a Toronto group.

The question of umpires and other vital points concerning the group are scheduled for discussion at the meeting in Cobourg, if it meets the approval of the Belleville-Kingston crowd.

Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (CP)—Mike Jacobs said today he offered Freddy Steele $40,000 to fight Fred Apostoli for the middleweight title, but Steele turned it down...Why?...Prof. Larry Kelley (who has shaved off his soup strainer, by the way) opines the pros were no tougher than good collitch eleven...Best move the Dodger directors have made in a long time was the resigning of Burleigh Grimes...That Spikes reports that Lefty O'Doul is shifting from San Francisco to Ebbets Field...Joe McCarthy says there'll be no dead ball in the American League next year...If there is, the Yanks are sunk.

Washington Redskins should credit Branch Rickey with an assist ...Sammy Baugh, the passing fool from Texas Christian, signed with the Redskins...Later he signed to play baseball with the Cards....Latter contract stipulated there would be no football...Poor Sammy was in a strut trying to make up his mind...Along came Rickey..."We want no contract breakers," he told Baugh..."You report to Washington"...Sammy did—by air...Incidentally, he has one of the best contracts in the league—two seasons at 7,500 potatoes per.

Tommy Farr says the real reason he broke with Manager Ted Broadribb was that Ted did nothing to heal his cut eyes on the night of the Louis fight...to which we say nerts.

Soccer Notes

Saturday's soccer bill is the final of the Father Phelan Charity Cup between the Canadian General and the Canada Packers on King Edward Park. Kick off at three o'clock. The referee will be chosen by the secretary and other referees will act as linesmen, so that will give the teams three referees. If a draw at the end of the 90 minutes, another game will be necessary.

After the game, a juvenile exhibition game will be played between the Delco Juveniles and the local Juveniles. In the previous game at Delco, the local boys won 4-0.

A special meeting of the local board will be held on Monday evening at eight o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. Please attend promptly so as to get important business transacted.

Greyhound Attempts Break Trot Record

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 10.—(AP).—Eyes of the world's trotting fans were focussed to-day on Greyhound, sensational five-year-old gelding scheduled for an afternoon attempt against time to set a new world record on the Indiana State Fair Ground mile oval.

Weather conditions permitting, the dauntless son of Roy Abbey was to make an effort to break the mark of 1.56⅘ established by Peter Manning at Lexington, Ky., in 1922. The gelding is owned by E. J. Baker of St. Charles, Illinois.

Greyhound, winner of the 1935 Hambletonian for three-year-olds, has stepped the mile in 1.57¼ on three separate occasions.

SHORTS NOT INDECENT

PARIS—(CP)—Two young Belgians—man and wife—clad in shorts were arrested at Paris Exhibition on a charge of being indecently clothed. The case was dismissed when they told the magistrate they had travelled all over the world wearing shorts.

CAPTURED BY REBELS

LONDON, Sept. 10 (AP). — The 1,019-ton British freighter Stanwold reported she was captured by a Spanish insurgent war vessel in the Bay of Biscay, Lloyd's disclosed today.

The marine underwriters said a message from the Stanwold reported she was seized last night within Spanish territorial waters near Ribadasella, on the north coast of Spain, about 30 miles east of Gijon, a government-held port.

The Stanwold, owned by the Stanhope Steamship Company of London, left Bordeaux on September 3 for Gijon.

Nearly 127,000,000 pounds of rice will be imported into the Philippines this year.

CHAPTER 30

ALMA GREER stirred the soup in the big black kettle with one hand and shook paprika on the salad in a huge, misshapen bowl with the other. "Cecily, take Ted's typewriter off the table. We'll have to use that one."

Cecily said, "I can't." She held her sides and let out her breath. "Mari, I've never seen you in such a mood." She went off into gales of laughter again.

Alma said, "Mari, fun's fun but see that you don't take off our eminent bankers before any of their compatriots, they might not understand. And you do look a little like Monsier LeVene, even if he has a beard and you haven't."

"Oh, goodness, Alma, I haven't had such fun since I can remember. I guess it's getting the weight off my mind, knowing that Mark could handle things so competently. I wish you could have seen him..."

Ted Greer lumbered up the narrow stairs, bellowed through the door and opened it. "Is that party still going on?"

Mari, Alma and Cecily said it wasn't, and went off into laughter again.

Ted flung an arm about his wife, dipped a wooden spoon into the soup and demanded to know what the merriment was all about.

"Oh, Ted, you must see Mari take off the bankers..."

"It wasn't really funny, Ted," Mari said. "It was very important and involved hundreds of thousands of francs. And all the papers were signed today. But when it came time for me to sign them, I really felt that I needed only an 'X' instead of my name. I had so little to do with it.

"It was like a moving picture in which you see an actor do a new serious role in a comic situation. Mark was superb. He rattled off French and pounded his hands on the table and the Frenchmen pounded and and shauted 'Non, Non,' until I was terrified that the thing would not go through. It all happened so fast I didn't know what it was all about. But at lunch, Mr. Leland, who is Mark's something or other like an equerry, told me that everything is settled and if the thing doesn't work out financially, I have no responsibility. All I have to do is to okay plans."

"But, Mari, that will mean that it isn't your company. It will belong to other people and you'll only be a figurehead."

"Oh, no it won't," she retorted, confidently. "Instead of money, I had only to put up my reputation and all that. It will belong to me soon. Wait and see."

Ted shrugged his shoulders but he had his doubts.

"Soup's done, salad's ready. There's a yard and a half of bread and some beautiful old cheese," Alma said.

They'd got to the coffee stage when Mari said, "Heavens. I almost forgot. I'm dancing tonight with Mark and I should be dressed now. What time is it?"

"A little after 8."

Mari didn't get up. She stirred the pewter spoon in the handleless green cup on the orange saucer. She stirred it dreamily.

Her eyes swung slowly around the garret studio. They rested on the four lounges in the four corners that served as beds by night. They drank in the canvasses and the easel that were Alma's. There was a pleasant haze above the smoking lamps, the smoke from their cigarets. The smell of paint and coffee and verbena, a curious American scent, pervaded the room.

Somewhere out of doors chimes cut silvery notes through the night.

Mari leaned her arms on the table. Her heart felt warm, her body was filled with a sense of well-being. Her mood was amiable, affectionate toward these friends who, perforce, had to fill so much of her life. It was the Greers now. It had been the Wollastons the year before. American newspaper people shifted about to various posts on the continent, coming and going out of her life, offering her the only friendships she had.

"I shan't ever want anything but this," she said softly.

Ted opened his mouth to speak; his wife touched his ankle with the toe of her shoe.

"Completely happy?" she said to Mari.

"Of course," Mari answered, "but I wasn't thinking of that. I was thinking that I can't ever be any happier than I am at this moment with you. It's the simplicity of it all. I like simple things. I don't want anything else."

Cecily sighed. "Simple things. Putting an extra carrot into yesterday's stew and making it into today's soup. Having friends turn up from America expecting to be shown Paris and then having to borrow 20 francs to buy a bottle of vin rouge and pretending to be Bohemian. What I'd give for a charge account at the corner grocery store and a shopping fling at a good American department store."

"That's being simple, too, Cecily."

"She means that she doesn't care for footmen and emeralds, and town houses and glamor, Cecily," Ted contributed.

"Show me the woman who doesn't," his wife retorted.

"I can," Mari said, "I'll show her to you in person someday. Mari Barat. I wouldn't have a footman around my place. I wouldn't own a town car. I may move into a modest apartment and engage a bonne but that will be all."

Yet less than a fortnight later, Mari Barat had moved into a tiny furnished house that was a bijou in itself.

She had a town car and a chauffeur in violet livery, a maid in violet taffeta, a cook and a butler.

And she had a number of very bad dreams.

That was after Mark Sutherland had made good his threat to become her business manager.

He had, in his own terms, "talked turkey" to her after the papers had been signed with the bankers and the representatives from the manufacturing textile houses.

"Launching yourself on a career like this, Mary, is like launching yourself as a politician. You've got to be set up as a person. I told you I had plans for you. What I haven't got, Larry Holk will have."

Larry Holk was the press agent Mark had engaged for her, his salary to be paid out of the "hundreds of thousands of francs."

"But, Mark, I haven't time for me. I have architects and decorators and an enlarged staff to engage. I'm not important to it."

"You're the works," he retorted. "Now then Larry will tell you about the interviews, the receptions and all the rest that he has arranged. By the way, you can't receive in that pension. Larry's found you a place and servants. He'll tell you about your clothes."

"No one will tell me about clothes, mine or anyone else's," she retorted firmly.

"All right, then we'll talk about people. You've got to cut the wrong people and know the right ones. Next month, you'll meet me in London. My sister Ellen, who is the Viscountess Verlaine, is expecting you for a week."

SEEKING NEW TIPS

QUEBEC Sept. 10 (CP). — Here on a holiday trip, but planning to keep their "eyes open and learn something about agriculture in Canada," a group of 14 Englishmen and their wives arrived here to-day. Their tour of Canada, which will take them to the Pacific Coast and back, is sponsored by the British National Union. Sir Richard Winfrey of Norfolk, newspaper owner, former M.P. and one time Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Agriculture, is leader of the party.

Bedtime Story

By
HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SHOWER BATH

Around and around on the edge of the bath basin hopped the robin, looking this way and that, listening with both ears, which Uncle Wiggily couldn't see because feathers covered them.

"Oh, hop in and splash!" said Mr. Longears. "You make me nervous waiting so long before you take your bath."

"Excuse me," chirped the robin, "but, as I told you, 'if I go in and begin splashing I can't see or hear danger. I must be careful and make sure none is near before I go in."

"Well, we thought we heard some one coming," said the rabbit gentleman, "but I guess it was a false alarm."

"I guess so," agreed the bird. "I don't hear anything now. So I may as well hop in and take my bath."

"And I may as well go back to sleep again," said Uncle Wiggily, who was at his camping tent all alone, every one else having gone to a picnic.

Wrong Idea

"Yes, go to sleep," said the robin "I have been very careful. There is no danger."

But there was danger coming. The Fox and the Bob Cat were coming nearer and nearer, hoping to catch Uncle Wiggily asleep in front of his tent. The Bob Cat had seen him there and had gone to get the Fox to help catch the rabbit gentleman.

Soon Uncle Wiggily was fast asleep again.

And the careful robin, having hopped many times around the rim of the bath, at last hopped in and began to give himself a shower bath.

"Are we almost there?" whispered the Fox to the Bob Cat as the two Bad Chaps were sneaking through the woods toward the camping tent of Uncle Wiggily.

"Yes, almost," whispered the Bob Cat. "In a little while we shall have a good meal!"

"Yum! Yum! How hungry I am!" whined the Fox.

"I'm hungry, too!" purred the Bob Cat.

On and on they went. All of a sudden the Bob Cat stopped.

"What's the matter?" asked the Fox who was behind him.

"Someone is with Uncle Wiggily!" whispered the Bob Cat.

"Why?" asked the Fox. "Tell me. I can't see through you."

"It's the robin bird taking a bath," said the Bob Cat.

"Not I!" mewed the Bob Cat.

Sneak Up

"Nor I!" said the Fox. "Go on! Is Uncle Wiggily asleep?"

"Yes, right in front of the tent where we can easily get him."

"Hurray!" chuckled the Fox.

Closer and closer they sneaked to Mr. Longears. Then, all of a sudden the robin who was almost finished bathing, stood up in his bath and looked around. He saw the Bad Chaps.

"Wake up, Uncle Wiggily! Wake up!" screamed the robin flying away. And as he flew he spattered a shower bath of water over the rabbit. The dripping drops awakened Mr. Longears.

"Oh!" he cried. "It's raining! I'm getting a shower bath!"

Then he saw the Fox and Bob Cat. As quick as a wink Mr. Longears popped into the tent and tied it shut so the Bad Chaps couldn't get him. "Ha! Ha!" he laughed at them.

"Fooled again!" snarled the Bob Cat as he and the Fox slunk away.

And if the clothes pin will stand on its head and let the washstand put its stockings on I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Miss Mouse.

JAPS HAMMER CHINESE FRONT HEAVIER GUNS

SHANGHAI, Sept. 11.— (AP).—Japan's expeditionary force to-day launched aerial and artillery bombardment of Chinese troop concentrations, apparently in preparation for a general offensive against the defenders of Shanghai.

Japanese planes and naval guns concentrated on the key Woosung forts at the juncture of the Yangtze and Whangpoo rivers and outranged China's guns.

The attack spread along a wide front from Woosung to Liuho, far up the Yangtze, and a broad section inland came within the range of heavy firing. Heavy casualties were believed to have been inflicted on the Chinese forces.

The heaviest guns yet brought into action shelled the powerfully held Chinese positions around Kiangwan, the International recreation centre of Shanghai's northernmost outskirts.

There a Japanese land attack rolled toward the Chinese lines in an early morning attempt to wrest important territory from the defenders. Japanese authorities admitted, however, that the Chinese were putting up valiant resistance.

Bomb Women, Children.

Japanese airmen swooped over war-scarred Shanghai and dropped bombs on the Nantao civilian district, killing and wounding an undetermined number of Chinese, principally women and children. The Chapei native quarter also suffered from Japanese aerial bombs.

Across the river at oPtung Japanese warships bombarded the Chinese artillery emplacements that have disorganzied attempts to land Japanese troops in the heart of Greater Shanghai.

Shanghai welcomed rain that broke the heat and a long drought. Chinese said usual September rains were long overdue, and asserted they would greatly hamper the Japanese army.

Threat of disease remained in Shanghai, where authorities disclosed that more than 300 Chinese had been segregated because of cholera and that 20 new cases a day were being discovered.

Meanwhile the powerful Italian cruiser Raimondo Montecuccoli, one of the swiftest units of Mussolini's war fleet, steamed toward Shanghai with 600 men to strengthen the International forces in the war area. The warship, equipped with a catapult and three planes, is due tomorrow.

In addition, 700 picked Sardinian Grenadiers are scheduled to arrive Tuesday as reinforcements for the 800 Italian troops already in the war zone. The Italians are coming directly from East Africa, where they took part in Il Duce's conquest of Ethiopia.

Italy's land and naval forces thus will total about five men to every Italian resident of the region.

The buildings will be of light and adaptable construction with sliding walls, sun-roofs and portable classrooms. Equipment will be of the newest and most health-giving kind. Nourishing dinners will be served daily in school club rooms.

Foot-baths, showers, tooth brush brigades and rest periods on portable beds will be part of the daily program. Films will be used not only to supplement lessons but to teach correct methods of walking, breathing, dancing, swimming and playing football, cricket and other games.

Ill Woman Barred From Entering U.S.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Sept. 11 (AP).—The first instance of Canadian motorists being turned back from the United States since an infantile paralysis guard was established here recently was reported today.

A Customs officer at the international border reported having stopped an automobile when he noticed a woman passenger seemed ill. He called two public health physicians and the case was diagnosed as infantile paralysis. The driver, a man, was told to return to the Dominion with his passenger.

The Canadians were reported to have come from Crowland, Ont. Their names were not disclosed.

Sympathies Shown By Baillie-Stewart

LONDON, Sept. 11.—(CP).—Declaring his sympathies had always been "elsewhere than in England," Norman Baillie-Stewart, who recently completed a five-year prison term for betraying secrets for a foreign power, wrote from Belgium to friends he was going to put his sympathies to some constructive purpose.

Known as the "Officer in the Tower" because he was detained in the Tower of London after his arrest, Baillie-Stewart wrote: "I now enter into a voluntary and pleasurable exile."

He added a post script: "You'll notice how jolly non-committal I've been in this letter. Very discreet in fact. Well, it's because of the secret service. Fine body of men, but lacking quite a lot of things."

Tidal Wave, Typhoon, Floods, Strike Japan

Empire's Shipping, Crops For Army Heavily Damaged

Scores Are Killed—Troop Reserves Called Out For Rescue Work

TOKYO, Sept. 11 (AP)—A raging typhoon, a tidal wave and floods spread destruction today through wide sections of war-excited Japan.

Inland property damage and damage to the island empire's shipping was extensive. In some sections the storm swept away crops, counted on to feed Japan's soldiers in China.

The storm and tidal wave struck along the southern coast of Japan's main islands. Near Nikko, 8 miles southwest of Tokyo, 15 men were buried alive by a landslide. At least a score more were known to have been killed in other storm sections.

Okayama police reported three killed, 12 injured, and 52 ships shattered. Army reseres, awaiting a possible call for service in China, were called out to deal with the catastrophe.

At Kochi, on Shikoku Island, two schools collapsed, killing three boys and injuring three others. The Kochi reservoir walls caved in. Flood waters mounted. Homes were demolished. Railway lines and bridges were washed out.

Tidal wave waters raised the flood to a height of 25 feet in some sections. At least 100 houses were submerged. Fishing boats ran aground. Electric power lines were demolished.

In Osaka, 600 houses were inundated. In Kobe 500 homes were under water.

Takamatsu reported 15 killed, 200 fishing vessels slunk and 1,000 houses flooded.

TWO PEDESTRIANS KILLED, HIGHWAY NEAR HAMILTON

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 11 (CP).—Two pedestrians were killed on the highways near Hamilton during the night, the victims being John Byers, 55, of Saltfleet, and an unidentified middle-aged transient.

Byers suffered fatal injuries when he stepped in front of a motor car on the Queenston highway near the Saltfleet monument.

In the other accident Provincial Traffic Officer Edward Jess was informed by Frank Smith of Winona that he was eastbound at a moderate speed early today when a man suddenly stepped on the pavement ahead. Smith applied the brakes but was unable to stop in time, and the man was taken by Dr. F. F. Green to General Hospital, where he died an hour after admittance.

Coroner Dr. D. G. Glendenan said an inquest would be held and efforts are being made to identify the victim and trace relatives.

BRITISH STEAMER BOMBED OFF SPAIN

LONDON, Sept. 11 (CP)—Owners of the British steamship Stanbridge reported today the ship was "heavily bombed" yesterday while evacuating 1,000 refugees from the north Spanish port of Gijon.

The ship was proceeding toward La Pallice, France, with a destroyer escort.

First reports said the ship was in bad condition, but later the captain said "All's well."

British dispatches from Palma, Mallorca, said the Insurgent cruiser Canarias captured the British tanker Romford, carrying a cargo of oil to a Spanish government port.

The Romford, which formerly was the Ionea under Greek registration, is a 5,845-ton vessel. She left Haifa Sept. 1 and is believed to be the same ship attacked by an unidentified airplane 20 miles off Barcelona on Sept. 6.

Girl Is Slugged With Milk Bottle

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 11 (CP).—Confessing he had slugged the girl because he wanted money to buy a bicycle, a 13-year-old Windsor lad was held by police today. Arrest of the lad came after Ruth Patch, 17, was slugged on the head with a milk bottle as she returned home from a store last night.

42,000 NAZI BOYS PLEDGE FEALTY

NUREMBERG, Germany, Sept. 11 (AP).—Hitler youth, 42,000 strong, stood in the stadium here today, chilled by a steady rain, and intoned undying fealty to their Fuehrer.

The Chancellor himself stood before them beside his personal representative, Rudolf Hess, who administered the oath. Those who took the vow were from 12 to 18 years of ag. Hess also pledged 18-year-olds as prospective members of the Nazi Party.

A responsive reading emphasized Communism as the enemy of the Hitler youth. Over the broad field rolled the chant of 42,000 young voices:

"The Sovietist may carry his banner before him but we will win victory with our standard."

One hundred and forty thousand brown-uniformed functionaries attending the National Socialist Congress heard Hitler last night declare, "Germany never will be conquered now—either from without or within."

Finding Of $20 Costs Man $100

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Finding a $20 bill cost Lawrence Jenneweing $100.

Moved by his good fortune, he bought drinks for all in the tavern where he had picked the bill from the floor. Then George Birkenmaier walked in and claimed the $20.

Jenneweing went to court. He had to pay back the $20 plus another $20 provided under Missouri law in the case of non-returned property, plus court costs—total $100.

Boat And One Body Of Trio Discovered

A six-day search for three Toronto men and the dinghy in which they were sailing across Lake Ontario from Toronto on a week-end cruise was believed ended with the finding of a water-filled boat and the body of a man. The three men had been reported missing when they failed to make an appearance at their destination. Aeroplanes and life-saving boats scoured the lake without success. The boat and body found near Port Weller and discovered by two young girls on their way swimming, are shown in the upper photograph, at the bottom of a steep cliff, after apparently being washed ashore. The water-filled dinghy is shown in the lower photograph.

Hepburn Fears Shortage Of Canadian Iron

Encourages Industries' Development—Sees Rowe Catering To Drys

SUDBURY, Ont., Sept. 11 (CP)—Development of Ontario iron ore mines today found a staunch supporter in Premier Mitchell Hepburn who saw in the troubled European situation threat of a shortage in the Canadian iron industry.

In an address to a Sudbury political gathering last night, he mentioned the possibility of another world war. Scrap iron was being shiped out of the Dominion in great quantities which produced the shortage danger. Conservative leader Earl Rowe attacked the bounty placed on iron ore at the last session of the legislature although he had advocated the same step.

Mr. Hepburn, who speaks at Little Current this afternoon and at Blind River tonight, said the Conservative leader catered to prohibition sentiments without committing himself in any change in liquor laws. Mr. Rowe supported the government which put the present liquor act into effect and was apparently willing to give beer licenses to restaurants which the Liberal government opposed.

Mr. Hepburn demanded the Conservative leader produce letters he claimed were sent to hotel keepers and which levied a gallonage tax on beer. The premier declared himself unaware of any such letters.

Finances Improved

Improvement in Ontario's financial situation was claimed. Mr. Hepburn said the government inherited funded debt of $614,000,000 and $100,000,000 in unpaid bills and overdrafts. Despite this, his admin-

GUELPH, Ont., Sept. 11 (C.P.).—When his sow became ill, a Garafraxa farmer determined to save the lives of her eight small piglets. They are doing well on bottle-feeding, but the farmer finds it takes a great deal of his time to feed eight pigs every three hours.

Fall Canning Rush Clogs Incinerator

London, On., Sept. 11.

WHETHER it was because tomatoes went down to 15 cents a basket Saturday or that housewives have suddenly indulged in the season's canning activities, the city incinerator plant has been overtaxed for the past two or three days and it is necessary to use city dumps to some extent.

Yesterday 120 tons of raw garbage was delivered at the plant through the collection service to be burned, but all of it could not be handled.

Officials said refuse from tomatoes and fruit was responsible for the extra load.

CANADA'S EXPORTS WELL OVER BILLION

OTTAWA, Sept. 11 (C.P.).—Canada wrote a favorable balance of $403,961,000 at the bottom of its external trade records in the twelve months ended July 31. This is an increase of $61,863,000 over the credit balance for the preceding twelve months, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday.

Domestic exports expanded 22.8 per cent. from $918,751,000 to $1,128,508,000 and foreign re-exports 26.6 per cent. from $12,500,000 to $15,830,000. Imports were 39.5 per cent. heavier, the total being $740,377,000 compared with $589,153,000.

Total trade mounted to $1,888,714,000, a gain of 24 per cent. from $1,520,404,000.

Customs duties totalled $97,039,000, up 14.6 per cent. from $84,654,000.

ARMED, THREE GUNS KIDNAPPER TAKEN WITHOUT BATTLE

ROME, N.Y., Sept. 11 (AP)—Clyde Derrick, 29, wanted for the kidnapping of two Johnson City, N.Y., policemen, was captured in a vacant house here today without a battle, although he was heavily armed, Chief of Police Joseph T. Owens said.

Owens said Derrick had three guns, including two stolen from the policemen when he commandeered their prowl car last Saturday. A posse of Rome policemen surrounded the house, caught him napping and he "came out meek as a lamb," Owens said.

Enroute here were policemen Patrick Cunningham and Harry Pettit, held prisoner for 12 hours by a calm-voiced desperado who forced them at gun point to drive him many miles over rural roads. Their automobile was located in woods west of Rome, Chief Owens said.

At Johnson City, State Police Sergeant Leo O'Hanley said Derrick's capture came after he had held up an unidentified "pal" and forced the latter at gun point to feed him and find him a hiding place.

A Japanese sword manufacturing plant will be built in Manchuria.

Roads Washed Out Power Lines Down Cellars Flooded

All Night Fall Closely Follows Worst Electric Storm of Year Day Before

SUDBURY, Ont., Sept. 11 (CP).—Rail, highway and street traffic in the Sudbury district was at a standstill early today after a night of torrential rain. The fall was measured at 4.54 inches in the second worst flood ever known here.

Street railway traffic to Copper Cliff was suspended as result of two serious washouts and highway buses were far behind schedule with many minor washouts reported on all district roads. Power service in Sudbury and Coniston was disrupted when power cables were short-circuited.

Nolin and Junction creeks, winding through the main section of Sudbury, were responsible for serious flood conditions in the city.

Many downtown stores had flooded basements and St. Joseph's Hospital was almost isolated.

The heavy rainfall closely followed one of the most severe electrical storms of the season the previous night.

Buses Marooned.

Water was reported to have backed up into the Sudbury power house at Lake Ramsay, where an intake channel is under construction, and caused considerable trouble.

Blocked catch basins were responsible for many feet of water on the Copper Cliff road near Douglas street and the street railway lines in the same neighborhood reported washouts.

Buses on the Sudbury-Creighton Mine run were marooned by flood waters in their garage and service will be stopped until perhaps late this afternoon.

Little material damage was reported from the neighboring towns of Copper Cliff and Creighton Mine, with the exception of numerous washouts.

For eight hours the flood waters

Policemen's Authority As Hitler Sees It

Nuremberg, Germany, Sept. 11.

CHANCELLOR HITLER told a formation of Nazified policemen at the party congress yesterday why they could not carry clubs any more.

A policeman, he said, should have such authority that people either would obey him or expect to get shot.

"But," he added, "what is intolerable is to belabor people on the back with clubs as though they belonged to barbaric tribes."

Former accountant in the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce here for seven years, J. Orme Sparling died suddenly at St. Michael's Hospital at Toronto on Friday night. He was 46 years of age and at the time of his death was serving as a clerk in the head office of the Bank of Commerce.

Born in Toronto in 1891, Mr. Sparling served with various branches of the old Standard Bank in Ontario and Western Canada before its merger with the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Before going to Toronto a year ago he was for a lengthy term accountant at the Peterborough branch.

He entered the employ of the Standard Bank in 1910 and worked in Strathroy, Maple, Campbellford, Toronto and Kingston. From 1919 to 1926 he was manager of the Standard Bank at Wayne, Alberta.

Predeceased by his wife, the former Miss Wood of Campbellford, a daughter of F. W. Wood, he leaves an only son Jimmie, 4 years old, and also his mother, Mrs. J. A. McCutcheon and a sister, Mrs. T. R. Kalmeyer, all of Toronto.

The funeral is to be held under Masonic auspices on Monday at 2.30 p.m. (D.S.T.) at the funeral parlors of the Fred W. Matthews Company, 665 Spadina avenue, Toronto. Interment will be made at Campbellford on Tuesday afternoon.

U.S. TO CHECK UP ON SCRAP EXPORT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP). — Proposal the United States Congress investigate the effect of increased scrap metal exports on iron and steel supply won the endorsement of four major departments of the Government today in letters revealed by the Senate Military Committee.

Army and Navy officials pointing out scrap metal was an important military commodity, strongly recommended Congress make a study of domestic supplies and the possible effect of unrestricted exports. Commerce and interior departments added their approval.

State Secretary Hull was less enthusiastic about the proposal, but said he would not object. He offered to furnish the committee copies of a confidential report made by interdepartmental investigators. He suggested this report might supply all the information Congress would want.

Chairman Sheppard (D., Tex.) of the committee said more hearings would be held early in the next session of Congress on a proposal by Senator Schwellenbach (D., Wash.) to require licensing of all scrap metal exporters.

"We must have some regulation of this steadily increasing export of scrap metal," Sheppard said. "Not only is it a means of carrying on war, but we need it at home for our own industrial uses."

Student Suicided Home-Made Chair

CHICAGO, Sept. 11. — (AP).—Bertram R. Brauchler, 27-year-all honor student with a technical knowledge of electricity, used a home made electric chair to end his life.

His body was found in his room last night with a strand of copper wire attached to a wrist and another wrapped around the right ankle.

A transformer boosted the current to a high voltage. Dr. J. S. Taylor, who pronounced Brauchler dead from electrocution, said probably 2,000 volts had coursed through his body for more than an hour. Tied to an electric plug was a card reading: "Pull out this plug before touching me."

Better Farm Product Grades And Market, Rowe Pledges

Proposes To Open Ontario House In London And Building At C.N.E.

WELLAND, Ont., Sept. 11—(CP).—Ontario agriculturists to-day were promised support from Hon. Earl Rowe, Conservative leader, who declared his agricultural policy if elected at the October 6 voting would be to improve farm products grades and seek a marketing outlet for the producers.

Key point in his plan, he told a Welland political meeting last night, would be to reopen Ontario House in London and the Canadian National Exhibition Government Building, both closed by the Liberal regime which came into power in 1934. Mr. Rowe's agricultural policy was propounded in two addresses yesterday, one at Alliston and one at Welland.

In his Welland address, he charged Premier Hepburn with adopting a shifting policy in regards to liquor, separate schools and agriculture. A "square deal" to both public and separate school supporters was promised by Mr. Rowe.

"I'll never trail religious differences in the dust for any political purpose," he said in his Alliston address. "My policy is the same as before I came leader of the Liberal-

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 11.

WILLIAM FALHABER, 68-year-old cafe owner, died of rage because his cook insisted on drinking coffee from the saucer, Deputy Coroner T. C. Barnhart said today.

The cook dashed into police headquarters last night. Frantically he told officers his employer was "awful mad" because he wouldn't keep his spoon in the cup and preferred to saucer his coffee—had grabbed a shotgun and chased him from the restaurant.

Police found Falhaber dead behind the counter, still gripping the gun. Barnhart said his anger caused heart failure.

300,000 Chicago Pupils To Be Taught By Radio And Newspapers

Chicago, Sept. 11.

MORE than 300,000 elementary school pupils barred from classrooms by an outbreak of infantile paralysis will get their schooling by radio and newspaper starting next Monday.

The novel educational experiment was planned by Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, when it became likely schools might not be reopened until Oct. 1, Because of the increase in paralysis cases. They were originally scheduled to open Sept. 7.

Each day newspapers will publish material to guide students in their classes by radio. A staff of school teachers will outline the "home work" in half-hour and 15 minute periods over the air five days each week.

Miss Lillian M. Tobin, in charge of radio curriculum, said the work in general will be a recapitulation of studies undertaken in the final period of last year's term. The course will be a "refresher" so that students will more easily grasp their work when schools reopen.

Students were warned the experiment is not an empty gesture. There will be examinations on the material covered when schools reopen.

Huge Storage of Food In Britain Urged Defence Measure

Controller In Last War Fears Nation May Be Starved To Defeat In Future

LONDON, Sept. 11 (C.P. Cable)—J. R. Clynes, Food Controller of Great Britain during the war, urges the necessity of accumulating reserves of food in the country as a defence measure in his book "Memoirs," the first volume of which was published to-day.

Unless vast quantities of emergency rations are stored throughout the country, Britain would be starved into submission within the first month or two of a war, declared the Labor politician who served as Home Secretary in the last Labor Government.

Pessimistic of the result of mounting armaments, Clynes wrote: "The armaments race was won in 1918. Death stood grinnig at the finishing point....We won the race. God help us; now, with millions in misery, with festering slums and incredibly fantastic debts, we are lining up in grisly pride, ready for the start of a race yet more mad and horrible. The stater, fear, is already grimacing with pistol upraised....The world has broken faith with the war dead, and now God help the world."

Lord Beaverbrook Launches Campaign Against War Rumors

Canadian Peer Is Seeking Through Newspapers To Minimize Worrying

By I. Norman Smith
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

LONDON, Sept. 11 (CP Cable).—Lord Beaverbrook is launching a campaign to have done with rumors of wars, as he believes there will be no wars.

By editorials and the efforts of the brilliant cartoonist Strube, the Canadian peer is endeavoring through the Daily Express and the Evening Standard to minimize the worrying effect of the insistent din of continental tomtoms.

Strube in the Express today depicts the front door of the "Empire Theatre," in which is playing "The Dominions' Melody." At the door, standing and calmly grinning, is a Majordomo, while the street scene is a turmoil of Hitler, Mussolini, Japs, Chinese, Turks, Arabs and Jews, all pointing among themselves, accusing and jostling.

To Be In Real Roll.

Yesterday the leader-writer of the Express, Frank Owen, announced Strube had created a character for his cartoons—"Major Crisis," who is a black-coated, moustachioed villain with swords, guns and bombs. Strube is to present Major Crisis in his real role in the future.

"Major Crisis is the villain of the piece," Owen wrote. "He stalks about the world stage uttering fearful threats of war and death and desolation and darting looks of hate and rage upon the good folk of all nations.

"But as we no longer fear the villain of the movies, who bound the girl in the mountain shack, we no longer fear Major Crisis. Only the city (London financial district) believes in him and goggles with fright at him.

"Every morning we read of Stalin shouting at Mussolini, of Hitler abusing Stalin, of Mussolini roaring he won't stand for this or that. Then we learn that Foreign Secretary Eden went to Paris, that Leon Blum is going to Prague, and that the situation is grave.

"Then the League of Nations spokesman assures us that peace is indivisible and that war anywhere means war everywhere. Then we remember that in 1920 the Russians fought the Poles, that in 1922 the Turks fought the Greeks, that in 1932 the Japanese fought the Chinese, and in 1933 Bolivia fought Paraguay, and that in 1935 the Italians fought the Abyssinians, and still there was no world war.

"To-day there is a civil war in Spain which is more than civil war and in the Far East fleets, armies and populations are geared up for a vast struggle. Yet the British public remains calm.

Britain Too Strong.

"Why no war? In the first place we are too strong. We have the most powerful navy in the world and our fleets could blow out of the water any other armada or combination of armadas likely to come against us. Our air force is strong and growing stronger despite certain lamentable hitches in the expansion scheme. Our army is efficient and adequate for any immediate purpose.

"The second reason for sleeping soundly at night is that possible challengers in the bloody lists of war are not so strong as they look. They have men, guns, and planes, making them formidable and perhaps dreadfully dangerous at the first onset, but they have no command of the resources of war, material, food and money that could sustain them in a struggle with the great democracies.

"Thirdly, none of the Powers, either dictatorships or democracies, wants war."

The Evening Standard, in a full length leader, summarizing why it is just as well the Nyon conference so far has not been particularly successful, concludes: "Britain had better make up her mind that the Mediterranean problem is insoluble for the present and that abnormal conditions must prevail until the war is over. She should stick to her own path, giving adequate protection to British ships, leaving protection of foreign ships and cargoes to the nations which own them."

SHIP RATES RAISED

LONDON, Sept. 11—(CP Cable).—Passenger rates for steamship lines operated from the United Kingdom and North America to Australia and New Zealand will be increased approximately 10 per cent October 1.

An official announcement attributed the rise to "increased and still rising operating costs."

Glimpses Of War About World

SWATOW, China, Sept. 11. — (AP).—Raiding Japanese bombing planes spread renewed terror to this south China city today, killing numbers of Chinese civilians and imperilling the lives of British and other foreign residents. A British destroyer was rushed to Swatow from Hongkong in response to an appeal from the British consul for protection.

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, Sept. 10.—(AP).—Spanish insurgent guns to-day dominated the historic peak of Covadonga, base of the Asturian defenders of Gijon. General Franco's offensive to weld Gijon into the map of insurgent Spain proceeded unhampered, his daily communique asserted. There were indications the hardy Asturian miners, backbone of the government army in the Spanish northwest, were preparing for a struggle.

OTTAWA, Sept. 11 (CP).—Under the watchful eye of the National Revenue Department, war materials valued at $14,000 were exported in August, first month in which permits had to be obtained before shipment could be made. The total went to Empire countries. Officials gave the amounts as follows: England $11,898, Australia $1,800 and Newfoundland $271.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 11 — (CP-Havas)—A Japanese spokesman charged to-day that cholera germs were planted in the town of Paoshan before it was abandoned to Japanese forces, resulting in 80 cases and 20 deaths within three days.

According to the spokesman, many of the new occupants of the town almost immediately began to go down with cholera.

TOKYO, Sept. 11 (CP-Havas) — Premier Fumimaro Konoye said to-day he did not expect the Sino-Japanese hostilities to end this year. The 1936-39 budget, he announced, would have to "take the worst eventuality into account."

Meanwhile another visit by Italian Ambassador Viacinto Auriti to the foreign office closed a week of intensive Italian diplomatic activity in Tokyo in what was believed to be an attempt to strengthen Italo-Japanese bonds.

DIVIDED HIGHWAYS BEING ADVOCATED

ST. ANDREWS, N. B., Sept. 11 — Members of the Canadian Good Roads Association were homeward bound today, leaving highway safety as the dominant note of their three-day convention.

At the final session yesterday a resolution was adopted urging Provincial and municipal governments to consider various safety measures.

Election of officers found Hon. Frank M. MacPherson, Minister of Highways for British Columbia, succeeding Hon. A. S. MacMillan, Minister of Highways in Nova Scotia, as president of the association. Hon. T. M. McQuesten, Ontario Minister of Highways, was elected first vice-president.

The safety resolution noted with "grave concern the appalling and constant toll of deaths, physical injury and enormous property losses due to road accidents." Amelioration could be achieved only by education in safety and adoption of modern safety measures.

The most advanced engineering principles and practices should be incorporated in all new highways, said the resolution. Local political considerations should be disregarded in the design, location and construction of highways.

The resolution recommended adoption of divided highways on heavily travelled routes, highway illumination where warranted and restriction of speed on certain roads. Adoption of the financial responsibility law in provinces where it is not now in effect also was urged. In addition the resolution recommended "suspension or cancellation of licenses or drivers guilty of repeated accidents and examination of all applicants for driving licenses to determine their mental and physical fitness to drive motor vehicles."

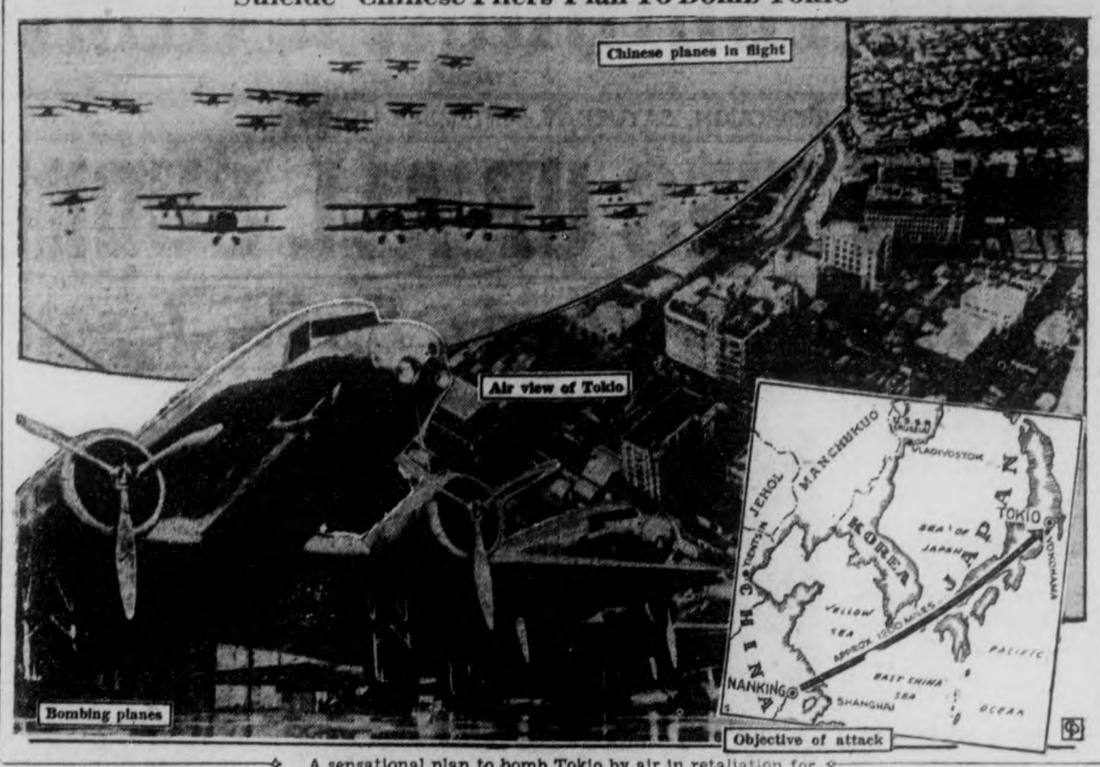
"Suicide" Chinese Fliers Plan To Bomb Tokio



A sensational plan to bomb Tokio by air in retaliation for the havoc wreaked upon Shanghai may be carried out by 400 "suicide" Chinese fliers who have volunteered their services. First objectives would be Japanese munitions plants and troop centres, to be followed by a devastating attack on the Japanese capital itself. Nearest point in Japan to the Chinese mainland is more than 500 miles across the China sea. But the distance from the Nanking airport to Tokio is approximately 1,200 miles or 2,400 miles for the round trip and the aeroplanes can carry fuel for merely 1,500 miles. Besides, they would be subjected to the withering fire of anti-aircraft guns.

HEPBURN FEARS SHORTAGE OF IRON

istration paid relief costs and other charges last year out of current revenue and produced a surplus of more than $9,000,000.

The public received the benefit of this financial policy through reduced taxation and building of roads paid for by revenue. The Liberal government increased the provincial revenue by $39,000,000 a year, "and the only new tax we imposed was the provincial income tax."

"I don't think even Mr. Rowe will have the courage to say he will abolish that. He rocks the boat sometimes but he seldom falls out."

When Mr. Hepburn mentioned the government's iron ore policy he said that in the rush for war materials so much iron was being shipped out of Canada and the United States that the country across the border appointed a commission to seek a way of checking scrap iron exports. Then Ontario acted.

Technical advisors were brought in and they proposed a bonus of two cents a unit to encourage development of ores in Northern Ontario. The government acted on this advice and Mr. Hepburn said a great iron mine was now being developed north of Sault Ste. Marie.

IMPROVED FARM PRODUCT GRADES

Conservative party, and it will be the same after I am Premier."

Tolerance prevailed for more than 50 years under the previous regimes. When Premier Hepburn attained power, "he threw the school question into politics, and I'll take it out of politics."

He asked Mr. Hepburn to name anything he had done for the farmer. "In Fort William the service clubs are taking up collections to give agricultural education to children because the grants for education were cut off so the government might build up a $9,000,000 gold pot for election purposes."

If his party attained power, said Mr. Rowe, he would not only reopen Ontario House in London but he would endeavor to find markets for the Ontario farmer and promote agriculture generally.

Mr. Rowe, in his Welland address, charged the Premier with changing his platform according to editorials in The Toronto Globe and Mail. One editorial got a new Hydro policy; another resulted in repeal of the government's separate school legislation; a third found the Premier declaring himself prepared to reject from Ontario foreign labor agitators. This was something he had no power to do.

Then The Globe and Mail produced an editorial on the liquor question and the Premier announced he would favor "a coalition beer policy" which would place a Supreme Court Judge in charge assisted by elected Conservative and Liberal members.

Sabbath Message For the Shut-Ins

SABBATH MESSAGE
By
REV. E. R. JAMES
Toronto

And he said: Lord, I believe. And he worshipped him.—St. John 9, 38.

A man born blind received his sight on the sabbath day. The writer, St. John, looks back perhaps half a century. He stands in a great light, "The Light of the world" shining upon the faces of the actors of this story. He gives a realistic picture of them, what they said and did as they faced this sign of the healing of the man born blind. In this Gospel St. John uses a word which is translated "miracle" in the A.V., but should be "sign," as you will find in the R.V. and in Moffatt's translation. They are truly signs whose inward meaning can only be understood by those who have the eyes to see.

THE DISCIPLES. They represent those who are always ready to place the blame for suffering. "Who sinned?" Such an attitude swallows up sympatgy. It is the spirit of Job's comforters, who were sure his secrets sins had found him out. Pain and suffering are opportunities for us to sympathize and help; not to sit in judgment.

THE NEIGHBORS. They are of the ordinary sort, full of curiosity. The opening of the man's eyes has naturally changed his appearance. They cannot solve the problem, so they take him to the religious heads of their community—the Pharisees.

THE PHARISEES. The Pharisees, meaning "the separated ones," were originally a sect of men who desired to know and serve God better. In the early days of the sect they were the choicest spirits of Judaism. But in the days of our Lord they had become hard, bitter, fault-finding, sure of their own goodness and righteousness and despised the ordinary people. They claimed that the Lord, Who had given this man his sight, was an evil man. He had broken the Sabbath. They had made the Sabbath intolerable by their heavy burdens of rules and regulations. Our Lord came to lift these by teaching that "The Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath."

The Pharisee spirit lives in every generation and thrives among religious people. If you are sure your religious life and conduct is superior to others and despise them because they do not see as you do—you are in very truth a Pharisee.

THE PARENTS. They are poor people very afraid of the religious authorities. They are quick to place the burden of explanation upon their son. "He is of age, ask him." They wash their hands of the whole matter. They have no affection for their son. They are poor indeed.

THE MAN HIMSELF. In performing the miracle our Lord uses means to help the man's faith. The spittle, the anointing of the eyes and the order to go to the pool of Siloam and wash were helps to his faith to enable his spirit to respond to the spirit of the Healer. Watch him at the various interviews. First of all he is sure of one thing. The sensation of seeing absorbs his whole mind. Nothing else mattered. "I received sight." He has no opinion of the Healer as yet. But after the Pharisees ask him what he thinks of the Healer he replies: "He is a prophet."

Under the cross-examination of the Pharisees he becomes rude and angry. "Would ye also become His disciples." They revile him, a word only used here in the Gospels and remind us of the familiar quotation. His conviction grows. "He is a man from God." From "a man that is called Jesus' to "a man from God" is a great advance and true to psychology.

The Pharisees "cast him out." The Lord, Who came to seek sinners, seeks him and asks him the vital question: "Dost thou believe on the Son of God?" Who is He, Lord, that I may believe on Him? Thou hast both seen Him and He it is that speaketh with thee. And he said, Lord, I believe. And he worshipped Him."

How comforting to remember that the Lord revealed Himself plainly not to the Apostles but to two outcasts — the Samaritan woman and this outcast beggar. His faith is necessarily imperfect, a poor two mites, but they are all that he had and he gave it readily. While the learned rabbis of their abundance gave nothing.

Perhaps you may be one of the little ones of the flock; you have had few opportunities, you are poor, just a plain, ordinary person. The Lord Christ comes to you in all His loving sympathy and graciousness to reveal Himself; that your eyes may be opened to see something of His glory, the glory of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth.

"I thank Thee, O Father, Lord of Heaven and earth, that Thou didst hide these things from the wise and prudent, and didst reveal them unto babes; yea, Father, because so it seemed good in Thy sight."

The Human Side Of The News

BY EDWIN C. HILL

Recently in Japan the Oxford Group movement gave an "international house party," attended by more than 400 persons, many of them prominent and influential in the Orient. Mrs. Chiang Kai-shek, wife of the generalissimo of China, is a follower of this movement, as are many leaders in public life, both in China and Japan. Its members are contending earnestly in many nations again war, turmoil and decadence. They believe that only by Christian regeneration can the world be saved.

This movement, founded by Dr. Frank Buchman, a stout little Pennsylvania Dutch preacher, after seeing a vision in a roadside chapel in England, offers a type of evangelism which, so far as this writer knows, is utterly unique in the history of such endeavors. It is based upon the conversion of gifted, dominant and effective persons, rather than the traditional proletarian appeal. It proposes to rebuild human society by selecting the strongest and soundest timbers from the moral wreckage, rather than the splintered fragments.

Members From All Faiths

Within the last 10 years the movement has gained amazing momentum, recruiting its members and leaders from all faiths. Not only in the field of international relations, but in the zone of labor conflict, in fact in all zones of social danger and unrest, it is working diligently. The basic social dilemma always has been the question as to whether humane people could become powerful, or whether powerful people could become humane. An intelligent young disciple of the Oxford Group recently explained to me why their evangelism concentrated on the latter alternative.

"We believe," he said, "that our effort to rally the enlightened spiritual forces of the world represents the only possible defence against the tragic and complete ruin of our present civilization. We further believe that effective evangelism in the world today should be in accord with reason and scientific progress. Every declaration of modern biology and genetics emphasizes the fact that enlightened social controls must be in the hands of those who, not only are men of good will, but who are socially intelligent.

"We undertake to discover, to arouse and recruit such men and women to erect new spiritual barriers against the forces of darkness. We do not admit for an instant that this is in the least degree recreant to the gospel of the lowly Nazarene, or that we are the disciples of a rich man's religion. If you and I start a public campaign for any purpose whatever, the first thing we do is to enlist persons of influence, with their names on our letterhead. They are effective people; they can get things done; they know how to work together.

Mobilize the Strong

"We do not assert for an instant that the soul of the richest or most powerful man in the world weighs any more in the scales of divinity than that of the humblest man on earth, but we do believe that the exigency of these times makes it imperative that the strong and successful shall be mobilized to attain the true Christian goal of peace and world brotherhood."

The hosts of righteousness may yet prevail, but today guns roar in China. There is a growing belief in the Far East that the Japanese intend to place again on the ancient Manchu throne the "boy emperor," Henry Pu-yi, whom they abducted in 1924 and established as "ruler" of Manchoukuo in 1932. It seems to be something like moving the queen bee around to make the bees swarm.

Married At Seventeen

In 1922, Henry Pu-yi, "Son of Heven," then seventeen, was married to Kuo Chin-si, a bright bit of lovely cloisonne in the junk heap of China. She was fourteen. Chinese war lords helped oust them and deliver them to Japan. The art treasures of their ancestors were stolen.

The two charming mannikins were happy to be free from the responsibilities of ruling. Their greatest treasure was a small American photograph. They learned to sing with it, and hoped to be great artists and sing at the Metropolitan. Then, bewildered, serving some oriental symbolism elusive to western minds, they were moved through an august ritual and a gala display which made them puppet rulers of a puppet state.

Little Kuo-Chin-i could have no children, so Henry had to take another No. 1 wife. He is a stalwart young man educated by an English tutor, a good student with ideas of his own, but driven by winds of destiny, powerless to resist.

Miss Clarke Gives Mission Address

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Sept. 11.—The September meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the United Church was held on Tuesday in the Sunday School room with guests present from the Missionary Societies of the Presbyterian, Anglican and Baptist Churches to hear an address given by Miss Greta Clarke, missionary from China. Mrs. Hugh Robb, the president opened the meeting with the worship service from the Missionary Monthly, the theme of which was "The Unchanging Christ." "Jesus Thou Joy of Loving Hearts" was the opening hymn and Mrs. Robb led in prayer.

Mrs. Robb extended a hearty welcome to the visitors and to the guest speaker.

Mrs. El. Scott, convenor of the September group then took charge of the remainder of the meeting. A suitable hymn was sung and the Bible reading given by Mrs. Lillian Andrews. Mrs. Renaud favoured with a beautiful solo. Mrs. Scott then called on Miss Clarke, who based her remarks on the 12th chapter of Isaiah and what that day of which Isaiah speaks means in a Christian's life—the comfort and joy of completely trusting God and leaning on His strength—really living the victorious life. If we experience this fulness of the spirit we must declare His doings among all people. Miss Clarke then went on to speak of her work in Honan province and of the interest that educated and well-to-do Chinese are now taking in Christianity and of how students who have a tremendous influence in that land are gradually being won for Christ. She stressed the power of prayer and closed by earnestly requesting our prayers for China in the terrible struggle now taking place there and for General Chiang Kai-Shek the great Christian leader who has been made treasurer and dictator of all China in this crisis, and for all Christian Chinese that they may adhere steadfastly to their faith.

Mrs. Scott moved a hearty vote of thanks to Miss Clarke for her inspiring and soul-stirring message and the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction. A dainty lunch was served and a social hour much enjoyed.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

The materialist sees life in terms of self and self advantage, while the spiritually minded man views life in terms of the spirit, and has no thought of self. These are diametrically opposite viewpoints that can never be reconciled. No man can serve both God and self. We find these two viewpoints in those who are within the religious bodies and also in those who are not, for it is not a matter of belief or non-belief, but a matter of greater or less unfoldment of the inner man. Many a nervous Christian is at heart a rank materialist, and many a so-called agnostic is a spiritually inclined man who finds it impossible to subscribe to the out and dried beliefs of outward forms of religion that divorce thought from action. For obviously it is not a matter of saying "Lord, Lord!" but of seeking to do the will of the Father. It is said that if we do the work we shall know of the doctrine. Nowhere does it say that if we know of the doctrine there will be no need of doing the work, for "work and worship" are indissolubly linked together in the spiritual world. God works, so must we. As for the doctrine, it is of two orders, the inner and the outer. The outer is simplicity itself and may be summed up in the word love, love of God, love of one's fellows. This is the foundation upon which all else is built; and unless we build thereon the inner doctrine will remain forever a sealed book. Some may question or even resent the idea of two orders of doctrine. Their attitude cannot alter the fact that there have always been the outer truths and the inner. Jesus taught the multitude by parable and symbol. To His disciples He spoke more openly, but there remained truths He could not utter even to them, for they were not yet able to bear them. We must remember that discipleship is not the end but the beginning of real growth. No man is called to be a disciple until he is ready, but it is his duty fit himself as far as possible so that he may the sooner become a servant in the Kingdom. The first step is the renunciation of self. Not until self is crucified are we able to even dimly realize the higher truths; and beyond these are higher and yet higher aspects even up to the God-head; truths that are utterly beyond all human conception and comprehension. Therefore while walking humbly content with doing that which is given us to do, we should ever seek higher and nobler truths to weave into our lives. Our success or non-success in life is measured not by material or even intellectual standards but by the degree we make God manifest in our lives. The attitude most fatal to progress is that fatuous self-satisfaction which smugly contemplates its own "goodness," refusing to see any good in others, and which like the Bourbons, "forgets nothing and learns nothing." To "let your light shine before men" does not necessarily mean a greater or lesser contribution to the collection plate, but it does mean making the Christ within more clearly manifest to others, so that they also may glorify the Father in heaven, which latter it may be well to add, is within us all.

A National Message

Still it is true that the Kingdom of God is among us, and that we are responsible to administer it according to the commandments, statutes and judgments of the Lord.

We know with absolute and ultimate certainty, that God has covenanted in both the Old Testament and the New Testament that Israel shall continue a nation before him forever.

We know by evidence sufficient to satisfy any court of justice, that Israel does so continue according to the oath of God, and that the Celto-Saxon is the heart of that great heritage of God, which are his people.

We know that the throne of David, and the House of David, still stand, and still rule in Israel.

We know that the constitution still remains unshaken. But alas, we have departed from its authority, even though we have in the common law remained firm on most of its principles.

We of the greater commonwealth of Israel still form the basis of the Kingdom of God on earth.

Great epochs have come in the history of this Kingdom of God. Some of them are: The call of Abraham; the birth of Isaac, the father of the Saxon race; the regeneration of Jacob, and the renaming of him Israel. The promotion of all the household of Jacob to be Israel; the formation of the Kingdom of Israel; the erection of the throne of David in Israel; the separation of Israel from Judah, and temporarily from the House of David; the captivity first of Israel, and then of Judah; the transfer of the throne of David from Judah to Israel according to the Covenant stated in Jeremiah XXXI; the coming of Jesus Christ, and his great work of redemption, and salvation.

The Golden Text

Proverbs 22:6—"Train up a child in the way he should go, and even when he is old he will not depart from it."

The Nation Needs Religious Homes

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Sept. 12 is Deuteronomy 6:1-9; 11:18-25, especially 6:4, 5; 11:18-25, the Golden Text being, Proverbs 22:6, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and even when he is old he will not depart from it.")

In this day when so many folk are going in for antique furniture, searching old attics for grandfather's clocks, grandmother's spinning wheels and similar ancestral heirlooms, it would be well if more of our families were eager to restore to our modern homes that one piece of furniture which, more than any other, left its impress upon the whole character and atmosphere of those old-fashioned homes, viz., our grandfather's family altar.

Family Worship

That little old stand or table holding the well-worn family Bible and prayer book around which grandfather gathered our fathers and mothers for daily family worship, the reading of a portion of scripture and uniting in prayer for divine guidance and blessing, has become a rare antique. Family worship, as much as anything else made those homes worthy to be enshrined in such songs as "Home, Sweet Home." Our modern homes have lost the cheery firesideof former days for a steam radiator devoid of cheer and magnetism, and home has become largely a "filling station" and adjunct to the family garage, a place to which to return when our places of amusement and business are closed. Whole families are seldom together at home. Family worship has become a lost art of the church. Parents have defaulted on the job of teaching and influencing their children in matters of religion, morals and life problems and have "passed the buck" to the church, the school, the Boy Scouts and kindred organizations. In their eagerness to leave a business to their children they fail to see the importance of leaving the proper kind of children to their business.

Religion in the Home

God's idea of the place of religion in the home is beautifully and unmistakably set forth in his word to Israel; Jehovah our God is one Jehovah; and thou shalt love Jehovah thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy might. And these words which I command three this day, shall be upon thy heart; and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shall talk of them when thou sittest in thy house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up." Such daily schools of religion in the homes of all the people are infinitely superior to any system of Sunday schools that may possibly be devized. It was this sort of home in which the great men and women of the Bible were reared, including Jesus himself.

Broken Homes

The increasing instability of the American home, as evidenced in an ever growing divorce evil and the multiplying of broken homes, has become a peril to the very foundation of our whole social structure. The great majority of our "problem children", whose delinquencies bring them into juvenile courts, are the natural and logical product of "problem homes," shipwrecked by their godlessness. The strength of the nation depends upon the quality of its homes. It was to a nation of godly home life that God promised: "Ye shall dispossess nations greater and mightier than yourselves . . . There shall no man be able to stand before you." "Blessed is that nation whose God is the Lord."

Rev. L. McAuliffe Is In War Area

Although they have not heard from him since hostilities broke out between China and Japan in the Shanghai area, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McAuliffe of Emily township, are confident that their son, Rev. Lawrence McAuliffe, 25, a Catholic missionary stationed at Lishui, China, is safe. Daily they are hoping for word of his whereabouts.

"We have not heard from him since the outbreak of the war," Mr. McAuliffe said last night. "We are worried about him naturally, but we think he will be alright."

The young man was ordained in 1935 and went to Lishui to take his first post of service. His last letter came to his aunt, Mrs. James Guiry of Peterborough, last month, dated August 3, a few days before hostilities broke out at Shanghai. He told his relatives not to worry about his safety in the event of war, that he would be transferred to the International Settlement in Shanghai if danger threatened his area, which is 300 miles from Shanghai.

His parents have written several times since but have received no response.

GIRL KIDNAPPED

PALO ALTO, Calif., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Chief of Police Howard Zink reported Friday a 17-year-old Palo Alto girl registered to enter Stanford University this fall had been kidnapped and her face slashed with a pair of scissors by a man who attempted to assault her.

Her attacker fled after abandoning her in a lonely spot back of the Stanford campus, Chief Zink said. He refused to disclose the girl's name.

A Nation Needs Religious Homes — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell and Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Deuteronomy 6:1-9; 11:18-25.

The book of Deuteronomy is made up of Moses' farewell addresses to Israel. He urged them: "Thou shalt love Jehovah thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might."

This religion of the true God they were to "teach diligently to their children", to talk over with them when they were at home or whether they were away from home.

To those who would give religion its proper place in their home life God promised rich blessings: "That your days may be multiplied and the days of your children."

In such a home our Lord was reared. "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

The Slimy Submarine

So far there has been nothing to definitely establish the identity or nationality of the submarine which has been attacking vessels in the Mediterranean. A torpedo was launched at a British destroyer, and Italy now openly charges it was fired from a Russian submarine. There is no proof given for such a statement, and it is difficult to produce any sound reason why a Russian vessel would make such an attack on Britain.

These unidentified attacks by submarines are possible because the nations of the world have never yet had sufficient concerted common sense to agree to get rid of these slimy things. Britain has more than once made the plain offer to rid her naval forces entirely of the submarine, but she is not going to do it unless the move is unanimous.

There can be no national pride in the ownership of submarines. They are sneaky things which do not come out in the open and fight. They are so constructed that they remain hidden when doing their deadliest work. They do not rise to the surface afterward and attempt to pick up members of the crew of the vessel they have doomed to sink. They just let them sink. The world is now paying for its miserable indecision in regard to getting rid of submarines. In action they can seldom be identified and for that reason all manner of charges can be aimed at this nation or that nation when submarine piracy comes to the front. The submarine is a slimy and slippery and altogether damnable thing for any nation to own.

A Problem Of Today

A young man of 20 years who made his appearance in court at Goderich presented what might readily be called a problem case. He is a farm hand in Manitoulin and his income amounted to $7 per month. Whether that was high or low is not the question at the moment.

This youth decided he had to have a car, and in order to secure it in the first place he would have to make some sort of a down payment. After that he would be required to make other payments, and in order to have any use out of it he would find it necessary to purchase gas and oil. Which he did.

In order to keep the car going the youth decided the sure way would be to start and steal, and he seems to have specialized in oil drums, cans, accessories, etc., turning these into cash by offering them for sale. He had picked so many things off cars here and there that he could not tell exactly where he had secured them all.

The problem is here: If that young fellow of 20 years had been working on a farm say thirty years ago he probably would not have got himself into trouble. There were very few cars in use in rural sections then. Probably he would have considered he was having a good time if he were allowed to use the driving horse and buggy on Saturday or Sunday night. Even if his earnings had been small his expenditure in the way of pleasure would also have been small. Today it is different and there are so many autos on all the roads in the country that the suggestion must be always present that people even with limited means should make haste to join the car-owning class.

That young farm hand has made his own bed and he will probably have to lie in it but the idea is not easily shoved to one side that had he been living on a farm thirty or thirty-five years ago he would have gone along much the same as other young fellows in similar circumstances. We do not believe he would have appeared in court and then been remanded a week for sentence.

Peter Demos Shows The Way

Peterborough's hats should be lifted to one of the city's younger sons, Peter Demos, graduate of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, who has distinguished himself, his home town and the school from which he graduated by capturing one of the nine provincial scholarships, awarded to one pupil in each of Canada's nine provinces for the best showing made during five years of secondary school education. The award is three years free tuition at Queen's University and a cash prize of $300—a valuable prize indeed in itself and infinitely more valuable because of what it involves and signifies.

This youthful son of Peterborough, a boy of Greek parentage, has demonstrated that Peterborough's Collegiate Institute offers for the student with the right qualities an opportunity to climb to the top of the ladder. There is no fluke about an award of this kind. It is based on five years' work and there is little chance of luck playing a part in the securing of such a distinction. A scholarship awarded for a single examination might see the highest honor passed out by reason of a fortunate break in favor of some candidate but that could not possibly happen when the work done over a period of five years is the criterion upon which the award is made.

Peter Demos, entirely on his own efforts, and with no help except that given him jointly with his fellow pupils in the Collegiate Institute has set up a record of scholastic achievement that has rarely been equalled in the local school, a record marked by consistently high marks throughout the last five years. In addition he has found time to be a useful member of the School Cadet corps and to distinguish himself as a crack marksman. This fine young Canadian of Greek descent is one of the most notable graduates of the Peterborough Collegiate and his future career will be watched with interest.

Make Sure You're Listed

Before Peterborough citizens get too deeply involved in political arguments it might be helpful to remind them that there is a duty that in their own interest they should perform. That duty is to make sure that their franchise is protected and that they will have a chance to express their opinion with their ballot when October 6 rolls around.

The urban enumerators have just finished their job of collecting the names of city folk who are entitled to vote at the coming election and these will be listed and posted up so that the public may read and check them. The officials charged with securing the names are for the most part, we are sure, conscientious men who have done their best to make a perfect job of compiling the list, but no matter how carefully they have striven to attain that end errors and omissions are bound to occur. The opportunity is provided, for correcting those mistakes because revising officers will sit and people whose names have been left off will have the opportunity of appearing before those officers and having the list amended.

It is important that every person who is eligible to vote should check the enumerators' list and make sure that his name appears thereon while there is time to have a correction made. Otherwise it is quite possible that some of our citizens may find when it is too late to do anything about it that they cannot vote on October 6 because their names have been left off. In rural polling-subdivisions there is a provision for swearing in such voters on the day of the election but city residents have no such opportunity. The machinery is provided for listing their names and if they fail to make use of it at the proper time there is nothing that can be done about it later.

He Will Be Missed

The Examiner feels sure that the vast majority of folk in Ontario, regardless of their political affiliations, will feel that public life in this province is the poorer by reason of the retirement of W. E. N. Sinclair K.C. the member for South Ontario in the Legislature and one time provincial leader of the Liberal party. Mr. Sinclair may have lacked some of the magnetism that is required of men who lead political parties but on the other hand he possesses a sincerity of motive and an honesty of purpose that have made him a valued member of the Legislature for more than a quarter of a century. He has been fearless in his attitude toward public issues and has never hesitated to take the unpopular side on a question when he was satisfied that side was the right side. Nor has he shrunk from criticizing legislation introduced by his own party when he felt that such legislation was against the public interest. The public has always been able to know just where "Billy" Sinclair stood on every issue and just why he stood there and the open sincerity of the man explains why he has been able to appeal to the electors of his own riding so successfully on so many occasions. The qualities he has displayed in public life are none too plentiful in our public bodies and that is why a feeling of regret has been occassioned by the announcement that so far as Mr. Sinclair is concerned those qualities are to be missing from future sessions of the Ontario Legislature. Frankly there are a great many men before the public whose retirement we could read of with much more pleasure than it has been possible to extract from the news that the member for South Ontario is dropping off the political stage.

Buying Then And Now

Under the terms of the United States Neutrality Act all that is necessary is to proclaim it during any war and then it is not possible to sell munitions to combatants. Nor would it be possible to float loans for the purpose of financing a foreign war.

But during the first seven months of the present year Japan has purchased more than one-half of the immense scrap iron and steel exports from United States. All shipments during the period totalled 2,600,707 gross tons, and 1,529,511 of those tons went to Japan. The figures are accurate enough as they are furnished by the Commerce Department.

It means that before the war between Japan and China started the Japanese had been making heavy purchases. It may be they secured all the material they needed.

By some strange defect in human reasoning we overlook such shipments. People heartily approve of a plan which would make it impossible for nations to purchase munitions after there has been a war started; they seem to think such a step will bring the war to a more speedy conclusion. But they utterly overlook all the buying that the more aggressive of two warring nations may have been doing before there was any declaration of war or any open sign of hostilities.

Japan had no trouble in purchasing all the war material she needed—before she started war. But there would be considerable hostility were similar purchases made now. It is a modern setting of the old story about locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen.

The Ontario Temperance Federation's manifesto could have been worded "A plague on both your houses" so far as its reference to the two old parties is concerned.

Hamilton wants provincial action to get rid of starlings and that looks like a good chance for one of the political parties to work a new plank into its platform.

London weather prophet predicts snow for October. We imagine that some of the candidates in the provincial election will feel on the night of October 6 that the prophecy was correct.

PICKLING

(By A. E. K.)

¶ Before the breakfast things are done, the pickling business has begun, tomatoes ripe or green; and cauliflowers get chucked in too, of kinds of spice there's quite a few, and peppers red and green.

¶ And all the houses smell the same, like wandering down some scented lane, it's just as sweet as spring; my neighbor's house smells much like mine, and so on up and down the line, I rather like the thing.

¶ And every day I have to stop, and enter yet another shop, for spices sweet or hot; there's something to be added yet, and folk are likely to forget, the thing they haven't bought.

¶ The stove is stacked with kettles too, the cooking places are too few, and dinner's rather late; but no man worthy of the name, would dare to whimper or complain, or chant his hymn of hate.

¶ The jardeniere has pickles in, each fancy vase full to the brim, they all look very swell; each cup that has no handle now, is filled with some new fangled chow, my shaving mug as well.

¶ The strainer from the kitchen sink, is filled with pickled beets I think, the tea pot's done its bit; there's relish in the frying pan, and chow chow in the coffee can—so soon we'll have to quit.

IT IS interesting to note that while Great Britain's aircraft works speed up production to put the Royal Air Force on a par with European air forces the Australian Minister for Defence, Sir Archdale Parkhill is putting the final touches to a scheme to treble Australia's air strength. Present personnel of Royal Australian Air Force is 2,000. This is to be increased to 6,000. The R. A. A. F. is to form stronger link ups with other Dominion Air Forces, particularly New Zealand's. New air bases are being built at Darwin, Brisbane, Cardwell, New Guinea and in the Pacific Islands.

Prospectors just returned to Singapore from an expedition through British Malays are raising the hopes of already prosperous Malayans. They claim to have discovered millions of tons of iron ore in an area of 4,000 acres, partly jungle, partly rubber plantation, in northern Malaya. They believe that it will be the largest iron ore field in the country. A British company is interested in the discovery. A Japanese concern which already has several iron mines in Malaya has made an offer for the new iron field but negotiations have been suspended until the British company has made its decision.

One hundred and sixty residents of the village of Bealcourt in the Somme department of France have become famous simply by not paying taxes. The village is run on a budget of 10,000 francs, (about $400) a year and although the inhabitants do not pay out any cash for local taxes their school, roads, electricity and water supply are in perfect condition. The village works on a communal system and the mayor of the place says that if there were one slacker the plan would not work. "Everybody depends upon somebody else sooner or later he says. The cattle need purging, the harvest is ready, a baby is born, one must have friends at a wedding party, the doctor must be fetched. The neighbor is always there. Australian Magic.

WHEN AN Australian aborigine medicine man wants to get rid of an enemy he dislikes he just "points a bone" at him. The theory is that unless the victim can get the bone from the sorcerer and return the point he gradually dies. One native who complained that he had been bone-pointed" said he could feel the magic working inside him and said that it felt like a hard, white ball gradually growing and killing him. The local doctor persuaded the native that his magic could undo the medicine man's evil gave the native a whiff of chloroform, cut him open and found a golf ball inside his body. As golf balls were comparatively unknown in Darwin then the doctor was hailed as the mightiest medicine man for miles around.

News From Jack Miner.

EACH YEAR Jack Miner has further evidence as to the value of the sanctuary system for conserving bird life on this continent; because, by tagging the waterfowl that visit his place he finds that they are often captured or seen on other protected areas.

It is a usual occurrence to see Canada geese wearing Jack Miner's tags, on the Thomas Jones sanctuary, near St. Thomas, Ont. Several have been reported seen on the sanctuaries in Delaware. But the latest report is from the W. K. Kellog sanctuary at Battle Creek, Mich., some 200 miles from Jack Miner's home, where a goose tagged at the Miner sanctuary, has been found.

Jack Miner is quite interested in this report from the Battle Creek sanctuary, because it was his experience that induced Mr. Kellogg to build the now-famous Battle Creek sanctuary; and now it is interesting to learn that the birds have established a flight lane from one place of safety to another.

Jack Miner says this is proof of the statement he has made so many times, namely: "That the birds know a place of safety, as well as a place of danger, and will come to humanity when kindness and love is shown.

By such chains of sanctuaries, the bird life of this continent will be saved from extermination. A game warden prosecuting a person for killing a bird illegally, does not save that bird's life; but, by providing safety areas, birds will increase in numbers, instead of decreasing.

Wonders Claimed For Wetter Water

New Discovery Said to Work Like Magic In Peeling Off Old Wall Paper

(From the Montreal Star)

TWO NOTED research chemists have just discovered something they call "wetter water." It seems that the peculiar quality of this brand of water is that it wets everything instantly it touches, instead of gradually, as is the case with ordinary water. For instance, it lays dust instanter; it enables insect and pest sprays to go faster and farther and prove more deadly. It peels off old wallpaper like a knife peels an apple. It is going to be of amazing value from an industrial viewpoint.

All very well and good. But we know nothing about the cost. These amazing chemical discoveries sound wonderful until some cruelly hard-hearted business man says, bluntly: "How much?" Then the chemists retire to their laboratories and utter imprecations upon the commercially-minded person who dared to introduce the factor of expense.

This recalls to mind the commission reported to have been given by a certain government to a famous firm of chemists during the Great War to discover some means of condensing a good drink of brandy and water into a pill. After some months' work, the firm reported that they had succeeded. Representatives from the War Office were invited to test the pill. They did so, and—so rumour says—found it wondrous good. But then some third-class clerk whispered to some second-class clerk: "How much?" And when it was found that one drink from such a pill would cost the country $7.50, the chemists faded away—and so did the idea.

"Wetter water" sounds interesting. If it proved so much wetter that you could drink a teaspoonful with the same beneficial results that you now get from a glassful of ordinarily wet water, there might be something in it for the man in the street. If it enabled him to water his front lawn and his back garden with one-tenth the water he now requires, he might regard it with favour. But he will have to know the cost. In these degenerate days of returning prosperity, every nickel counts—and when it is spent on water, doubly so.

An Editor Who Realized His Ambition

Abandons His Desk To Take Job As Clown With Travelling Circus

(From the Ottawa Journal)

A NEWSPAPER editor out in the state of Washington has abandoned the field of journalism to become a clown in a circus. We shall not argue with those who will make the comment that there wasn't much change in his work, after all. What impresses us is the fact that here at last is a man with the courage to do what no dobut he always has wanted to do. Probably in his boyhood he thought, as most of us thought, that a job in a circus must be the ultimate in human contentment—and above all, a job as a clown. This Washington man, having tried something else, still is of the same opinion and he does something to make his dream come true.

No doubt circus clowns have their troubles. They have to be funny whether or not they feel that way. The show must go on. The clown must be a clown no matter if he has just had word that his wife has eloped with the lion tamer, his house has burned down and he must meet the note he endorsed for a friend. The professional clown must rise superior to his personal misfortunes, and we can imagine that being amusing—even for pay—sometimes must become about the hardest job in the world.

And sometimes the clown must think enviously of the nice, easy job a newspaper editor, who sits in his office writing bits for the paper, filling up the holes with bits other people have written. Many people have such thoughts. Editors have similar thoughts—about politicians, for instance, and preachers, and lawyers. Those are the fellows with the soft jobs! Think of the preacher, for example, the editor will say to himself as he searches vainly for an idea, who can sleep in every morning, revamp a couple of old sermons for next Sunday, conduct a wedding or a funeral and call it a week! Such men, thinks the editor, don't have to worry about all the chaps with schemes for saving the world, with those who want the paper to take up their grievances. Usually they can put off their work when they don't feel like working. Their mistakes are not set in type and put in a more or less imperishable record. They don't have to deal with indignant subscribers, with the chap who telephones to ask who won the Derby in 1892 or what was the weight of Jack Johnson in his championship days.

But the Washington editor, giving up all this, gives up also the satisfaction that comes from performing a duty of a definite public value, of being in touch with the currents of news and opinion. On the whole, we feel he will be more successful as a clown.

Another Angle on the Pie Argument

Coast Writer Loudly Shouts His Praises Of British Columbia's Red Huckleberries

(From the Vancouver Province)

LORD TWEEDSMUIR had blueberry pie to his dinner, away up in the far Canadian North on his recent romantic journey to those parts. And when His Excellency said that it was the best pie in the world, he started something.

He started The Ottawa Journal and the Sault Ste. Marie Star, for instance. The time those enlightened journals have been having, about blueberries and blueberry pies! For the Sault Ste. Marie Star said, in effect, that if the Governor General really thought blueberry pie was the pie of pies—as of course it was—then he should wait until he got down in the Star's own country, in the "Soo," in incomparable Algoma, and then he would find what blueberries and blueberry pie could be.

And The Ottawa Journal mildly reproved the Star, saying, really now, when everybody knew that blueberries, blueberry pies and blueberry pie bakers of Ottawa were all and several the best in the world. Not merely the best blueberry pies, you understand, but the best pies of any persuasion whatsoever.

It is necessary that someone of superior opportunities and culture in these matters should instruct these too-positive Ontario editors. What does anybody know of pies, who only blueberries knows?

What of apple pie, of pumpkin, of cherry and of mince? What, if it comes to that, of steak and kidney, of mellon mowbray pork, of chicken, of the immortal and delectable veal-and-hammer? What of custard, lemon, raisin, of Boston cream and cocoanut and other pies of the more fragile sort? Why, it seems as if any normal pie-faced boy might easily have forgotten in his brief time more worthy pies than The Journal and the Star between them have ever known.

It is well enough to extoll the blueberry pie—the blueberry pie is an excellent pie in its way—but there must be measure and balance in these encomiums. And even as to pies of the huckleberry sort, did the Star and The Journal never know the felicity of a British Columbia RED huckleberry pie?

BRITAIN"S ATTITUDE.

(The Christian Monitor (London)

FROM Loyalist sources comes word that insurgent General Franco is pleading with Italy and Germany for 125,000 troops further to aid him in a new offensive against Madrid. From informed circles in Europe generally comes the impression that, since Germany has refrained from sending any warships to the Mediterranean, she apparently seeks to avoid precipitating further trouble. Thus, although no definite agreement is yet attained, the impression is widespread that compromise is in the air. Great Britain's back-to-the-wall attitude seems to have reacted on the dictators in reverse ratio: As the British chin sticks out, the dictatorial fist drops lower.

PROVES FAILURE.

(Providence Journal)

AT HOME, Stalin has encouraged private savings, inheritances, wages, the speed-up system in factories and a hundred other institutions which old Bolsheviki would despise. Abroad, he has abandoned the ideal of a world revolution, advised Communists to form united fronts with once-despised Socialists and liberals, joined the League of Nations and entered into an alliance with bourgeois France. From the standpoint of pure Communism, every one of these moves is a confession of failure. A decade of failures then, culminating in a blood purge — the most damning confession of all. How much longer are rational observers expected to wait before they bring in their verdict?

A LOT OF MONEY.

(Sault Star)

A MILLION dollars is to be spent on the new power plant at the lower falls on the Montreal River. With the numerous amounts of even larger sums announced for other projects in the district, a million dollars doesn't bulk as very impressive in the public mind.

Yet how much is a million dollars? If you started to save $1 a day out of your wages for 800 years before the Christian era, you would just about have the money the second power plant on the Montreal will cost, or what the new coke ovens at the steel plant will cost.

Or if you had put $2 in the savings bank every day from a little after the year the Roman Empire blew up you would have the million.

Or if you were able to put $5 away every day since about the days of the Crusades, you would be able to build now a lesser Algoma project.

SELLING PEACHES

(Niagara Falls Review)

AS A RESULT of the advertising campaign conducted by the Dominion and Provincial departments of agriculture, there has been a large increase in the sale of peaches and growers report they are getting from five to ten cents a basket more as a result of the heavier demand. Long has the Review urged that Canadian farm products be advertised along the lines of the California orange growers who have popularized the orange all over this continent.

It has been proved possible with peaches and should be as easy with our tomatoes, apples and other products of the farms. Milk advertising in many states and countries has given a tremendous boost to production. Advertising pays whether it is in boosting farm products or any worthwhile products.

TASTE IS BAD.

(Galt Reporter)

THE CITY of Winnipeg may have to spend a sum of a million and a half dollars for a filtration plant to give its water supply a pleasant taste. The cause of the trouble is that algae, minute forms of vegetable life, are found in such quantities in the water that the taste is that of oil. Heretofore the water supply has been treated with copper sulphate to destroy the vegetable contamination and activated carbon to remove bad odor and taste. Usually the algae trouble only appears for a few weeks during the summer and causes no serious distress but during this summer there has prevailed a climatic condition that has multiplied the vegetable contamination to an unbelievable degree and Winnipeg's water supply smells badly and the taste tends to encourage the consumer's suspicion that there is something terribly wrong.

PRICES OF WHEAT SOAR FOR WEEK

WINNIPEG, Sept. 11 (C.P.).—War in China and ominous political developments in Europe created bullish enthusiasm on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange this week. Wheat prices scored substantial advances in contrast to tumbling stock markets.

Renewed buying by overseas interests, disposition on the part of investors to purchase commodities against sales of stocks and securities and heavy mill buying featured the advance that left prices 3¼ to 3⅞ cents higher for the week ended yesterday.

October future closed at $1.27⅝, November $1.27⅞, December $1.24⅝-¾, and May $1.25 to $1.26⅛.

Exporters early in the week bought fairly liberally, but this was entirely overshadowed by the unexpected entry of Canadian mills in the market to replenish stocks. It was estimated conservatively that mill purchases were about 3,000,000 bushels, while export business was about 2,000,000 bushels.

Toward the end of the week it appeared that the balance of support from abroad was accumulation of long lines.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Sept. 11 (C.P.). — Wheat futures lost fractional gains in nervous trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange as prices followed Chicago downward to close ⅛c to 1¼c lower.

Export interests offered support and were estimated to have taken 250,000 bushels of Canadian wheat during spasmodic dealings.

Prices dropped more than a cent in the first hour, but came back to show gains on outside buying due to unsettled European political news in regard to piratical attacks in the Mediterranean. Mill buying was light, while hedging of new Western Canada wheat deliveries, totalling 1,814,000 bushels was more noticeable.

ORFUNS IN GOOD SHAPE FOR OPENER

A meeting of the Central Ontario intermediate rugby circuit will be held in Cobourg on Monday night to draw up a schedule, make appointments and complete all unfinished business before the start of the playing season. Representatives from Kingston, Belleville, Trenton, Cobourg, Lindsay and Peterborough will be present along with an O.R.F.U. organizer from Toronto.

For the local gridders the first uniform practice will be held on Monday night at Riverside Park, the boys wearing brighter sweaters this year than before and of a more attractive design. Work will start next week on improvements for the dressing rooms, also towards improving the general condition of the playing field, such as levelling, rake and cut the grass. The local squad has been cut down to 35 players and it is expected that the first two games of the schedule will be played away from home.

Round-The-World Cruise Postponed

TORONTO, Sept. 11.— (CP). — Three Toronto couples planning a round-the-world cruise on the boat Sea Fever had their first start postponed until at least Sept. 17, when the leader of the party, Neville Mainguy, appeared in court charged with fraud involving $368. W. A. McKay, auto dealer, said Mainguy had sold him a car against which there was a lien for that amount.

Mainguy, arrested yesterday, appeared in court to-day and was remanded to Sept. 17 on bail.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM BOOTH

The death of William Percy Hugh Booth, 100 London street, occurred at St. Joseph's Hospital today following a short illness. He was 65 years of age.

He was born in Ottawa, son of the late Thomas Booth. He came to this city from Coxley, Saskatchewan, 13 years ago. Surviving is one sister, Mrs. W. A. Oliver of Ottawa, and one brother, Charles Booth of Detroit.

The remains were forwarded to Ottawa at noon today.

MRS. PHILIP T. GALLAGHER.

After an illness of seven weeks' duration, the death occurred on Friday afternoon of Dorothy Elaine Walt, the beloved wife of Philip Thomas Gallagher of 156 Antrim Street. She passed away at her residence in her 46th year. Born at Brighton, she was a daughter of the late George Walt and of Minnie Squire, who survives. She also leaves her husband; two sisters, Mrs. George Weir of Peterborough and Mrs. Eric Gerow of Brighton, and two brothers, Everett and Borden Walt, both of Brighton. Prior to coming here eight years ago, Mrs. Gallagher lived in Belleville. She was a graduate of Hatfield Hall School at Cobourg, and prior to her marriage was an active worker at Brighton Baptist Church, holding the office of organist there. The funeral is to take place on Sunday at 1.30 p.m., from the residence of her mother, Mrs. Minnie Walt, at Brighton. Interment will be made at Wood's Cemetery, Brighton, and the Rev. Mr. Moore of Brighton Baptist Church will officiate at services.

PLOWMEN PLAN TIME LIMITS

Rigid time limits on plowing will be set at the annual Peterborough County plowing match to be held on October 7, the Plowmen's Association decided after discussion at a meeting Friday night. The subject gave rise to lengthy debate.

Setting of a time limit was held important in making the show more attractive to the spectator. In order that conditions of the day may be taken into consideration, the time limits will not be set until the morning of the match. An Association committee will have jurisdiction in the matter.

Although it has been agreed the match will be held somewhere in North Monaghan this year, a definite site has not yet been chosen. It will be chosen in the near future. An effort will be made to obtain a soil testing demonstration and a zoological display from the Ontario Agricultural College for the occasion.

ENNISMORE GIRL IS PARALYSIS VICTIM

Despite the appearance of a second County case of infantile paralysis in Ennismore, the Agricultural Committee of the County Council decided the paralysis threat insufficiently serious to justify further postponement of the annual series of schools fairs, at a meeting yesterday. The committee advised Agricultural Representative A. D. Runions to go ahead with the fairs if municipal medical officers offer no objections.

The new paralysis case is that of a little 6-year-old girl. Her case has been diagnosed at an early stage, and it is believed chances for a rapid and complete recovery are excellent. Dr. R. J. Young, Ennismore medical officer, gave the opinion to township officials, no alarm need be felt.

Reeve James Clifford said to-day no closings of day schools or Sunday schools would be effected unless further cases appear.

To have been held yesterday, the South Burleigh school fair was postponed by Mr. Runions in view of the paralysis scare. It will likely be held on September 23.

The remainder of the school fair schedule will be observed as follows: Douro, September 14; Warsaw, September 15; Apsley, September 16; Buckhorn, September 17; Peterborough, September 21; Bridgenorth, September 24; Keene, September 28; Westwood, September, 29; and Havelock, September 30.

AWAITING CLAIMANTS.

Found on the roadway in various parts of the city after having dropped from motor vehicles, several license markers are awaiting claimants at the city police office. There are two motor cycle plates among the aggregation, numbered 4-399 and 4-970; a P.C.V. plate 722 Class C; a public vehicle plate 331; three commercial plates numbers 236-C, 52206-C, and 52340-C; and the following passenger plates: 15-R-15; 397-T-6, 7-R-724, 6-C-489, 88-H-50, and 22-R-74.

STOCK MARKET'S BREAK WIDEST PAST FIVE YEARS

TORONTO, Sept. 11.— (CP).— Sharp decline of prices—the widest in years—hit Canadian stock markets this week without the usual corollary of a break up of bullish sentiment. But the bulls, though apparently still confident, were on the sidelines awaiting events.

Selling was little above normal and there was only one 1,000,000 share day in the week in contrast to days of 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 shares each during previous similar market slumps since the war.

The slump came with blasts of war talk in Europe but the fact that the London market remained fairly tranquil suggested war-fear was less a factor than the technical condition of the New York market. As usual the Canadian markets moved with New York.

At the close yesterday the Toronto industrial share index was at its low point for the year—145.00, having dropped 15 points since the previous Saturday.

Losses of $2 to $4 for the week were quite plentiful at the close yesterday. Dominion Steel and Coal "B" registered a loss of $4.90 and other leaders dropping $2 to $4 were Brazilian Traction, Ford A, British American Oil, International Petroleum, Walkers Common, Distillers-Seagrams, Steel of Canada, Dominion Bridge, Hamilton Bridge, Canadian Car and Foundry, Shawinigan, Great Lakes Paper, Consolidated Bakeries, Fanny Farmer, Massey-Harris and Cockshutt Plow.

National Steel Car dropped $12 to $33 and losses in the preferred list reached $14 for Abilibi, $11.50 for Great Lakes Paper, $11 for Massey-Harris and $6 for International Metal Industries.

The exchange index for the miscellaneous mines suffered a loss of 18.19 to 141.09 in the week, crashing through the old low for the year.

Consolidated Mining and Smelting declined $6, followed by Noranda with a loss of $6.50 and Nickel and Hudson Bay $5.50 to $5.65 each. Ventures and Falconbridge were off $1.30 to $1.50 and recessions of 50 to 75 cents were booked for Sudbury Basin, Pend Oreille, Waite-Amulet and Sherritt. Aldermac lost 28 cents. Eldorado lost 36 cents.

STORAGE OF FOOD URGED IN BRITAIN

Clynes said: "MacDonald struck such a blow at British Labor as will never be forgotten, though it will be survived." In the economic crisis of 1931 MacDonald, then Prime Minister, caused a split in the Labor Party by calling Conservatives and Liberals into the Cabinet and forming a National Government.

Clynes recalled that MacDonald polled only five more votes than Clynes to become the Leader of the Labor Party in 1922 and declared some Labor members of the House of Commons were so sure that Clynes would be elected that they did not attend the meeting.

Describing the Britain of his youth Clynes said he was convinced the country then was nearer to complete social revolution than at any other period of modern history. The Throne itself was endangered, he said. At present, he added, the most loyal class is the working class.

Clynes drew a picture of the meeting of the first Labor Cabinet with King George V. in 1924. "We met this quiet man who was kindness and sympathy itself," he said.. "I'll never forget his words to us: 'The immediate future of my people and their whole happiness are in your hands, gentlemen. They depend upon your prudence and sagacity.'"

The Labor Leader wrote of George VI. as "a democratic Monarch, known to feel the urgent need for reforms for the benefit of the more unhappy of his subjects."

ROADS WASHED OUT POWER LINES DOWN

rose, then began to subside slowly. The gale capsized several boats anchored in nearby Lake Ramsay. The rains raised Junction Creek approximately 10 feet on the city outskirts and the river carried away the crib work for the new culvert over the Sudbury-Falconbridge highway.

In outlying Sudbury districts the downpour caused flood conditions of serious proportion. Homes in some sections were submerged over the first floor. One family was forced to flee from the rising waters which inundated their home. Other families were forced to retire to higher ground as the water of Nolings Creek rose. Boats were pressed into service to remove families living in upstairs flats.

Washouts were reported on all district roads. On the Sudbury-Capreol highway one section for more than 300 yards was flooded, carrying away the shoulder of the highway at that point.

On the city's outskirts the heavy rain washed out the Canadian National Railways Falconbridge line for a distance of 20 feet. The track ballast was swept in advance of the flood, which covered the land for a quarter of a mile on both sides of the railway.

OUTLAWS WIN GRUDGE BATTLE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 11.—The Outlaws defeated the Tanners 9 to 2 last night (Friday) in a grudge softball battle. The Tanners, without the services of Hahn, their ace pitcher, proved no match for "Dit" Clapper's gang.

The Outlaws scored one run in the first innings on 2 hits. They sent 4 across in the second on 2 hits, a walk and 4 errors. They scored 2 more in the fourth on 4 hits and a walk, and their final 2 were scored in the fifth on 3 hits and an error.

The Tanners scored their 2 runs in the last of the fifth on "Curly" Scriver's double, a walk to Brinklow and 2 errors. McCoy, on the mound for the Outlaws, pitched two-hit ball while striking out 3 and walking 2. Turner, the Tanners' hurler, was clouted for 12 safe blows. He failed to strike out any, and passed 2. Crate, the Outlaws' second sacker, led the batters with 3 hits in 4 times up. He was also picked off bases twice on smart throws by the Tanners' catcher, "Curley" Scriver. This concludes the playing activities of these two squads for the season, who were ousted from the playoffs by the Clerks and Elgin respectively.

ART TREASURES GO IN STORAGE AS WAR REIGNS

MADRID, Sept. 11 (CP).—The glory that is Spain, represented by priceless art treasures in Spanish government territory, is being preserved for posterity in reinforced vaults, churches and hideouts, safe from the menace of bombs and shells.

Shortly after the outbreak of the civil war, a year ago last July, a special board was appointed under the direction of Roberto Fernandez Valbuena, to devise a plan for the protection of treasures, either abandoned by Franco sympathizers or housed in public buildings within the zone of fire.

It was a huge task and considerable damage was done in the early days of the war by infuriated mobs who pillaged and razed homes of the nobility or by acts of the enemy before the preservation board began to function properly. But internal order has been restored and the authorities have encountered no further outbreaks of vandalism. As one official remarked: "The early destruction is deplored by all true Spaniards, who are the world's greatest creators and lovers of art."

This was borne out by a tour of the art collection depots which have been established at various points in Madrid. The work has been carried out under most trying conditions, without a halt even during aerial bombings and heavy shelling. Some of the depots have been hit but so far no serious damage has been done to the works of art.

A visit to the Prado, which in peace-time housed some of the world's rarest treasures, and to the Archaeological Museum, showed the wisdom of moving the collections to safer havens. Both have suffered periodic bombardments and some of the statuary gracing the front of the Prado has been destroyed by direct hits.

The spacious Archaeological building was a hive of activity when we began our tour of inspection shortly after a particularly severe "strafe" in which more than 300 shells were hurled into the centre of the city. Men and young girls were busy sorting and packing articles ranging from delicately-carved ivory to huge paintings by the masters. Hundreds of paintings were carefully set aside ready for packing and shipment. Most of these were earmarked for safe keeping in churches somewhere in Southern Spain, in the vaults at Valencia, with a few of the best works to be sent to the Paris exhibition this fall.

Spared From Torch

Among the treasures were many paintings, carved images of Christ and exquisite stained glass, taken from churches which were spared the torch or bombs of insurgent raiders. There were also rare manuscripts, including first edition engravings by Albert Durer, portions of the codex of St. Augustine of the sixth and seventh centuries, historical documents dealing with the Spanish Inquisition, correspondence by the Duke of Wellington during his stay in Spain and superb sculpture.

The rarest works of art are being sent to Valencia, which to date has been comparatively safe from the ravages of war. There they are being stored away in huge vaults, with steel and asbestos doors and in regulated temperature.

Everything possible is being done by the government to save these reasures from damage. Troops are constantly on guard outside the vaults.

Special care was taken with shipments of such masterpieces as Titian's "Equestrian Portrait of Charles V., Goya's 'Family of Charles IV' and his 'Disasters of the War,' Velasquez' "Maids of Honor," and Matsys' "Christ Before the Multitude." Measures have been taken to preserve hundreds of paintings which have shown signs of deterioration.

"It has been a tremendous task," remarked our guide. "We're proud of what has been done. Peace will be restored, but it's doubtful if the same could have been said about these treasures, had we abandoned them to the whims of war."

NAZI ACTIVITIES ARE STIRRING U.S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP).—A disclosure the justice department is investigating reported Nazi activities in the United States followed fresh demands today for a congressional inquiry.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said at Portland, Ore., that Attorney General Cummings ordered an investigation six weeks ago and it was begun at once.

"We expect to have an extended report on the Nazi matter, but I can't say when we will be ready to give this report to the attorney general," Hoover said. "It will be several weeks because we are going into this matter very thoroughly."

Two senators joined in proposing a congressional inquiry. Senator Burke (D-Neb) said he would introduce a resolution proposing one immediately upon reconvening of congress. Senator Borah (R-Idaho) expressed the opinion an investigation was warranted.

"There isn't any doubt of the fact that such organization (of groups advocating Nazi principles) is going on in this country," Borah said. "But to what extent I do not know."

A copyright article in the Chicago Daily Times of yesterday saying American Nazis were planning to seize control of the government "when the Communists' revolution starts" stirred the senators to comment.

August Klapprott, head of a Amerikadeutscher Volksbund camp in Sussex County, N.J., described the statements as a joke, "nothing but a big lie, and a lote of hooey."

Dr. Emil L. Baer, German consul in Chicago, said the idea anyone was attempting to form a Nazi army in America was "ridiculous."

Smell Of Goat Was Stronger

CHICAGO, Sept. 11 (A.P.). — Policeman Theodore Lambert testified that Larry Radkewicz of Berwyn was intoxicated while driving an automobile, but said he could not smell the man's breath.

"Why not?" asked Judge J. M. Braude.

"He had a goat in the back of the car," said Lambert, "and I couldn't smell anything but the goat."

Radkewicz was placed on probation.

OPENING MEETING OF HASTINGS W.I.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 11. — In the absence of the president, Mrs. Grover Kerr, first vice-president, took charge of the September meeting of the Hastings branch of the Women's Institute held in the Council Chambers on Tuesday afternoon. The meeting was the first one for the fall term, and was opened with the singing of the Ode, followed by the Lord's Prayer.

In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. J. A. Brown, the secretary's report and correspondence were read by Mrs. Roy King.

A letter of thanks was received from J. M. Baker and family. A letter was received from Edith M. Colling in regard to appointing a local leader and alternate to attend the district training school to be held in Warkworth on October 21 to November 12; also one from Greta Pollard in regard to the project for the fall term and the leaders' training school to be held in October. Further discussion was left over until the next meeting.

Mrs. Charles Dodd read the report as prepared by the treasurer, Mrs. O. Phillips. Mrs. J. A. MacDonald was appointed as a voting delegate to attend the area convention in Belleville on September 28 and 29.

It was unanimously decided that the secretary receive $5.00 as a recompense for her work for the year, to be payable at the end of the Institute year.

Members having a thrift exhibit for the area convention are requested to leave the same with the delegate, Mrs. J. A. MacDonald, or the president, Mrs. C. Baker.

Mrs. V. Findly gave a very interesting reading, choosing extracts from the chapter on "The Amusement and Social Life in the Days of the Early Settlers" as taken from the book "Early Life in Upper Canada." A contest, a letter party, was won by Mrs. Roy King, who answered 14 of the 15 questions correctly. Mrs. J. A. MacDonald came second, answering 13 correctly.

An account of the silver jubilee of the West Seymour branch was prepared by the reporter, but it was necessary to leave it for another meeting.

RED ARMY MOVES INTO NORTH CHINA

PEIPING, Sept. 11 (AP).—Powerful Chinese Communist forces of Gen. Mao Tse-Tung were reliably reported today preparing to take the field in Shensi and Shansi Provinces to block the thrust of the Japanese army in Northwest China.

The first independent word of the Communist forces in many weeks was brought here today by foreign missionaries evacuating the interior.

They reported they had seen long trains of ammunition, light and heavy artillery and all sorts of war supplies moving westward from Gengyang across the Yellow River to reinforce the Shensi Communists.

Their difficulties with the central government at Nanking buried in the face of the present crisis the Communists' bitter foes of the spread of Japanese influence, were awaiting orders to cross the Yellow River into Shansi Province and bolster the troops of the aged warlord, Gen. Yen Hsi-Shan.

The 100,000 well-trained Communist troops would be added to an equal number of Shansi provincial and central government troops concentrated in Northern Shansi Provinces where Japanese have penetrated after an advance from Peiping through Southern Chahar Province.

United States missionaries, fleeing from the Shansi zone of war, reported heavy Chinese forces were gathering at Yenmenkuan, the great wall pass 50 miles south of strategic Tatung, where a battle was expected.

The Japanese advance was reported to have reached Yangkao, 30 miles northeast of Tatung.

ONE COMPLAINT AT 109

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 11 (CP).—Mardiros Tatolan, whose main complaint is that his teeth are "wearing down," celebrated his 109th birthday Friday. He arose at noon and drank a glass of buttermilk.

LINDSAY SCHOOLS OPEN ON MONDAY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Sept. 11—Mid-September weather and the near approach of Fall does not seem to deter American tourists from visiting our lake resorts. On Friday a party of twenty tourists arrived in town from Cleveland. Ten of them made the journey in automobiles while the balance arrived in a special Pullman. They were on their way to Coboconk for a vacation. Today another contingent arrived from Cleveland together with other parties from Salem and Mansfield, Ohio.

Lindsay Central Fair will throw open its gates on Thursday next (Citizen's Day) for a four day event. The directorate is hoping for good weather, but fears are expressed that the infantile paralysis scare might have some effect on the attendance although the epidemic has not been serious in this district. The directorate passed up Conklin's shows this year, and have granted concessions to Wallace's Shows.

School Opens Monday

Satisfied in the belief that the danger from infantile paralysis has passed in Lindsay, the Board of Health has granted permission for the local schools to reopen on Monday, September 13. The pupils, however, will be under strict supervision.

A former resident of Peterborough in the person of Fred Spratt, passed away at his home in Bobcaygeon this week at the age of seventy-six years. The deceased had not been confined to his bed, and collapsed while walking about his home. Deceased was born in the village, but lived in Peterborough and Toronto for a number of years. He is survived by his wife and five sons. Interment took place at Verulam cemetery, requiem mass being chanted at the Catholic church, Bobcaygeon by Rev. Father Kay.

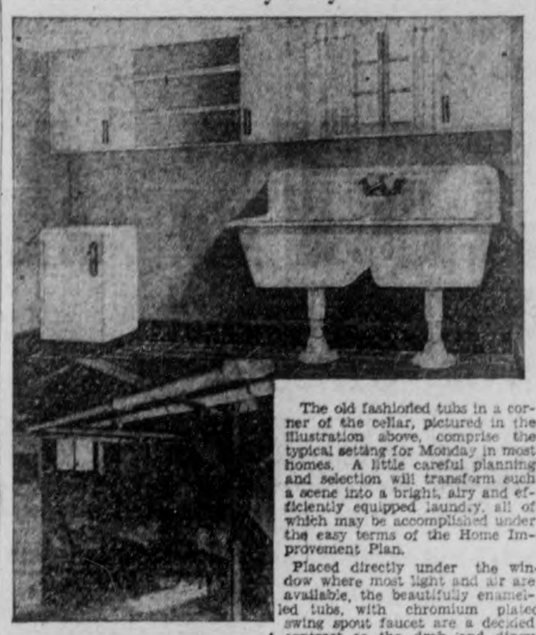
MANAGES ROYAL FARMS

SANDRINGHAM, England—(CP).—Alexander Mackinnon, a former employee of the Queen's family, has been appointed manager of the royal farms here. A Scot, he has managed several farms in England and Scotland.

Basement Laundry May Be Attractive



The old fashioned tubs in a corner of the cellar, pictured in the illustration above, comprise the typical setting for Monday in most homes. A little careful planning and selection will transform such a scene into a bright, airy and efficiently equipped laundry, all of which may be accomplished under the easy terms of the Home Improvement Plan.

Placed directly under the window where most light and air are available, the beautifully enamelled tubs, with chromium plated swing spout faucet are a decided contrast to the drab and dingy tubs still found in the majority of basements.

With modern efficient laundry equipment forming the key note, this part of the basement may be made into a bright cheery workroom at a surprisingly low cost. Walls and ceiling should be smoothly finished for ease in cleaning, and painted in a matching colour scheme, suggests the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating. Curtains at the window, and a water resistant covering for the floor, complete the decoration scheme.

A reliable plumbing contractor will be able to offer sound advice on planning the location and arrangement of the laundry, and the whole may be installed at a very moderate cost.

GIRL GIVES UP HER 'IRON LUNG'

WINNIPEG Sept. 11 (CP)—Death picked two boys and left two courageous girls fighting for their lives today in the only two iron lungs in Winnipeg for treatment of infantile paralysis.

Inez Woolam, 23, slept soundly early today for the first time since Monday when she gave up the respirator she had occupied for a year to aid paralysis victims in critical condition.

In the other respirator beside Miss Woolam lay six-year-old Marilyn Rowe of Bissett, Man. Her condition was fair.

Miss Woolam gave up the respirator when Marilyn was brought to Winnipeg by airplane Monday. Then two more patients — 16-year-old Robert Sadler and four-year-old Edward Valuska — necessitated speading use of the respirator further and a second one was brought from Ninette Sanatorium at Ninette, Man.

Last night, Robert and Edward died. Miss Woolam was moved into one respirator immediately and Marilyn was placed in the other.

Death of the two boys raised the number of fatal paralysis cases in Manitoba to five. There are 97 cases in the Province.

A third respirator, being rushed here from Sudbury, Ont., by the Ontario Government at the request of Hon. I. B. Griffiths, Manitoba Minister of Health and Welfare, is expected to reach the city today.

HAS LOVER ARRESTED

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 11 (CP).—Police to-day held Frederick Shannon, 26, for investigation, after removing him from the home of Miss Annie Shnay, 27, with whom he had been keeping company for some years.

Miss Shnay said Shannon had frequently threatened to shoot himself and when police arrived he had a small-calibre rifle in his possession. "I intended to shoot myself because she refused to marry me," he said.

England now has 25,000 bell ringers.

TORONTO STOCKS TAKE SECOND DIVE

TORONTO, Sept. 11—(CP).—The market went into another nose dive today—the second in a week—and new lows for the year or longer were scattered over the board at the close. In heading downward the Toronto list fell into line with the New York market and prices appeared to be taking an anxious view of Russia's new threat against Italy. Losses ranging up to 6 points were showing among the seniors and there was no recovery of worth-while proportions in the closing stage.

Brazilian, the Massey Harris issues, National Grocers common, Distillers-Seagrams, Canners A, Walkers common, the Canadian Car issues and some of the paper issues registered new lows for the year. Brazilian closed around 20½, off about 1½ points, and Massey-Harris pfd declined 5 points. Abitibi pfd also lost five points or more.

In the golds Lake Shore sold down to 46, off more than two points for the day. Dome droped 1½, Hollinger a point.

Smelters declined 6 and improved slightly to 72, off 4. International Nickel closed 3 points down, Noranda about 2½ off and Hudson Bay about a point off.

BONARLAW

Mr. Roy Brown, cheesemaker at Maple Leaf factory is again receiving the congratulations of his friends. He won two firsts and one second and one third prize on white cheese at Belleville Fair last week.

Canon W. G. Swayne, Mrs. Swayne and Robert have returned from Ottawa and the Gatineau district where they have been holidaying for the past month.

Mrs. Bertha Blackburn of Coe Hill was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Stanley McInroy for several days this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Baker of Peterborough visited Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown over the week-end.

On account of the derailment near Shannonville on Wednesday last all trains were routed via Bonarlaw and Peterborough for some time on the C.P.R. and the citizens there had a taste of the old time activity with long freight trains and heavy passenger trains pounding through all night long.

St. Mark's Sunday School reopened on Sunday last after the holiday. In addressing the school Canon Swayne referred to this being the 150th anniversary of the consecration of the first Anglican Bishop in the British Colonies viz. Rev. Chas. Ingles, first Bishop of Nova Scotia in 1787. At the church service following Sunday School the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Brown, Olive Joyce, was baptized. Mrs. A. V. Brown acted as Godmother and Mr. J. M. Brown as Godfather.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Craighead, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Plumpton, Miss Dorothy Craig and Mr. Bert Seaborne returned to town on Tuesday after a motor trip to Noranda and Rouyn.

Mr. A. Rapport and son Marcus returned to town on Thursday from Toronto, where they have been celebrating the Jewish New Year.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Dunk, Front Street, visited the Exhibition in Toronto on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Stu Anderson returned to town on Thursday after spending the past few days in Toronto.

Miss M. Coveney, a bride-elect of this month, was tendered a prenuptial shower last Wednesday afternoon at the home of the Misses Teresa and Helen Butler. Miss Coveney received a number of gifts in cream and green enamelware, for which she extended thanks to her many friends. Among the guests were Misses T. Coveney, M. Seabrook, G. Orr, E. Fitzgerald, A. O'Reilly, E. Convey, K. Convey, M. Convey, A. Gorman, M. German, K. Skinkle, O. Faux, M. Faux, M. Convey and R. McFadden.

Cow Found In Straw Pile

HAYSVILLE, Ont.—Threshers on the farm of Maurice Weicker near here heard a cow lowing faintly. No animal could be seen, but the sound seemed to come from a straw pile. When this was torn down a two-year-old Holstein heifer was found in the middle. It had been there four days.

Bit A Dog And Dog Nipped Back

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—Charles Fellows, 11, bit a dog. He playfully crouched and growled at the animal, then nipped its ear. The dog nipped back. Charles was taken to the emergency hospital with a gashed lip.

REV. E. W. YOUNG IS INDUCTED INTO HIS NEW CHARGE

Undenominational religious teachings of present-day schools was deplored by Rev. J. S. Ferguson of Keene when he spoke at the special service in St. Andrew's United Church which saw Rev. E. W. Young, M.A., inducted as pastor of the church last night.

"Undenominational teachings in our schools has resulted in an undenominational Christianity, a contradiction of terms," he declared. He asserted a resultant lack of stability was responsible for an increase in juvenile delinquency. So-called Christians of today are living too much on the religious traditions of their parents and grandparents rather than thinking and acting for themselves as Christians, he declared.

Many Atheists

Looking with disapproval on the modern outlook, he said he agreed with those who contend increasing numbers of men in this age are practical atheists whole phoilsophy of life contains no conception or acknowledgement of God. Recalling a speech by a prominent lawyer recently in which the speaker declared few people are any longer taking God into consideration in their lives, Mr. Ferguson said that to all intents and purposes the majority are atheists at heart.

In addition to undenominational teaching, he deplored a fad for simple bible teaching he claimed was in vogue today. "The thing is simply ludicrous," he said, stating that such a thing was comparable to teaching English literature in schools without annotations by the teacher.

Sunday school teachers should be subjected to rigorous examinations as to their knowledge of the subject they are about to teach, he believed. It is common practice today to say that "if they have the holy spirit they need no tests," he complained. If a teacher of biology told his superiors he knew nothing of that subject but was conversant with theology and that there was only the difference between "bio" and "theo" in the two subjects, he would not be hired, the speaker contended.

All Missionaries

All men are missionaries either for good or for evil as they cannot help influencing people one way or another in the course of their lives, Rev. Ferguson continued. "It is high time that many of us grew out of our infancy and started feeding the church instead of feeding from it," he said, warning that the church should not continue to spoon-feed people. "Every Christian must be a missionary for God."

In an impressive ceremony, Rev. Young was inducted to his new charge. Rev. E. N. Cook of Fraserville, secretary of the Peterborough Presbytery of the United Church, presided.

"We do so receive him," the congregation replied in answer to the charge of acceptance put to them. Rev. Young succeeds Rev. Dr. C. V. McLean to the pulpit this summer.

Rev. E. W. Rowland of Mark Street United Church delivered the charge to the minister and congregation. Adjutant Neil Warrander of the Salvation Army, president of the Peterborough Ministerial Association, was also on the dais and a number of other representatives of the district and city clergy were in attendance.

Members of the congregation and others were accorded the opportunity of meeting the new pastor at a social evening which followed the induction in the Sunday school hall. Dr. H. R. H. Kenner presided and Rev. J. W. Gordon of Port Hope, former minister of St. Andrew's, joined in function.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, September 12

Sunday's horoscope is one of peculiar import, with disturbing and reactionary elements, attended by obscure, vague, baffling and unexplainable angles difficult to interpret. In the social, domestic and affectional relations there may be memorable contacts and much happiness.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a year of conflicting conditions. Beware of intrigues and bring them into the open by drastic and determined measures. Friendship may be of a sentimental influence on the private life, bringing much happiness and unexpected satisfaction.

A child born on this day may be energetic, aggressive and resolute as well as friendly and sentimental, and it may have noble if radical ideals and impulses.

For Monday, September 13

Monday's astrological forecast is for a difficult and doubtless state of affairs, with much to call for vigilance, sagacity and sound common sense. Stubborn obstacles, craft, deceit and misrepresentation or fraud are among the portents calling for much precaution, especially with writings, agreements and the spoken word. Private correspondence may be adversely affected also.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of difficulties brought about by misrepresentation, deception and dishonesty or fraud. This may be due mainly to trickery in writings, contracts or distortion of oral agreements, a condition likewise of menace in private correspondence. All these call for particular alertness, acumen and honesty in business and personal associations.

A child born on this day, while being clever and capable, may have rigid, precise, critical and even spiteful and crafty proclivities that may react on its popularity and cause a tendency to gloom and depression.

CNE CROWDS DOWN 262,000 DAY TO GO

TORONTO, Sept. 11 (C.P.). — Last chance to take in the 59th Canadian National Exhibition, Citizens' Day was celebrated to-day and a flashing display of fireworks closed the Fair for 1937.

Attendance was down this year, due mainly to the current epidemic of infantile paralysis. Up to Friday the attendance was down 262,000 when the total attendance, 1,187,000, was compared with 1,449,000 for the same period last year.

Silver trophies for the grand champion live stock were presented by Hon. Duncan Marshall, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, in the march of 1,000 prize-winning animals. At the daily luncheon of directors, Dr. G. I. Christie, president of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, urged more attention be paid by individual farmers to herd improvement.

Dr. Christie spoke of improved marketing of Canadian produce, particularly the better sales of Canadian hams and bacons in Great Britain. He paid tribute to the prominent Ontario breeders who had died since he assumed his office 10 years ago.

Popularity Contest Planned For The Kiwanis Carnival

'Produced - In - Peterborough' Exhibition Be Held In Armouries Next Week

As one of the features of the "Produced-in-Peterborough" Exhibition being staged by the Kiwanis Club in the Armouries next Thursday and Friday, the popularity contest is attracting considerable interest.

The popularity contest is to close at ten-thirty on the final night of the carnival and the young lady in the contest receiving the largest number of votes up to that time will be presented with fifty dollars in cash, while to the runner-up will be presented a cash prize of twenty-five dollars.

For those who purchase tickets from the winning contestants, a prize of fifty dollars in dividends will also be awarded.

Proceeds of the contest, together with the general proceeds from the carnival as a whole are to be devoted to the Kiwanis service work among under-privileged children.

Starting Monday, a daily bulletin will be issued showing the exact number of votes credited to each contestant. All these representatives are within close range of one another, and it would be a rash procedure to attempt to anticipate the winners at this early date. However, the fortunate ones will be those whose friends and admirers take sufficient interest in this contest to pile up votes for them.

Among many working demonstrations to be presented by local manufacturers in conjunction with the "Made-in-Peterborough" feature, is a braiding machine to be installed by the Canadian General Electric Company. Other firms who have promised exhibits include: The Western Clock Company, Peterborough Canoe Company, DeLaval Company, Peterborough Lumber Company, Campbell's Dairy, and Harold R. Scott Lumber Supplies, etc.

The C.G.E. braiding machines are too complicated in design and fitt too many functions to be described in a brief note. But the direct functions of the machine on exhibit may be interesting to see and observe.

This particular machine is putting on a braid which fulfills various functions. The braid must hold the asbestos protection firmly and evenly in place. It must provide a sufficiently tough and close exterior to withstand the abuse the cord will receive in service. It must present an attractive appearance that will harmonize with the surroundings in which it will be used and must have a distinctive design peculiar to the manufacturer who will use it in his product.

The machine itself operates very much on the principle of the spinning jenny applying an endless close or open weave of cloth, depending on the setting of the machine gears of any desired colour or texture and of many and varied designs.

An attempt to describe the mechanical operation of the machine would take too much time and space and involve too much technical discussion so that the best plan is to watch the machine in operation at the C.G.E. exhibit.

Villages Boycott Campbellford Men

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 11.—Rural citizens in villages to the south of town are taking the local paralysis "epidemic" rather seriously and have boycotted Campbellford citizens completely. It was reported to-day, that a local egg dealer sent his truck out on the road through communities where business was usually good and he returned to town without having been able to purchase one crate of eggs. Another instance is reported of a local confectioned who sent three of his employees to the Wooler School Fair to establish a soft drink booth on the grounds, but as soon as it was learned they were from Campbellford they were barred from the grounds.

JAPS TO SEND OUT ENVOYS, EXPLAIN HER WAR IN CHINA

TOKYO, Sept. 11 (A.P.). — Japan to-day planned to despatch special envoys to three great Powers—France, Great Britain, and the United States — to explain her version of the Far Eastern trouble Japan believes will continue at least into 1938.

Their mission presumably would be to lay before these Powers Japan's position in the Sino-Japanese conflict with an explanation of its causes and an outline of events now effecting large sections of North China.

It was emphasized the envoys, who would lecture and give interviews, would not be official government emissaries, but would be considered as representatives of the people. Business circles were said also to be considering sending their own representatives to talk with business men for the same purpose.

China was understood here to be planning delegating similar tasks to missions to win sympathy for her cause.

It was learned authoritatively, however, that the trio of extraordinary representatives aimed perhaps at obtaining better "understanding" of the Japanese cause abroad and the sympathy of other nations, had not yet been designated.

A prediction that the war will continue into 1938 was made by Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye, who said Japan must lay her plans with the lengthening military campaign in mind.

"We are concerned now with nothing but the hostilities in China," the Premier asserted.

"We shall bend every effort to win victory there. Consequently we are obliged to arrange all our affairs so as to permit smooth conduct of the operations."

The Premier indicated that he believed business men would be suitable for the special "explanatory" envoys to foreign Powers.

The winners of this series will meet the Cheltenham-Inglewood Combines, here on Wednesday night if the Petes win and away on Friday.

SAFE STYMIED THIEVES

WELLAND, Ont., Sept. 11.—(CP). —Would-be thieves backed up a truck to Edward Kassirer's store here, climbed in and forced a window, then forced inside doors to reach the safe. There they were stymied, for they couldn't open it and it weighed half a ton. Only a few small articles of furniture were missing.

BE PREPARED, BE RESPECTED URGES MORINE

LINDSAY, Sept. 11.—A policy of preparedness, as opposed to aggressive warfare, was enunciated by Sir Alfred Morine, K.C., of Newfoundland, in an address at the Canadian Club here last night.

"A cowardly nation is sure to be persecuted, while a country which is prepared to stand up for its rights, is sure to be respected," he said. "The idea of defence has been almost universally adopted. The land which we call Canada must be defended, not only against invasion, but we must defend our people who travel throughout the world on legitimate business.

"Are we defending our own people in China today, or are we leaving all the responsibility to the Mother country?" he queried.

The speaker declared that we must be prepared to defend Canadian merchant vessels on the high seas. "It is as important to us that our products should be able to find a market as it is for other countries to be able to obtain our products. We must defend our nationals and our trade wherever they may find themselves."

Commenting on the building up of the Canadian Army and fortification of the Pacific ports, Sir Alfred declared that Canada is not capable of absolute self-defence. "If we are going to defend we must be united. There is no part of the British Empire which can defend itself without assistance from the other constituent parts. What resistance could Canada's Navy offer to an enemy fleet without the aid of the rest of the Empire fleet? The Japanese fleet could destroy our ships in a night. If we were to adopt a policy of isolation and not depend on the British fleet," he said.

The speaker stated that all political parties of Great Britain realized that her fleet was too weak to cope with that of Italy, and for this reason stayed out of the Ethiopian conflict.

He scored those citizens who depend on the United States for assistance in the event of invasion of Canada. If the Japanese fleet were to attack our shipping in the Panama Canal or the Pacific Ocean, the United States would have her hands full protecting her own shipping, and would have no time to help Canada. We must help defend ourselves upon the sea, he said.

THIS PULPITS' MESSAGE

The epistle of Paul to the Ephesians tells of a heavenly saviour and a heavenly salvation. It describes the relationship between Christ and the believer. Angelic wickedness was the first sin and since then Satan has been seeking to destroy both God and man. So the battle for man's soul involves more than human personalities (Eph. 6:12). The earthly life, death, resurrection and ascension of Christ was to spoil sin, defeat Satan, and deliver the sinner. This was gloriously accomplished, so that the one who accepts Jesus as Saviour is counted as if he had never sinned at all, as righteous as Christ (Eph. 1:3), and accepted by the highest judiciary court, (Eph 2:6). This heavenly salvation provides a heavenly sphere of living, (Eph. 4:18-13) with a heavenly destiny of all perfection (Eph. 5:26-27). This is the gospel. What a message it is! Whenever a believing soul receives this heavenly salvation there is vindicated before a universe of spiritual beings. The manifold wisdom of God, Eph. 3:10.

OLD MAN'S GHOST STALKED SO WARDROBE UP FOR SALE

Visitors Protested Strange Opening, Shutting of Doors —Kept Awake

TRIED TO CATCH HIM

London — "And now, ladies and gentlemen, we come to lot 13—a large Victorian wardrobe. This piece of furniture will afford you endless opportunities for psychical research.

"The wardrobe is haunted, and the ghost is sold with it—all in one lot."

That is how the auctioneer who sold this wardrobe two or three years ago might have introduced the lot.

It was offered for sale as a "haunted wardrobe" recently by Mrs. Barclay, of Carterton Manor, Oxfordshire.

Mrs. Barclay bought the wardrobe at a sale at a private house near Streatley three years ago. It has three doors in walnut, a hanging cupboard, and a central portion with shelves.

Three months ago some friends asked Mrs. Barclay about the strange opening and shutting of the wardrobe doors, which had kept them awake all night. The noise has continued each night since. There is more than that, it is stated.

The ghost of an elderly man, wearing a deerstalker's cap and old-fashioned clothes, walks down the stairs and out of the front door every evening.

Mrs. Barclay says she has seen him. She has tried to touch him, but in vain. He vanishes. He is noisy. He "clatters" and "shuffles."

Mr. East, Mrs. Barclay's secretary, confirmed all this.

"I knew nothing about the ghost," he said, "when I came here, and I slept in the room with the wardrobe. I had a bad time. There were noises and I was wakened several times. I asked for my room to be changed, and Mrs. Barclay guessed what it was. 'You have experienced it too?' she said.

"Mrs. Barclay is not 'spooky.'"

It was said many people wanted to buy the haunted wardrobe.

GO WITHOUT THINGS BUY FOOD FOR DOG

Elderly Woman Upset When Court Rules She Must Buy License

London.—Flossie is only a black and white mongrel, but she is the constant companion and guard of elderly Mrs. Henrietta Gale, of High Road, Tottenham, N.

And so Mrs. Gale was very upset by the magistrate's remark when, sued for not having a dog license, Mrs. Gale said she couldn't afford one.

"Then you shouldn't keep a dog," said the magistrate. "The money could have been more usefully spent on your family."

Mrs. Gale told him that her family had grown up; there was just Flossie. "I go without to give the dog a meal," she added.

Holding Flossie in her arms, Mrs. Gale's daughter, after warning him to keep at a respectful distance because Flossie was a "bit sharp," told a reporter that her mother had scraped enough money together to buy a license.

"We all go without things for the dog," she added.

TWO CYCLISTS CRASH DIE OF SAME HURTS

Received Identical Injuries to Face, Head, Leg — Machines Locked, Stand

Romford.—Two motor-bicyclists, Charles Elliott, aged 20, of Dagenham, and Michael Barrett, aged 27 of Hornchurch, collided head-on in the centre of a clear road at Hornchurch and were killed.

They were riding bicycles of the same model.

When their bodies were examined each had injuries to the same parts of the face and head, each had a fractured skull, the left leg of each was broken in exactly the same place.

The bicycles were standing locked together in the middle of the road; each rider had been flung off and was lying dead some distance away.

At the inquest at Romford, the coroner, L. F. Beecle, said: "This is the most remarkable case I have ever listened to."

Dr. C. K. Simpson, pathologist, said the injuries were some of the most remarkable he had ever seen. They were almost identical.

The coroner: "How these men collided on a clear road is beyond comprehension. There must have been some failure on the part of one or both to understand the movements of the other, or one or both tried to pass on the wrong side."

A verdict of accidental death was recorded in each case.

BATS 1,000 RUNS TWICE

Wimbledon, Eng. — Keen-eyed, curly-haired "Pat" Dickinson, aged 17, who captained the Rest against the Lord's schools at Lord's, has for the second consecutive season scored 1,000 runs in school cricket.

"I was lucky enough to score 64 in my first match. My father is hoping to send me to Oxford, and my ambition is to be good enough to enter first-class cricket as an amateur after leaving the university."

PAY FOR THEIR FUN AFTER FALSE ALARM

Court Orders Pair to Hand Over Expense of Turn-out

Blackpool.—"Like a riot," was the description of a scene to which two fire engines raced in Foxhall Rd.

Four Bradford men, Joseph Brown, 26; Albert Bowers, 37; Norman Blakely Hutchinson, 20; and John Simpson, 26, were charged with breach of the peace.

They were each fined and ordered to pay the cost of the turn out of the two fire engines, between them.

GIRL SOUGHT $128,500 BY PRE-DATED LETTER

Cut Away Envelope So Inside One Stamped—Sent Entry After Game

Chorley, Lancs.—An attempt to obtain £25,735 ($128,500) from a football pool by sending a correct entry after the matches in an envelope which had been previously date-stamped was alleged against a girl of 26 at Chorley.

Charged with attempting to obtain the money by false pretences from Littlewoods, Ltd., of Liverpool, Evelyn Annie Dixon, of Tarleton, Lancashire, was committed for trial. She was allowed bail.

It was alleged that she placed an envelope in another addressed to herself. A piece was cut from the top of the outer envelope, so that the inside one caught the date-stamp.

Then she waited for the football results and used the inside envelope to send in her entry, but Littlewoods noticed the two date-stamps.

When interviewed, she said: "I did not want the money for myself. I wanted to help my mother, who has been a cripple for 15 years."

RUBBER CAPE HELPS IN RESCUE OF BOY

Policeman Drags Lad Off Live Power Line

Liverpool.—A Liverpool police constable who dragged the body of a six-year-old boy from a live railway line was commended for his bravery at the inquest here on Stanley Watson of Aintree.

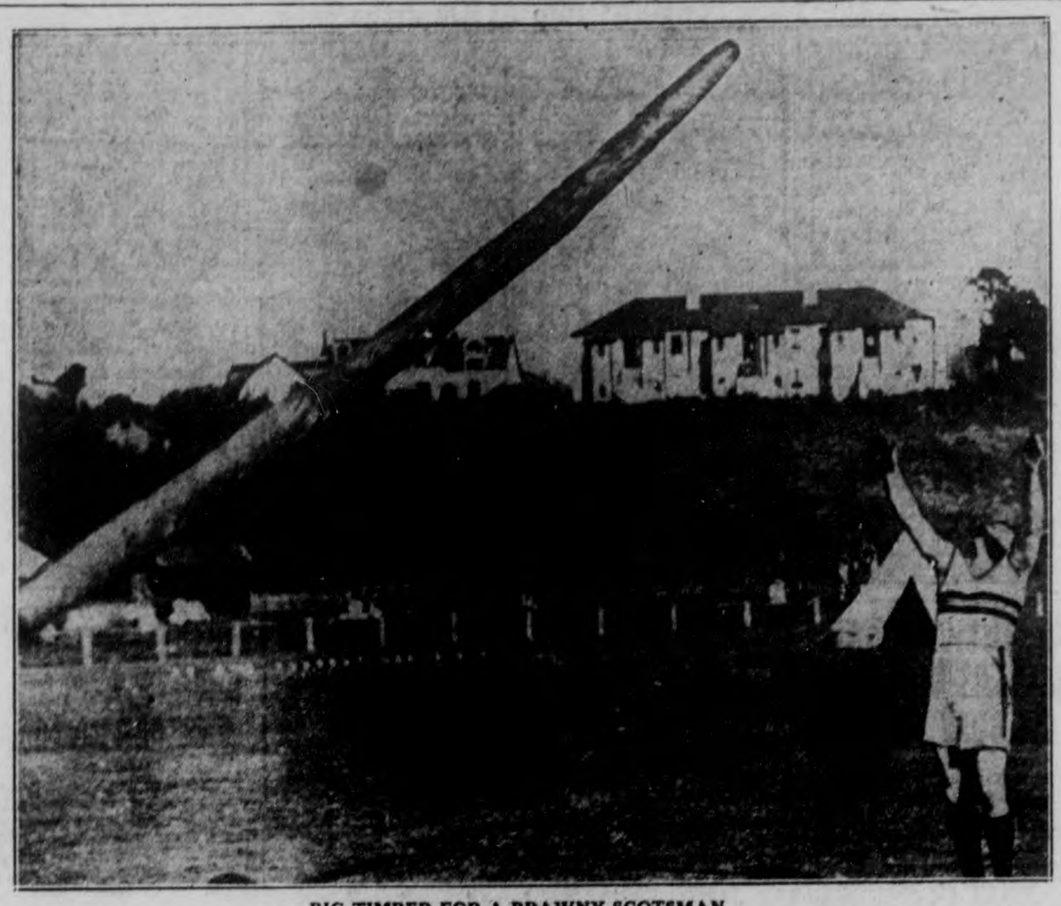
Harold Hilton, of Guildhall Rd., Aintree, told the coroner that Watson tripped while playing on the line. "I saw smoke come out of Stanley's neck," said Hilton. "I ran home to tell my mother, who called the policeman."

P.C. Sebborn said he trusted to his rubber cape to insulate him from the 600-volt current while freeing the boy.

POLICE EXECUTIVE ROBBED

London.—For the second time in two months, the home, at King's Rd., Richmond, of J. Nott-Bower, deputy assistant commissioner of the Metropolitan police, was broken into, when goods worth about £40 ($200) were taken. A man has been charged.

On the previous occasion a cigarette box and the contents of two children's money boxes were stolen.



BIG TIMBER FOR A BRAWNY SCOTSMAN

Big timber to the minds of the lumber men may be tall and stately trees dwarfing native woodsmen, but this big stick is neither a mast of a ship nor a telephone pole that by comparison makes a midget of the brawny Scotsman near it. It is the caber and he has just given it the heave-o at the Cowal games, at Dunoon, Argyle, Scotland. Clad in striped sweater and manly shorts, this timber-heaver is of a different sort than our own lumbermen and bears the name of A. J. Nicolson and Tighalnaeick, Kyles of Bute, is called his home town.

NEW BRITISH BOMBERS FEATURE LONG RANGE

Can Make Non-Stop Return Flights to Thirteen States

Westminister, Eng. — The Air Ministry gave away one of the most closely guarded secrets of the R.A.F. expansion—performance details of the newest night raider, the Harrow bomber, which is being mass-produced to do 200 m.p.h. with war load and to cruise at 163 m.p.h.

Here are the times in which it could reach eight key cities from London — Brussels: one hour, 10 minutes; Paris: one hour, 15 minutes; Amsterdam: one hour, 30 minutes; Berlin: three hours, 40 minutes; Copenhagen: three hours, 50 minutes; Prague: four hours; Vienna: four hours, 45 minutes; Madrid, five hours.

Range of the Harrow (product of Handley Page) with normal bomb load is 1,250 miles, which can be increased to 1,850 miles. It could make non-stop return flights to 13 states.

HISTORIC HOMES DISAPPEAR AS MAYFAIR IS RENOVATED

Berkely Sq. and Bruton St. Rectangle Consigned to Scrap Heap

QUEEN LIVED THERE

London. — Mayfair, one of the most exclusive residential areas in London, is undergoing a far-reaching tranformation and in the process more of the city's historic buildings are being wiped out to make room for modern structures.

Latest zone to be consigned to the scrap heap is the famous rectangle in Berkeley Sq. and Bruton St., which includes the former London home of the Queen and birthplace of Princess Elizabeth. It was from this house, No. 17 Bruton St., that the Queen, then Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, set out for her wedding to the present sovereign, then the Duke of York.

Planned in the closing years of the 17th century, the square is rich in memories of the days when link boys escorted famous political and other public figures to their doors on foggy nights and when cabs and family coaches were the popular modes of conveyance.

One of the first residents on the square was the Earl of Bute, who was followed by the second Earl of Shelbourne, afterwards Marquess of Lansdowne, who as prime minister conceded independence to the United States.

No. 11 was once the home of Horace Walpole and the fact that it descended to his niece, the Countess of Waldgrave, would appear to discount the story that Walpole lost the house through a bet in a game of cards.

It was at No. 13 that the fourth Marquess of Hereford formed the nucleus of the famous Wallace collection.

Those two political rivals, William Pitt and Fox, once lived in the square, as did the Duke of Argyll. Sheridan represented the arts, but the biographers say that so often was his house beset by creditors that the family were virtual prisoners.

OFFICER TURNS DOWN HIS STOLEN GASOLINE

Bath, Eng.—"Fancy you being a copper!" said Michael Daly, an Irish laborer, when a Surrey motorcycle patrol, on duty in plain clothes, revealed his identity.

Daly had asked him if he could use some gasoline. Asked where it had come from, he said, "You have nothing to worry about if you keep your mouth shut. It is not pinched, anyway." Daly took two cans of fuel from beneath some straw and said, "You can have it for one shilling a gallon."

Daly was fined £2 ($10) for stealing.

LOSE SILVER COMPASSES

Honolulu.—The disappearance has just been discovered here of several silver compasses on which Hawaiian royalty for half a century took their Masonic oaths. Amongst the monarchs who used them before the islands became American territory were Kamehameha IV, Kamehameha V, and Kalahau. The compasses have been used for the island lodge since 1856.

FAST SEA 'MONSTER' GIVES FISHERS THRILL

Charges at Small Boat, Then Disappears Near Holiday Crowded Pier

Berwick-on-Tweed.—A monster, described as being approximately 30 feet long, and displaying remarkable speed, provided fishermen and holiday-makers with a thrill here.

Without warning it appeared on the surface of the sea and threshed its way through the water toward a small boat from which a number of men were fishing, then turned and swam rapidly in the direction of the pier before finally disappearing.

The fishermen, astonished by its sudden appearance, pulled their boat out of its track as it darted toward them with the apparent intention of attacking them. Holiday-makers and residents on the shore watched for nearly 10 minutes before it disappeared.

John Walsh, of the British Legion club, Berwick, said, "My attention was first attracted to the monster when I saw a number of fishermen hurriedly pulling in their nets and making for the shore."

'NO BORDER AFTER TO-NIGHT' GANG SAYS RAIDING CUSTOMS

3 SENT TO TRIAL

Belfast.—When three men were accused at Dundalk, County Louth, following the burning of customs huts on the Northern Ireland border, it was stated that a customs officer asked permission to save the records.

The leader of the raiders, it was alleged, replied: "I can't allow you. There is no border after to-night."

The customs offices were destroyed on the day on which the King and Queen visited Belfast.

Gerard Halfpenny and Sean O'Farrell, both of Dundalk, were committed for trial charged with conspiracy to burn the customs huts at Carrickarnon, with burning the huts, and with being in possession of firearms. A third youth, Patrick Downey, also of Dundalk, was discharged.

Sergt. Edward Smyth, of the Royal Ulster Constabulary, stated he was speaking to Customs Officer Connolly when he heard the command "hands up," and seven men appeared.

"The leader of the men had a revolver and covered the customs officer who was standing behind the counter in the hut."

Halfpenny, the leader, had a revolver, and O'Farrell, who had what appeared to be a Thomson machine-gun, kept them covered, ordering them to keep their hands up while Halfpenny searched them.

Altogether the party had the Thomson gun, two rifles and four revolvers. Having searched them, Halfpenny gave his men orders, saying: "Men, you know your orders, you know what you have got to do. Failing to carry out these orders you know the consequences. Carry on."

Halfpenny then turned to O'Farrell and said: "You see these four men. If one of them makes the slightest move don't hesitate to shoot and shoot with effect."

After describing the burning of the huts, Smyth said that Halfpenny asked the men if everything was all right and then said to Smyth and his companions:

"You men line up along the side of the pound. As soldiers of the Republic army we don't shoot unarmed men. If you were armed it would be otherwise."

Inspector O'Mahoney, of Dundalk, said that the three accused were arrested in the mountains, outside a tent. There were no bedclothes in the tent and nothing to suggest the men were there for any length of time.

COSTS TEN SHILLINGS TO CUDDLE IN AUTO

"Be a Sport, Forget It," Driver Asks Officer

Croydon.—George Cullen, of Balham, was stopped in Croydon while driving a car with his right hand on the steering and his left arm around a young woman, whose head was on his shoulder.

The police said he remarked: "Be a sport and forget it."

Cullen said that he stopped immediately when called upon, which showed that he had full control.

The chairman: Well, it will be a 10s ($2.50) cuddle this time, and that is letting you off rather lightly.

SINGING WAS FATAL

Bombay.—Alagan, a native of Madura, was reported beaten to death because he persisted in singing songs which were objectionable to some caste Hindoos.

ROCKETS AND BOMBS TO FIGHT AIR ATTACKS

Invention Would Let Explosives Drop From Parachutes

Mynyddygwair, Wales.—Behind barbed wire fences electrified at night Grindell Matthews, Welsh inventor, is spending all his time in a lonely bungalow on the mountains here working on a scheme to make England safe from air attacks.

He has evolved a plan for laying an aerial minefield immediately in front of and surrounding an attacking squadron. A torpedo shot from the ground to an altitude of 30,000 feet in a few seconds will carry secondary rockets which can be released by time fuses. From each a parachute will open and up to 500 feet of wire will drop from a coil with a small bomb attached—all making a great net of live wire and explosive fire to burn up the attacking invader.

DECLARES FIRST DUTY TO HIS GRANDMOTHER

But Wife Says Husband Has Sent Only $6 in Nearly Year

Caistor, Lincs.—Ernest Fawcett of Old Armthorpe, Doncaster, was summoned here for maintenance. His wife, Mrs. Fawcett, of Nettleton, Lincs, said they were married last October and had one baby.

"He promised to provide a home for me," she said. "He has never done so—has sent me only 30s ($6) since we married.

"We do not live together. When the baby was born he sent me 12s ($2.50).

"He wanted me to live with his grandmother, but there is only one bedroom in the house. He has only been to see me once."

Then Fawcett faced the magistrates, told them he had not been able to support his wife because he had to look after his grandmother.

"It is my duty to support my grandmother, as no one else will do so," he said.

"My wife and child can have what they want as well. I have lived with my grandmother all my life."

Fawcett was ordered to pay his wife 17s 6d ($4.25) a week.

MOCK RAIDS REVEAL LONDON IS PREPARED

Largest Air Force Can't Continuously Attack City—Better in Actual Practice

London.—London is a tough nut for enemy aeroplanes to crack. This fact has been revealed in mock raids by the Royal Air force. On the basis of air ministry calculations, 80 per cent. of the raids were intercepted. Taking into consideration the exercises were designed primarily more for unit practice than for testing defences the ministry believes in actual warfare more than half the enemy's aeroplanes would have been brought down.

Geoffrey Edwards, writing on the subject in the London News-Chronicle, says: "No air commander, except as a last desperate fling, would dream of pitting his resources against London (including the docks and the Home Counties) if he thought he would experience anything like such losses. Moreover, in the past few days, no records are available of the effect of anti-aircraft guns, balloon barrages and other protective devices, all of which may be expected in actual practice to hamper the raiders and shepherd them into the hands of defending fighter squadrons."

Discussing the subject editorially, the News-Chronicle declares: "It is true that even the 20 per cent. of the raiders who are estimated to have got through could, in time of war, do an uncomfortable amount of damage. But the vital point is that any air force attacking London can expect to suffer very heavy losses. This means that even the largest air force in the world cannot continuously attack the city."

BRIEF STORIES GATHERED FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE WORLD

HELPED AMBULANCE FUND NOW FEAR HUNGRY GHOSTS

Chinese Curtailed Usual Ceremonies—Were Persuaded By Younger Generation

RETAIN OLD CUSTOM

Singapore—Chinese in British Malaya are very anxious lest the ghosts of their ancestors trouble them during the coming year.

At the recent "Festival of the Hungry Ghosts" many orthodox Chinese were persuaded by members of the younger generation to curtail the usual ceremonies and give the money thus saved to ambulance funds being organized for North China.

Now the Chinese fear that the "hungry ghosts, being unpropitiated, will trouble them all next year."

In Malaya thousands of Chinese farmers, shopkeepers and villagers still cling to the custom of offering roast pigs and fowls, fruits and cakes and burning joss paper to satisfy the souls released from Hell for one month in every year. The spirits will meddle maliciously with human affairs, it is feared, if they are not appeased.

SHEEP GET AIR TRIP OVER DESERT LANDS

Cheaper Than Land Travel—No Loss Feported

Askhabad, Turko-Soviet.—Heavy aeroplanes of the civil aviation of the Turkmenian republic have started the transportation across the Kara Kum desert of 10,000 sheep from state farms to collective farmers of the Tashauz area. The transportation of sheep by air is here considerably cheaper and more convenient than by land; the latter way requires considerable time and great expenditures on feeding and protection of sheep and does not insure against any loss on the way. Aeroplanes deliver sheep without any losses from Askhabad to Tashauz—a distance of 550 kilometers—in 2½ to 3 hours.

WINS GOLF MATCH AT 76

"Hasn't Been Playing Long—Didn't Start Until 62"

Sydney, N.S.W.—Seventy-six-year-old Mrs. M. E. Garraway "who had a lot of trouble during the war and decided to get out in the fresh air and sunshine and try to forget," has just won the Killara club's knock-out golf event for the Gregson Bowl.

"I just struck the other girls off their game, that's all," she said. "I haven't been playing golf long. I did not start until I was 62."

FORM WINDSOR CLUB TO HONOR EX-KING

Viennese Aristocrats to Propagate "Cult of Idealism in Love"

Vienna.—A "Windsor Club" has been founded in Velden at the Woerther lake by a group of young aristocrats.

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor are often visiting Velden which is the most fashionable summer resort of Carinthia. They were asked to become honorary presidents of the club.

The aim of the "Windsor Club" is to propagate the "cult of idealism in love, and of being a real gentleman" in the light of the ex-king's life and character.

Club rules have already been submitted to the authorities for approval.

Since the Windsors are living in Wasserleonburg Castle, the Carinthians seem to have nothing else to worry about.

CANADIAN EXHIBIT WINS WRITER'S PRAISE

Pavilion in Paris Described as Giving Feel of Dominion

Manchester, Eng.—A staff writer of the Manchester Guardian was impressed with the Canadian pavilion at the Paris Exhibition. Contrasting it with the British pavilion he wrote: "On the whole, however, one feels that the adjoining Canadian pavilion is much better in many ways—especially one. It makes Canada live in the visitor's mind.

"The beautiful photographs of forests and prairies and Canadian cities, the French-Canadian women singing a folk song while spinning, the jars of luscious fruit, the blocks of wood with specimens of veneer and wood-pulp and paper, the illuminated colored panorama of the St. Lawrence, and the picture of the dining car of the Canadian Pacific with its windows looking on to wide horizons—all these, and many other things, give the visitor a 'feel' of Canada, and almost a longing."

'MICKEY MOUSE' IN PAGODA

Singapore.—Travellers returning to Singapore report that an image of Mickey Mouse has been discovered standing in a place of honor in a Hindoo temple on a rubber estate in Negri Sembilan, one of the Federated Malay States. Mickey's place among the graven images of the Hindoo gods Subramania and Vishnu and the demon-king, Narekasura.

WIFE OF SLAIN DICTATOR UNMASKED AS NAZI AGENT

Lovely Blonde Is Prevented From Leaving Iraq—Arrest Is Rumored

MARRIED IN SPRING

Cairo.—Kept under close guard in Bagdad, a lovely young blonde who was the wife of Iraq's dictator—Bekir Sidky, shot recently—has been unmasked as a Hitler agent.

She is being prevented from leaving Iraq because she has been found to possess "interesting" documents revealing Bekir Sidky's intrigues with Hitler and showing how she ruled the ruler of Iraq.

She acted on instructions from Von Grober, the German minister, conveyed by Bekir Sidky's premier, Hikmet Suliman, who has had to resign since the assassination.

Madly in love with this tall, slim, 18-year-old girl, whom he married last spring, Bekir Sidky readily agreed to her plan that he should visit Germany to meet high Nazi leaders.

Rumors reaching here from Bagdad say she has been arrested, along with ex-Premier Suliman, who has certainly "disappeared."

Following announcement of a new, pro-British cabinet comes the news that Mosul, capital of Iraq's great oilfields, with their huge British interests, was for two days in the hands of military rebels.

The rebels refused to take punitive action against the officers of the garrison where Bekir Sidky was assassinated.

FIND RAVEN 'GHOST' IN VILLAGE CHURCH

Lights Went Out When Bird Sat on Wires

Vienna.—The population of the village of Feldsberg had been frightened for a month by an apparent ghost in the village church which nightly switched on the lights there, but immediately darkened them again when people investigated. Strongest men of the village refused to enter the structure until a village priest took the matter in hand. He found a raven which entered through a broken window and sat on the light switch—turning on current—but which was frightened away by approach of anyone, and thus released the switch again.

NAZI WOULD DRY UP MEDITERRANEAN SEA

Berlin — A plan to provide the crowded populations of Europe with room for expansion and food production by draining the Mediterranean has been devised by Hermann Soergel, a German engineer.

Soergel claims the Mediterranean, which was once dry land, could be reclaimed by building two huge dams at each end of it—one at the Straits of Gibraltar and the other at the Bosphorus. Water power, generated by these dams, he says, could be used to irrigate the Sahara and desert lands of North Africa.

HID MONTH IN BUSH IS CAPTURED BY DOG

Borstal Fugitive Stole at Night in Stocking Feet

Exeter. — Twenty-year-old William Henry Kane, who escaped from a Borstal institution on May 31, lay hidden in a dense wood for nearly a month, and was captured by a policeman's dog. This was revealed at Devon quarter sessions, Exeter.

Kane, it was stated, emerged from his hiding place only at night to break into shops and houses.

A policeman, seeing him one night walking in stockinged feet towards a bicycle, challenged him. Kane took to his heels, but gave in when the constable set his dog in pursuit.

Kane was sent back to Borstal.

Young People's Camp At Kawartha Park

Forty young people, members of Bethany Gospel Tabernacle and visitors from Toronto, Belleville and Lindsay, spent an enjoyable few days camping at Kawartha Park. Two large cottages were used and a number of tents. "Fireside" services were held each evening in the large living room of one of the cottages, and early morning devotions, "sunrise" services, began each day with a program of sports, boating and hikes, being enjoyed also by the young people. Special speakers at the services included Mrs. Maude Howe, secretary of the International Christian Crusade, the Rev. T. H. Ritchie, who has often been a visitor to Peterborough, John Dade of Toronto and Ernest Bailey, pastor of the Alliance Tabernacle in Lindsay.

W.M.S. of St. Paul's Hold Opening Meeting

After a rest of two months, the officers and members of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church met together Friday afternoon in the Guild Room. In her opening remarks the president, Mrs. James Dutton took as her theme, "Thou shalt be like a well-watered garden," exemplifying refreshment, fragrance, beauty—life put there by the Holy Spirit, and "like a spring of water," a life over-flowing, spreading benefits all around.

The study for the month was the work of the W.M.S. in Alberta. Mrs. G. M. Roger read a paper prepared by Mrs. McElroy telling what is being done in the northern part of the province where Miss Madill, a well-equipped deconess-nurse, is located. Calls come which often mean long journeys over rough roads and at all hours. Work amongst the girls is well established. Miss Madill's life varies from extracting teeth to giving a small sermon in the minister's absence. It is hoped soon to have a centrally situated home for the deaconess-nurse where she will have a small dispensary.

Mrs. A. D. Runions gave incidents from the work in central and southern Alberta—parents walking three miles to have their children baptised, boys and girls going to Sunday School when the thermometer registers 50 degrees below zero. Again it was a story of the long distances and rough roads the deaconesses have to travel, sometimes wearing rubber boots to get through the mud holes and ford the streams in answering their calls. There is a great need in Alberta for more workers.

A feature of the meeting was the display of the bale, in charge of Mrs. A. Jack and Mrs. D. Jordan, which included an outfit for a boy of sixteen and many useful articles of warm clothing made by the ladies during the summer months.

Wide Skirts Style For Evening Wear

Elaborate Lace Effects Used To Add Charm To Soft, Trailing Models For Gala Occasions.

By LISBETH.

Illustrating that last statement, a purple velvet dress in one of the Paris collections has black godets from the knee finished with frills of matching lace. Another is a brown lace with tulle panels, and is shown with matching cape which has a lace yoke. Still another evening gown is of black lace with horizontal bands of puffing in a cape mantle and muff.

Show Use of Lace.

In am illustrating this article with two very elaborate Hollywood gowns which show lace is being used, and also how delightfully feminine and charming are these dresses of soft materials with lace trimmings.

At the left is Phyllis Gilman, most photgrapher young woman, wearing a Helen Taylor gown of smoke blue chiffon. Its skirt has narrow lace panels set down the front and a double row of lace banding the hemline. The simple upper section is half hidden with a lacy bolero.

Romance is suggested in the sweeping elegance of the other gown worn by Mary Oakes, another Helen Taylor creation. The full skirt of this gown is gathered into a fitted girdle, and the full-blossomed upper section is of the same pale green chiffon. Over this gown is worn a floor-length cape with yoke and deep flounce of green lace.

Ardanse, Paris dressmaker, who specializes in afternoon and evening clothes, uses colored lace a good deal. She shows a copper brown bodice of lace in incrusted pattern over a purple net skirt.

Preserving Time

Pepper Relish.

12 Red peppers
12 Green peppers
6 Large onions
1½ Cups sugar
2 Tablespoons salt
1 Tablespoon mustard seed
1 Pint vinegar.

Wipe peppers, remove seeds, and put peppers and onions through food chopper. Cover with boiling water and drain. Bring vinegar, sugar, salt and mustard seed to boiling point, add chopped pepper and onion and boil 2 minutes.

Style Whimsies.

An effective combination for evening wear is coral and gold metal moire.

Lower waistlines are indicated on some of the fall dresses.

The current acceptance of skirt lengths in Paris is a low of 12 inches and a high of 15 inches.

Wool challis that are thin, crisp and cool, which do not wrinkle but do wash, are ideal for sports dresses.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"In all our difficulties, perplexities, trials, it will help us to remember that we have to take but one step at a time. Let us ask God to help us take that one step, bravely and unfalteringly. Tomorrow's strength is very largely the heritage of today's patient striving."

"Live for today! tomorrow's light
Tomorrow's cares shall bring to sight,
Go! sleep like closing flowers at night,
And Heaven thy morn will bless."
Keble.

Dear Friends:

Ever cross your bridges before you come to them? Ever worry about what will happen tomorrow or next week or next year? So many of us do just that. We want to see every step of the way, and when we cannot, we send our minds ahead of us, in a fearful manner, crowding out hope by worrying dread.

And what does it get you? Our Lord knew all about it when He said take no thought for the morrow. You can manage the hour and the day you are living now, but when you try to manage tomorrow, or next week, or next year, you are taking on too heavy a load.

There are so many angles to living. You can go along quite serene, minding your own business, and someone with a few nasty words can take all the grip right out of you. You think that if you had known ahead you might have handled things better, but who knows whether you would or not.

Now, I am not fooling when I say I have second-sight, but I cannot say it is a pleasant thing. I know, sometimes days ahead if there is to be sickness for one of us, but not always which one, so that I am in a state of apprehension which does nothing to strengthen me at all.

Of course I know also if something good is coming, but as a rule you find that if things come as a surprise you enjoy them just as much, or if it isn't good, that God sends the strength to go through with it.

And yet I would not like to lose this gift, for it is now part of me. But even knowing beforehand, you have to wait until they happen. Figure it out like this too. Supposing you were very rich, and had all the dresses you like, a house with many rooms, lots of nice furniture, cars, horses, everything you ever thought you would like to own. Alright.

But—you can only wear one dress at a time, eat one meal at a time, ride in one car, occupy one room, sit in one chair, ride on one horse. One at a time, no matter how you enjoyed them. You cannot mix them all up and enjoy them together. Then, why try to mix last week, and this week, and next week, and expect to get any happiness from it. "Sufficient for the day is the evil thereof." Not to be brought forward from yesterday, not to be reached out for tomorrow, but each day to be lived as fully and as happily as you can, then the slate wiped clean of all mistakes, once we have learned by them.

All life is a lesson. If you do a thing and get happiness out of it, keep it up. If you have made a mistake, learn not to do it again get all the profit from it, then forget it entirely. Your back was made to carry the burdens of today, not all that is past and all that is to come.

Flowers do not reason like this. "Oh heck, I'll only live a short time, so why bother with petals and perfume, just to wither and die?" No, they grow as perfectly as the Divine Gardener meant them to grow, with all the beauty of stamens and markings and coloring they were meant to have.

Only humans forget seed-time, blossom time, and harvest. They want them all at once. Your heart cannot do all its beating on Monday and rest the balance of the week. But every minute day and night it keeps on, and we should learn from it. So make the minutes and hours happy, filling your days, and the weeks and months and years will all be taken care of by old Father Time. I'd like to hear from you. Your Friend, ROBERTA.

Cubs Trounce St. Louis Cards To Gain On Terry's Giants

Terrymen Lose To Boston Bees—National Lead Cut One Full Game

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—A couple of "Simon Legrees" are snapping their whips at the Giants, and the Terry Terriers don't know which is worse—Boston's belittling Bees, or those old villians, the schedule-fixers.

They still had a two-game lead in the National League tea party today, but between the Bees stinging them on one side, and the schedule arrangers needling them on the other, there's no telling how long it's going to last.

As though their current series with the Bees weren't enough, what with a 2-1 decision the Bostons took in yesterday's 12-inning opener to widen their edge in the season series, the Giants looked over the remainder of the season's schedule and found things had been fixed up just dandy—for the other fellows.

They have five doubleheaders scheduled for the 21 playing days remaining but what provided an extra case of the blues was that four of these bargain bills are scheduled for four consecutive days during the last week of the season, and two of them were with Boston Bees.

Where, Bill Terry wants to know now, is he going to get eight starting pitchers for those four days, September 27 to 30, inclusive, and if he gets them, how is he going to knock off the Bees in four straight?

At the moment, as the result of yesterday's setback, and the Cubs' lop-sided 11-0 win over the Cardinals, here's the way the situation shaped up:

	Won	Lost	To play
Giants	78	50	26
Cubs	77	53	24

The Giants' struggle with the Bees was a swell ball game, but it didn't wind up right for the Giants. Hal Schumacher and Deacon Danny MacFayden hooked up in a duel as tight as a handman's noose for 11 innings, but Prince Hal couldn't get by Ebbie Fletcher with the bases loaded in the 12th, and the Bees won their ninth win in 16 starts against the Giants this year.

Gabby Hartnett and Tex Carleton, meantime, slaughtered the Cardinals. Hartnett hammered two homers and Carleton tossed a six-hit, 11-strikeout performance to blank the Gas House gang.

Lefty Grove handed the Yankees their second straight defeat, pitching the Red Sox to a 4-3 decision. But, since the second-place Tigers were trounced 6-5 by the Indians in spite of Bobby Feller, it still left the Yanks with an 11-game American League lead.

The Pirates topped the Reds 7-6 in the ninth, and the Athletics whipped the Senators 5-3 on Bob Johnson's four runs batted in. The rest of the big league family (Phillies, Dodgers, White Sox and Browns)—had a holiday.

Lefty Grove, Red Sox—Stopped Yankees 4-3 with seven hits.

Ebbie Fletcher and Danny MacFayden, Bees — Fletcher drove in both runs in 12-inning 2-1 win over Giants; MacFayden, tight with men on bases, pitching 11 scoreless innings.

Johnny Heving, Indians — Held Tigers to two runs for four innigs and drove in two runs with double in 6-5 victory.

Saskatchewan Allowed Six Imports

EDMONTON, Sept. 11 (CP).—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association today took action to assist Saskatchewan clubs whose ranks have been depleted by loss of players moving elsewhere to find jobs because of drought conditions.

Dr. W. G. Hardy, first vice-president of the C.A.H.A., issued a statement here last night, reviewing the situation. He said he understood four Toronto players would be obtained by North Battleford Beavers, last year's Allan Cup finalists. Dr. Hardy's statement said:

"The C.A.H.A., after considering the situation created in Saskatchewan by the drought, has suggested to the Saskatchewan Amateur Hockey Association that for this year only all senior clubs in Saskatchewan branch be allowed to import six players instead of four with the proviso that not more than four of these players may be imported from outside the branch.

"Similarly all Saskatchewan intermediate and junior clubs will be allowed to import four players instead of two with the proviso that not more than two of these may be imported from outside the branch."

Canada's Highest Golf Award

Many golfers from Canada and the United States are out this week to knock "Old Man Par" around and try to capture the Seagram Gold Cup, emblematic of the Canadian open, to be played at Toronto. Lawson Little, of San Francisco, is the present holder of the cup. It is competed for each year at the Canadian open.

When A Runner Is Out At Plate, But Still Scores A Run

Bill Brubaker, third baseman of Pittsburg Pirates, slides home with a run in fifth inning which brought a protest from Manager Charlie Grimm, of the Chicago Cubs. Umpire Magerkurth calls the runner out as catcher Hartnett catches the ball, but Umpire Ballanfant at first, just a moment before, had called Ed. Brandt out for running out of line between first and second, thus making Brubaker safe at home. In case you are wondering how to figure this out we will explain. The bases were loaded and Hartnett played the ball for a force-out at the plate, but Brandt had been called out prior to the play, so he was required to touch the runner at home instead of the plate.

GERMAN-BUDGE IN NET FINAL FOR U.S. TITLE

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 11.—(AP). — Whether Gottfriend Von Cramm wins or loses in his final tennis tussle today with the Redhead, Don Budge, he will have established himself in the short space of 10 days one of the most popular foreign athletes ever to visit the United States.

The feeling of the 14,000 tennis fans who saw him defeat Bobby Riggs in yesterday's semi-finals of the United States singles tennis championships after dropping the first two sets, was one of regret that the great German player waited until he was 28 to cross the sea. The final score was 0-6, 6-8, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, the happy Polish girl, and little Anita Lizana, the Chilean backhand artist, who clash in the women's final, also have made plenty of friends in their first visit, even though they cleaned out the home hen-roost. The ovation the German baron received when he left the court was inspired partly by the fact he had assured the fans what they had been wishing and waiting for—another duel between him and his great rival, Budge. It also was a demonstration for Von Cramm, the sporteman and the courageous battler.

TROTTING RECORD SET AT TORONTO

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—Speed and more speed was the order down at the C.N.E. yesterday as the four-day harness session was brought to a conclusion.

The feature event—the free-for-all pace—saw the Hon. Earl Rowe's Peter Chilcoot capture the first heat in the record time of 2.05, but W. J. Booth's Grattan Axworthy, ultimate winner of the race, came right back to equal the 2.06 mark in the second heat.

The race was marred somewhat by a spill in the opening dash. Clifford Chapman, driver of Midnight Grattan, was tossed to the dirt when his cart struck a soft spot in the track. He suffered a badly lacerated ear. First aid was given by Officer Nixon of the St. John Ambulance Corps.

After placing fourth to Peter Chilcoot in the first heat, Grattan Axworthy (Litt) came back to take the next two heats in 2.05 and 2.06. Midnight Grattan, with Fields doing the piloting, was the runner up in each case.

Helena McKillopp, fast stepping mare from the Berry Brothers' Stable of London, chalked up a straight heat victory in the 2.15 trot. W. Booth's Guy Lee placed second, with a record of 2-3-2.

ORIOLES NEED SINGLE VICTORY

TORONTO, Sept. 11 (C.P.). — Those ambitious Bears from Newark may keep Baltimore out of the International League playoffs if the Birds don't watch out.

One one-thousandth of a point stood between the Birds and a definite place in the post-season series, but that infinitesimal fraction was assuming gigantic proportions in the eyes of the jittery Orioles.

The fourth place Orioles need but one victory of the three games left to play with the champion Bruins, or one defeat by Buffalo, who have two games left to play with Rochester, to assure themselves a berth in the first four.

Here's the way the Birds and the Bisons would wind up if Baltimore was to lose all three while Buffalo was to win their two:

	W.	L.	P.C.
Buffalo	76	77	.4967
Baltimore	75	76	.4966

But the Orioles aren't counting too much in the Bisons losing and are only keeping their fingers crossed with the hope of stopping the rampaging Bruins at least once.

The Bears handed the Birds a double dose of insomnia last night when they bowled them over 10-1 and 4-0 in a twin bill. Chiefly responsible for the Bruins' victories were their pitchers, Ately Donald and Joe Beggs.

It was Beggs' 21st win of the year against four defeats, and Donald's 19th triumph against two losses.

Rochester Red Wings put the Bisons down, but not out, when they blasted their way to an 8-5 victory via the home run route. Johnny Watwood, Lou Scoffic, and Johnny Hopp belted for the circuit to aid Nubs Kleinke to his 19th triumph of the season.

Toronto beat out Montreal 9-1, while Syracuse and Jersey City were idle.

SOCCER STARS SWIM

LONDON—(CP).—Several players of the Arsenal Football Club turned up for instruction when a London newspaper's swimming instructor, touring the country to train swimmers, held a meet at Wembley.

Argentina has nearly doubled its wool shipments to America this year.

Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Sept. 11—(AP). — Win or lose to-day in his quest for the United States tennis singles crown, Don Budge is our top choice for the Sullivan Memorial Trophy as this year's outstanding United States amateur athlete.

The big league baseball area likely to be affected by managerial changes between now and the start of the 1938 season is now confined mainly to Boston Cleveland and St. Louis. . . . If Bill McKechnie leaves the Bees, it will be only because he gets an offer (possibly from Cleveland) that the Boston club can't match.

Mel Ott has only been playing third base regularly since August 3, but he has boosted his batting average from .259 to .297 and become the choice of many baseball writers for all-star nomination at that position.

Railbirds figure the world champion Yankees would be a better bet to beat the Cubs than the Giants in October's big money tussle, for the reason among others, that their pitching aces, Gomez and Ruffing, could be started oftener.

An all-Metropolitan series would mean no intervals between games, except in case of bad weather, whereas there would be one and maybe two extra days of rest on the trains, in a New York-Chicago contest. . . . Right now, when the Yankees start anybody but Gomez and Ruffing, Marse Joe McCarthy stuffs cotton in his ears and braces himself for the reverberations.

Remember When—

Harry Wills, giant New York negro heavyweight boxer, gained a unanimous 12-round decision over Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine scrapper, at Jersey City 13 years ago tonight. Wills never got a chance at Jack Dempsey's crown and faded into fistic oblivion.

BURKE LEADING CANADIAN OPEN BY ONE STROKE

TORONTO, Sept. 11. — (CP).—Billy Burke from Cleveland, an easy-going sort of fellow who isn't going to worry about rain or blow, was lukewarm favorite to-day to succeed Lawson Little as Canadian open golf champion. Burke was probably less excited about it than most people around St. Andrew's Club.

But burly Bill was the most dangerous man in the field, regardless of the potential scoring abilities of such marksmen as Lighthorse Harry Cooper, Ralph Guldahl, Slammin' Sam Snead, Tall Vic Chezzi, Old-Timer Leo Diegel and a half-dozen or more high-grade par-busters.

No favorite when he started, Burke fired a 69 on his opening round Thursday and duplicated the one-under-par score yesterday. His 138 was one stroke better than the 67-72—139 tally of Cooper and two up on Guldahl, United States' open champion who carded 71-69—140.

Cooper Holds His Own.

Cooper, the best bet in any tournament he enters, held his own yesterday, scoring a steady 72 to tack on his smashing first round of 67. The Lighthorse, a former champion, was at least an even-money favorite to finish in front.

Just a stroke back, Guldahl also was no worse than even money. The big American champion posted a dazzling 69 yesterday and could easily have had a score four or five strokes better if short putts had dropped for him.

Strictly in the running were Ghezzi, Diegel, young Ben Hogan from Fort Worth, Tex., Al Watrous of Detroit and up-and-coming Ed Oliver of Wilmington, Del. They were deadlocked at 141, only three strokes off the pace. Horton Smith of Chicago stood alone with 72-70—142.

Only Canadian with a good chance to win, Bobby Alston of Ottawa, started the final 36-hole journey with a deficit of five strokes. Bobby scored 72 and 71 for a fine 143.

WINNIPEG GOLFERS IN WOMEN'S FINAL

WINNIPEG, Sept. 11—(CP).—Only Heather Leslie stood to-day between Mrs. John Rogers and the Canadian women's golf double championship as the 19-year-old Manitoba champion and the soft-spoken matron, both of Winnipeg, met in the 18-hole final of the national closed tournament.

Mrs. Rogers brought the Canadian women's open title west for the first time when she won last week at St. Charles Country Club. This afternoon at Niakwa she can score the double victory accomplished only by Toronto's Ada Mackenzie in 1926 and 1933.

Heather Leslie reached the championship bracket yesterday with a 7 and 6 triumph over Winnifred Evans, Vancouver, she fired seven pars and one birdie in the 12 holes.

Mrs. Rogers defeated Willo Love, Toronto, 4 and 3.

SPORTS DAY by DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

IT IS not difficult to imagine that the fusillade of base hits which rattled off the bats of the Oshawa team in Thursday's Central Ontario League playoff game spelled the end of the road for one of the greatest pitchers that has ever stood on the mound in the Central loop, Indian Jack Williams, hero of many a spectacular twirling feat as a member of the Belleville Nationals before he joined the Kingston Ponies several years ago. The redskin left-hander is through. The old fire has gone from his fast ball, his curve is not what it used to be and batters who would have been lucky to get a foul off him in the old days when he was bewildering the best hitters in the game with his uncanny repertoire are standing up at the plate and teeing off on the best that he has left in his armoury. Time which has beaten all the great athletes is taking the measure of the Chief and it is probable that he will be seen no more in the loop after this season.

* * * * * *

WILLIAMS has much to look back upon and gloat over for in his prime there were few twirlers in this neck of the woods who had such a complete mastery over opposing batters as the Indian from Verona. Even when they managed to get on base in those old days the enemy did not feel safe for Williams' bewildering motion caught many a base-runner off the sacks. It took years for opposing teams to learn that the Indian southpaw had a mannerism that betrayed him, namely that he lifted his right foot when he was going to make a throw to first base. After that he did not bag so many victims although on one notable occasion this past season Ken Long, the Petes new first baseman was caught flat-footed by Williams' smooth motion. A great pitcher has been this Indian performer and something goes out of the game with him should it prove that he has tossed his last game in the Central League.

ACCORDING to the Cobourg sport writer Cobourg's 1937 Red Raiders promise to give a good account of themselves in the Lakeshore group. "The Cobourg team," says the article, "possesses a strong, fast backfield. Graham Meikle's powerful booting will provide the Red Raiders with a real scoring threat. Meikle will also share the ball carrying with hard-hitting Bus Edwards, Chuck Henderson, Bob Lucas, Dave Young, Chuck Johnston and Ken Cooper. Rounding out this well-balanced backfield is Jack Jacobs, who will fit in at flying wing or outside. A fast runner and a good pass receiver, "Jake" is a hard tackler in the open field. Along the line the veterans Tom Bulger, Alex. Pratt, Arch. Spooner and Tommy Young provide a hard-tackling forward wall. Fighting it out for the remaining line positions, Brown looks the best. Milt. Benson, another veteran lineman, is in town and may show up with the locals. Chuck Peck has the squad in good shape and the boys will turn it on this week in earnest. With the opening game just two weeks away, Coach Peck intends to have the team ready for the curtain to go up on the 1937 season."

* * * * * *

THE Chicago Cubs gained a full game at the expense of the leading Giants yesterday and are now just two games behind the leaders. The Chicago gang ran wild to defeat the St. Louis Cards 11 to 0 while the Giants were absorbing a beating at the hands of the Boston Bees, who won by a 2 to 1 score. The New York Yanks also took a licking from the Boston Red Sox, Lefty Bob Grove holding them to seven hits as his team won 4 to 3. The same Mister Grove, one of the greatest pitchers of all time, is finishing the present season in great form and while he will scarcely register 20 victories this year, one of the few occasions in his long career he has failed to hang up a score of triumphs, he nevertheless promises to lead his club's pitching roster and that is no mean task for a player who has been in the thick of the baseball battle as long as Robert Moses.

* * * * * *

THE big crowd which saw last night's lacrosse game came away delighted with the fighting spirit displayed by the Auburns and they had reason to feel that way for the Peterborough gang's victory over Oshawa, evening up the final series for the group honors, was a notable achievement. The truth is the Auburns after easy sailing throughout the regular season found themselves badly stymied in this playoff argument. Buster Whitton is away on holidays, Pete King was unable to make the trip to Oshawa for the first game and Don Crowe and Ned Vitarelli are on the hospital list so that the Petes went into action at Oshawa minus four valuable players and they were badly beaten. Whitton and Vitarelli were still absent last night and Don Crowe was really in no shape to play so that the team was still badly handicapped but the gang went into the battle with a determination that would not admit defeat, even when a temporary lapse gave the visitors a lead at half time.

* * * * * *

A SPECIAL word of commendation is justified in the case of King and Crowe. The veteran was a marked man all night but he scored four goals and had an assist, while the youngster, handicapped by a bad arm and playing under a great disadvantage, rammed in three goals and gave passes for three more.

* * * * * *

THE O.A.L.A. will have to decide the question of when and where the third game will be played. Representatives of the two clubs after negotiating for hours after last night's game were unable to agree upon anything, so that the governing body will have to decide. The Auburns suggested Lindsay as the most suitable place while Oshawa proposed a sudden death game in Aurora but that idea did not get to first base with the Petes. Oshawa were agreeable to home and home games, goals to count but the local management would not agree to that. Finally the two outfits agreed that the only thing they could agree on was that they could not agree and that means the O.A.L.A. will have to settle the argument.

* * * * * *

IF A sudden death game is to be played Lindsay would seem to be the logical place. It is fairly central as between the two cities and theLindsay, arena, large, well lighted and provided with a good floor should be admirably adapted for boxla fixtures.

* * * * * *

ACCORDING TO Sport Writer George Campbell, of Oshawa, who carried No. 7 and a worried look out onto the field at intervals during last night's lacrosse game, Lefty Biddle had all his old time stuff when he was seen in action against the Kingston Ponies on Thursday. "Kingston couldn't do anything with him," Campbell declared, and the box score seems to indicate that he was not far off the target in that statement. Biddle's return to form puts a different complexion on the loop final series although we are still inclined to pick the Ponies, if for no other reason than that Tony Paczkowski is likely to prove more durable in a tough series than is the left-handed Biddle. And then too there is the surprising Mister Jamieson about due to pop up with one of those good games of his. Today may prove his day.

* * * * * *

THERE was plenty of good hard checking in last night's lacrosse battle but the only bad casualty was Whyte of Oshawa who received a nasty cut over the eye and had to be stitched up. The hardest bump, however, was that handed out by our Mister Magee to the Flashy Eugene Bovin. The latter was doing some pivoting in midfield when Magee met him with a clean body check that caused the Oshawa star to fold up like a concertina. Bovin lost all interest in the proceedings for the next few minutes and did not get going again until well into the fourth period. As a rule they stay hit when Magee hits them.

* * * * * *

JUST a Sentence or Two: Last night's lacrosse crowd enjoyed the game played at half time between two teams of kids. The Knot Hole gang knew all the answers . . . With the softball semi-finals and the lacrosse argument to be settled next week we are still on the sporting map . . . Feller won another game for Cleveland yesterday. The kid is beginning to find himself again . . . It is hard to realize after reading the sport page of the Toronto morning paper that there is any sport played in Central Ontario . . . Most folk who have seen the Farr-Louis pictures disagree with the decision of the judges and referee . . . Well this finishes the first week of subbing for C.J.P. We can stand it if the customers can.

Auburns Tie Series With 20-14 Victory Over Oshawa Outfit

Packed Stadium Witnesses Petes Outplay And Outlast Opponents

A fighting Peterborough Auburn team, battling against elimination after a surprise defeat at the hands of the Oshawa 222 squad on Wednesday night in the first game of the group playoffs outplayed and outlasted the Motor town crowd in the second game of the series in the local lacrosse bowl, Friday night to win 20 goals to 14 and make a third battle necessary to decide the group title. The hard fought struggle was witnessed by one of the largest crowds of the season and was a thriller all the way.

The Auburns, with Pete King and Don Crowe back in the lineup were full value for their win. The reinforcements were a big help for King and Crowe figured in eleven of the goals scored but in addition to that splendid contribution the whole Peterborough squad rose to the occasion and outside of the last ten minutes of the second period when they faltered and Oshawa ran in five goals in a row to take the lead the Auburn players were masters of the situation.

They outchecked and outscored the invaders to lead 4 to 2 at the end of the first period, ran into a tail spin in the second session to find themselves on the short end of an 8 to 6 score at half time and then came back after the rest to put on a sustained drive that swept Oshawa off their feet. It was 13 to 10 for the Auburns at the close of the third session and through the final fifteen minutes the winners continued to increase their margin, although Oshawa never stopped trying and were dangerous every time the Petes defence slackened for a moment.

They All Helped

Every man in the Peterborough lineup helped to bring victory. Although the Oshawa gang rode herd on Pete King all evening the veteran managed to slip in four goals and figure in another counter and Crowe in spite of a bad arm found the net three times and assisted in three other markers. Ira Dundas, Mick Magee, Cliff Cadd and Red Dallin and the Creighton brothers all were prominent on the attack and the defence pair, Chute and Miller also broke into the scoring column. In the nets Red Creighton made a number of sensational saves, many of them at close range, after his defence had been beaten.

Outstanding for Oshawa was the veteran Kelly Degray, who not only checked with rare judgment on the defence but was a very effective field general. His absence for ten minutes after a battle with Ira Dundas was one of the breaks that turned the tide of victory infavor of the Auburn machine.

That other clever old veteran, Barron was always dangerous and Gene Bovin who was a star with the Peterborough team a few years ago has lost little of his elusiveness or his ability to take advantage of a scoring opportunity. Saunders, Daniels, and Leroy were other Oshawa stars, in fact there was no weaklings on the visiting lineup.

Petes Score Early.

The game was hardly under way than the Petes were in front, Miller slipping a long pass to Pete King who scored at close range. Cliff Cadd made it 2 to 0 on a pretty individual effort, netting the ball as he was knocked over after dodging a couple of checks. Pete King and Campbell were benched together for mixing it and while they were off Dundas took Cadd's rebound and scored neatly to make the Auburns lead 3 to 0. Then the visitors took a hand and scored two quick goals, Leroy getting the first one on Bovin's rebound and Barron coming through with another on a pretty effort. Chute made no mistake on a pass from Crowe to make it 4 to 2 and it remained that way at the end of the period.

Miller slipped down the field at the beginning of the second session and took a pass just outside the crease, after a Cadd-Dundas passing play to put the Petes three goals up, but Oke got that one back in short order when Degray fed him a pass close in. Dundas and Dallin combined for a neat goal by the former, making the score 6 to 3. Then suddenly Oshawa turned on the heat and for the balance of the period had the homesters on the run. Daniels made it 6 to 4 after a passing attack. Cooper converted Bovin's pass into Oshawa's fifth goal and Daniels went in all alone to beat Creighton with the tieing marker. The shifty Barron grabbed a pass from Oke and gave Creighton no chance, putting Oshawa in front. Jerry Creighton drew a penalty for slashing and Whyte had to leave the game for repairs. With the one man advantage Oshawa continued to press and Bovin on a solo effort made the visitor's lead two goals before the period ended.

Come Back Fighting

Down at the half way mark the Auburns came back in fighting style in the third session and in less than four minutes had sewed up the game. They got a break when Cook drew a penalty and King came through with a smart goal on a pass from Miller and Jerry Creighton took a toss from Crowe and beat Clark cleanly. Leroy put Oshawa ahead again for the last time when he grabbed a rebound with Creighton out of the net and scored neatly. Don Crowe got that back on a solo effort and Cliff Cadd dodged around Kelly Degray and went in close to give the Auburns a 10 to 9 lead. Right after this play Dundas and Degray mixed it and were banished for ten minutes and with their field general off the Oshawa crew began to fold up. Cadd took a pass from King to increase the Petes lead and although Bovin retaliated with a quick goal for Oshawa the Auburn attack began to get hot and Magee on a pass from Gerry Creighton and Chute on a neat assist by Sloan ran the score up to 13 to 10 before the period ended. Just before the bell, Sloan and Saunders were penalized.

The fourth session opened with both teams two men short. Saunders just got back into the game in time to take a Bovin pass and score but the Auburns came back with four in a row, Crowe, Magee, King and Crowe again being the successful marksmen. Barron registered for Oshawa and then King and Magee scored in rapid succession for the Petes. Bovin made in 19 to 13 on one of his whirling attacks and Pammett retorted by taking a pass close in. Just before the end of the game Chute was penalized for dumping Barron and the latter scored the final goal of the game on the free shot that was awarded.

Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City, made woman's golfing history during a match in the Missouri women's annual golf tournament, by shooting the 18-hole course in sixty-six strokes, which was twelve under women's par. It is the lowest score ever recorded by a woman on any course and one stroke over the all-time record for that particular course.

RIGHTMYER.—In loving memory of our dear Father and Grandfather, S. D. Rightmyer, who passed away September 13, 1935.

Gone, dear father, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet your memory still,
But death has left a lineliness
The world can never fill.

Sadly missed by son Gordon and family 3 Marjory Avenue, Toronto.

FLEETWOOD.—In loving memory of our sister, Helen, who passed away on September 11, 1919.

Sweet memories will linger forever,

Even the better players do not have their feet placed in exactly the same position every time they play a shot. There is some variation in their stance from day to day, but they do manage to bring this variation down to a minimum.

The average player has quite a lot of variation in his stance and he seldom is successful in cutting down or avoiding this variation. There is a good reason for this. It has to do with the way the feet are placed, or better still, when they are placed.

Most players come up to the ball and, with their eyes, try to gauge the distance the feet should be placed away from the ball. This method is most unsatisfactory as is proved by the results these players get. At best it isn't even good guesswork. There is bound to be a maximum of variance in the relation of the feet to the ball as well as to the line of play.

The expert follows a different order in taking his stance. He places his club to the ball first and then places his feet. Start now to make a habit of putting the clubhead in the proper position behind the ball and, while it rests there, place your feet. This method of taking your stance will get you into a comfortable starting position for a smooth swing.

Recurrence of a dislocated shoulder has put a cloud on the future playing activities of Bert Oja, ABOVE, starry lineman of the Winnipeg rugby club. He has been ordered to take a rest while Captain Greg Kabat takes over his duties as the coach.

PASTOR IN COURT NOISY SERVICES

WOODSTOCK, Sept. 11.—(CP)—Charged with creating a nuisance by permitting continued and repeated loud shouting and other noise until nearly midnight, Rev. E. N. O. Kulbeck, pastor of Grace Tabernacle, pleaded not guilty in city Police Court yesterday.

After hearing evidence, judgment was reserved for two weeks by Magistrate Donald McCrimmon.

The court action followed a complaint in the form of a petition signed by thirty-five residents of the neighborhood in which Grace Tabernacle is located.

One woman petitioner, maintained on many occasions it was impossible to get to sleep before midnight owing to the "screaming, screeching, sobbing and crying" that was to be heard from the tabernacle when services were being held.

Members of the congregation testified they had not noticed any unreasonable noise at the services, and declared the meetings never never lasted as late as midnight.

Fred Lucas, Secretary-Treasurer of the congregation, declared he always closed the church windows when the prayer meetings, which followed the evening sermons, begin, even though this made it uncomfortable for the members of the congregation in hot weather. There was considerably more noise caused by passers-by who came to look in at the windows than by the congregation itself, he added.

Interior Experts Get Into a Jam

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—(AP)—The United States Government wants two things understood which a lot of folks have apparently misunderstood:

1—It is not looking for ladies to go to Alaska.

2—It has no Virgin Island house to rent to mainlanders for $5.50 a month.

The situation—and if you'd see the letters you'd realize there is one—developed in the wake of two sprightly bulletins from the Interior Department.

The first announced there are 2½ times as many white men as women in the northern territory.

The second explained three low-cost housing projects had been opened on the Virgin Islands with rents ranging from $4.00 to $6.40 a month.

CHAPTER 31.

Mark Sutherland had put into full operation his plans for Mari Barat to live up to her new glamorous reputation. And Larry Holk, the publicity man, was Mark's man on the job, putting over this and that.

"So that's the way it's done," Mari Barat, the girl whose name was on the lips of the dressmaking world if not yet known to the great buying fashion world, pushed a peanut across her desk with her nose.

"I own my success to a playboy. He didn't have anything to do, so he thought he'd become a celebrity impresario. The way you do that is to engage a high-priced press agent. He, in turn, takes things into his own hands, engages a house in which you rattle around like a single pea in a pod. He hires a butler who scares you to death, runs you ragged having your picture taken, tells you how to walk, how to talk, and even what to think...." she broke off into a meaningful silence.

"Did I dictate that?" Mari asked approvingly, well pleased with herself.

"You did!" Miss Higgins retorted disapprovingly.

"Amusing, don't you think?"

"Well..." Miss Higgins didn't know what to do or say.

"No reticences, please." Mari gave her secretary an amused glance, decided it was best not to carry a joke too far. "Tear it up or cross it off, Miss Higgins. I was merely being light for a change. I'm having to be so many people other than myself these days. I have to get a little relief. Now where were we before I got foolish?"

Relieved, Miss Higgins turned back her pages. "You had got onto the subject of your attitude about prints."

"Oh, yes, that was my first revolutionary move, Mr. Holk says. Oh, Letitia, this is ridiculous! How can I write my history when I have no history? And what do people want to read about me for? I'm in the clothes business, not the glamor game."

"Mr. Holk is right," Miss Higgins said inexpectedly. "Why it's only three weeks and just look at this scrapbook!"

"You look at it. It frightens me." Mari said and sighed. She picked up her appointment book. Heavens only knows what's going to happen to my customers these days. My program gives me about an hour a day to sketch. I don't find time to do it any more when I have people here. Did you okay the plans for the sewing rooms?"

"They've been returned to the architect, Miss Barat. The plasterers will be in the new building next week. The walls are almost ready for them now. And about the jade dressing room, did you decide on rep or satin?"

"Rep," Mari answered automatically, and marveled that she was able to keep so many details in her mind.

"Then I don't believe there are any more questions to be answered today. This interview can't be let go until tomorrow. M. Cholseul is waiting to fit you to the chartreuse gown."

"Miss Letitia Higgins, don't you ever believe that a shoemaker hasn't shoes. Imagine a dressmaker spending three hours a day having clothes fitted for her. I feel like an absolue idiot! I have three street gowns, three to wear at the shop, a couple of good evening dresses and that ought to be enough. Oh, dear, these people are winding me around their little fingers. But I'm going to rebel."

"You're going to be home at 5 o'clock. Mr. Honk is bringing the editor of Cinema Art, an American publication, to meet you. He says you are to wear the gray jersey and the large pearls."

"Are you sure that he didn't say what color I'm to have on my fingernails?" she asked sarcastically.

"Now, Miss Barat—Madame—you shouldn't take on that way."

Mari sighed. "I know, but..... but what.....why must I meet the editor of a movie magazine from America?"

"Because he will get movie actresses to be interested in posing in your clothes and everybody in America wants to look like the actresses."

"And Larry Holk will say that I can't agree to it and what good will that do?"

"Make 'em want you more," her secretary said wisely.

"Well, at least, it will be over shortly. As soon as the new shop is ready I can quit being a glamor girl and go back to being a dressmaker."

"And you're going to have a nice vacation before it opens. And you're going to visit a real viscountess. My, but it will be wonderful to be in England in April!"

Ellen Verlaine's letter was in Mari's purse.

At first when Mark said that he wanted her to run over to London to be the house guest of his viscountess sister, Mari had demurred. She had been a little suspicious of Mark's motives, pointed out that side trips were not yet part of her itinerary on the road to fame. But Mark had laughed off her suspicions.

And then Ellen's letter had arrived, written on the crested stationery in Ellen's firm stroke so unlike Mark's careless scrawl.

"We'd like so much to have you for the last week of April if you can favor us," Ellen had written, and added, "Mark has made us feel that we already know you."

That was pretty nice of Mark, Mari decided. She was suffering from a combination of inferiority complex regarding her difference of social standing from Mark's, and some old-fashioned fear that, because Mark had made his intentions clear, he would think less of her. Mari was a girl who couldn't get used to the easy acceptance of changed standards in a world for which she had never been prepared.

If Mark looked down upon her in any way, it was hardly likely that he would have had his sister, the socially prominent wife of one of England's peers, invite her to her home.

She anticipated her visit with mingled feelings. She hoped she knew the right things to do and say, and added to her prayers the fervent petition that there would be neither hunting nor shooting offered her. She had vague pictures of English house parties members being constantly either in the saddle or in the field. And while she would have known how to sit on a horse, she had her doubts about guns.

"Mark, what will it really be like?" she asked him after she had written a note to Ellen, as carefully casual as she could make it.

"It will be very soignee and you'll be more so."

"How so?" she asked apprehensively.

"This, my dear, will mark the end of your careless girlhood, with your introduction to London, to lords and ladies—who, by the way, will not act like them so be sure to get your names straight—to a maharajar, an actress or two, several Americans and all the rest of them who'll think you're a novelty."

Mari sat back on her heels and her mouth set. "I'm not going to show off, Mark Sutherland. I'll be myself and....."

"If you've got brains I think you have, ex-Mary Barrett, you will show off. You're a legend and you're expected to act like one. You won't talk about yourself, you'll smile mysteriously. You'll wear the most dazzling things you can design, beg or borrow. When there's something proposed that you can't do, riding for instance, you'll raise your eyes languidly and say you have some cables or writing to attend to. This is no pleasure jaunt! This is business. And you'll check Mary Barrett's personality at the airport."

Curiously enough she did—forevermore.

Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY AND MISS MOUSE

Once upon a day when Uncle Wiggily was hopping near his camping tent in the woods and thinking it was nearly time for him to go back to his Hollow Stump bungalow he heard a noise in the bushes.

"Oh, oh!" said the rabbit gentleman to himself as he twinkled his pink nose very fast. "This may be danger—danger from the Fox or Bob Cat such as the robin saved me from by giving me a shower bath to awaken me. I must be careful."

Uncle Wiggily hid back of a large stump. The rustling noise in the bushes kept on and, peering out, Mr. Longears saw two little animals scurrying along the trail or path.

"Oh, fat Baby foxes!" whispered the bunny. "They are too small to be a danger to me. But where the baby foxes are the big Fox may be also. I must be careful."

Not Afraid.

Uncle Wiggily watched, without letting himself be seen. The two small fox boys trotted along the trail. He had no fear of them.

As the wind was blowing from the foxes toward the rabbit instead of from the rabbit toward the foxes, Uncle Wiggily knew they could not smell him and go and tell their father to come and get him.

"We'll catch her soon now," said the fox boy named Sniff.

"Yes, she's just ahead of us but she can't go very fast," said the fox boy named Snuff. "We'll soon catch her."

"Goodness me! Who is it they are going to catch?" thought Mr. Longears. "I hope it isn't Baby Bunty, Small as they are, Sniff and Snuff could catch and eat Bunty. That must never be."

Hopping softly out from back of the stump, Uncle Wiggily followed down the trail after the fox boys. If they had been big foxes the rabbit gentleman never would have dared to do that.

"But they don't yet know much about hunting me," thought Mr. Longears. "I'm not afraid of them but I must see who they are trying to catch."

Sniff and Snuff were so taken up with talking about what they were going to catch they never looked behind them. If they had they might have seen Uncle Wiggily trailing them. But, as it was, they didn't and the rabbit was able to follow closely.

Points to Prey.

All of a sudden Sniff cried:

"There she is! We'll get her!"

"Right!" asked Snuff.

"Right near that stump with a hole in it!" said Sniff. "Look!"

Uncle Wiggily also looked, crouching down back of a bush behind the two fox boys. He saw Miss Mouse, the Lady Teacher of the Hollow Tree School, creeping along the path.

Before Uncle Wiggily could call to warn her to hide, the two fox boys pounced on Miss Mouse. One grasped her on each side.

"Help! Help!" squeaked Miss Mouse. "Oh, will no one help me?"

"Yes, I will!" bravely cried Uncle Wiggily.

Up he popped from the bushes. He rushed at the two fox boys. He knocked Sniff to one side and Snuff to the other side of the trail.

"Run away now or you'll get something worse," cried the rabbit.

"Oh! Oh, Oh!" whined Sniff and Snuff and away they ran.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily! How can I ever thank you for saving me?" squeaked the Lady Mouse Teacher.

"Pooh! That was nothing," said Mr. Longears modest like and sanitary. "Pray do not mention it. Let me escort you to my tent."

"Oh, I am so glad you came in time!" panted Miss Mouse.

So she was saved. And if the gas stove doesn't go swimming in the bath tub to cool off, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's home trail.

ONTARIO CROPS BELOW NORMAL BETTER THAN '36

TORONTO, Sept. 11 — (C.P.). — Average yield of Spring grains for Ontario will be higher than last year, but still below normal, the Statistics Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture reports in the September monthly bulletin, issued to-day. The counties bordering the St. Lawrence and some districts in Northern Ontario particularly Algoma and Manitoulin report yields considerably below average. Large supplies will have to be purchased for winter feeding purposes.

In Central and Southwestern Ontario, much grain was damaged by frequent heavy rains which caused sprouting. Much of the crop can be used only for feeding purposes. A preliminary estimate places the oat yield at 33 bushels per acre, compared with 28.5 bushels in 1936 and a preceding 20-year average of 35.4 bushels per acre. The total production of Spring wheat, oats and barley is placed at 92,849,000 bushels, approximately 10,000,000 bushels greater than last year, but 11,300,000 bushels less than in 1935.

Root Crops Are Good

August was favorable for the development of late crops, potatoes, roots and corn for fodder. Husking corn, grown chiefly in Essex and Kent was damaged by excessive rains in mid-summer and will be far below normal in yield.

Tomato crop prospects were reduced by dry weather at a critical growing period and production will be lower. If frost holds off for another three weeks the crop may run 85 per cent. normal in Eastern Ontario.

Western Ontario tomatoes are below normal, but the quantity canned will be considerably larger, due to a greatly increased acreage.

The grape crop is estimated at 45 per cent. increase over last year, or 31,378,000 pounds as compared with 21,640,000 pounds in 1936 and 41,430,000 pounds in 1935.

"V" type peaches will be over this week, with Alberta pickings now starting to reach the market. Cool nights will give growers a better chance for orderly marketing.

Sugar beet harvesting will start next month from a commercial acreage of between 24,000 and 25,000 acres. Indications are for a better-than-average yield in Lambton and Middlesex and a below-average crop in Essex. Around Chatham and Wallaceburg the yield will be about average.

With an abundance of Winter feed in Old Ontario, purchases of feeder cattle from Western Canada have been unusually heavy. Prices range from $4.50 to $6.50 per cwt. The hog population is somewhat lower than a year ago.

U.S. Nazis Fight Americanization

CHICAGO, Sept. 11—(AP).—The Daily Times in the second of a series of copyrighted articles said to-day: "Health, Hitler, Heils and Hatred are the '4 H's' used by U. S. Nazis to prevent Americanization of children whose parents are members of the German-American Bund, nation-wide organization of American Nazis."

"In the coming years all the unity and all the efforts will be required in order to put a stop to the former crippling by the Americanization of their young' declares the Bund yearbook, reprinted from the German magazine Deutsche Arbeit, in referring to children of Germans who have emigrated to America,' the paped added.

The Times explained its articles were written by three investigators and reporters who joined German American organizations. Yesterday's article asserted the organizations were training an army in preparation to seize control of the government when the Communist revolution starts.

To-day's said organization leaders insisted the youth were "the lifeline of our movement" and 'must carry on our fight against Judaism, world-Bolshevism and Communism."

NIAGARA SYSTEM GETS POWER CUT

TORONTO, Sept. 11 — (C.P.). — A general reduction of $2 per horsepower in the interim rate for power to all municipalities of the Niagara system, effective Aug. 1 last, has been approved by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, it was announced today.

This reduction is additional to the previous reduction of $2.50 per horsepower given by the commission to practically all municipalities from Nov. 1, 1936.

The commission, reviewing the financial situation in connection with the distribution of power within municipalities, has recommended that rates charged domestic and commercial power users be reduced in a large number of cases.

The commission serves 166 municipalities, with 13 municipalities and cost consumers receiving service direct, and of the 179 total 156 will receive a substantial reduction in rates to be charged to consumers, and rates in the other 23 will remain unchanged.

The commission estimated total saving to consumers at $1,262,706, of which $649,785 is domestic lighting.

In addition to the rate reduction, refunds to consumers in 11 municipalities were also authorized, the total concerned being $36,410.

Among the larger refunds are: Brantford, $6,534; Leamington, $1,363; London Township, $6,909; Barnia, $1,836; Windsor, $1,297; Essex, $958.

Dominion-Provincial Probers Are Ready

OTTAWA, Sept. 11—(CP).—Immediately the provinces are ready to submit evidence the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations will begin its task which may result in recommendations for important changes in the British North America Act.

Ontario Chief Justice Newton Wesley Rowell and his four fellow commissioners completed private discussions here yesterday and announced readiness to proceed when evidence was ready.

It was impossible to forecast a date since it was not known how far advanced the provinces were in their preparations.

Although it was possible, Justice Rowell said, the Commission would hold preliminary sessions in Ottawa, the real evidence taking would start with one of the provinces. The Dominion government probably will be the last to submit evidence.

MORE POPULATION NEEDED IN CANADA SENATOR CLAIMS

VANCOUVER, Sept. 11—(C.P.).—Delegates to the 11th annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce swung into their final sessions here to-day after hearing Sir Edward Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, call for leadership in assuring Canada's future as a nation.

Sir Edward spoke last night at the annual dinner of the Chamber. Earlier in the day the delegates heard discussions on necessity for increased population and a plea for development of tourist traffic.

Senator J. W. DeB. Farris of Vancouver and Dr. W. J. Black of Montreal said Canada needed more population. Foundations had been laid in the Dominion for a population three or more times its present size, said Senator Farris.

Expressing faith in the central area of the Dominion, despite drought, was well suited for a permanent population, Sir Edward said he had "lasting confidence in the future of Western Canada as an agricultural area quite capable of supporting a much greater population than now resides there."

The future of Canada was assured, he said, if business men, professional workers, educationists, and ordinary solid citizens provided leadership in developing "a heritage of wealth and opportunity such as no people of our numbers have ever held in history." He was confident the leadership would be found and that the wealth was in the Dominion ready to be used.

Has No Regrets.

Sir Edward said there was "little to regret" from the standpoint of the quality of Canadian population. He said it might take time to produce a "national type," but the Dominion immigration policy was hard to criticize, except that it was too rapid early in this century.

Sir Edward said he could find no reason for disagreement over foreign policies of Canada, those of immigration or transportation.

He said he would "count my own life a failure unless before its end I have accomplished something to relieve the people . . . of the waste of effort represented in the operation of redundant systems of transportation."

QUEBEC SEEKS ALL UNCLAIMED BANK ACCOUNTS

MONTREAL, Sept. 13 (CP).—Renewal of actions begun by the last Liberal government to expropriate unclaimed bank accounts was instituted today by the Union Nationale Government, when in the name of Premier Duplessis a motion was presented asking that a date be fixed for hearing four test cases.

The actions were launched by L. A. Taschereau, then Premier and Attorney General, to recover accounts lying inactive over a period of years. Today the four cases, believed to be tests for a total of 60, were set on the roll for Oct. 4 with the consent of lawyers representing the four banks concerned.

According to the claims of Mr. Duplessis as Attorney General unclaimed bank accounts for which the depositor or his heirs have not appeared automatically revert to the crown in the person of the Attorney General. The dates in the accounts go back as far as 1919 and include some up to 1925.

At the last legislature session an amendment was made to the law covering unclaimed bank accounts and several new cases were launched under the new legislation. These have not yet come to trial.

BRITISH DIVORCE HARDER FOR RICH

LONDON, Sept. 13 (CP).—"No one will be able to get a divorce because a husband spends too much time fishing or a wife becomes a film star," said A. P. Herbert, speaking on the new Matrimonial Causes Act which he sponsored in the House of Commons. Meanwhile Rt. Rev. W. G. Whittingham, Bishop of St. Edmundsbury and Ipswich, defended the provision of divorce for insanity which the Act makes.

Herbert said it was true that for the rich the Act was going to make divorce more difficult than before. But as regards the poor, the biggest thing parliament had given to the genuine hard case was divorce for desertion.

"Cruelty," he said, "does not mean 'Hollywood' or 'Reno' cruelty. Legal cruelty has been strictly defined by the English courts for a very long time as 'conduct of such a character as to have caused danger to life, limb or health (bodily or mental) or as to give rise to a reasonable apprehension of such danger'."

Nobody was bound to ask for a divorce because he or she was entitled to one. No incorrect person, except a lunatic, could be forced into divorce if he or she disapproved of it.

Writing in his Diocesan Gazette, Bishop Whittingham said he reluctantly concluded that insanity 'ought to be regarded as a sufficient cause (for divorce) if desired in some cases."

That was if insanity was of such a type that it brought "all the purposes for which marriage exists to an end, so that there is no more affection on the one side, no more companionship, no more rational intercourse."

U.S. VICE-CONSUL HURT IN NORTH

MATTAWA, Ont., Sept. 13 (CP)—Edward W. Blatchford, United States vice consul at Jerusalem, suffered a severe scalp wound when a car in which he was driving went out of control on the trans-Canada highway, it was learned here today. Elliot Palmer, consul-general to Canada, driver of the car, and two others were shaken up.

The accident occurred Friday when the automobile struck a pole between Stonecliffe and Biscotta, 80 miles east of North Bay. The party was enroute to Callander to visit the Dionne quintuplets.

Passing motorists took Mr. Blatchford to Pembroke hospital where 30 stitches were required to close a gash in his head. Mrs. Palmer, wife of the driver, and Miss Josesa Martinez of Madrid, Spain, were other members of the group.

PUT END TO NOISES

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 13 (CP)—Board of health inspectors, armed with John Doe warrants, were ready today to launch actions against ship captains blamed for smoke and noise nuisance along the bay front. City Solicitor A. J. Polson has advised municipal officials the city has authority over bay waters and could force ship captains to obey injunctions against noise, dust and smoke nuisance.

Last Minute News Flashes

The note asked "clarification" of the zone which Italy would control under the plan and what obligation there would be to extend port facilities to the co-operating Powers, including Russia.

LONDON.—Reuters News Agency despatches reported late to-day that Chinese bombing planes from Canton had sunk a Japanese destroyer in Chinese coastal waters.

Lindsay Finds Rebate "Costly" Affair

Lindsay, Sept. 13.

THE town of Lindsay owes a Toronto citizen a sum of money and in order to repay that sum, the corporation will have to disburse just seven times the amount of the debt. This peculiar situation arises out of the one mill subsidy which the Provincial Government has rebated to all municipalities. In turn, the municipality of Lindsay has been rebating this subsidy to the taxpayers. One Toronto resident has a piece of land here assessed at $10, the rebate on which is one cent. Officials at the town hall argue it will cost seven cents to forward this rebate to the Toronto taxpayer.

SEVEN LIVES LOST IN AUTO MISHAPS DURING WEEKEND

TORONTO, Sept. 13 (CP).—Seven lives were lost in Ontario during the weekend through highway accidents and a level crossing crash. Two persons died at Freeman, near Hamilton, when a train plunged into an automobile.

The level crossing victims were Joseph Dawson, 60, and Mrs. Sunski Coneker, 40, both of Hamilton. They were riding with Charles M. Ellis when a Canadian National Railways gas-electric train struck the car.

Dawson was hurled through the windshield and was dead when picked up while Mrs. Coneker died in the ambulance. Although the train struck on the side where Ellis sat he escaped serious injury.

Hamilton officials today still sought to identify the transient struck and fatally injured near Waterdown by an automobile. John Byers, 55, Saltfleet, was fatally injured when struck by an auto driven by Frank Smith of Winona on the Niagara highway.

Charles Doney, 58, Thorold, was killed when struck by a car at St. Catharines while riding his bicycle. Police questioned the car driver, Alex. Wells, Toronto, after Doney died in St. Catharines hospital.

Prominent Thamesford district resident, Daniel Spice, 75, was fatally injured when struck by an auto near Thamesford. An inquest will be held Thursday.

John Demille, garage mechanic, was struck and killed at Brantford by a car driven by Bruce Cooper, who told police the man accidentally walked into the right front fender.

Believe Crew Down Off Cartagena Alive—May Identify Pirates

LONDON, Sept. 13—(CP Cable).—By the end of the week, it is proposed, 60 British and French destroyers will be driving pirate submarines out of the Mediterranean.

In Berlin and Rome to-day, British and French diplomats submitted the Nyon scheme to the German and Italian governments and invited their co-operation. Italy's attention was drawn specifically to the provision made for her patrolling the Tyrrhenian Sea.

GENEVA, Sept. 13 (C.P.).—Great Britain and France concentrated a fleet of destroyers to-day to wipe out the mystery raiders of the Mediterranean as the League of Nations met to hear Spain charge Italy with pirate attacks against her merchantmen and China accuse Japan of aggression.

In the Spanish Mediterranean city of Cartagena there were unconfirmed reports the crew of one pirate submarine sunk off that port last week may be alive.

There was no confirmation of reports Spanish officials had received faint signals rapped out on the hull of the undersea boat. Spanish gunners said they sank the submarine as a pirate raider.

Should the boat be raised it likely would answer the pirate question. The Spanish Government and Moscow have accused Italian warships of waging indiscriminate war on Mediterranean shipping. Italy has counter-charged that the Valencia Government is responsible for the attacks.

Great Britain and France will distribute 36 British and 25 French ships, with Britain patrolling the area west of Malta and France the area to the east.

Rome Likely to Refuse.

Italy and Germany held aloof from the Nyon Conference and there was little indication Rome would participate in the relatively minor role that would be hers. Great Britain and France would undoubtedly welcome Italian support as the policeman of Italys own territorial waters, the function assigned all riparian states at the meeting, and there were two advantages Italy conceded had been won from the conference:

1—The exclusion of Soviet Russia from the patrol of the main sea routes;

2—A measure of recognition of the belligerency of the Spanish insurgents, who were given equal rights in the present instance with the Valencia Government.

On the other hand, there were two drawbacks to Italian participation:

1—The accord was believed to favor the Valencia Government by facilitating the sending of supplies to that part of Spain;

2—The pact was reached mainly by France and Great Britain, with Russia helping, and was then submitted to Italy as an accomplished fact.

Chinese Outlook Serious

League members considered the war in China almost as serious as the Mediterranean situation. China's strongly worded appeal against Japanese aggression warned that the Oriental conflict has be-

September Brings Plowing Time On The Farm

A picture as shown above is not hard to find in any rural district in Ontario these days but the beauty of this appealed to The Examiner. Gone are the days of the two horse teams and the single walking plow. Now farmers if they have not a tractor, use a four horse team and double plow. This picture was taken on the farm of Clayton Sanderson on the Chemong Road.

Harvey Township Reeve Given 6,600 Volt Shock

Although Thrown To The Ground Wallace Shearer Able To Continue Work Later

Wallace Shearer reeve of Harvey Township, had a close brush with death when he received a shock from the 6,600-volt main line Hydro wire at the Buckhorn sawmill Saturday. Although he was felled by the jolt, he was able to continue work unaffected a few minutes later.

The near-electrocution occurred when the municipal official lent his aid to mill hands in moving a large log-jammer close by the sawmill. The tall machine had been loaded on a truck and its top made contact with the low-hanging Hydro wires as the truck went into motion.

Shouts of by-standers warned the truck driver that the machine was not going to clear the wires but he failed to stop in time. Mr. Shearer received the electricity through a steel cable attached to the log-jammer which he was holding. He was thrown to the ground in a dazed condition.

The men puzzled at length over the problem of removing the truck from contact with the wire without risking further shocks but finally reached a solution by contriving to move the truck back without touching metal parts.

PRISONER FLEES JAIL IN TIMMINS

TIMMINS, Ont., Sept. 13 (CP)—Wilfred Lavoie alias Frank Parker, held in jail here since August 27, broke the lock on his cell early today and escaped.

Lavoi, arrested here on a charge of stealing a car, was out on parole from Burwash Industrial Farm. Information received by the Timmins police stated Lavoie has twice broken out of Burwash and has served terms in Kingston Penitentiary as a result of his escapes from the former institution.

Escape was effected when he reached out of his cell and picked up a strong stove poker in the narrow passageway between the cell block and the wall. With the poker he broke the stout, new lock used to hold the cell door.

BUSY TRAFFIC SEASON

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 13 (C.P.).—Passenger traffic on the Detroit River and Upper Lakes was busier in 1937 than for many years, Canadian Steamships Lines officials said to-day. Regular summer passenger service ended on Friday.

Girl's Prank Lands Her Beau In Hospital

NO laughing matter to the victim was the prank played by a girl on her boy friend here Saturday night.

Attempting a new version of the old schoolboy trick of placing a tack on an unsuspecting friend's chair, the girl thought it would be interesting to see what reaction she could get from her companion by placing a needle on the seat of the truck in which they were driving.

She got her reaction. The boy friend went almost through the roof of the truck and later went to St. Joseph's Hospital. A surgeon is still probing to find the needle.

CHINESE ACTION MAY FORCE NAVAL BLOCKADE, JAPAN

GENEVA, Sept. 13.—(AP)—The faint possibility of an International naval blockade of Japan by League States appeared to-day with China's action in invoking Article XI of the League of Nations' covenant in protest against "Japanese aggression."

This article often is considered the coventan's most powerful clause. If the League Council finds that Japan has launched an unprovoked war or aggression upon China, it may act on Article XI, which permits any action which effectively will safeguard peace. However, it is generally believed here that European Powers would decline to send armed forces to China through League invitation, even if Japan were found guilty of waging an unprovoked war of aggression.

In past Assembly resolutions, the article has been interpreted as suggesting the possibility of measures like a naval blockade.

Should Japan refuse to accept temporary membership in the council to defend the case against her, as provided in Article XVII, which China also invoked, economic and financial sanctions and even an invitation to League members to contribute army and navy forces for China's protection might be brought against the Land of the Rising Sun.

Such sanctions were decreed against Italy in an attempt to stop her Ethiopian campaign.

BERRY INDUSTRY GOOD

FREDERICTON—(CP)—Yield of blueberries in New Brunswick this season is expected to total 5,000,000 pounds, a better than usual amount. The industry provides employment for hundreds of people.

TWO WOMEN HIT BY FALLING TREE SATURDAY NIGHT

Struck by a falling tree limb during the gale which swept Peterborough Saturday evening, Mrs. John Ryan, with her daughter, Mary Ryan, 275 Reid Street, were felled while walking along the sidewalk at the corner of Rubidge and Scott Streets. The two escaped serious injury, but later received treatment for bruises and shock.

Telegraphic and telephone communications were interrupted in a number of localities in this district as the wind, the most violent experienced here this season, uprooted trees which crashed through lines. C.N.R. telegraph wires between here and Toronto were out two hours.

Farmers reported the wind flattened corn in more exposed fields.

Driver Is Pitched Into Side Of House

Failing to make a sharp turn on the River Road just south of Locks Bridge around 8.30 o'clock Saturday evening, a roadster driven by Bruce Hunt, Ottawa, left the roadway and hurtled into the side of a house tenanted by Mrs. Margaret McMartin.

The driver was pitched from the wrecked car a distance of thirty feet, it was learned. Attended by Dr. O. R. Scott, he was admitted to Nichols Hospital, suffering concussion of the brain and a dislocated shoulder.

Apparently detouring off Highway 7, which is under construction east of Locks Bridge, Hunt was proceeding south on River Road at the time of the accident. Beyond repair, his car was towed to a local wreckers.

Woman Is Victim Of Runaway Car

Orangeville, Sept. 13.

MRS. THOMAS GREENIS, Orangeville, received a fractured shoulder bone, a badly strained wrist and severe cuts about the lips when she was struck by a runaway car Saturday night.

Mrs. Greenis was walking past Heuther's Creamery with her small son, Hugh, aged 7 years, and was wheeling in a carriage her 4-months-old child when she noticed a driverless car careening towards her. She pushed the children ahead of her, but before she could escape herself, she was pinned to the creamery wall. She was immediately rushed to Lord Dufferin Hospital, where she was attended by Drs. Scott and Leach. . . . . .

WINDSOR PICKETS FAIRLY CONVICTED IS APPEAL FINDING

TORONTO, Sept. 13 (CP)—Thomas Parry and Walter Stillmark were rightly convicted on a charge of having been members of an unlawful assembly before the premises of the Kelsey Wheel Company in Windsor, Ont., Dec. 21, last, Ontario Court of Appeal ruled today.

The court was composed of Chief Justice F. R. Latchford and Justices, W. E. Middleton and C. A. Masten.

Parry and Stillmark were convicted last May on charges arising out of conduct of strikers picketing the Kelsey plant. Parry was sentenced to six months' imprisonment and, his counsel said, has served all but two and one-half months of his sentence. Stillmark has served the whole of his term in Essex County jail.

R. S. Rodd, counsel for the men, complained first of the manner in which the original trial jury was called and constituted. He said that as a result of the action of the Crown counsel in directing jurors to stand aside, there were 10 farmers on the jury. He said that under the circumstances it was difficult to have a fair trial with such a jury when "feelings were high."

Mr. Rodd, read the definition in the criminal code of an unlawful assembly, pointing out that it was such a gathering as to cause persons in the neighborhood to fear that it would disturb the peace tumultuously. The strike at the Kelsey Wheel Company's plant, he said, had been called Dec. 16 and for four days a picket line had been maintained at the company's premises.

Cause For Fear?

Mr. Justice Middleton said it was his understanding that some 75 persons had gathered to prevent cars from entering the premises, that they did prevent one from entering but were unable, because of the police, to prevent others from entering.

"If they were attacking cars, turning them around, attempting to upset them, were they not acting in such a way as to cause people in the neighborhood to fear a disturbance of the peace?" asked Chief Justice Latchford.

Mr. Rodd replied that while Stillmark had his head out by a policeman's baton and Parry had his coat torn, a constable had testified that "there never was any danger of a fight," because the strikers were "too scared of them clubs." A passenger in one of the cabs had testified he was not a bit frightened, Mr. Rodd said.

The court did not call upon W. B. Common, K.C., to present the argument of the Crown upon the appeal.

Reaffirms Right Of Association Ranks With Freedom Of Speech, Press

OTTAWA, Sept. 13—(CP).—Labor Minister Rogers made a plea to-day before the opening session of the 53rd annual convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada for forbearance in industrial relations. At the same time he said that "unless we are prepared to pay the price of regimentation and loss of freedom, it would seem that industrial peace in the absolute sense is probably a very distant goal."

Welcoming, on behalf of the Dominion Government, more than 500 delegates who made the convention one of the largest in Congress history, the minister urged mutual confidence and goodwill in the conduct of relations between Labor and Capital. He reaffirmed his government's stand that "the right of the individual to associate with others for all lawful purposes is a vital element in our inheritance of freedom, ranking with freedom of speech and freedom of the press."

Mr. Rogers said that in the future both employers and employees "may find it necessary from time to time to make a stand that results in a strike or lockout."

However, he declared, "once the conflict is over, attention should be given to developing relations which will make another conflict less probable. To do this requires an attitude of forbearance on both sides. It also requires the utmost good faith in the observance of agreements. Goodwill and good faith go hand in hand. They are indispensable in the development of collective bargaining."

SEATS PROVIDED FOR 3,200 PEOPLE

Hon. Mitchell F. Hepburn's visit to Peterborough tonight will open the Liberal party's campaign in this riding on a high note. It will bring the leader of the government before a local audience for the first time since he was elected Premier of Ontario in 1934, and at the same time will present to the electors Alex L. Elliott, the Liberal candidate and sturdy standard-bearer.

Seats have been provided in the armouries for an assembly of 3,200 people, and if that accommodation should prove inadequate the speeches will be broadcast by amplifiers outside the building. Dr. Donald Munro of Warsaw, president of the Liberal Association, will be chairman, and Alderman R. M. Glover will introduce Mr. Elliott. The big parade ground of the armouries has been attractively decorated by the Liberal executive, the 57th Rangers Band will be heard in a program of music, and from all accounts a record crowd of citizens from all parts of the county is expected to hear Premier Hepburn and Mr. Elliott.

Tonight's opening rally will probably be the outstanding event of the present campaign, as it will be the only opportunity the people will have of hearing Hon. Mr. Hepburn review salient events of his administration.

GERMANS DISPLAY NEW AIR MIGHT

NUREMBURG, Germany, Sept. 13 (AP)—Squadrons of new military planes thundered over the Nazi party congress today in a gigantic display of the Reich's re-established military might.

All branches of Germany's armed forces took part in the demonstration marking the last day of the annual congress.

Rank on rank of roaring bombers and swift pursuit planes paraded overhead, and then a large group gave the 250,000 spectators their greatest thrill by flying across the zeppelin field in Swastika formation while anti-aircraft guns barked in salute.

Labor Demands Discrimination End Against Unions

Congress Attack Injunctions—Wants No Immigrants, Asks Holidays With Pay For All

OTTAWA, Sept. 13—(CP).—The 53rd annual convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada to-day received from its executive a report urging efforts to end alleged discrimination in Canada against union workers, opposing any change in laws that would ease restrictions against immigration or curtail free passage across this country's borders of international Labor union officials.

In a long printed report the executive, headed by President P. M. Draper, reiterated its demand for compulsory holidays with pay for all workers, its opposition of compulsory incorporation of unions, its stand in favor of amendments of the British North America Act, opposition to war as a means of settling international disputes, opposition to conscription for military industrial purposes.

Attacks Injunctions.

The executive denounced as dangerous "to the right of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" issue by courts of "a number of sweeping and severe injunctions against labor unions engaged in legitimate

Only 20 Under The Age Of 25 Years Registered As Being Unemployed

Only twenty registrations of young people desiring employment were obtained in the recent jobless survey ordered for the Province by the Government and carried out here by the Employment Services Bureau, it was learned today. Of a large number of both young men and women invited to fill out the registration forms, few were actively interested.

The registration was for young people up to 25 years of age. The idea behind it as announced by the government was that efforts would be made to place those registering in posts to which their talents would be particularly suited at various points in the Province when openings became available.

Dan Douglas, superintendent of the Employment Bureau, said all regular applicants for work on the Bureau list, under 25 years of age, were contacted and invited to fill out the forms. The objection of many was that they were not in a position to move to other towns in the event jobs were obtained for them.

Crops, More Trade Other Areas Offset West's Failure

Minerals, Manufactures Up 15 P.C., Exports 23, Imports 30 In Seven Months

OTTAWA, Sept. 13—(CP)—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics today reported practically all business factors showed increases during the seven months ending July 31 over the same period in 1936.

Principal element in the continued betterment of economic conditions was the expansion maintained in productive operations coupled with advances in commodity prices. Crop failures in sections of the Prairie Provinces were more than offset by good crops and expanding trade in other areas.

The index of the physical volume of business in the seven months, on the base 1926 equals 100, averaged 121.3 per cent compared with 107.9 in the same period the previous year.

Volume of mineral production was more than 15 per cent greater than the first seven months of 1936. Nickel exports were up 27 per cent., copper exports, 7.5 per cent., and zinc 5.2 per cent.

Official index for manufacturing operations, based on 30 factors, was 121.4 in the seven months period against 106.4 the year before.

Canada's trade crossed the $1,000,000,000 mark in the first seven months and showed an advance of

Terrific Wind, Rain Rips Wide Swath Toronto-Sudbury

Yachts Sink In Queen City Harbor—Meaford Orchards Ruined

TORONTO, Sept. 13.—(CP). — Damage form the week-end gale that lashed Ontario in a winding loop from Toronto along the coast of Lake Erie through the Georgian Bay district up to Northern Ontario to-day was estimated at many thousands of dollars. Hardest hit was the Sudbury district, where five inches of rain fell.

Railway lines were washed out and highway traffic stalled. Houses were flooded and automobiles parked in low-lying streets submerged when the usually docile Nolin and Junction creeks were flooded and burst their banks and coursed through Sudbury streets.

Toronto suffered when yachts tied to buoys were capsized and a seaplane riding at anchor in Toronto bay sunk. Trees were uprooted and part of the pier of the Argonaut Rowing Club smashed by the wind-lashed waves.

Motorists Forced to Halt.

At Orillia, in the Georgian Bay section trees and telephone poles were uprotted. Motorists found it impossible to drive against the storm. At Meaford orchards were ruined by the wind and rain and work crews were hard put to clear the highways of fallen trees and poles.

Four men were forced to beach their boat near Meaford when the storm caught them on a fishing expedition. All had to wade ashore and leave the boat to be battered by high waves. Fishing guides reported waves 15 feet high crashing against the cement piers at Meaford as they returned from their trips with chilled and seasick passengers.

The storm in Western Ontario left scattered debris reminiscent of the flood last spring when the Thames river overflowed its banks and caused thousands of dollars damage. Farm buildings were blown down by the wind and scores of orchards damaged.

The upper storey of the Harold Dennis home at Dutton, Elgin county, was blown off, but Mr. and Mrs. Dennis and their child, on the ground floor, escaped injury. A mile wide swath was cut by the storm, leaving crops, orchards and building flattened.

TRAWLER GROUNDS ON SABLE ISLAND

HALIFAX, Sept. 13.—(CP).—The 275-ton Halifax trawler Lemberg was high and dry on the northwest bar of Sable Island to-day, expected to be a total loss after grounding in a 30-mile gale early Sunday.

A lifeboat from the island's life-saving station took off the trawler's crew of twenty-five, majority of them Norwegians.

The Lemberg grounded shortly after midnight, and immediately sent out distress signals. They were picked up by the United States' freighter Sundance and by a vessel the Radio Branch of the Canadian Department of Transport said was the Chedack. Both vessels immediately steamed to the Lemberg's assistance.

Shallow water about the scene of the stranding kept them several miles from the Lemberg. The trawled notified them they could be of no assistance and they resumed their course.

Early last night the Radio Branch reported the sea and wind increasing.

IRELAND OFFERED TORY LIQUOR POST HEPBURN CLAIMS

TORONTO, Sept. 13.—(CP). — After a week's tour of Northern Ontario, Premier Mitchell Hepburn to-day moved eastward on another leg of his campaign for the Oct. 6 Ontario elections. He speaks to-night at Peterborough.

Mr. Hepburn wound up his Northern Ontario tour Saturday in the constituency of Algo-Manitoulin which, he said, would be split up again into two ridings when redistribution of Ontario's electoral districts is undertaken.

When the last session of the Legislature was in progress he had no thought of an election this year, he stated. Consequently the redistribution he had planned was left over.

William H. Ireland, Trenton, former Member of the Legislature and now president of the Ontario Conservative Association, has been offered the chairmanship of the Liquor Control Board if the Conservatives win the election, Mr. Hepburn said. That was the reason Conservative Leader Earl Rowe rejected Mr. Hepburn's proposal of a non-partisan Liquor Commission.

Rapped As Partisan

There was "no more bitter partisan in Ontario" than Mr. Ireland, said the premier. His appointment would bring back "the old Tory system" with the toll-gate and other abuses.

At all his northern meetings Mr. Hepburn dealt with his labor policy and his opposition to what he termed the invasion of Ontario by the Committee for Industrial Organization. The premier spoke at Kapuskasing, Cochrane, Timmins, Kirkland Lake, New Liskeard, Sudbury, Little Current and Blind River.

After speaking at Little Current in the afternoon, he journeyed to Blind River where he accused Hon. Earl Rowe of having no definite liquor policy. The Conservative leader sang "How Dry I Am" in dry areas and "How Wet I Am" in the wet districts.

As long as he was premier "no wet section will force its views on a dry section and conversely no dry section will force its views on a wet section". The Liberals would make no sectional appeals but he would present the same views in all parts of the province.

An Iron Ore Ad

Mr. Rowe showed himself a "rank hypocrite through an advertisement in weekly papers attacking the government's bounty on iron ore to encourage the industry north of Sault Ste. Marie. A year ago the Conservative leader demanded the government do something to assist the

HEPBURN LINKED U.S. PRIVATE POWER IS ROWE'S CHARGE

OAKVILLE, Ont., Sept. 13 (C.P.) —Hon. Earl Rowe, Conservative Leader, to-day was bound for a week's tour of Northern Ontario to continue his campaign for the October 6 elections. He spoke on Saturday at Oakville where he charged Premier Hepburn with being "tied to apron strings of United States power interests."

"I charge and challenge him tonight to deny that he has on the payroll at the present time the engineering firm of Stone & Webster of Boston, who are tied up with private power interests of the United States and who are running Hydro into the ground."

Further, Mr. Rowe, who is bound for Port Arthur, demanded the Premier produce a written statement from independent engineers to prove no power shortage existed.

The man on the back concession was bribed" by cheaper Hydro rates, the Conservative Leader said. He charged the Liberal Government: paid $50,000 to Stone & Webster — "who have had their eyes on Hydro since the days of Sir James Whitney and Sir Adam Beck"—after firing two Canadian engineers who received $32,000.

The Chats Falls Deal.

In his charge regarding the Boston firm and Hydro, he added: "If anyone doubts what I say, ask him

PARALYSIS CUTS C.N.E. BY 301,000

TORONTO, Sept. 13 (CP).—Directors of the Canadian National Exhibition today looked forward to 1938, the show's diamond jubilee, after one of the most disappointing years in some time. Hopes were high for a record-breaking attendance at next year's fair after the 10-day attendance figures for 1937 showed a decrease of 301,000 over last year.

The attendance drop was attributed by civic officials to the current epidemic of infantile paralysis. This year's attendance was 1,302,000, against 1,603,000 in 1936.

Elwood Hughes, C.N.E. general manager, told the closing luncheon of directors Saturday 1937 had been one of the most disappointing in some time. The show failed to receive national or provincial support. Strictly a Toronto fair, "we just haven't had any outside visitors," he said.

N.S. APPLE BELT RAKED BY STORM

HALIFAX, Sept. 13 (CP)—A 40-mile-an-hour gale that swept over Nova Scotia from the south over the week-end left a heavy mark on the province today.

The famous Annapolis Valley apple belt and coastal points bore the brunt of the storm which also disrupted communication facilities throughout the province and caused damage to smaller buildings. Trees were uprooted by the wind.

The 276-ton Halifax fishing trawler Lemberg ran aground on the graveyard of the Atlantic—Sable Island—and the heroic work of the life-saving crew succeeded in taking the 25 men off the vssel.

Apple orchards in the valley were raked by the strong winds accompanied by heavy rain and reliable estimates placed the loss at 250,000 barrels valued at $625,000. This was estimated at about 10 per cent of the crop, figured to be 2,500,000 barrels.

Coastal craft dragged at their anchors all along the coast and many smaller fishing vessels were smashed on the rocks.

The 90-ton schooner N. B. LeBlanc was torn from her moorings at Shelburne and crashed against the side of the Shelburne fisheries cold storage plant. The vessel sank and the nine members of the crew had to jump for their lives.

In a fight between peasants and gipsies in Nagreni, Rumania, eight persons were killed and over 100 injured.

GUILD IS EXPELLED

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 13 (A.P.). — The American Federation of Labor outlawed the American Newspaper Guild yesterday and announced the beginning of "a militant drive" against the Committee for Industrial organization unit through its own newspaper unions.

William Green, president of the A.F.L., who announced the expulsion of the Guild, said in a prepared statement:

"All news and editorial employees of newspapers throughout the country will be invited to join federal unions organized by the A.F.L. It is expected members of the Guild who voted against affiliation with the committee for Industrial Organization, or against its political policies, will form the nucleus of this new organization."

HARVEST ON

CHARLOTTETOWN — (CP). — Harvest is well under way in the province. Reports tell of light grains and a general diminution in volume. Potatoes are reported as small in size with the new ones actually sprouting in the ground. Cobblers except in isolated instances are a failure while Mountains wilted for want of moisture.

Russia reports it harvested 92,000,000 acres of grain crops this year.

A TOUGH JOB—but HEPBURN DID IT

He Balanced Ontario's Budget and Used $9,000,000 Surplus for Tax Reductions

BEFORE the Hepburn administration came into power the old Henry gang had been piling up deficit after deficit.

For the year 1936-37, the Hepburn Government achieved a surplus of over $9,000,000. That surplus is being passed on to you in the form of reduced taxes IMMEDIATELY.

Another Sunshine Budget

Sound management, hard work and a strict "pay as you go" policy has turned former deficits into that substantial surplus. Furthermore, entire Government departments had to be cleaned out to make possible economy of government. All this Mr. Hepburn promised. All this Mr. Hepburn carried out.

Now he promises more sunshine budgets, more surpluses to be passed on to you in the form of reduced taxes.

Where the Revenue Dollar Goes

In the last year of the discredited Henry gang, 42.62 cents out of every dollar of revenue were used for fixed charges on public debt. That left only 57.38 cents out of every dollar of revenue to meet current expenses—education, road maintenance and other public services. Imagine a wage earner having to take nearly half his daily wage to pay the "interest" on his debts!

Today—under the Hepburn Administration—only 25.5 cents out of every dollar of revenue are required to meet fixed charges, leaving 74.5 cents for your public services.

Mr. Hepburn promised sound business management for the Province; Mr. Hepburn has kept his promise.

Debt Reduced $33,000,000.00

In the year ending March 31, 1937, the Hepburn Government showed a gross debt reduction of $33,098,165.39—the first gross debt reduction in thirty years.

Taxes Reduced

Hepburn's financial policy made possible:

1. Assumption by the Province of the entire cost of Mothers' Allowances, a saving to the Municipal Taxpayers of $2,100,000.00 per year;
2. Assumption of the Municipalities' share of the Old Age Pensions, a saving to the Taxpayers of over $1,000,000.00 a year;
3. Cancellation of the Amusement Tax at a saving of $3,000,000.00 per year;
4. Abolition of Students' examination fees, $170,000.00 per year;
5. Increase of Township Road subsidy from 40 to 50 per cent., $400,000.00 per year;
6. Payment of entire cost of pensions to the blind, $300,000.00 per year;

Mrs. Fife moved a hearty vote of thanks to the social committee, which was responded to with applause. The ladies of the W.A. are looking forward to a splendid fall and winter season.

WOOL DRESSES HAPPY CHOICE

Little girl's imported wool tweed frock in sky blue or rose.

Left, plaid wool school dress; right, checked wool dress in princess style; center, jumper frock of imported English vyella flannel in plaid, silk pique blouse.

By LISBETH

Big and little sister go back to school most often wearing their summer clothes. That is, of course, to the school in the old home town.

But the warm days of early autumn that make first days of school hard on youngsters who are used to their freedom, soon pass. Cooler weather brings problems of dress to the mothers and new frocks for the girls.

The little dress at the left of our picture is just right for days when there are special doings at the kindergarten, you know — parents' days, or when other smart visitors come. It is an imported wool tweed smocked around the waist from which it hangs in full folds, finished off with stitching and cute tassels at the waist. It is equally pretty in sky blue or rose color.

Smart and Practical

Dresses like these shown in the group right, are delightfully smart and practical besides, a side of the matter of buying dresses that appeals to mother more than to daughter. Big Sister at the left wears a plaid wool dress that comes in green or red and has a zipper, leather belt and buttons in the opposite color. This is for the girl of from 12 to 16.

The girl on the steps has chosen a checked wool in a princess style, with wooden buttons marching in triplets down the front. It is finished with an oyster linen collar.

Little Miss Kindergarten age loves jumpers with which she can wear different blouses. The one she is wearing in this picture is of imported English vyella flannel in a pretty plaid with a deep pleat both front and back going down the center from waist to hem. With it comes a blouse of silk pique edged with rows of blue stitching.

Sisters Dress Alike.

Big and little sister may be dressed alike when they go to school even as brother and sister may wear the same style clothes and even husband and wife. Frocks of gray wool are nice for the sister ensemble, with rows of silver-colored ball buttons down the front. Buster Brown collars and cuffs on short puffed sleeves of crisp white pique, border-stitched in blue or red. Red stitching to match may trim the front panels of the dresses, and luscious embroidered cherries adorn the bodices.

Fashion Service

The high placement of the crescent shaped pockets are a cunning detail of this navy blue cotton poplin school dress. It's a one-piece affair and quickly run up on the sewing machine. Perky puffed shoulder sleeves—a swishy flared skirt also attract attention. She'll be ready for school in a flash! A bright red slide fastener zips it right up to the crisp white pique collar. Ideal too in Scotch plaid wool or cotton. A diagrammed instruction sewing chart included.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"WE ARE here on earth to be trained to give and not to grasp. We gain most by giving most. We lose by grasping. If we blindly refuse to give and insist on grasping, God comes to us as a wise father to a greedy child and says: 'Give that to me.' He comes to make us give, because by giving only can we truly receive; not to take from us our joy, but that by giving to Him, we may receive more joy."

—John Hopkins Denison.

Dear Friends:

This is written to middle-aged people, at the request of a reader, "L.N.R." Now I am not writing about selfish people, but parents and members of a family, who have learned this lesson of "giving." All their lives they have been givers, some as daughters giving time, and comfort, and money to their parents, then see this love they have tried to win, given over to the careless, selfish ones.

What a bitter feeling that leaves, so that they wish they had taken a leaf out of the selfish one's book, then they might have been more thought of. Sometimes it is a sister or a brother who does this giving only to be let down when their time of need came along.

Sometimes it is a friend, who stands by when all others have turned thumbs down on a person, then see their friendliness thrown back in their teeth, when one of the faithless ones comes back, left at home by themselves while the one they stood by, goes blindly on their way. Another bitter pill to swallow.

But the worst of all, I think, is when a mother or father have spent their lives on their children, then get left in loneliness and heartbreak, while their children forget the years of self-sacrifice, and treat them as if they were an encumbrance.

I would not have you think that parents should remind their children of every little thing they have done for them. You hear some smart alecs say, "I did not ask to be brought into the world," as if anyone of us had that privilege. They only use that expression like a parrot, because they try to shirk their duty.

It is no help to one who is suffering from neglect, to know that the ones who are inflicting this on them will get what is coming to them, for it only occasions more pain when they see it happen, as it does all around us. Givers are, as a rule, not vindictive, they do not want revenge, but only that a little of all this giving will trickle back to them when they are most in need of it.

Now listen to this other quotation: "It is our own past which has made us what we are. We are the children of our own deeds. Conduct has created character; acts have grown into habits, each year has pressed into us a deeper moral print, the lives we have led have left us such as we are to-day."—Dykes.

Oh, yeah. If that is so, why doesn't more of our giving come back to us? When we have given time and loving labor, and thought, and kindly understanding, are we only going to reap loneliness, misunderstanding, neglect, and be made to feel SO unreasonable if we resent this?

If all our lives we have done all we could for others, never thinking of ourselves, what comfort is it to tell us our own past has left us with no pleasure in living, because the ones who SHOULD return some of this, think only on themselves.

Truly we are not taught the real art of living. We should be taught to give to ourselves, not grasping, not greedy, but letting others do some of this giving, not putting all our eggs into one basket, but scattering it around a little, so that we have friends we can go to in our loneliness, when those we gave so much to are busy forgetting us. It takes so little to make us happy, and that little withheld makes us so miserable. But generally when we have learnt to give to ourselves, it is too late to do much about it. Helpho, what a life.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Woolfrey—Bullied

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Bullied of Stewart street when their eldest daughter, Edna Viola, was united in marriage to Ernest Malcolm Woolfrey, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Woolfrey of Toronto.

The house was prettily decorated with gladioli and fern, the ceremony being performed beneath an arch of white streamers and a large white bell. The Rev. S. A. Kemp of Havelock officiated. Mrs. J. J. Brolley (nee Gladys Higley) played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charming in a long Elizabethan model gown of ivory satin, with collar and insets in sleeves of Chantilly lace. Her full-length bridal vail, previously worn thirty years ago by the groom's mother, was held in cap effect with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of Premier roses and "baby's breath."

Miss Norma Bullied, sister of the bride, was her only attendant and was becomingly gowned in "baby blue" silk net over taffeta, with which she wore a matching halo hat and silver sandals. Her bouquet was of Premier tea roses and "baby's breath."

Charles McCabe of Toronto attended the groom as best man.

Mrs. Bullied, who received the guests, was wearing a gown of black sheer with black accessories and a corsage of roses. She was assisted by Mrs. Woolfrey, mother of the groom, who was gowned in blue sheer over figured taffeta, with which she wore black accessories and a corsage of roses.

After the ceremony refreshments were served in buffet style with Miss Mabel McBurney presiding at the tea table. Mr. and Mrs. Woolfrey left for a motor trip through the Muskoka Lakes district and Northern Ontario, the bride travelling in a beige ensemble. They will reside in Toronto.

HAD MONSTER TAPEWORM

This is my little girl's picture about one month after being relieved of a 15-foot tapeworm by Mulvaney's famous tapeworm remedy. She had been under medical care for months and was treated for bronchitis. Finally it was discovered she had tapeworm. After taking one dose of Mulvaney's famous tapeworm remedy she was relieved of the tapeworm, head and all. I cannot speak too highly of this remedy. From one that is very grateful.—Mrs. M. L. B., Sackville St., Toronto, Ont.

OTHER TYPES OF WORMS

People will also have round worms, whip worms, and tail grubs, spike worms, pin worms, thread worms and even lizards. Only too often children as well as adults are given soda, magnesia, cod liver oils, salts, pain pills, tonics, pile remedies, bed-wetting remedies, etc., when their true need is a worm remedy. Mulvaney's "MOTHER'S FRIEND" is available at most drug stores; this remedy expels these different types of worms. It is also a laxative and it is very soothing for the nerves, cools fevers and tones the entire system. That means that it is bound to do you good in many ways, even if worms are not your trouble. Every one should take a worm remedy just as a precaution. It is impossible to prevent worms, as the invisible eggs gain excess to the intestines through leafy vegetables, fruits, meats, fish and impure drinking water. Flies also carry these tiny eggs. They are also on pets. Don't wait for the more serious symptoms. Make sure that worms are not your trouble. Go to your family druggists and purchase a bottle of Mulvaney's "MOTHER'S FRIEND." Take according to directions and if you have worm trouble you will see them as they pass out into the exterior. If you think you have tapeworm, write us direct, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for quick reply. The tapeworm treatment can only be purchased direct from us. The Mother's Friend can be supplied to you by your druggist. Try it today. R. L. Mulvaney's Remedies Limited, Dept. 12, 311 Dissington Ave., Toronto, Canada. Good Reason For This

Lord Beaverbrook, the Canadian peer in London, is using his two newspapers, the Daily Express and the Evening Standard to campaign against war rumors. He considers it rather stupid that sensible people in Britain and elsewhere should feel it unsafe to sleep at nights for fear there will be war before the morning.

The London publisher appears to be weary enough of the continued recital of Stalin being annoyed by this, of Hitler being annoyed at that and Mussolini being annoyed by something else.

The Beaverbrook experiment—if it can be called that—is interesting, and it also has a degree of courage in it which is commendable. It is a plain fact that the world has listened daily to war talk. If there had been as much war as war talk then there would be few of us left by now. Most of the human race would have been cut into small pieces, drowned or gassed or riddled with a variety of bullets.

The Examiner confesses and admits that it has been notoriously easy for the war planners and the war talkers to have their case presented to the reading world. The newspapers have done their full share. The wordage on the cables telling of war plans and dangers in recent years has been heavy. Far too heavy.

The Beaverbrook papers recall that in 1920 the Russians fought the Poles; in 1922 the Turks fought the Greeks, in 1932 the Japanese fought the Chinese; in 1933 Bolivia fought Paraguay and in 1936 Italy fought the Abyssinians.

But there was no world war.

It takes a number of things to conduct a war: Men, guns, navy and air force. More than that it takes food, great supplies in sight and tremendous financial backing.

That side of the case is due for a fair amount of reasonable presentation and the Beaverbrook papers are doing a public and a world service in giving such presentation. If the war shouter were to understand that people were no longer interested in his stuff and that it would receive little publicity or no publicity at all then he might find his stock in trade rapidly diminishing and he himself might be inclined to sit down and keep quiet.

It Makes Pleasant Reading

Middlesex County Council and the County Reforestation Committee are working on a plan to make use of a 29-acre plot of ground near Crumlin on No. 2 Highway. The ground in question has apparently not turned out as successful farm land as it is being purchased for the amount of taxes which are due on it. The first move will be to plow it for spring planting of saplings.

More interesting is the prediction made in a despatch from London saying it will become one of the show forests of the province in the next twenty-five years.

The Examiner is pleased to be able to print something in its columns about a County Council or a Reforestation Committee looking ahead twenty-five years. From that point we may start to advance to the place where we will be looking ahead and planning for fifty year developments.

Never have we done enough of that. We've been either too busy or too selfish to do much more than think about this year and the next. We have been taken up with getting all we can and we haven't spent much time figuring on what we might put back. So it is well to find a community where those in charge are starting to think of the beauty of a young forest twenty-five years hence.

The Political Mud Slinger

Col. T. L. Kennedy, former Minister of Agriculture in Ontario and Conservative candidate in Peel county in the provincial election, said during the speech he delivered at Caledon that the tendency toward mud-slinging by certain people appealing for public support in the election was giving the youth of the country a poor idea and understanding of public service.

Col. Kennedy admitted the number of mud-slingers either side would be comparatively few, but what they do have to say is generally widely reported and in this way the younger folk in the community are apt to get the impression that politics and public life in general forms an unsavory combination from which it is well to keep far away.

Often enough one hears plenty regarding the abuse which public men have to tolerate and the degree of misstatement made regarding them and their ways, but the truth seems to be that some of these public men have only themselves to blame for the very condition about which they complain. They abuse other public men who differ from them in a political way, and they do it believing they are going to gain votes. We do not believe votes are secured in this way. The public is possessed of sufficient intelligence to listen to and appreciate the man who has something worth while to say. The mud-slinger presents his case and the people depart wondering what's wrong with him.

By Way Of Suggestion

There has been sent out for quiet general distribution an index of the debates in the House of Commons for the 1937 sessions which lasted from January 14 to April 10. It is a publication of 180 pages, giving each subject which came up for debate and the subjects on which various members spoke.

We can well enough believe there might be places where such a volume would be of interest and where for reference purposes it would be useful, but for the average person who reads Hansard as the sessions are under way the volume is not of particular interest.

If that which is actually worth while could be segregated from that which does not amount to much in the way of debate we believe the index volume of the worth-while material could be pressed into a small book which could be readily placed in the vest pocket.

Inclined To Doubt It

It is not possible for an election to come and go without strange things happening, or without it being said that such things have come to pass. Hamilton generally takes its politics seriously enough and this year is no exception. It is said that enumerators working in that city have been doing all manner of things. Their business has been to go forth and write down the names of folk who are entitled to vote on the 6th day of October. The name, age, occupation and such details are requested. But we read of charges which say the enumerators in Hamilton have been asking the people about their religion and also their political affiliation.

It might be convenient enough for the gentlemen who mark off voters' lists in the political committee rooms to have such information. It is a bit ticklish at times going to a man's house and asking him for whom he intends to vote, and one has to possess a deal of diplomacy to do the thing nicely and not be thrown out so he bounces two or three times on the unfriendly pavement.

Somehow we are moved to doubt that enumerators went romping about in Hamilton writing down names and then asking people how they intended to vote. For one thing there is sufficient common sense amongst citizens in general to cause them to tell such persons to be off about their own business. When one has stated the matter of age with some degree of accuracy then that is the extreme limit in the matter of answering questions. The temper is then frayed and it would not tolerate a further excursion into secret matters by disclosing how the individual intended to vote. The Hamilton report may read very well during the heat of an election campaign, but we are moved to doubt that any great sections of truth are attached to its framework.

It Could Be No Worse

The Japanese army bent on the invasion of Shanghai finds it has to fight pestilence as well as the Chinese army. Cholera is breaking out in the positions from which the Chinese troops were driven earlier in the battle. In one section it is stated twenty Japanese soldiers have died and not far off there is another camp where eighty are dying.

The charge of the Japanese commander is that the Chinese placed cholera germs in the positions which they were forced to evacuate, and it is these germs which are now attacking the invaders. The charge is denied by the Chinese officials. The Shanghai area had been free of cholera for fours years, but it has made its appearance with the war. Its reappearance would be the natural outcome of a lessening of sanitary restrictions. Cholera has been absent there four years because modern methods have kept the situation well in hand.

But take it the other way: If the Chinese had planted cholera germs so they would attack the army of the invading force, is that actually any worse than many of the other recognized customs of modern warfare? Any sane person would admit readily enough that the use of germs of disease would be a form of murder, but what of it?

Chemists the world over have been working for years producing gas in forms more deadly than have existed before. Other men have been making planes from which bombs and containers filled with gas can be dropped on any given area during war, and in that area there would be men, women and children. The gas would choke them and kill them. There have been millions of gas masks made to try and make people safe from gas attack.

In the Japanese invasion of Shanghai planes have been dropping bombs on sections where crowds of innocent people have been in the custom of going to do their daily shopping. Japanese warships have been adding their shells to the same mission. It has not been necessary for a Chinese to wear the uniform of a soldier to be considered fair game in the Japanese hunt for victims. Women and babies have been killed, old men have been blown to pieces, and the fleeing coolie who knew little or nothing of what it was all about has been dropped in his tracks. All wrong, all horrible and all murderous. And it all points to the conclusion that planting cholera germs—even had it been done—would be not one bit worse than the general policy and design of modern warfare. The germ business would at least possess one advantage—if it were found germs existed in certain areas then those exposed could be told to depart and leave such an area alone.

One Thing In His Favor

Frederick Shannon, 28, of Windsor, must undergo some sort of an examination, and he has several matters to explain to the authorities. According to the story he related to police the young man took several drinks of whiskey, then picked up a rifle and secured a taxi to take him to the residence of a lady friend who had refused to marry him. His plan was clear enough, but it was not original. He was going to shoot the girl and then use the weapon on himself.

The plan went well enough for a distance. That is, he rode as far as the residence of his former lady love. Then he proceeded to do the shooting, but he slipped up and was prepared to start first on himself. He put the gun to his head and pulled the trigger several times, but the thing would not bang. Then it was the young lady called the police.

For the greater part the Windsor man was wrong, but there was one thing highly commendable. Just this—he apparently tried to shoot himself before turning the gun on the maiden. The majority of those who are bent upon shooting out their love affairs aim at the woman first while there is a sure supply of shells and energy. With what strength or desire is left they then seek to attend to themselves and often enough make a poor job of it. So there is something to be said for the Windsor man who when the urge for shooting came upon him was ready to attend to himself first.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A New Brunswick couple have been married 73 years, and it is considered a fairly safe wager that they will not land in the divorce court now.

Col. Drew says that the war danger is lessening. We assume that he is referring to the European situation and not to the current political campaign.

A broadcast to foster world peace is to be launched by the League of Nations Society. We would advise Hitler and Mussolini to have their receiving sets all tuned up for that occasion.

The C. I. O. is denounced by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor as a an ally of Communism. Putting it tersely, Green sees Red.

Thieves stole the automobile of the New Brunswick Minister of Agriculture. If they tried that on Hon. Earl Rowe they probably would not be able to get very far with the machine.

It will cost Port Hope $130,000 for an effective flood control policy. After all however it does not take many floods to run into that amount of money in damages.

American scientist suggests the use of a drug to make soldiers faint, the idea being to render war less barbarous. The proposal, we understand, is only faintly approved of by the munition firms.

Hitler has commanded German women to have more children. Human raw materials are always in demand in a militaristic nation, and the Chancellor is looking to the future supply.

A Goderich youth has discovered it is impossible to run a car on $7 a month. The revelation will not however, prevent a lot of other folk from trying a similar experiment.

Whether or not hotelmen have been asked for contributions during the present political campaign, it would be safe to say that no new political history would have been written if such demands had been made.

EXPLAINED

¶ I never could quite understand, how James McMunchey looks so grand, nor how he comes and goes; for he is dressed like circus day, appears in fawn, or blue or grey, he has eight suits of clothes.

¶ And while I drive my pink sedan, McMunchey sports a brand new can, and it was made this year; and other cars along the block, are dimmed in grandeur by the shock, it makes them all look queer.

¶ McMunchey never wears a hat, until it looks bereft and flat, he is the band-box type; I know he thinks that my old lid, should be kidnapped at once and hid, it is a lot of tripe.

¶ Beats all the things he'll own, he stacks and piles them in his home, his rugs are soft and thick; and easy chairs where he can rest, when he's not feeling at his best, or when he's likely sick.

¶ On pay day he just draws his cash, enough for pickled hocks and hash, nor does he rank up high; it puzzles neighbors now and then, who are just plain and wholesome men, the things he goes to buy.

¶ I notice when the month's begun, McMunchey's mail's a heavy one, he doesn't look so gay; and bill collectors dodge his track, one other man calls at his shack—the bailiff so they say.

Germans Teaching Chinese.

REPORT from Shanghai says 100 officers from Germany, including six generals are at Nanking advising the Chinese officers on how to conduct their war against the invading Japanese. It is admitted the Japanese war machine is a precise and well greased affair, but it pays little attention to the business of spacing its men, depending almost entirely on massed frontal attacks where casualties are sure to be high. Experts say that so far the Japanese have been duplicating their bungling tactics of 1932 when they threw away tons of high explosives and needly sacrificed their men on the old system of frontal attacks.

Some of the foreign observers say the Japanese cannot afford to face a defeat in China on account of the effect it would have on the people at home. A defeat would be interpreted as showing the presence of an evil spirit and that would be disastrous.

COULD PAY FOR THEM

Editor Examiner:

Sir: This reader finds that leading editorial in The Examiner, dealing with the conclusions of the Raw Materials Committee of the League of Nations, significant and encouraging.

Canada's wheat business, as you know, was built-up on the assumption of a fairly free and fairly friendly world. The fact that the importing countries' 1937 wheat requirements have been estimated at only approximately 530 million bushels (i. e. about 250 million bushels less than the average yearly shipments for the five-year period 1924-29); and the further fact that the world will "get by", this year, with only a contribution of about 65 million bushels from this Dominion, is something which merits the attention of the Canadian people.

I agree with and commend your closing words: "Under the guise of claiming the right to become possessed of more raw materials, they actually cover the real purpose of seeking more land for the sake of having greater possessions. The cure is simple enough—quit spending so much on armaments and pay for the raw materials desired."

It was only the other day that, in urging the return of her onetime colonies, Chancellor Hitler pleaded Germany's case thus: "It is intolerable that our people should be limited to dependence upon the home fields".

While this reader would vote, tomorrow, in favor of handing back those so-called "Colonies," on the basis that Germany would thereafter be unequivocally dedicated to peace, the Hitler plea is spurious on at least two counts: (a) Not a bushel of wheat ever came from the "Colonies" in question; and (b) Germany is pouring enough wealth into armaments in 1937 to purchase every bushel of "export" wheat around the world's fields, three or four times over!

HUMAN AND ANIMAL CREATION

Editor Examiner:

Sir: This fact is a certainty and is accepted by all individuals, and yet we do not give it much serious thought. The human creation is guided by learning and intelegence, and the animal creation is guided by instinct. And the question would arise, what is instinct? This question would seem hard to define and yet animals have definite and effective modes of acting which they do not have to learn. They do not dream of their ancestors, and have no knowledge of that endearing word "mother".

Yet animals and birds like the humans have love for their offspring and watch over them, not forgetting to defend them in times of danger, and are even true to the laws that govern their lives.

With endless we watch many of the human creation having intelligent guidance yet in cases they forget their dignity of thought and action and indulge in forms of evil that are so damaging to their lives and in many cases their will power is so sacrificed that they become victims of habit. It is not necessary that there conditions should continue, as we are living in an age of progress and improvement, and our young men and young women of today having a knowledge of former evils, we trust they will catch the lost vision of the dignity of the human creation, and will take pride in embracing every opportunity that will contribute to the elevation of human life and world betterment, even though it tax their courage and determination to do so.

End of Drought Cycle Is Seen

Winnipeg Reports Say Dry Years On Prairies Have Now Finished

(From the Financial Post.)

WINNIPEG—With fairly generous August rains all through the West feeling is beginning to prevail that the great cycle of dry years has ended. But hopes for a fair return next year in the really dry areas will be based on moisture received this fall.

It is, of course, possible for the West to get a good crop entirely from the rains which fall during a growing season, and without dependence on reserves carried forward. That, in fact, was largely the experience of Manitoba and of a good deal of Alberta this year. But, for such a result, it is necessary not only for rains to be adequate, but to be well timed. Large parts of Saskatchewan had sufficient moisture this year to have produced a fair crop, had the distribution of the moisture been different. A complete lack of sub-soil moisture, however, left the crops without ability to hold out from one rain to another.

Nothing better illustrates the reliance of this country on moisture carried over from one year to another than the practice of summerfallowing. It is a universal custom to keep a large part of the wheat area, sometimes up to 50%, in fallow. The objectives is to kill weeds and conserve moisture, the theory being that if there is no growth permitted any moisture that falls will be conserved for crop in the following year. While only a small part of the rain that does fall is actually so conserved, it is usually sufficient to materially improve the crop the season after fallowing.

Summerfallowing done last year in the driest parts of Saskatchewan, however, had little effect because there was so little moisture to conserve. The same applies to summerfallowing done in 1937, for this summer the sub-soil throughout the greater part of the province reached a degree of dryness hitherto unknown.

The hope of Saskatchewan farmers is that before freeze-up, several inches of rain may fall, and after soaking the ground to a satisfactory depth surplus may be locked in the soil until called on by next year's crop. If that occurs, there is sure to be a great deal of confidence as to next year. If it does not, there will still be hopes, but mingled with a good deal of fear.

The Oldsters Are Now More in Demand.

Department Stores Find They Make Most Useful Kind of Sales People

(From the Galt Reporter.)

IT IS noticeable in departmental stores on this continent that many sales people who are decidely advanced in age, are employed.

The natural sentiment, on seeing such people engaged in the wearing occupation of selling day after day, is that they are having a hard time and that fate has given them a rather unfair deal.

That kind of conclusion is all wrong, according to Charles F. Stech, whose occupation in New York is to make surveys and analyse business so that efficiency may be applied to its operations. Mr. Stech has just concluded an investigation from which he reaches the conclusion that men and women engaged in selling do their best work after the age of 50. In all the large departmental stores of the eastern United States, it was found that the sales people in their 50's sold more than those in their 40's, the 40's sold more than the 30's and the 30's more than the 20's. That may be a surprising verdict but it is the case that the big stores are betting heavily on the clerks who have reached maturity. They naturally employ a lot of young smart appearing boys and girls but it is noticeable that when some problem arises in regard to a sale where special knowledge and judgment is desirable, it is the grey-haired clerk who is summoned and who usually succeeds in making a deal with the customer.

There may be interest in the reason for this because there is a vague impression current that people who have reached the age of 50 are fairly well out of the running for good jobs in any line. It is recognized in business, however, that mature sales people seem to create a better impression with the customer. They are likely to be more concentrated on the task for they are no longer distracted by the allurements of recreation. Then, if they have been normally successful in life, they have acquired experience that is valuable in business. So, instead of the oldsters being relegated to jobs where there is no responsibility and no future they are in the forefront of the selling campaign.

It is an excellent thing that such is the case for there is in the world too great a tendency among the younger generation to belittle the qualities and achievements of their elders and to ascribe to their own efforts all the credit for enterprise and progress.

A WORD OF WELCOME.

(Montreal Star)

MONTREAL offered its own welcome last night to the new head of the Salvation Army in Canada, Commissioner G. Y. Carpenter, and his wife. Wherever they go—and we may be very sure and much of this country will not be visited by them—they will find this city's welcome duplicated and its good wishes echoed. "The Army" has a particularly warm corner in the heart of most Canadians. It is practical democracy at its best. It thrives by accomplishing impossibilities, by turning darkness into light and dross into gold. The men who have held high posts in it in this country have been men we lized and respected. There is a fine quality if simplicity about what they do, of open objectives openly arrived at by means of any old instrument that the Lord places within their reach. And so it is that we are glad to meet the new head of the organization in Canada, to bid him heartily welcome and Godspeed and more power in his efforts on our behalf. It is fine news that General Evangeline Booth will be here soon to address a mass meeting. All Montreal will do her honor.

HIS ROLLS-ROYCE CAR

FRANK CAPRA of Columbia Pictures went to Europe recently and took Nate Spingold's Rolls-Royce car with him. Inasmuch as Spingold was leaving for Europe a month later. To facilitate Capra's securing licenses in Europe, Spingold transferred the car's ownership to his studio's ace producer. Capra used the car in England and when Spingold arrived there Frank transferred the car's ownership back to Spingold. When Spingold returned to America and tried to bring his Rolls-Royce back with him, he discovered that he'll have to pay customs duties on importing one Rolls-Royce, which the customs men insist, he bought—as far as the records show—from Frank Capra in England!

Talks to the People — J. H. Burnham

When the voter comes to vote, he will ask himself (or herself): "Why should I now vote to turn out the government which I voted to turn in?" He will find the answer to the question in Mr. Rowe's official declaration regarding industrial disputes in which he says: "The primary function of the state in all industrial disputes is to take no sides." In other words Mr. Rowe believes in letting them fight it out, which is just about the craziest idea that ever crept into any leader's policy. What else is there the vote will ask? Mr. Rowe says he will respect R. C. Separate Schools. Mr. Hepburn takes the liquor question out of politics and is opposed by Rev. Dr. Irwin for doing so. Both promise everything else in sight, for which of course the voters, not the leaders will pay. But to beer or not to beer is no longer the question and an Almighty Providence has put Mr. Cunningham in the hospital.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Sept. 13 — (CP). — Wheat futures followed Chicago downward in late trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day but staged a rally on overseas buying estimated at more than 1,000,000 bushels. Final prices were ⅝ to ¾ cent lower. October $1.23⅝, November, $1.23¾, December, $1.21, and May $1.22¼ to ⅝.

Prices moved irregularly within a three-cent range on both sides of Saturday's closing levels. Early gains of more than a cent were erased on increased hedging and withdrawal of earlier market support.

However, when Chicago slumped nearly three cents, Liberal selling by southern interests sent Winnipeg wheat sliding. At levels more than a cent lower, export and overseas buying, estimated at more than 1,000,000 bushels steadied prices.

LABOR DEMANDS NO DISCRIMINATION

struggles to maintain and improve living standards."

Modern and "extensive use of the writ of injunction, especially in labor disputes, is revolutionary and destructive," the report said, adding injunctions were extremely costly and "are a most convenient way for employers to deplete the treasury of labor unions and make them impotent."

It continued:

"Considered from every point of view, and in the light of varied and most extensive experience, the injunction process as used by the courts of the land in industrial disputes, is not an instrument of equity but a weapon of oppression. In too many cases they have been the protectors of property and of property rights, and have disregarded human aspiration and personal rights of the workers."

Menace To Workers

"The congress emphatically and solemnly protests against this alarming tendency which menaces the very existence of Canadian workers as free men. We assert that workers have the right to work when, for whom, and for what they please and to withhold their work individually or collectively for any reason which they consider sufficient and that to deny them this right means to revive the medieval institution of involuntary servitude, that they have the right to induce their fellow workers to join them in their struggles for economic betterment and to quit work for hostile employers.

"As a remedy for the evil of injunctions, your executive council recommends that a model act should be prepared, following the lines of the English Trades Disputes Act of 1906 and the various statutes of the United States dealing with the subject, setting forth exactly what trade unions may be permitted to do in connection with trade disputes, and with a provision that the process of injunction should not be permitted by the courts in such case and that this model act be presented to the various provincial governments with a request that it be enacted at the next session of their respective legislatures."

Closed Shops in Quebec.

The report took cognizance of a "challenge" in Quebec to maintenance of the closed shop, quoting from a recent pronouncement of Premier Duplessis that: "Workers have the right to organize but we will not permit the establishment of the closed shop in this province."

The executive said that statement was taken by a section of the press "to launch a new drive upon organized labor." To make the Congress position clear the report said:

"Closed shops are established under voluntary agreements between employers and workers, negotiated by representatives of management and the trade unions. They provide that none but members in good standing in the trade unions or unions, party to the agreement may be employed in the plant or plants covered by said agreements.

"The closed shop does not curb the right to work to any individual

TELEPHONE operators appreciate the cooler weather. On them fell a heavy extra burden during the recent heat wave. Naturally enough our subscribers avoided any but absolutely necessary effort — they used the telephone wherever possible. The extra calls they made, both local and long distance, meant much extra operating labor.

Absentees amongst our operators were few, and the quality of service given continued high.

We are sure the public will join with us in paying this tribute to our operators.

NOTE

68e. Within four days after the posting up of the polling subdivision list by the enumerators as provided in section 68d, any person whose name has been entered on any of the said polling subdivision lists in the electoral district, may file with the proper clerk of the revising officer appointed for the polling subdivision a complaint that there has been included in the polling subdivision list as compiled by the enumerators, the name or names of persons who should not be entered therein. Such complaint shall be prepared according to Form 26 and shall set out the reasons for complaining and shall be accompanied by an affidavit of the complainant, Form 27, and the same shall be filed with such clerk of the proper revising officer not later than the first day appointed for the sittings of the revising officer.

Copies of Form 26 and 27 may be obtained upon application to the Returning Officer or to the Clerk of the Municipality.

68q. Any person resident in any polling division included in the registration district, whose name has not been included or has been incorrectly included by the enumerator in the list of voters for such polling subdivision, may apply at the registry office for the registration district to have his name included in the list or to cause the entry in the list relating to him to be corrected.

68r. Every person so applying shall sign an application, Form 29, in which all the information required by the said form shall be sufficiently filled in, either by the applicant personally or by a revising officer at the applicant's request, and before entering the name of any such person in the list of voters or before correcting such list as the case may require, the revising officer shall satisfy himself that the applicant understands the effect of the statements in the application and that he is entitled to have his name included in the list or to have the list corrected pursuant to his request.

68s. Whenever the language of the applicant is not understood by the revising officer, an interpreter may be sworn and may act; in the event of inability to secure an interpreter, the application shall, for the time being, be refused.

68t. If it appears to the revising officer that the applicant understands the effect of the statements in the application, Form 29, and that the applicant's name should be included in the list, or that the amendment thereof which he requests should be made, he shall certify accordingly by signing the said application.

68u. If, in the opinion of the revising officer, the statements made by the applicant in his application do not show that the applicant is entitled to have his name included in the list, or to have the list amended as requested, he shall advise the applicant that his application is refused, stating the reason for such refusal, which reasons he shall endorse on the application form.

68v. If any person who claims to be entitled to have his name included in the list of voters or to have the entry relating to him therein corrected, is unable personally to attend the registration and revising sittings by reason of sickness, disability, or necessary, temporary, unavoidable and bona fide absence from the municipality in which the registration area is included, then a relative or such person by blood or marriage, or his employer may, if he has a sufficient knowledge of the facts, appear before the revising officer and complete the application, Form 29, to have such person's name included in the list of voters, or to have the list corrected, as the case may be.

He Never Cut His Beard

LIBY, Mont.—"And to what do you attribute your long life?" newspapermen asked Charles J. Brown on his 100th birthday.

"To the fact I've never cut my beard," Brown answered.

Gay Party Has Tragic Ending

CHICAGO—A gay wedding party was brought to a tragic ending last night with the death of Mrs. Natalie Celano, 20. As the girl and her escort left the party, someone on the second floor opened a window. The pane shattered and a jagged piece struck Mrs. Celano on the neck, severing her jugular vein.

14,472 NAMES ARE ON UNREVISED LIST FOR CITY VOTES

An increase of 622 names is shown on the unrevised voters' list as compiled last week by the city enumerators, Vincent Eastwood, returning officer, informed The Examiner today.

The number of names already on the list is 14,472 as compared with 13,850 of enfranchised persons registered for the elections in 1934. These figures apply only to the city and Curve Lake. For the rest of the county riding local municipal voters' lists will be used as the official register on October 6.

Mr. Eastwood said the enumerators had completed their work on time, and had apparently done a good job. Their sheets have been passed on to the election board, and addition or deletion of names will be made at official sittings on Saturday, September 18 and Monday and Tuesday, September 20 and 21 between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesday, September 21.

Sheriff J. A. Harstone will preside in the county council chamber for district No. 1, comprising polling sub-divisions 1 to 10 inclusive, all the city south of Sherbrooke street.

Magistrate O. A. Langley will preside in the city council chamber for district No. 2, composed of the sub-divisions 11 to 15 inclusive, practically the centre ward.

For district No. 3, polling sub-divisions 16 to 24 inclusive, W. F. Huycke, K.C., is assigned to Col. E. B. Clegg's house at 273 Charlotte street. This section is chiefly the west end of the city.

Judge S. L. Smoke will preside in his quarters at the Court House for district No. 4, comprising sub-divisions 25 to 33, inclusive, mainly the north end.

District number five is all of Ashburnham, comprised of sub-divisions 34 to 39 inclusive. For that district V. J. McElderry, K.C., will preside at the Community Hall, corner of Hunter and Mark streets.

Every person who intends to vote on October 6, presumably all citizens who are entitled to the franchise, have the responsibility resting on themselves of making sure that his or her name is on the official list. Sittings of the revising officers are held for that sole purpose and as an essential preliminary to the balloting on election day.

DUCK SHOOTING OPENS WEDNESDAY

The duck shooting season opens in the local waters north of Number 7 Highway Wednesday morning, but the buckshot brigade is excluded from the area south of No. 7 until October 1. Reports from the district indicate that early varieties of ducks are more numerous than last year. Many of them have been seen in the Pigeon Lake feeding grounds for weeks past. Although Rice Lake and the arms of the Otonabee River is in the area that is restricted until the end of the month, Hanlon Howard of Hiawatha told The Examiner to-day that the new regulation isn't causing much disappointment.

"The hunters will scare them all down from the north of the highway," he said. "I saw one flock of about 1,500 black ducks this morning, and it looks as if there will be plenty of shooting when the season opens at Rice Lake."

Campbellford Girl Is Guest Of Honor

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 13.—Last Friday evening members of St. John's United Church Choir gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Vessey who gave a miscellaneous shower for Miss Eileen Hall, who is soon to become the bride of Ronald Hazel. The house was most attractively decorated with pink and white streamers, white bells and bouquets of mixed flowers. On the dining room table was a pretty lace cloth centered with a bowl of pink and white roses and white tapers tied with pink tulle in silver candlesticks. The bride-to-be, unaware of the event, was escorted to a bench in front of the fireplace which was blanketed with flowers and there presented with a decorated basket of beautiful gifts.

The remainder of the evening was spent in playing a progressive game, after which a dainty lunch was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Carter of Old Hill, England, recently celebrated the seventieth anniversary of their wedding.

Independent

Because he disagreed with Hon. Earl Rowe's stand on the C.I.O. question, Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew, (ABOVE), has announced he will seek election in Wellington South, Ont., as an Independent Conservative. Colonel Drew agrees with all other planks in the Conservative platform, but stated he could not run as a Conservative candidate because of the C.I.O. policy.

With the Boy Scouts

On a trip around town Friday night we found: St. John's and All Saints' Troops in full swing; Sacred Heart were getting organized for the season, and St. George's were rallying to the banner. But, so far as the rest of the troops were concerned, there was a lack of activity.

The Akela's pack will meet at St. John's on Tuesday evening, and all members are asked to be present.

The patrol leaders' conference is just two weeks away, and to date no definite entries of billets have been sent in. Patrol leaders and seconds are asked to co-operate with Commissioner Lew Grant by getting some action in this matter.

Plans were endorsed by the executive of the local association at a recent meeting to award prizes in connection with the Scoutcraft window displays. So, go ahead, you fellows. Do you best.

We are still appealing for cocoa tins to be used as money boxes in connection with the "Apple Day" appeal.

John Hooper and Ken Brown have been promoted as instructors in St. John's Troop, while Stroyan Leith and Ed. Pinn have been made patrol leaders to fill vacancies.

Honorary Scouter Rev. Warren Turner was on hand at the troop meeting and gave a rest to the singing. Another feature of the camp fire was the display of two monkey skins sent to "Bonny" Roy from a South African Boy Scout whom he met in London.

St. John's Cub Pack held their second meeting of the season last Friday, with 32 boys in attendance. Several games were played and instruction was also resumed. Garry Braurd passed his tenderpad tests. St. Paul's Cubs were visitors for the evening.

The Cubs of St. John's are planning a paper collection for Saturday next, and anyone having paper is asked to telephone 1221-F and it will be collected. The Cub Mothers' Auxiliary will meet next Friday in the Parish Hall.

Employees At Oshawa Studying Economics

Interest in the Workers' Educational Association in Oshawa has been substantially broadened by the strike of General Motors employees. Classes for the new season there are being organized in social science, political science, history of economics, the theory of economics, and all of them are reported up to capacity of about fifty persons in each class. Need of understanding basic principles of the system which directly affects them has been recognized by many of the employees, and they are availing themselves of the W.E.A. course of study for the winter season. Organization of a local class will be begun in the near future.

SCIENCE DEFEATS PROBLEM OF NOISE EXPERT EXPLAINS

How the annoying background of ndise which has become part of Canada's everyday life impairs the health, efficiency and hearing of persons subjected to it was explained to-day to the Peterborough Rotary Club by G. F. Evans, Johns-Manville acoustical expert, of Toronto.

Lowering the noise level of a busy office will have a definite effect on improving health and efficiency, said Mr. Evans, in pointing out that interior noises, while they don't seem as loud as street commotion, are just as bad.

"All offending noise does not come from street traffic," said Mr. Evans. "Advent of business machinery has created much noise indoors and innumerable office workers spend eight hours a day amid a roar as offensive and loud as that to be found on a noisy city corner. Whereas little can be done to eliminate street noises except to restrict blowing of horns, eliminate solid rubber tires and noisy vehicles, much can be done to control noise inside offices."

To show that the harmful effect of noise was not mere guess work, Mr. Evans quoted from tests by a large Eastern university showing that in an experiment typists used 19 per cent more energy working under noisy conditions and lost a little more than 4 per cent in speed. Other tests revealed that noise impaired digestive functions by affecting flow of saliva and gastrict juices. Factory noises have been held accountable for causing deafness among workers and there is further medical evidence that sudden loud nooses created a rise in brain pressure, blood pressure and rate of respiration.

"It is by no means accidental, therefore, that each of us instinctively seeks a quiet place to work, eat, rest or play, because noise takes its toll," he said.

How sounds originate in a vibrating body, how the body transfers them into what is known as the human voice and the ear transmits sounds to the brain for interpretation formed the subject of a sound movie shown the group.

When sound gets out of place or become undesirable, he said, they become noise. The volume of noise is measured in decibels by the noise meter, which has won nation-wide fame recently through its use to determine, by amount of applause, winners on a radio amateur hour. It has also been extensively used in making noise surveys in Toronto, Montreal and many other cities.

In another interesting demonstration the noise of a buzzer was amplified to a volume of 90 decibels, it was an irritating sound. A tube, line with a sound absorbent blanket, was placed over the amplifier and the noise was sharply reduced, being broken up in the interstices of the material. Then a smaller tube was replaced by one of perforated steel, the noise was again reduced to almost nothing.

To-day's luncheon of the club, which was presided over by President A. D. Runions, was one of the best attended in months with a large delegation of visitors. The speaker was introduced by Gordon Munro, and was tendered a vote of thanks at the conclusion of his most interesting address.

It is announced that the District Governor would pay an official visit to the Peterborough Rotary Club on the evening of Monday, November 1.

HARVEY PUPIL HAS PARALYSIS

A third case of infantile paralysis in the rural district of Peterborough County was reported to-day from Harvey Township. A six-year-old boy in the Rockcroft school district has been under treatment for several days, and is believed to be progressing satisfactorily.

Doubt concerning the diagnosis existed at first but serum was used when regular infantile paralysis symptoms appeared. Dr. H. O. Boyd of Bobcaygeon, township medical officer, is in supervision.

On the recommendations of Dr. Boyd and Reeve Wallace Shearer, the Rockcroft school was closed by trustees, to remain closed until two weeks after the most recent appearance of the disease.

When Franco's Rebel Troops Marched In

Men were noticeably missing from the throng that turned up to greet Gen. Francisco Franco's victorious rebel troops when they marched into the city of Santander, taken from the Loyalists at a terrific cost of lives on both sides. These women went to the outskirts of the city to greet the conquerers.

WON SIXTH PLACE.

George Knight of Millbrook, was winner of sixth place in heavy horse judging at the junior farmer judging competition of the Canadian National Exhibition last week. With no organized representation from Peterborough County in the competition, he was the only winner from this district.

RECEIVED MEDAL.

Fire Chief George Gimblett is one of the local officials to have been honored by receipt from Ottawa of a handsome silver Coronation medal. Accompanying the medal was the inscribed command of His Majesty George VI on Buckingham Palace stationery directing the award.

Year by year the number of horse-drawn buggies and buckboards to be seen on Peterborough streets on Saturdays decreases as farmers switch to automobiles for their transportation. In parallel with this change, civic watering troughs are gradually disappearing. The only watering spot left at which one can count on seeing at least one or two horses on a Saturday morning is now the trough at the corner of King and Aylmer streets.

ARRANGE SOFTBALL SERIES.

Dale Leether, district O. A. S. A. convenor received word this morning that the Westclox will meet a Toronto team in the Queen City on Tuesday in the first game of the semi-final round for Intermediate 'A' title. The second game will be played here on Thursday, although a last minute change is likely as the local club is endeavoring to have the game delayed until Saturday.

TWO MINOR ACCIDENTS

When proceeding east on Highway 7 at 3.45 p.m. Saturday a motor car owned by W. H. Mahoney, 18 Backdale avenue, Toronto was involved in collision with a car travelling in the opposite direction at the intersection of Reid street and Chemong road. The other car was driven by A. Toochet 124 Hunter street. Both cars were damaged. Earlier the same afternoon a car owned by Hood and Cumming Motors and driven by George Nichols, Benafort Bridge was involved in a rear end collision with a car driven by George Foster. Damage was slight.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT

A young married woman from the Indian settlement at Burleigh Falls was placed on probation for a period of one year, when she pleaded guilty before Magistrate A. E. Gee to a charge of breaking and entering and theft by day. The offence charged was committed on September 4 last, when the defendant broke into a summer cottage owned by Ozias DeLaPlante in Harvey Township and stole some dishes. A similar charge against another young woman was adjourned on the application of Provincial Constable David Silvester.

FIRST FIRES

Many local residents found it wise to light their first fires of the Fall season when chill breezes struck the city over the week-end. However, no chimney fires were reported. The Fire Department staff enjoyed a completely uneventful interlude.

BLASTING CUTS

The rumble of dynamite blasts have been echoing through the northern area of Peterborough County and southern area of Peterborough County work on the Oregon Trail. Scores of rock cuts in the 9-mile stretch west of Burleigh Falls will be necessary.

HAD CONFERENCE HERE.

The infantile paralysis situation was recently discussed by Dr. T. J. Phair, chief medical officer of health for the province, at a conference he held at Nicholls Hospital with about twelve medical officers of health from Peterborough and district. The conference lasted an hour-and-a-half, it was learned.

SKILLED WORKERS WANTED

The demand for farm help has improved during the past few days with the approach of Fall. Employment Services Superintendent Dan Douglas reported today. Four were placed on farms through the Bureau this morning. Although the local demand for skilled workers has continued to the present, only occasional unskilled workers are being placed. The biggest opportunities for unskilled workers still remain in the several projects under way in the north of the County.

AUGUST RELIEF COST.

Peterborough's relief bill for August totalled $4,236.66 as compared with $10,565.63 for August, 1936. The number of families on relief was down from 377 to 199 and the number of persons from 1 201 to 559. It was the close of the summer record, and was one of the most satisfactory months since the decline of the depression. The city's appropriation for the year is $66,000 and the amount expended to the end of August was $27,628.43, leaving $38,371.57 for the remaining four months. Total relief distributed in the city this year for eight months was $74,382.76, of which $46,754.33 was rebated by the government.

EXTENDING HYDRO WARSAW VILLAGE

Construction of a line which will bring Hydro power to Warsaw is to be carried out this Fall by the Peterborough Utilities at the order of the Hydro Electric Power Commission, it was reported today.

The line will be run 13 miles directly across to Warsaw from Lakefield and will serve customers from outlets at intermediate points. It is expected arrangements for the project will not be completed until October but work will be begun immediately the order arrives in order that the poles can be erected before frost gets into the ground.

The job will require six weeks, it is estimated. About 15 men will be required for the work.

Hastings Meeting Largely Attended

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 13.—The Conservative committee rooms of this village were packed to the doors on Saturday night, when T. P. Lancaster, Conservative candidate for Peterborough riding, addressed a local gathering. The topic of his speech was a general summary of the province as a whole. This was the first local political meeting of the present campaign, Dr. Hess acted as chairman.

CAMPBELLFORD

WIREMEN NEEDED PLACE OF BRIGADE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 13. — Somebody turned in a call to the fire department on Saturday during the violent wind storm which followed a downpour of rain early in the evening. Electric wires were shorting in the Canrobert Street section, sending off an almost continuous volley of sparks and lumination which brightened the street. It turned out to be a job for the Water and Light Commission, and although several members of the department were on hand, the truck did not go out when the chief was informed of the trouble.

CAMPBELLFORD

Conservative Rally Date Set Sept. 22

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 13.—Roy Wilmott, Conservative candidate for Northumberland, paid an informal visit to the Committee Headquarters in Campbellford on Saturday evening and addressed a gathering of party workers from Campbellford and Seymour township. Following a few introductory remarks Mr. Wilmott told the committee that it was not his intention to mak any promises before the election since it was his opinion that unfulfilled promises had been one of the chief causes for the downfall of previous candidates in the constituency. A meeting to be held in Davidson's Arena was decided for Sept. 20 and suggestions for speakers were made at the meeting.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, September 14

A particularly active and exciting day is presaged from the very lively operations of important planets. The abrupt, devastating and adventurous Uranian forces make for sudden upheavals, disruptions and radical changes. These may have important effects on the future fortunes. Change of every kind, romance and adventure are involved but be very vigilant about protecting writings and other property. Shun extravagence.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of sudden and radical change in their affairs, with new associations, environs and interests all furnishing fresh opportunities and excellent prospects if sagaciously handled in a constructive manner. Some losses or deep concern regarding writings or documents are presaged; also be careful with expenditures. Romance and adventure, with many surprises, are in the air.

A child born in this day may be versatile, ingenious, inventive, original and independent, with strong tendencies to travel, adventure and romance. It should have a successful career, probably a spectacular one.

ARREST FOLLOWS MILLBROOK CRASH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Sept. 13.—What might have proved a serious motor accident occurred on Friday evening about 6 p.m. when a car coming down the gravel road at high speed, failed to successfully negotiate the turn west on King street, apparently got out of control, jumped the ditch, plowed its way right through the thick cedar hedge between the Foster and McLeod residences, forged ahead across the latter's lawn, and crashed against the kitchen wall, breaking a number of boards.

The car was owned by E. Benstein of Toronto, who was a passenger, the driver being Arthur Cherry. Strange to say neither were injured, and probably fifty dollars will cover the damage to the car which is insured.

A charge of reckless driving was laid by Constable E. C. Richards, and the trial will probably take place on Thursday at Port Hope.

There was no evidence of liquor in connection with the accident.

CAMPBELLFORD

To Seek Assistance Monument Lighting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 13.—At a meeting of the Cenotaph Committee held in the clerk's office it was decided to ask the various organizations in town to make a contribution towards defraying the cost of raising and flood-lighting the monument. The four floodlights were turned on for the first time on Friday, and with the four purple-lighted lantern fixtures on the inside railing, made the monument an outstanding attraction on Saturday. A committee is being formed with the idea of making a personal canvass in both the town and township on the suggestion of the committee which attended Friday night's meeting, including Mayor F. P. Long, Major J. M. Bygott, Messrs. Alex. McColl and Clarence Massey.

MINISTER TELLS OF MISSION WORK OF UNITED CHURCH

Following its recent renovation, St. James United Church held its re-opening services on Sunday, with Rev. E. W. Rowland of Mark Street United Church as the guest speaker at the morning service. Mr. Rowland brought a challenging and inspiring message, based upon the theme, "The Life That Satisfies."

At the evening service, "Missions" was stressed, both home and foreign branches being brought vividly before the congregation.

On behalf of the work in Canada, Rev. D. G. Ridout, F.R.G.S., of Toronto, gave a revealing resume of the missionary activities being carried on under the United Church. Briefly he reviewed missionary endeavors from the Pacific coast, through rural Manitoba, where over 50 per cent. are non-Anglo-Saxon, and all this Eastern provinces as far east as Newfoundland.

Dr. Ridout emphasized the unifying effect of missions upon the various races of the Dominion, and cited as an example the Church of all nations in Toronto, where old familiar hymns are sung in eight different languages.

In conclusion, he declared missions to be the real purpose of the Church as revealed in the prayer of Jesus Christ, in John 17, where He calls upon His followers to be set apart as sacred and to be dedicated to the service of God.

Foreign Missions.

Foreign missions were presented by one with the authority of a forty years' service in West China, Rev. A. P. Quentin, who spoke of the rapid growth of Christianity in China. A popular Chinese proverb runs like this: If you plan for one year—grow grain. If you plan for ten years—grow trees. If you plan for a hundred years—grow men. This is what missions in China have accomplished and one of their outstanding Christian "men" is General Chiang Kai-Shek, who leads the Chinese forces in the present war with Japan.

Another product of mission work in China is the life of Dr. Wong, one of the first university graduates who is now a professor in the dental college, as well as operating the clinic. He is typical of the new race in China which has risen in time to get the impetus of nation-wide education.

China today has a splendid system of organized churches and synods, as proof that the seed has been growing through the influence and work of the church at home.

Rev. Mr. Cralk, pastor of the church, led in the closing exercises and expressed the hope that St. James' might become strong in missionary zeal.

NOW LEAVES GUN AT HOME

SINGAPORE, Sept. 13 — (CP-Reuters)—Members of a Singapore golf club were amazed when the new Czechoslovak consul turned up there for a round of golf armed with a shot-gun in addition to his bag of clubs.

In between holes on his round he took occasional pot-shots at birds in adjacent trees.

But now he knows the whole of Singapore Island is a sanctuary for all species of birds, so he leaves his gun at home.

NO DEFICIT SHOWN FOR NORWOOD RINK

The Norwood Arena Company has sued a denial in protest against a story which appeared in the September 10th issue of Peterborough Examiner under the heading of 'Norwood arena may close this year' and in which it said in part 'the eighty shareholders have been meeting their notes every year since it was built, with the exception of very few, and have not been receiving dividends. The first year the arena opened, said one shareholder, it did pay, but every year since they have been going behind with a greater amount. The issue, it is expected, will be decided at the next regular meeting of the shareholders in November.

This story followed an interview with one of the shareholders by our Hastings correspondent and The Examiner publishes a letter from W. H. Giffen, treasurer of the rink in which are stated the true facts of the situation.

Norwood, Ont., Sept. 11, 1937.

Editor,
Examiner, Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—"Norwood Arena may close this year."

An article under this heading appeared in your paper under date Sept. 10. It was not signed. Why? Strange that anyone should be so interested in the rink as to send to a newspaper an item so devoid of facts.

The writer of this article is the treasurer of the Rink Association and is in possession of all the facts relating to its financial condition. The rink has never had a year which showed a deficit owing to its operation. Our annual statements show this; every member receives one each year. There is therefore no excuse for any shareholder to make wild statements when the facts are available at any time.

It is unfortunate that the financial set-up of the rink when it was built, did not work out as was anticipated. Notes were taken from good citizens for the whole cost with the understanding and agreement that each one would pay not more than one-tenth each year for ten years, thus guaranteeing the payment in full by that time. Had the act of these good citizens been as good as their signed promises-to-pay, the finances of the rink today would have been in real good shape. As it is the rink management have nothing to regret and are proud of the statement which will be distributed at the next annual meeting which will be held shortly. If the rink had all its shareholders for boosters as it should have instead of having many of them for knockers, there is no doubt in my mind but that the rink would have been fully paid for before this time.

As to whether or not the rink will open this year, is a matter which has not been considered yet, even for a moment. That will be one of the items of business which will come up for discussion at the next annual meeting. Personally I haven't a doubt but that the rink will open for the winter season as usual.

Yours truly,
W. H. GIFFEN.

City Carpetball

CITY CARPETBALL LEAGUE

A general meeting was held last week in All Saints' Parish Hall for the purpose of electing officers and arranging new rules. The financial statement showed a balance of $7 in the treasury after a total expenditure last year of $172.

Dave Leether was again returned president by popular vote. He will be supported by T. J. Parsons, 1st vice; E. Heap, 2nd vice; W. G. Howden, 3rd vice. G. E. Groombridge was named secretary-treasurer for the tenth consecutive year; T. Wood and J. Cridland are auditors.

Owing to the number of men interested in the league, it was decided that any person desiring to become an associate member can do so by paying the usual entrance fee and will be allowed the playing privileges of the circuit. It was also decided that those teams who wish to enter four men only can do so, but must pay the full fee as per five-man team.

Owing to the trouble of protests given last year, it was decided that any team entering a protest must do so in writing before the protested game is completed. Or, in other words, stop the play, write out the protest, hand it over to the referee or opposing skip, and then carry on.

Any club or organization interested or intending to enter a team or teams can get the necessary information by phoning the secretary at 2535-J or write 296 Rogers street. The closing date for entries has been set for September 29, when a general meeting will be held in the Sons of England Hall.

LEAFS SIGN THOMPSON

TORONTO, Sept. 13 (CP)—Managing Director Conny Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs announced today the club had signed Bill Thompson, star right winger of the Port Arthur senior team who will train this fall with the National Hockey League club.

Thompson was a member of the Canadian Olympic team in 1936 and played in England last season.

Lighthorse Harry Cooper Wins Open With 285 Total On Toronto Course

TORONTO, Sept. 13 (C.P.). — Lighthorse Harry Cooper, golf's leading business man, hustled back to the United States to-day for more tournament money. He isn't going to be annoyed that a national championship belongs to him. In fact, it's just what he needed to improve business.

The Chicago professional, who lived for a time at Hamilton, Ont., before he started one of the most spectacular golf careers on record, won the Canadian open championship on Saturday with a 72-hole score of 285, five strokes over par and two better than the total of Ralph Guldahl, United States open titleholder. The 1936 winner, Lawson Little, was far back with 297.

That was good for Lighthorse Harry's business to the extent of $1,000 cash, the Seagram Gold Trophy, and one of the world's four major titles open to pros. Cooper hasn't been lucky in the national events, never having won the British open or the United States open or professional crowns.

Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., and Al Watrous of Detroit tied for third with 290 Tony Manero was fifth with 292, and Burke tied at 293 with the brilliant young Ottawa professionals, Stanley Horne and Bobby Alston, who shared $600 prize money as leading Canadians.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

TONIGHT'S lacrosse battle in Lindsay between Oshawa Unionists and the local Auburns, the final clash for the group honors, should be a wow, and hundreds of local fans will make the trip to see what promises to be the most exciting lacrosse fixture of the season in this district. While Auburns should win they are facing stern opposition and they will have to be at the top of their form for the whole sixty minutes to earn the decision and the right to continue into the O.A.L.A. intermediate semi-finals. Out of Friday night's hectic battle here one thing stood out like a heckler at a political meeting and that is that the Petes cannot afford to let their game bog down for a moment. When they sagged for a few minutes in the second period the Oshawa attackers at once threatened to sweep the Auburns into the discard. There is a lot of dynamite in that 222 squad when it gets a chance to go to work so the Peterborough strategy tonight should be to keep the pressure on relentlessly from start to finish. If they do that they should come home group champions.

THE lineups will be about the same as in Friday night's game. Auburns will still be without Whitton and Vitarelli but otherwise will be at full strength while Oshawa will send the same squad into action that represented them here. The Lindsay rink should prove a good battle ground. It has a large surface and the lighting is adequate. The winners will lose no time in getting into action again for on Wednesday night they will play hosts to the winners of the Cheltenham Inglewood-Roden A.C. series, with the return game on Friday night. In that series goals on the round will decide the winner.

WITH no local sport available on Saturday afternoon the only substitute at hand was to listen in to the final game for the United States National Tennis championship between Uncle Sam's red-headed Donald Budge and Germany's ace Baron Von Cramm, and we want to say, customer, that did not make a bad afternoon's program for a rainy Saturday. Budge while he did not come close to achieving his ambition of winning the title in straight sets, came through in fine style after a five-set struggle to win his first United States championship and to confirm the No. 1 rating he has been awarded by the tennis experts. Von Cramm won the second and fourth sets and evidently played a lot of superb tennis but he was almost blasted off the court in the fifth set. Incidentally let us pay a word of tribute to the Columbia Broadcasting system's announcer who handled that play-by-play description of the final match. His work was as high class as the tennis Budge and Von Cramm played and he was as impartial in his remarks as he was accurate and interesting in his description.

* * * * * *

I BELIEVE it or not the Oshawa club has found it far softer beating Kingston Ponies in the final series for the Central Ontario title than it was to head off the Petes in the semi-final round. In the third game of the League finals played at Kingston on Saturday the GM-men had little trouble beating Joe Daley's team 6 to 2, and thus to climb to a position where they are only one game away from the League title. That game was scheduled for Oshawa today. The Oshawa gang climbed all over the offerings of Tony Paczkowski, Kingston's imported right-hander, cuffing him for twelve crashing blows, of which our own Tommy Foley contributed four including a home run. At the same time Johnnie Turner who failed to finish two of the three games he started against the Petes in the playoff series was holding the Ponies to four blows and making the whole squad say Uncle. Mister Joe Daley must have been fit to be tied Saturday. Mister Paczkowski was induced to spend a summer in Canada mainly for the purpose of beating the Oshawa club and it now looks as if he is going to be unable to deliver the goods.

* * * * * *

WE will admit frankly that the result of the series so far has been a surprise. The Oshawa crew were lucky to beat the Petes, in fact they would not have been victorious if the Collins-led outfit had not beaten themselves with the report that Jake Biddle's southpaw flipper needed repairs it looked to us as if th GM-men would be a pushover for the Ponies. However, Biddle jumps in there with all his old time stuff to cop a game and then Turner who couldn't go the route against the Petes stops the Kingston gang with four blows. Now the Oshawa squad needs only one win to bring home the bacon and they have Biddle all ready to shoot back at the first placers. It may be all over today.

WITH the opening of the rugby season still some distance ahead the Lindsay club is already reporting injuries. Mac Morden, star lineman of the squad was painfully hurt while working on the highway east of Lindsay and his foot injury may keep him off the gridiron for some time. Now George Hodgson, another lineman, is hobbling around with a cane in his hand, as the result of an injury sustained in practice. Hodgson sustained a torn ligament and a sprained tendon and is not likely to see action for several weeks at least.

* * * * * *

ACCORDING to Johnny Lalonde, lacrosse, hockey and rugby star, the Trenton Fliers are going to be the best dressed team in Eastern Ontario when they take the gridiron this fall. The Airmen will have new helmets, boots, pads, uniforms, etc., and will wear new-fangled pants made of airplane cloth and silk and wool sweaters of the type worn by American college players.

THERE was a lot of baseball in the big leagues over the weekend and when the doings were all over the Chicago Cubs were still a game and a half behind the New York Giants. They gained half a game on Saturday by defeating the Pirates 5 to 4 but won back no more ground on Sunday when they split a double header with Pittsburgh while the Giants were breaking even with the pesky Boston Bees. There are no games scheduled today in the loop.

* * * * * *

FEATURES of the American League games over the weekend were Johnny Allen's eleventh consecutive win, the failure of Red Ruffing to win his nineteenth victory and Joe DiMaggio's 42nd home run of the season. Incidentally the Yanks' clouter is making a runaway of the home run race, Jimmy Foxx who was close on his heels for a long time has lost the range of the stands and nobody else seriously threatens to take the circuit championship away from the DiMag.

* * * * * *

A PETERBOROUGH fan who spent the weekend in Kingston reports that Tony Paczkowski, the Ponies' right-hander has returned to his home in New York state to resume his school attendance, leaving only Yammy Jamieson and Chief Williams to perform the pitching duties for what is left of the playoffs. Worse than that from a Tony standpoint, Vinny McQuaide the team's leading hitter joined the ranks of the benedicts Saturday and his services will be lacking. McQuaide was an absentee in Saturday's gme.

AS WAS expected the executive of the Ontario Softball Association at a meeting held in Hamilton on Saturday disallowed the protest of the Kingston Dukes against the decision of Umpire Herb Payne in awarding the second game of the playoff series with Peterborough Westclox. The Kingston club claimed that it was too dark to play and that their umpire had taken that position but the executive decided there was no ground for a protest inasmuch as the only question involved was the judgment of an umpire. The Westclox will now proceed into the O.A.S.A. intermediate semi-finals.

BOILING it all Down: An important practice of the Westclox softball team is called for tonight at 6 o'clock at Riverside Park and all players are expected out....Cy Collison who pitched for the Sugar Bowl team two seasons ago is doing some superfine heaving in the Dovercourt Senior League, twirling for the Renfrews he tossed a two-hitter the other day to win 2 to 1....Canadian softball teams have found the going tough in the Chicago turney....A big squad of Peterborough fans will root for an Auburn victory at Lindsay tonight ....And that is about everything for now.

Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Sept. 13. (AP).—Can you imagine this?.....In Meeker, Okla., home town of Carl Hubbell, the boys are playing softball....And the same is true in Harrah, where the Waner boys were born and raised....Believe it or not, but Bill Terry says he'd rather play the Cubs than the Dodgers any day in the week with the pennant at stake.

Specs are asking $50 a pair for tickets to Mike —acob's "Carnival of Champions"....Looks now like the show might do 500,000 cocoanuts,... George Perry, the Yankee's demon press agent, has promised to sleep on a cake of ice in a window of Jack Dempsey's restaurant if the Yanks don't win this year's world series in four out of five.

The red face of Bob Quinn, generalissimo of Boston Bees, gets redder every time he thinks of how he tried to send Vince Dimaggio back to the coast.....In Baron von Cramm's book, Bobby Riggs, the California youngster, is the second best tennis player in the United States....The Giants are the only league club to boast two Jewish players....Harry Danning and Phil Weintraub, who was acquired from Cincinnati Reds.

Oshawa Secures Game Margin In Central Ontario Finals By Defeating Ponies 6-2

Powerful Motorists' Attack Beats Kingston's Ace Hurler, Paczkowski

KINGSTON, Sept. 13 (C.P.). — Oshawa to-day were just one game from the Central Ontario Baseball League championship by virtue of their 6 to 2 victory over Kingston Ponies on Saturday. They play again on Monday (to-day) in Oshawa. A victory for Kingston will force a deciding game in Kingston on Wednesday.

Oshawa unleashed a powerful attack to beat Kingston's ace hurler, Tony Paczkowski. They slammed out a dozen hits, including a home run by Tom Foley, who collected four hits during the fray. On the other hand Turner, Oshawa pitcher, hurled his best game of the season, restricting the Ponies to four hits, one of them a home run by Bob Elliott and another a triple by Hal Buck.

Rowden, May and Jubenville had eighteen assists between them, with Jubenville handling seven. The Oshawa team rolled up twenty assists while Wallace at first base turned in twenty put-outs.

SPEEDWAY RIDER KILLED

Sets 2 Records

RALPH FLANAGAN

Slicing through the water with superb style, Ralph Flanagan, 19-year-old Florida amateur swimmer, captured the two-mile Backer Gold trophy race held at Toronto. He bettered the Canadian mark for the distance, swimming the two miles in 44 minutes and 18 seconds. The previous record held by James Cristy in 1934, was 47 minutes and 33 seconds. He also broke the Canadian record for the mile, swimming the distance in 21 minutes and 34 seconds, 23 seconds faster than the former record set by Bob Pirie, of Toronto.

Soccer Notes

The Father Phelan Charity cup final between the Canadian General and the Canada Packers was rained out on Saturday afternoon. The field was flooded and the ground in a slippery condition around the goal territory which made it difficult in getting a solid footing and dangerous for the players. The game will be played next Saturday afternoon on King Edward Park.

A special meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Association will be held on Monday night at eight o'clock. All members of the executive and club members attend.

BUDGE ATTAINS COVETED GOAL; U.S. NET CHAMP

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP). — The long tennis war has ended. Donald Budge has the United States' tennis championship he needed in his business, and now there's nothing to do but worry for the next 12 months or so.

The worrying will be about evenly divided between Budge, who is now an austere young man, and officials of the United States' Lawn Tennis Association, who put a mint of money in the treasury the past 10 days because Budge was playing in their show.

When Budge won that fifth and final set from Baron Gottfried Von Cramm of Germany to take the singles crown, 6-1, 7-9, 6-1, 3-6, 6-1, adding the United States' championship to his "world" title won at Wimbledon, he parlayed himself, so to speak, into large sum of currency.

Can Enter Money.

He could, by turning professional, assure himself something like $100,000, which is more than some of the kids he has been playing with lately can expect to make in a lifetime. Anyway, both Ellsworth Vines and Fred Perry, who preceded Budge into the money ranks, are popularly believed to have salted away that amount in the past year.

The money is there for Budge, waiting, but he has promised his old friends, the tennis fathers, faithfully, that he won't touch a cent of it for another year, at least.

ROYALS TO MEET BALTIMORE CLUB

TORONTO, Sept. 13.—(CP).—The International League season is a thing of the past for four of the circuit's teams, but for Newark, Montreal, Syracuse and Baltimore things are getting hot.

These four clubs will battle in the annual Governors' Cup series, which opends Tuesday with Newark, champions of the League by 25½ games in the regular season, meeting the third place Syracuse Chiefs and the second place Royals playing Baltimore, fourth in the final standings, at Montreal. Each series will be played on a four out of seven series.

The Bears tuned up for the playoffs by downing the Orioles in a double-header, yesterday, 8-4 and 6-5. Jack Fallon limited the Birds to eight hits in the opener and John Niggeling, recently purchased from Kansas City, won the nightcap.

Jersey City Giants, a new club in the league this season, ended a dismal year by dividing a double bill with Syracuse, winning 8-5 and losing 2-1.

Royals trimmed Toronto twice, 2-1 and 10-5 and Rochester Red Wings downed Buffalo Bisons, 3-0 and 4-3.

Cubs Trailing Giants By Game And Half In Hot National Race

Terrymen Split Even With Bees, Pirates And Bruins Divide Pair

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The National League pennant picture, folks, is as clear as a cup of coffee in Hank's Hash House.

One week, the Cubs are going strong and the Giants look no better than place; the next week, the Cubs fall apart and the Giants look like a sure thing, straight from the feedbox.

Then both get hot — and now anything can happen.

The pennant races went into their final and deciding three weeks today, and, although the Giants are a game and a half in front, the thing is no nearer being decided than it was last April.

Over in the American League, meantime, the Yankees, despite their batting slump, looked certain. Sporting a 10-game lead, and with no one doing much about overtaking them.

Leaders Split

The picture changed little yesterday as the Giants and Cubs each split, although the Yanks lost a half game of their lead by gaining only an even break with the Senators, while the Tigers were taking the White Sox apart 4-0 behind Tommy Bridges' three-hit hurling in a single game.

The Giants had the unpleasant prospect of tangling with the Bees' two 'old man" rookie sensations, but they got by Lou Fette 3-1 in the opener. Jim Turner then set them down 6-4, handing them their third setback in their last nine starts.

Fair Hurling Job

The comebacking Cubs pitchers turned in a pair of fair-enough jobs in breaking even with the Pittsburgh Pirates. Larry French tossed a four-hit shutout for a 5-0 decision in the opener and then Bill Lee dropped a 4-2 affair in the nightcap, although his pitching was good enough to take a lot of ball games.

By far, the best elbowing of the day was turned loose (believe it or not) at Yankee Stadium. Young Ken Chase, with a seven-hitter, hooked up with Red Ruffing, with a five-hitter, in the opener, and Ken won, 2-1. Lefty Gomez fanned eight and allowed just five safeties to take the nightcap 2-1 from Ray Phebus with the help of Joe DiMaggio's 42nd homer.

Card's Break Even

Bob Weiland's five-hit, 2-0 win in the nightcap enabled the Cardinals to break even with Cincinnati, after the Reds took the first game 10-7. The Phillies and Dodgers split, Brooklyn taking the second game 9-5 on a homer with the bases loaded by Eddie Wilson, after the Phils outlasted them for a 4-3 ten-inning win in the opener.

An eight-run ninth inning gave the Red Sox a 13-6 edge over the Athletics. The "always-good-at-home" Cleveland Indians showed the home folks a pair of winning performances over the Browns, 6-3 and 6-1, the latter giving Johnny Allen his 11th straight win, with a four-hitter.

"FARMER" WHITE RETIRES

WESTON-SUPER-MARE, England—(CP).—John C. White, former captain of Somerset Cricket Club and noted international player who led England at Melbourne in 1929, has retired from first-class cricket.

BAGS HUGE BUFFALO

JOHANNESBURG—(CP).—A record buffalo "bag" has been made by Major J. J. Bosman, Transvaal marksman, in Portuguese East Africa. He shot a buffalo with horns measuring 56 inches from tip to tip. The largest specimen in British and American museums measures 53 inches.

TORONTO GIRL IS SURE BET TO GAIN TEAM

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 13. — (CP)—Paste the name of Hilda Ince in your hat as a sure bet for the Canadian track and field team that will go to Tokio for the 1940 Olympics.

It's a long time until 1940 and Hilda, a comely Toronto blond, is only a junior in track, but all she has to do to make that team is to run as she is running now.

On a rain-sodden track here Saturday, as the Ontario-Quebec British Empire games trials where three junior and one senior Canadian records were smashed, Miss Ince ran the 60-yard dash in 7.4 seconds with no one to press her. Jeanette Dolson turned in the same time, and didn't look as impressive in winning that event from senior guns.

250 Athletes Compete.

After the day long meet, in which more than 250 outstanding athletes competed, a committee named the following team for consideration as members of the Canadian team to go to Australia for the Empire games in February:

Girls: Springs, Jeanette Dolson, Toronto, and Irene Bleasdell, Montreal; hurdles, Roxy Atkins, Toronto; running and broad jumps, Isabella Miner, Hamilton.

Men's Springs, Jack Brown, Gordon McHenry and Larry O'Connor, Toronto; 440-yard run, Johnny Loarding, Windsor, and Bill Pritz, Toronto; 880-yard run, Max Lenover, Chatham, Ont., and Ab Conway, Toronto; mile run, Art Clarke and D. Crichton, Toronto; steeplechase, Clarke; three-mile run, Milt Wallace, Toronto; six-mile run, Bob Rankins, Preston, Ont.; 120-yard hurdles, O'Connor; 440-yard hurdles, Loaring.

Javelin throw, Jim Courtwright, Ottawa; pole vault, Stuart Frid, Hamilton; discus throw, J. Ostapyk, Ottawa; shot put, Ken McAdam, Ottawa; hammer throw, Dave Sutherland, Toronto; high jump, Ted Root, Ottawa; broad and running hop, step jumps, Sammy Richardson, Toronto; Wallace and Harry Brown, Meaford, Ont.

New Records Set.

The new records fell to Miss Atkins, who turned in 13.3 in the 90-yard hurdles; Vera Hayes, Toronto, with a throw of 85 feet, 1¼ inches in the junior javelin; Thelma Mantle, Toronto, with 9.8 in the 60-metre junior hurdles, and Lois Schoenberg, with 28 feet, three inches in the junior shot put.

HEATHER LESLIE IS CLOSE CHAMP

WINNIPEG, Sept 13 (CP).—Women golfers from all parts of Canada turned homeward today after two weeks' sharpshooting here. Both individual titles remain in Winnipeg; interprovincial honors returned to Quebec.

Niakwa's 18th green saw the last firing Saturday as the Manitoba champion, 19-year-old Heather Leslie, defeated another Winnipegger, Mrs. John Rogers, two up in the final of the Canadian close tournament won last year by Mrs. F. J. Muliqueen, Toronto. Mrs. Muliqueen did not defend.

Double honors eluded Mrs. Rogers who won the women's open at St. Charles Country Club the previous week and sought Saturday to duplicate the twin triumph accomplished in 1926 and '33 by Ada Mackenzie of Toronto.

DIED

MORTON, Richard. — On Sunday, September 12, 1937, at his home, Concession 3, Otonabee, Ont., Richard Morton, beloved husband of [illegible] Brandy, in his 64th year. [illegible] from his late residence on Monday, September 14, 2 p.m. Interment, Emily Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

MILLAR.—In loving memory of a dear Husband, Arthur Henderson, who was accidentally killed September 11, 1935, in his 48th year.
Through the long lane of shadows
I am wandering alone;
But a hand is gently guiding me
Through the world unknown.
A voice keeps ever whispering,
"Be brave and be true.
At the end of the lane of shadows
I'll be waiting for you."
—Ever remembered by Wife.

MILLAR. — In loving memory of Arthur Henderson, who died September 11, 1935.
Gone, dear Dad; gone forever;
How we miss your smiling face.
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed—
How sweet the memory still—
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Sadly missed by Family.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Montgomery, Lakefield, wish to express their most sincere thanks to the attending doctors and nurses, also the many kind friends and neighbors for the many beautiful floral tributes and messages of sympathy sent during their recent sad bereavement.

worker, who may or may not desire to become a member of a trade union. Should he choose to secure employment in a closed shop he must be willing to associate himself with other workers in that establishment and become a member of the trade union, which through voluntary agreement with the employer, has established wage rates, hours of labor and working conditions, including the closed shop.

Hundreds of Closed Shops

"Hundreds of closed shop agreements are now in effect throughout Quebec and the declaration of the Prime Minister is an open invitation to employers to seek abrogation of existing agreements and to anti-Labor employers to resist all demands of trade unions now seeking to establish democracy in industry through the closed shop.

"The alternative to the closed shop is the non-union or open shop, or one that is closed to members of trade unions.

"This new challenge to the trade union movement communicated by the Quebec Provincial Government, will be met as were its predecessors, and your executive council believes enlightened employers will not welcome a repetition of the struggles which followed past efforts to destroy the trade union movement through the substitution of the open and non-union for the closed and union shop."

Without mentioning any organization, the report said: "Evidence is accumulating that well-organized financial and economic interests, both in Canada and abroad, are now active in an endeavor to have existing restrictions and regulations either repealed or amended to permit greater influx of immigrants and restrict free entry of officials of trade union and labor organizations, especially from the United States."

No More Immigrants

With unemployment still a major problem, the report said, the council believed no steps should be taken to admit more immigrants. "When Canada's house is in order it may be time to take up the question of immigration with authorities in the United Kingdom," it added and "until this is done your executive council believes existing restrictions should be continued."

On the question of free passage of labor officials across borders, it said:

"With the wave of enthusiasm for trade union organization that is sweeping the nation it is not surprising that powerful financial and industrial interests should attempt to have existing immigration regulations amended to prevent the free entry of officials of trade union and labor organizations from entering Canada.

"These provisions were written into Canada's immigration regulations in 1922 at the urgent request of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada. Nothing has transpired to warrant any modification of these regulations and your executive council has made representations to the proper authorities on several occasions, opposing any modification.

Demand Free Entry

"We believe that officers of trade unions, with common membership on both sides of the international boundary, should be accorded the same free entry as officers of banks, railways, industries etc., which operate on both sides of the boundary."

The council expressed opposition to suggestions that labor unions be forced to incorporate in order to give validity to signed wage contracts.

The report said employers who agitate against the signed trade unions are not responsible and would force them to incorporate so they might be sued for breaches of contract.

"In other words," it said, "the employers desire the compulsory incorporation of trade unions so they could keep them embroiled in the courts on any pretext and thus make them impotent."

The report reviewed labor's record in this country said it had always accepted responsibility for its contracts and that there was nothing to indicate any change in this policy.

"The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada," it said, "is opposed to the compulsory incorporation of trade unions. If employers wish to make labor more responsible the door is already open to them. Let them enter into collective labor agreements, which might easily and properly include not only wages, hours and conditions but provisions for co-operation on many of the vexed problems that surround modern industry such as elimination of waste, reduction in production costs, safety, fire profection, etc.

"Labor's responsibility can develop only through a frank and free acceptance of labor's rights and of the principle that labor is not a commodity or article of commerce."

Final Court in Canada

The report restated the congress' position regarding the constitution, calling for amendments to foster national unity by giving the Dominion government greater powers to deal with social and labor legislation, abolish appeals to the Privy Council and make the Supreme Court of Canada the highest court of appeal, bring about such changes in the constitution of parliament "as may be necessary to make decisions of the elected representatives of the people paramount."

The report reaffirmed the congress opposition to war as a means of settling international disputes, restated its opposition to conscription in war time of personnel for military or industrial purposes and said no other association than that of labor in Canada and the United States has played such an important part in preservation of peace on this continent.

"Conscription," it said, "is antagonistic to the labor interests and is equally as variance with the fundamental principles of constitutional freedom. It is veiled serfdom, a mere reducing the free and independent citizen to the level of the slave. Consequently this congress cannot too emphatically register its disapproval of even the remotest attempt as forced enlistment either for military or industrial purposes.

"This congress has long advocated the nationalization of the war munitions industry, under supervision and control of the League of Nations. Some progress along this line was made by parliament in the enactment of legislation, at the last session, which vested in the government the right to regulate and control the manufacture, sale, export and import of war materials and supplies."

The report reaffirmed the congress stand in favor of independent labor political action and urged its members to join the labor party as it has done since 1888.

Plan End Strife U.K. And Free State

LONDON Sept. 13—(CP Cable)—Behind the scenes at Geneva, talks are planned which, it is hoped, will end the economic "war" between the United Kingdom and the Irish Free State.

The war began several years ago when President Eamon De Valera refused to transfer the Irish land annuities to the British Government. The United Kingdom, as guarantor of the loans, had to meet the interest charges. To recoup herself, she clapped special duties on imports from the Irish Free State. The Irish Free State retaliated.

As long ago as the Ottawa Economic Conference in 1932, talks began between United Kingdom and Irish Free State Ministers to end the quarrel. Its effect has been modified by limited trading agreements but the essential difference remains.

RUSTLE OF SILKS

By
MARIE BLIZARD

CHATER 32.

Slipping the key to her jewel case—loaned for the occasion— into her bag, Mari Barat pulled on soft doeskin gloves. Her eyes traveled swiftly from the bare top of her dressing table to her reflection in the mirror.

She saw, with approval, the perfect lines of her biege tailleur, the flattering arrangement of the six sable skins thrown about her shoulders, the sophisticated droop of the brim of her felt hat. A diamond fob gleamed on her breast pocket.

"The dressmaker becomes a mannequin," she said.

"Clarisse, you may take the small case and the jewel box to the car," Larry Holk, the publicity man, said to the maid, waiting in her dark blue traveling clothes.

Mari's rented motor, the long cream colored and chromium town car, was at the door. The time for her departure for a week in London had arrived. Her trunk, filled with a hastily accumulated but none-the-less dramatic wardrobe, had gone on before.

"All I have to remember is that my furs and jewels are borrowed, that I am a woman of some mystery and what else?" Mari demanded.

"That you have certain obligations to keep the appointments I have made for you to be photographed and not to talk too much. It will be enough for others merely to see you and talk about you."

"Good or bad, I suppose it doesn't make much difference?"

Larry laughed. "Not a bit! But, my dear, if it reassures you, you look the part. I'm counting on you to remember that you are not really playing a part. You ARE what I am trying to make you. You have already become an interesting, important figure. You will continue to be one."

Mari was beginning to realize the importance and truth of what he had said. The miracle had come about in less than two months. Already the shop was beginning to assume important proportions. Gargantuan orders—gargantuan for Mari who had heretofore bought fabrics by the yard and not by the bolt—had been filled. Already a score of seamstresses in hastily rented quarters were at work on the sketches of models that Mari had prepared for her opening.

It was not to be a formal opening in the sense of the larger showings, but a distinguished list of guests from the social and press worlds of Paris had been invited. A staff had been selected, mannequins had been engaged. And Mari, allowing herself only a few hours of sleep each night, had worked tirelessly with a hand in every move. Between the duties of organization, she had submitted herself to preparing for her London excursion.

The shop of Maribarat—the name was fused—was to be ready to open on June 15. An ideal time to catch the incoming trade from other countries Mari could not have worked another day at the feverish pace that she had set for herself. Shadows beneath her eyes made their gray depths greater. Some of the roundness had faded from the contours of her face, stretching the skin over her cheekbones and lending her a new kind of sharper beauty.

"Sutherland is meeting you at the airport. There'll be a few reporters but later...."

"I know," Mari answered, cutting in on him, "I have the list. I only hope that my first air trip won't make me ill. It would be too terrible for a femme fatale to arrive wrapped in a glow of pale green! Larry, pray that nothing will happen to these jewels or else I'll be back in New York doing illustrations of happy little families enjoying their garden tools for the United Lithographing company. That's what I did, you know, the first year I was out of art school."

Larry tore his hair and took a great gulp of ice water. He composed his face painfully and led Mari to a sofa. Sitting beside her, he took both her hands in his and spoke very gently:

"Please, please, Madame! You NEVER did anything but design clothes! You gave up a social life in America for your career! Your father was a mining engineer, and when he died he left you a little money with which you embarked on your meteoric career in Paris! Don't mention Brooklyn! As far as you know, it's only a place that was necessary for the other end of a bridge. You belong to the world, not to New York!"

Mari smiled wanly. "I'll remember, Larry, but I won't tell lies. I'll merely keep quiet."

"If only you can!"

The chauffeur came in to take her suitcase.

Mari got up, rearranged her scarf and held out her hand.

"Goodby, Larry. I'm going to London to see the Queen."

"You're going to London to be the queen!" he corrected.

And she was.

The moment that Ellen, Viscountess Verlaine, welcomed her, coming across her drawing room with both hands outstretched to her, Mari's fear that she might not "fit" dissolved.

Ellen was like her brother—large, handsome, assured. She had, in addition, the quality of sincerity which Mari felt at once. Wherever or under what circumstance Mari might have met her, she would have wanted her to be her friend.

Having her first tea the afternoon of her arrival in the drawing room of the house in Berkley Square, Mari felt as though she had come home to the kind of house that she meant to have one day. It was a room out of an English drawing room play. There were wide spaces, large chintz-covered chairs, gleaming woods and the flowers that bloom in England in the spring.

In that short, filled week, Mari and Ellen came to know each other and Mari had no need to call upon the lines that had been prepared for her. Larry Holk had advised her well not to speak unless she had something to say.

Her gracious attention, her queenly manner of accepting the attention that came to her, won her favor at once.

Her beauty and her presence were the talk of London. Ellen's secretary was called in to arrange her engagements, for Mari, herself, could not have arranged the clockwork management necessary to keep them straight.

She wasn't presented at court. It was almost the only thing she didn't have on her calendar. She went to teas, to the theater and the opera, to the House of Commons and to the House of Lords. And, like any tourist, she charmed her new English friends by asking to be shown the Tower, Westminster, Hyde park and The Cheshire Cheese.

She found in London an atmosphere that blended the Victorian era and the modern world and felt akin to it. She was as thrilled by the Changing of the Guard at Buckingham Palace as she was by the ball hastily arranged for her and magnificently staged by H. H. the Maharaja of Rajsimbla.

But when the last day came and there was a cable to say that the decorators were ready to go to work on the shop, she was ready to leave.

She'd come back soon, she promised.

But thereafter her life was not to be her own. Mari Barat had become a part of a plan and she was to learn the price of her position.

ABOUT THE DUKE

LIVERPOOL Sept. 13 (CP Cable).—The Bishop of Bradford, Rt. Rev. Alfred Blunt, returning from Canada, today said the feeling in the Dominion concerning the Duke of Windsor was much the same as in the United Kingdom.

"They feel that what the ex-King wanted to do could not be done," Bishop Blunt said. "They are frightfully sorry, but now he has abdicated they do not want to talk about it."

Bedtime Story

By
HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S HOME TRAIL.

"Oh Ouch! Oh, me! Oh, my!"

"What's that?" asked Uncle Wiggily hopping off his cot bed in the camping tent one morning.

"That's the Lady Mouse Teacher of the Hollow Tree School," said Mrs. Longears, who thrust her pink, twinkling nose into her husband's tent to tel ihim it was nearly breakfast time.

"Whatever is the matter with her?" asked Uncle Wiggily as he began to dress.

"She is all aches and pains and sore spots and bruises," said the rabbit lady. "I put her in Nurse Jane's tent."

"Quite right," said Uncle Wiggily as he fastened his necktie. "Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy is a very proper muskrat lady to look after Miss Mouse. But what happened to her that she is all aches and pains and sore spots and bruises?"

"Have you forgotten," asked the rabbit lady, "that yesterday Miss Mouse was caught by Sniff and Snuff, the two fox boys, who treated her most impolitely?"

Ready to Go.

"Oh, that's right!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily as he hopped out to go to the breakfast tent. "I quite forgot Miss Mouse had a bad time. I'll pop in and see her after I eat."

"And then," said Mrs. Longears,

"you must help us take down the tent and pack to go home. It will be school time tomorrow."

"Another thing I had forgotten," laughed the bunny uncle. "We are to break camp today. Well, we have had some fun here."

"It has been a lovely Summer," said the rabbit lady. "It was such fun camping. But I shall be glad to get back to our hollow stump bungalow."

"Yes," agreed Uncle Wiggily, "the adventures there aren't half bad. How is Miss Mouse?" Uncle Wiggily asked Nurse Jane who crept in to serve his breakfast.

"Not at all well," answered the muskrat lady housekeeper and nurse. "She wants to see you."

"I'll hop right over," said Uncle Wiggily.

Quickly he finished his breakfast. Quickly he hopped to the tent where Miss Mouse was in bed.

What to Do?

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily!" squeaked Miss Mouse. "I don't know what to do. I am so sore and lame I shall never be able to open and teach school tomorrow. Those terrible fox boys mauled me so. What shall I do?"

"Have no fears, Miss Mouse," said Uncle Wiggily bravely twinkling his pink nose. "You shall be well taken care of."

"Oh, I'm not worrying about myself," said the lady mouse. "It is my school that worries me. You are taking lovely care of me. But I can't teach school until I am better."

"I can!" said Uncle Wiggily. "Leave it to me!"

"Do you mean you are going to teach my pupils, Mr. Longears?"

"Until you get better, yes, Miss Mouse. Now Nurse Jane will get you ready to be moved back to Woodland. You shall go in the ambulance."

In a little while the Police Dog came with the ambulance for Miss Mouse. Uncle Wiggily, with the help of the children rabbits and his wife, started to take down the camping tent. Soon the canvas was neatly folded.

"What ho!" cried Mr. Longears. "We shall now hit the trail for home!"

"But wait! Wait!" cried Mrs. Longears. "Stop, Wiggy!"

Something had happened. You shall hear about it in the next story which will be about Uncle Wiggily back home. But please don't let the door mat play ball when it should be wiping the foot of the stairs.

Mr. Rowe, who said this frequency changer was used three times, promised municipal representation on the Hydro Commission would be restored and the principle of public ownership adhered to.

"Where are our Hydro reserves?" he asked. "I charge Mr. Hepburn with not only running Hydro into the ground, but I charge him with running it into the ground by engineers from other countries while our engineers stand silently by for fear of losing their jobs."

The principle of power at cost would be the Conservative policy, he said in ending his Hydro remarks. Mr. Rowe previously in his address announced the Conservative agricultural policy and steps to be taken in helping the farmer.

The Chinese appeal was framed to invoke article XVII of the covenant which would invite Japan to the council table with temporary membership obligations to answer the Chinese charge.

Japan withdrew from the league when the special far-eastern advisory committee submitted an adverse report after her conquest of Manchuria. She was not expected to accept any such invitation.

A test of the still-troublesome Ethiopian issue was expected to be made by league nations friendly to Italy. These members were expected to ask that Ethiopia be proclaimed non-existent as an independent state and as a member. However, Emperor Haile Selassie is not sending a representative to the meeting and it would be difficult to declare non-valid the credentials of an absent delegation.

Hitler Mentions His Successor

NUREMBURG, Germany, Sept. 13 (AP)—Chancellor Hitler Saturday mentioned his successor as leader of Germany—but he named no one. The allusion came in a speech to the Hitler youth movement.

"You will be as faithful to the future German fuehrer as to the present one," Hitler said.

Further than that brief glimpse into the future he did not go.

Hitler frequently has said the Nazi movement will last for ever, but seldom has referred to the fact he personally will not always be the leader.

WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN NEVER LET THEM KNOW

NO matter how much your back aches and your nerves scream, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month.

Too often the honeymoon express is wrecked by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The wise woman never lets her husband know by outward sign that she is a victim of periodic pain.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Sale Cattle Gathered At Winnipeg Stock Yards

Cattle gathered at the Winnipeg stock yards for sale through the Dominion Marketing Plan are shown at top, part of the vast herds from fodder-less drought areas being disposed of through the government. They come from sections of Saskatchewan where scenes such as that below have been a common occurrence for eight years; the dead calf succumbed to heat, drought and starvation. At RIGHT, one of the drought victims gets its first good feed in years—on its way to greener pastures further east.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LILY LAKE, Sept. 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Dave Wilson, who observed their silver wedding anniversary on Sept. 4, were the recipients of a large number of gifts in silver, together with congratulatory messages from a wide circle of relatives and friends who gathered at their home on Friday evening, September 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, the latter being formerly Diana Martha Skuce, second daughter of Mrs. R. Skuce and the late Mr. Skuce, were married on September 4, 1912, at Omemee. Following their marriage they resided for a number of years near Lakehurst in Harvey Township. They moved to their present home in North Monaghan, about five years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson are the parents of eight daughters and four sons, all residing at home. The eldest daughter, Alta, is the teacher at Lily Lake School.

Three long tables on the lawn were pretty with snowy cloths, pink streamers and bouquets of sweet peas in silver vases. Stock Moved Out Drought Area To Solve The Fodder Shortage

Dominion Marketing Plan Expected To Clear 100,000 Head Of Better Grades

ESTEVAN, Sask. Sept. 13.—They're moving the stock out of the drought areas of Saskatchewan. Every farmer in Southern Saskatchewan, as well as many in other sections, who is facing serious shortage of fodder, must reduce stock to a bare sustenance basis. Within a month 100,000 head of cattle, half-starved and scrubby looking, will have found their way to the abattoirs, the live stock yards at Winnipeg, or to the pastures of Southern Manitoba. Under the Dominion marketing plan, the province is reducing its stock, as each day carload after carload leaves some of the 400 shipping points chosen to handle the movement.

Much of the better grade stock will pasture at Carberry, Manitoba, where the Government has set aside 100,000 acres for the purpose. Here is provided corrals, branding chutes, weigh scales, veterinary service and other necessary equipment for sorting and fattening. Buyers from Ontario, Quebec, and the United States purchase here to take advantage of the half free freight allowed to eastern points. Regulatalon of the sale of surplus stock is being exercized over a long period so as not to glut the market.

Farmers' Stock Limited.

The Dominion marketing plan limits a farmer who is unable to provide fodder, to from two to four milk cows and one steer for meat, if other meat sources are unavailable. He may also retain one brood sow, plus one pig for every three members of the family, in addition to 50 chickens and a maximum of 12 work horses and three colts.

Expert Government graders purchase the cattle from key points, paying from 1¼ cents per pound for "canners" to 3½ cents per pound for "feeders," live weight. Although much of the stock has graded only canner or butcher types, officials have expressed surprise at finding some extremely good cattle.

First estimates showed that 300,000 head of cattle from 150 rural municipalities would be placed on the market, but it appears now that the number will be about one-third of that. Farmers are doing all in their power to keep their herds. Those having registered stock feel it is folly to rid themselves of their last means of independence in a land where crop failures have been so numerous. During the dry years it has been the "butter and cream" money that has paid for those "extras" that weren't included in relief.

Even Weed Pasture Gone.

Unless a farmer has finances or is able to go to Manitoba, where he may cut hay and ship it freight free, he realizes the wisdom of parting with his stock under the present Government program. He knows that for too long animals have existed on Russian thistle, which is the only plant to withstand the rigors of drought. This year, even this hardy weed has failed to flourish in many places where lack of rainfall and the shifting of soil by constant winds have uprooted the plant and stunted the growth. Then, too, a plague of the beet-web worm attacking the weed has seriously impaired its usefulness for fodder.

Some independent ranchers have transferred their herds to Carberry, Man., where they graze on Government forest lands on a lease basis. Ten cents a month per head is charged for the pasturage. The ranchers themselves are settling in the district for the winter months, and in the spring intend to transfer the stock back to their Saskatchewan farms. Whether they will lose or profit by the venture is a matter for the future. This winter Carberry pastures will graze one of the largest herds ever assembled under a similar plan.

Milk, Butter Prices Rise.

As a result of the exodus of cattle it is expected that butter and milk prices will continue to rise. Creameries, too, will be forced to shut down in some instances, though some have purchased fodder for farmers' stock in their immediate districts in order to ensure a supply of cream.

The Government can no longer bear the burden of the excessive cost of providing feed for such quantities of poor stock, nor would it be able to supply the necessary quantities since there is no available source. In many districts hay has been supplied during both summer and winter months for eight successive years. With the moving of these thousands of cattle, it is believed that the future type of stock in the province will be greatly improved. For many years wheat-growing has been the chief interest of the Saskatchewan farmer, and most of the stock being disposed of is of the "scrub" type. This is due to poor breeding methods rather than to lack of feed. Farmers will no longer be allowed to continue these poor breeding practices, thus disposal of the cattle, while perhaps creating a temporary hardship, will bring about the ultimate improvement of the live stock industry of Saskatchewan.

Burlesque, Tease Back On Broadway

NEW YORK Sept. 13—(A.P.)—To the loud rat-tat of drums beaten by a chorus of cuties, burlesque came back last night to Broadway, strip-tease and all.

Only a week ago it was being said it couldn't be done—that burlesque was dead, buried in an avalanche of protest against the art that made Gypsy Rose Lee famous, or vice versa, but an astonished audience last night saw its return.

It came as a climax to the opening of the "French Follies" at the Minsky's Oriental Theatre, and was all the more surprising because the City Fathers had made two things plain—the Minskys could not use their name to advertise any show of theirs, and burlesque, with its strip-tease act, was out.

The girl who brought the strip-act back is big, brunette Gladys Fox, and she scattered the pins from her flimsy garments with all the grace and enthusiasm of Gypsy Rose Lee.

British Warship Captures Sub After It Sinks Tanker

Crew Taken Off Undersea Pirate No Identity Given

Roundup Occurs Off Greece Following Attack On Russian Ship

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Sept. 14 (CP-Havas).—The newspaper Politica reported to-day a British warship had captured a submarine in the Mediterranean after the undersea ship had sunk a Russian tanker.

In dispatches from Saloniki, Greece, the newspaper said the unidentified submarine had been captured near Volos, on the east coast of Greece. The crew were reported to have been taken aboard the warship.

No indication was given as to the nationality of the submarine.

Volos is the capital and principal port of Thessaly on the Gulf of Volo, an inlet of the Aegean Sea.

Two other Russian freighters and a Spanish government merchant vessel recently were torpedoed in the same zone. The Russian freighter Blagoeff was torpedoed Aug. 29 in the Aegean and on Sept. 1 the Russian ship Molakieff was sunk. The Spanish freighter Amuru was beached on the Greek coast after it was torpedoed in the Aegean Aug. 18.

Admiralty Silent

LONDON, Sept. 14 (CP-Havas).—The Admiralty declared today that it had no knowledge of the reported capture of a "pirate" submarine by a British warship in the Aegean sea.

Reports current here said the submarine was captured by the battleship Malaya, whose arrival at Moudros, Greece, was reported by the Admiralty without mention of any incident.

NAVAL SUB PATROL DISTRICTS DEFINED

GENEVA, Sept. 14 (CP).—The Mediterranean Antipiracy Naval Accord, signed today at Nyon provides for the following patrolling arrangements:

In the western Mediterranean and Malta channel, with the exception of the Tyrrhenian sea which may form the subject of special arrangements, the British and French fleets will operate both on the high seas and in the territorial waters of the participating powers in accordance with the division of the area agreed upon by the two governments.

In the eastern Mediterranean, each of the participating powers will operate in its own territorial waters. On the high seas, with the exception of the Adriatic Sea, the British and French fleets will operate up to the entrance to the Dardanelles in those areas where there is reason to apprehend any danger to shipping in accordance with the division of the area agreed upon between the two governments. Other participating governments possessing a sea border on the Mediterranean will undertake within the limit of their resources, to furnish these fleets any assistance that may be asked for. In particular they will permit them to take action in their territorial waters and use such of their ports as they shall indicate.

(The allocation of zones shall be subject at any time to revision by the participating powers in order to take account of any change in the situation.)

NEUTRALITY BAN TRADE WITH JAPS IS ASKED BY C.C.F.

OTTAWA, Sept. 11.—(CP).—Application of Canadian neutrality legislation to the Sino-Japanese conflict was urged to-day in a statement issued by the National Executive of the C.C.F. and signed by M. J. Coldwell, M.P., chairman and David Lewis, secretary.

The statement was as follows:

The clash in the Pacific threatens to involve Canada in war. Japan's brutal assault upon China may drag the nations into another world conflict. To conduct her offensive Japan must import vast quantities of war material, and her militarists are depending more and more on Canada and their supplies. Trade returns show that Canadian export to Japan of scrap-iron, nickel, copper, lead and zinc were nearly four times as great in 1937 as they were in July, 1936. Canada's total trade with Japan and China is now approximately $1,000,000 a week. Most of this trade being with Japan, this means that the Canadian economy is rapidly becoming part of Japan's war machine.

The C.C.F. has continuously urged that Canadian neutrality be protected. This means that whenever war breaks out steps must immediately be taken to prevent Canada from becoming entangled.

Last session Parliament passed the Foreign Enlistment Act, and amended the Customs Act, so that the government can forbid Canadians to engage in foreign wars or to export munitions or war material to foreign belligerents. These Acts were promptly applied in the case of Spain, where Canadian trade was negligible. Why has no similar action been taken in regard to the Far East? Is it possible that the Government is more concerned about inflated trade returns than in preserving Canadian neutrality?

We are convinced that the Canadian people, with the exception of a few special interests, are opposed to endangering the peace of our country and of the world by consideration of trade. The C.C.F., therefore, calls upon the Government to apply the neutrality legislation to the Sino-Japanese conflict immediately, and to ban the shipment of war supplies to the Far East.

ROWE TO PROBE LIBERAL TIMBER DEALS IN NORTH

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Sept. 14—(CP).—Northern Ontario's mining and lumbering industries will receive particular attention if the Conservative party is elected in the Oct. 6 voting. Commissions to study the two great industries will be formed, Hon. Earl Rowe, Conservative leader, told Lakehead meetings last night.

One Commission would study mining and the Securities Act, which, Mr. Rowe said, was handicapping prospectors and promoters in developing the industry. The Act contained a clause preventing access to the courts which would be quickly eliminated by the Conservatives.

"It will establish a law that protects the public and gives the prospector an opportunity that he hasn't got at the present," said Mr. Rowe.

When promising a Commission to inquire into the timber industry, Mr. Rowe charged the government with "the most ruthless exploitation of our northland that has ever been experienced in our province." He said the day the Ontario elections date was announced timber limits of 14,000 square miles were given away without tender to a United States' firm.

23,000 Square Mile Gift.

The Conservative leader, who spoke at Fort William and Port Arthur, said his proposed Commission would probe into timber deals in which he charged 23,000 square miles were handed out in the last year and a half. The United States' firm receiving the 14,000-square-mile grant also was allowed to export the timber, he said.

Crown dues on the 14,000 square miles were $1 a cord while Ontario producers paid $1.85. His government would alter the situation and give the north "a square deal."

"Ontario wood should be and will be processed by Ontario workmen and not used to provide employment for the workers of a country to the south. Our policy will see to

Labor Asks 6-Hour Day But No Minimum Pay

Proposal Of 50 Cents An Hour Vetoed—Oppose Any Rate Being Fixed

OTTAWA, Sept. 14 (CP) — The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada today voted to ask for establishment of a six-hour day and five-day week in all occupations but rejected a recommendation it ask for a minimum wage of 50 cents an hour.

Little discussion arose on the question of hours and days of work and the congress, holding its 53rd annual convention, speedily adopted the resolution, sponsored by the Calgary Trades and Labor Council, which asked also for corresponding increase in pay sufficient at least to equalize any loss of wages that would occur otherwise through the decrease in hours of employment.

Rejection of the minimum wage resolution, sponsored by numerous Alberta locals of the United Mine Workers of America and the Drumheller local No. 172 of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International League of America, was recommended by the resolutions committee and was almost unanimous.

Committee Chairman Robert Hewitt said he and his colleagues recommended its rejection because

One Extra Whack Good For Death

St. Boniface, Man., Sept. 14.

TWO local pig-raisers might be building fireplaces in another world instead of for porkers today if they had slugged a heap of concrete a little harder.

J. L. Thompson and George Wagner, who raise swine on the outskirts of this city, were breaking up concrete in a manhole near an old foundry to build a fireplace for heating their pigs' mash during the winter.

Under a heap of concrete they were pounding with sledge hammers, Thompson unearthed a shoe box. He opened it up and inside were thirteen sticks of dynamite complete with detonating caps—enough to blow both of the men into eternity along with a goodly section of the community.

CIVIL MARRIAGE URGED IN ONTARIO

OTTAWA, Sept. 14.—(CP).— Ontario might follow Manitoba in instituting a civil form of marriage which would free ministers "from washing dirty linen," or other communions, Rev. J. R. Mutchmor, Toronto, secretary of Evangelism and Social Service of the United Church of Canada told a meeting of the Ottawa Presbytery to-day. As long as the law did not provide for persons being married outside the church, he thought the ministers more or less had an obligation to marry those who had the legal right to be married.

He said the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Prime Minister of Great Britain have shown "there was a form of sin which was eating at the very vitals of our national life.

"I have married divorced persons in the past and I intend to do so in the future," said Rev. Russell McGillivray of Ottawa. He said they were persons who had an unfortunate first marriage and he had aided them "in creating a new opportunity."

Mr. Mutchmor in his address said Ontario has "the worst temperance situation," in Canada. He was particularly critical of hotels and said many were of a "nondescript" nature which could not be found elsewhere.

ONTARIO VAG SHOT FLEEING OFFICER OUT IN EDMONTON

EDMONTON, Sept. 14 (CP) — Shot through the neck by Constable J. B. Peterson of the city police force in an early morning chase through Edmonton streets, Ellison Terreberry, 22, transient from Port Robinson, Ont., was near death in hospital here today. Attendants said his condition was "highly critical."

The constable said the second of two "warning" revolver shots struck the man, who fled from a back lane garage with another man who escaped. The officer said he found the pair together at the rear of the garage when he entered the lane while patroling his beat.

"When they saw me coming they started running, so I fired one shot into the ground and shouted at them a command to stop, but they separated and one man vanished in the dark," the police said.

"I fired a second shot while the other man was about 60 yards away. I didn't know I had hit him. He ran another block then disappeared into a clump of bushes. When I ordered him to come out, he did so, with his hands held high. He walked forward about 12 paces, then fell to the ground."

Hospital officials said the bullet entered the man's neck at the back and emerged at the point of his chin, fracturing the jaw and "possibly" fracturing a vertebra of the neck. He was given "less than an even chance" to recover.

John Feere, 40, St. Williams, driver of the car and his seven-year-old daughter, Audrey were injured and taken to hospital here.

Mrs. Freere and an infant son escaped serious injury. Freere, who was driving off the road in the darkness into a four foot ditch.

Premier Declares Tory Leader Aware Ads Are Inaccurate

Corrects A Mistake After 25 Years

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 14.

DEAD, twenty-five years ago. Today, alive.

Twenty-five years ago J. Rogers Gore's wife died and a reporter for a local paper twisted his facts, publishing that Gore died. Gore did not ask for a correction at that time.

Today, the Louisville Times' column, "Looking Backwards" republished the item and Gore happening to see it, decided it was time the error was corrected.

EMPIRE CONTENT COTTON IMPORTS JUMPED TO 50 P.C.

OTTAWA, Sept. 14 (CP).—Operations of foreign exporters who have tried to beat the Canadian customs by claiming British preference for their commodities, under certain conditions, will be curbed in consequence of an Order-in-Council approved by the Cabinet. The Government has increased the Empire content required on cotton fabrics, "further manufactured than bleached," from 33 1-3 per cent. to 50 per cent.

Canadian imports with a total annual value of $5,307,245 are affected.

The order was prompted on representations from the United Kingdom Government, made in accordance with the terms of the trade treaty which came into force on September 1. It was aimed at a practice which permitted foreign manufacturers of cotton fabrics to send their wares to England to be finished. By so doing they were able to ensure at least 33 1-3 per cent of Empire work. The goods were then shipped to Canada, and, entering as British goods, received the benefits of the British preference.

Japan Worst Offender.

During the hearings of the Royal Commission probing the textile industry, complaints were voiced on behalf of the Primary Textile Institute that one of the chief offenders in this respect was Japan. Low production costs enabled the Japanese to send their grey cloth to England, have it further processed there to an extent that it would fulfil the 33 1-3 per cent. Empire content requirement, and then ship it from England to Canada. The goods then came in under the British preference schedule of the customs tariff.

The bona-fide cotton manufacturers of England, whom the agreement was designed to benefit, were thus put at a disadvantage. The extent of this was indicated by the fact that of the $5,307,245 worth of printed cotton goods imported into this country during the last fiscal year, $3,364,214 came from England, and the remainder from foreign countries.

How much of the $3,364,214 worth of English goods was represented by imports which had "beat" the British policy by those methods could not be ascertained.

The raising of the Empire content requirement to 50 per cent is designed to counteract this condition.

Monster Liberal Rally Held In Armouries Addressed By Premier Hepburn

Peterborough greeted Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn with a crowd that filled the armouries and overflowed to the outdoor parade ground Monday night as he reviewed his government's administration of Ontario affairs since the summer of 1934, and urged the election of Alex L. Elliott, Liberal candidate, to assist him in proceeding with new energy and confidence the policies and reforms and economies of which he said his record was a guarantee of continuous fulfilment.

Seats were provided in the armouries for 3,000 persons. Several hundred others thronged the entrances, and the crowd in the park was estimated at another thousand or more. Hon. Mr. Hepburn was obviously delighted by the demonstrative reception, and impressed by the personality and platform ability of Mr. Elliott. He spoke for an hour and a half in a comprehensive review of the government's legislation, with a sustained element of interest and gleams of humor that held the audience until his last word.

All parts of the riding were represented, and the audience included a large number of women. The band of the 57th Rangers played an attractive program of popular music prior to the appearance on the platform of Hon. Mr. Hepburn, accompanied by Mr. Elliott, Warden Roy Brown of Apsley, J. J. Duffus, M.P., Rork Ferguson, M.P., Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., and more than fifty men and women active in the cause of Liberalism throughout the city and county.

Dr. Donald Munro, of Warsaw, president of the Liberal Association, was chairman. Mr. Elliott was introduced to the large gathering by Alderman R. M. Glover, and Hon. Mr. Hepburn by Alderman Gordon. The only other speaker was Warden Brown. A delightful interlude in the program points was a vocal solo "Land of Hope and Glory" by Miss Geraldine Collins, accompanied by Mrs. G. Wilson Craw.

The addresses were conveyed to the outdoor crowd by amplifiers.

Unemployment Insurance.

Premier Hepburn pledged the Ontario Liberal party to introduce unemployment insurance at the next session of the Provincial Legislature, if the Government is re-elected Oct. 6.

Coupled with that promise was a double-barrelled challenge to Conservative Leader Earl Rowe to back up his charges of hotel campaign contributions and to explain why the Conservative party had published an advertisement which its own advertising agency considered misleading.

Mr. Hepburn claimed it was common knowledge in Toronto that the agency handling the Conservative campaign advertising referred back one advertisement because of inaccurate statements, but Mr. Rowe insisted it be published.

Vague references to the Hotel Association and political contributions had been hired by the Conservative leader, he said.

"I know nothing of any hotel campaign funds," declared the Premier. "Mr. Rowe says he does. If he knows anything let him come out openly and tell it to the world."

Premier Hepburn drew a detailed comparison between the efficient administration by his government and that of the preceding Conservative government, citing increased revenues without increased taxation.

In illustration he pointed to the operation of the Niagara Falls Parks Commission. Under the late government, he said, it lost money continually because government members entertained at the expense of the taxpayer. Under three years of Liberal rule the Commission has paid off $800,000 against its debt.

No Apology For Cancelling.

He asserted he had no apology for cancelling Quebec power contracts. The government had purchased a frequency changer when it had "its back to the wall," he said, then Premier Taschereau of Quebec sent his provincial treasurer to Toronto to warn the government to take all or none of the Quebec power it had contracted for.

If all Quebec power had been shut off at the time the only shortage might have been in Eastern Ontario and the frequency changer would have remedied this.

He contended that if men like Howard Ferguson, Senator Arthur Meighen, and C. A. Maguire could commit Hydro users to $400,000,000 of unsaleable power, without recourse to succeeding governments, democracy was a farce.

Mr. Hepburn told his audience the facts were even worse than he first thought in the case of property leased to the Liquor Control Board

'Bill The Terror' Ready To Quit, Fought Gangs 30 Years

Branded Toughest Cop In New York With Underworld Price Of $10,000 On Head

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (CP).—William J. (Bill the Terror) Quaine, first grade detective, ends 30 years in the New York police department today and at midnight retires on pension.

During his service, the 56-year-old Irishman who left the University of Dublin to pound Manhattan's pavements in the navy blue of the New York police, received three citations.

He smashed half a dozen old time gangs and at one time, it was reported, the underworld placed a price of $10,000 on the head of the "toughest cop" in the department.

However Quaine performed his duty without ever being seriously injured. On one occasion he had to fight off eight gun-toting assailants. He killed one. He was credited with a major part in the smashing of Harlem's "little Italy" ganga.

Nancy Jane's condition was described as serious. Physicians said she is able to remain out of the machine only for short periods. The boy's condition was said to be less serious.

Judge Charges Plot As Customs Men Find Wife Open To $10,000 Fines

New York, Sept. 14.

JUSTICE EDGAR J. LAURER, United States Supreme Court justice, today charged a deliberate "plot," emanating from Washington, D.C., to embarrass his wife by a five-hour customs inspection and seizure of 22 pieces of luggage brought back from their trip abroad.

"Somebody must have approached Washington and made statements with the purpose of embarrassing Mrs. Laurer," he said.

"That was why there was a detailed examination of her luggage when we arrived on the Normandie last night. They went over it with fine-tooth comb."

Justice Laurer did not amplify his charge of a Washington "plot."

By "they" Justice Laurer referred to three customs officials who searched the huge pile of baggage containing feminine finery and jewels, much of which they said was undeclared. The officials said they discovered discrepancies in value stated on Mrs. Laurer's formal declaration which make her liable to approximately $10,000 in fines and duties.

See Indeterminate Sentence To Be Ended Shortly

Many Magistrates, Judges Opposing It Owing To Number Of Repeaters

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 14 (CP).—Because of its abuse by a small minority of prisoners, the indeterminate sentence shortly may be abolished, Rev. W. A. Henderson, rector of St. Mark's Church at Hamilton, told members of the Huron College Alumni Association in annual meeting today.

Despite adverse criticism heard of the Ontario Parole Board and of the system of granting paroles, Mr. Henderson, for five years in office of the Ontario Reformatory, near Guelph, said statistics proved the board and its effects were a pronounced success.

The Hamilton pastor, however, saw many magistrates and judges lining up against indeterminate sentences. Their attitude was based primarily upon the number of prisoners granted early release under the practice, and who became "repeaters," he said.

Mr. Henderson said there was no crime nor disgrace in going to jail—that one's term in jail was payment in full for a debt to society. The disgrace lay in the commission of the act for which sentence was passed. No one, he said, need be ashamed upon release from a reformatory or kindred institution.

1,500,000 HUNGRY REFUGEES STORM INSIDE SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, Sept. 14 (AP)—Hungry, disease-ridden war refugees—1,500,000 of them—were packed into Shanghai's foreign settlements today. They constituted a menace to the city's safety that was paralleled only by the conflict between China and Japan.

Drained of funds, relief agencies feared increased cholera, smallpox epidemics, food riots, starvation and all the misery and discomfort of a derelict population almost the size of international Shanghai's normal figure.

The staggering number of war victims was disclosed by W. H. Plant, a member of the International Settlement Municipal Council.

The Municipal Council is seeking to stem the tide of refugees already overrunning Shanghai.

"The public little realizes the grave dangers Shanghai is facing as refugees pour in from the battlefields," Plant told the Associated Press.

Nothing To Eat, Nowhere To Go.

"For these people there is no place to go, no food to eat, and our resources are woefully inadequate to assist them.

"With cholera among them and the smallpox season imminent in the face of coming cold weather, I shudder to think of their future. God alone knows what will happen."

Plant, working with Chinese, British and French associates, estimated the refugees are located in 150 refugee camps in the French Concession and International Settlement, which, combined, constitute only a few square miles.

Of the hordes who have swept through every entrance to the city, it is estimated that only about 200,000 have been evacuated elsewhere. Already the strained transport facilities of the city are faltering.

The Evacuation Committee is seeking to charter steamships to move the refugees, but their efforts are failing for want of funds. Shipping has been hampered because Chinese have removed all navigation marks along the Whangpoo and Yangtse rivers to hamper Japanese naval movements.

NEW FAST FLEET READY FOR SERVICE

LONDON, Sept. 14—(CP)—First of a new fast fleet of motorships designed for the Canada-Australia-New Zealand service formerly operated by the Canadian National Steamships, the 9,800-ton Port Montreal will sail from the St. Lawrence October 29 on her maiden commercial run.

Her sister ships, Port Halifax and Port Saint John, will follow her on the route that goes through the Panama Canal to Australia and returns by way of Cape Horn.

The ships, only recently launched, are owned by the Port Line, who with the New Zealand Shipping Company and Ellerman's, are equal partners in the newly-created Montreal-Australia-New Zealand Line service. The "Mans" Line paid the Canadian Government £100,000 (approximately $500,000) for the Canadian ships.

Two more ships for the service are under construction for the New Zealand Shipping Company. Meanwhile ships of the three partner companies have been carrying on the service. The cost of modernizing the fleet probably will reach £1,500,000 ($7,500,000), is has been estimated.

NINE POWERS SIGN PACT ON SUB WAR SPEED REPRISALS

NYON, Switzerland, Sept. 14 (CP-Havas)—Nine Mediterranean and Black Sea powers signed the accord aimed at halting the operations of "pirate submarines in the Mediterranean today.

Disregarding Italo-German efforts to delay the accord, representatives of Great Britain, France, Turkey, Greece, Egypt, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and the Soviet Union formally signed the agreement which provides for immediate establishment of an international naval patrol in the Mediterranean shipping lanes.

The accord stipulates that the naval forces of the participating powers will "counter-attack and, if possible, destroy any submarines attacking, contrary to the rules of international law as laid down in the London naval treaty of 1930, merchant ships not belonging to either party to the Spanish conflict."

"They will take the same action regarding any submarine encountered in the vicinity of the position where a merchant vessel has just been attacked in circumstances giving valid ground for believing the submarine guilty of the attack in question," the agreement provides.

French and British naval units will carry out the terms of the accord in the Western Mediterranean and in the Malta channel with the exception of the Tyrrhenian Sea, which was reserved for Italian patrols providing Rome agrees to participate in the nine-power pact.

If Rome persists in boycotting the accord, Anglo-French naval patrols will be extending to the Tyrrhenian.

Plenty Of Assistance

The seven other powers agreed to patrol their territorial waters and to lend any possible assistance and post facilities to the French and British fleets. They also pledged to bar any foreign submarine from their territorial waters except in cases of urgent distress or where the undersea craft were accompanied by a surface unit.

A reported Italian move to halt operation of the plan by posing inadmissible conditions, such as a request that the role of the Italian fleet and its disposition be discussed by the Spanish non-intervention committee in London, was countered by authoritative indications from British and French sources that the request would be rejected.

Other reports said Italy would attempt to have the entire "piracy" question transferred to the London committee and that Rome would base its participation in the accord

CHINESE DEFEAT JAPS' WARSHIPS IN CANTON RIVER

HONG KONG, Sept. 14 (AP)—Chinese warplanes and the guns of Bocca Tigris forts at the entrance to the Canton River were reported today to have defeated Japanese warships in what was described as a "major naval engagement."

A spokesman for the Kwantung Provincial Government said one Japanese warship was struck squarely on the bridge by a shell and another was belching clouds of smoke where it had been hit by a bomb.

Four Japanese destroyers and one cruiser attacked the Bocca Tigris forts, protecting the river entrance and the route to Canton.

Though the warships rained shells around the forts, the damage was said to have been negligible. Most of the shots were reported to have fallen short.

A squadron of Chinese bombers from the Canton air base dumped explosives on the attacking warcraft. The Kwantung government reports said the Japanese warships were driven off and headed down stream to the open sea.

The Pearl River was closed eight miles below Canton yesterday, except for a narrow channel. Chinese sank the hulks of old warships and junks filled with cement.

MILLBROOK Y. P. A. BANQUET BRINGS OVER 100 GUESTS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Sept. 14.—Outside guests, including Springville, Bailieboro, Fraserville, and Cavan, as well as guests from Northumberland and Prince Edward Counties, attended the annual banquet under the auspices of the Young Peoples' Union and held in the basement of St. Andrew's church on Friday evening.

Rev. Gordon Porter, M. A., of Canton, whose birthplace was Millbrook, was the guest speaker of the evening, others at the head table including the toastmaster, Oliver Brock, president of the hostess society; Rev. A. L. and Mrs. Hicks; H. B. Dawson, president of the Peterborough Presbyterian Y. P. U., and officers of the local and visiting Unions.

Covers were laid for one hundred guests, the tables being very attractive with the color scheme carried out in the fruited runners of midnight blue centering the white cloths; blue candles in silver holders; and in the silver baskets and bud vases filled with pink blossoms and placed at regular intervals down the length of each long table.

Following the honoring of the toast to "The King," community singing was enjoyed with Ken Kidd leading, and Miss Phyllis Kidd at the piano. The toast to "The United Church" was ably proposed by Miss Esther Mark, the point emphasized being that "the best home will come to the church through lives actively showing forth the spirit of Christ."

Rev. A. L. Hicks, pastor of the hostess church, made the response to the toast, laying stress on the change wrought in life when it is in close friendship and fellowship with Jesus Christ, concluding a service following as a matter of course.

A whistling solo by Bea Mc Dowell, with Miss Dorothy McDowell at the piano, was warmly applauded, and the toastmaster called upon Mr. Oakely Carley, of Cavan, to propose the toast to "The Young Peoples Societies." Emphasis was laid upon the wide program adopted in the slogan, "Building a new home, a new community a new church, and a new world," with the admonition, "Keep fair on and you will accomplish something worth while in this big task."

Response was made by Miss Bernice Smith, pointing out that the young people's program can only be carried out as each individual member can say, "Have Thine own way, Lord, Have Thine own way."

Open Invitation

The guest speaker of the evening was introduced by Mr. B. B. Dawson, as he included greetings from the Peterborough Presbytery executive, and extended a warm invitation to all the young people to be present on Tuesday, September 14, when the local Union will open for the fall and winter season, the topic for study being "World Peace."

Expressing his personal pleasure in being present, and privileged to address the combined Young Peoples Unions of the district, Rev. Mr. Porter brought a most inspiring message on the there, "The Christian Revolution." After tracing the evidences of the revolutionary spirit predominant in the world today and pointing out other signs that "we are living in a unique age," the speaker went on to show that the most effective revolutionary agency in the world to-day is Christianity.

"Jesus Christ has a more revolutionary program than any put forth by either 'the rawdust Caesar,' Mussolini, or Hitler. We are the key people for the carrying out of that program, and the greatest discovery we can make is the realization that He is a greater Saviour than we thought He was. We must not hold the jewel of our faith too lightly. We have something greater than Communism or Fascism, and Christianity presents a challenge to each one of use to follow our Great Leader in the community where we live, and help make Him the power He wants to be in this world."

The program was brought to a close with the benediction. The service of the banquet was looked after by a number of the members, with other helpers, among them being Mrs. J. H. Mighi, Mrs. T. Douglas, Mrs. F. H. Edworthy, Mrs. W. Williamson, Mrs. P. A. Kidd, and Miss Josie Sutton.

Pup Is Being Blamed For Woman Drowning

Coral Gables, Fla., Sept. 14

DROWNING of Mrs. Louise M. Jones, 48, in the Tamiami Canal was charged today to a puppy's playfulness and a son said the dog would not be killed.

Mrs. Jones and her son, Archie L. Jones, 24, attempted to swim the canal yesterday. The dog, a six-month-old German police dog, tried to climb on the woman's shoulders as she swam. Jones said he fought it off but Mrs. Jones, tired from a long hike through the everglades, sank before he could reach her.

Jones and his wife said they were convinced the dog was playful and not vicious.

FINE TALK HEARD BY JANETVILLE W.I.

JANETVILLE, Sept. 14.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. Albert Heslip was convener for the September meeting of the Women's Institute which was held in the club rooms, "Janet Villa," on Thursday afternoon with twenty-five members present. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Charles Deyell, first vice-president, presided.

The treasurer, Mrs. W. Campbell, reported a balance of $30 after paying all recent expenses.

A lengthy discussion was held in regard to final arrangements for the local Institute exhibit at Lindsay Fair. A committee comprised of Mrs. B. McMullen, president, Mrs. W. Sanderson, Mrs. C. Deyell and Mrs. M. Armstrong was appointed to arrange the exhibit.

The secretary was instructed to extend invitations to the Nestleton and Reabro branches to visit the local Institute at their next meeting on Thursday, October 14, which it is expected, will be held in the United Church.

Mrs. M. Armstrong, convenor of the October meeting, was appointed to secure the guest speaker, Mrs. (Rev.) Wolfrain, of Lindsay, being the unanimous choice.

A letter from Miss Greta Pollard, of the department, in regard to the clothing project, "Cottons May Be Smart," was read, and it was decided to take the course. Mrs. Masters was appointed as the local leader, with Mrs. Alban Suggitt and Mrs. Wesley Campbell as alternatives.

The flower collection was received and the roll call, "Wise Sayings of Farmer," was well responded to, and included the following, which are well worth due consideration:

"If you sit more when you're young, you'll stand more when you're old."

"Stand up to be seen; speak up to be heard; shut up to be appreciated."

A short program was enjoyed. Reading, "Room Enough for All," Mrs. R. Johnson; instrumental, master Osborne McMullen.

A Fine Address

A feature of the meeting was an address by Mrs. Thomas Richardson on "War and Peace."

The speaker first quoted Abraham Lincoln as saying, "Public sentiment is everything. With public sentiment nothing can fail; without it nothing can succeed. Consequently he who moulds sentiment goes deeper than he who enacts statutes."

Women here to-day are faced with the grim possibility of another world war, and feeling that war is so unnecessary and consequently are so opposed to it, are asking the question, "What can a mere woman do?"

We can think peace, talk peace, live peace and pray for peace, and surely this will have some influence in moulding public sentiment.

The speaker went on to paint a word picture of the cost of war in lives and money alone. The population of Canada is 10,376,786; there were 10,815,577 men killed in the World War; about 500,000 more than all the people in Canada.

To illustrate more clearly the immensity of the army of the dead, the speaker said, "Let us go to the street and watch this silent army go by. You may see some of your own friends. Here they come four abreast, two seconds apart — left, left, left, right, left. They do not halt 10 seconds in an hour, but continue steadily day and night, and to see them we must stand until the 15th of December (115 days). Think of it, all splendid fellows marching to that huge cemetery, 50 miles long and two miles wide, to take their places under the "crosses row on row in Flanders' Fields."

The direct cost in money was said to be $409,000,000,000, or about $40,000 to kill one man.

This is the cost in lives and money, not to mention the maimed bodies and wrecked lives and homes in every country as a result of war.

The cost of armaments is terrific, yet munition makers go steadily on making weapons more deadly than the last. The munition makers are the ones who keep the pot boiling, so to speak. They influence countries to be war-like, lied about military and naval programs of other countries, influence the press, and inflame public opinion and do all in their power to promote war so they can increase their personal profits which were 200 per cent. during the last war.

Isn't it ridiculous that we, the ordinary people of all nations, put up with this like infants. We are the ones who pay most of the taxes and who man the front-line trenches.

Armaments and armies of themselves do not make war. The causes of war are economic and political, with only a trifle to start the flame. But soldiers and arms will be necessary until we realize that we are all world citizens and brothers, rather than Canadians, Germans and Frenchmen.

The steady march of civilization towards finer and better things has accomplished much for world brotherhood. The radio and aeroplane make us realize how near of kin the people of all countries are, and if we all think, talk, pray and live peace we can surely mould public sentiment toward a brotherhood that will soon envelop the whole wide world.

A sincere vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Richardson for this very timely address, after which a tasty lunch was served by Mrs. T. McMullen's group.

Moors Blamed For Atrocity In The Spanish Civil War

Otherwise It Is Not Quite So Bad As It's Painted, According To Legionaire

MADRID, Sept. 14 (CP).—As during the Great War when both sides hurled against each other charges of perpetrating barbaric atrocities, the rival factions in the Spanish civil war have engaged in similar recriminations, but on a modified scale.

From both camps have come charges that gas shells had been used, that huge supplies of poison gas were ready for release at opportune moments, dumdum bullets fired, prisoners tortured and women in conquered territory violated.

Anxious to get a first-hand report from the men best qualified to discuss them, the writer questioned a group of Canadian, American and English volunteers with the International Brigade, regarding outrages that had come to their attention.

"Most of it is a lot of hokum," said one and the others nodded approval. "But wait. I'd almost forgotten those Moors. They're a tough and treacherous lot and I wouldn't put anything past them.

"In one scuffle where we were getting the best of the scrap, we suddenly saw a group of Moors come tumbling over the trenches on the other side. The leader carried a white flag while the others followed behind with their hands in the air, signifying surrender. A few feet from our lines, the Moors suddenly let loose a barrage of grenades, secreted in the palms of their upstretched hands. Many of our men were killed or wounded, but we got most of the Moors before they reached the shelter of their trenches."

Used Women For Shield

"Don't forget the stunt the Moors pulled on us at Brunete," another chimed in. "We had been giving them hell and had successfully repulsed several vicious counter attacks when suddenly we saw a group of women and children groping their way across 'No Man's Land.' They were acting very strangely and orders were promptly shouted along the line to withhold fire.

"You wouldn't believe it, but it was a platoon of Moors advancing in extended formation and using the women and children as shields. We fell back to the shelter of nearby barricades and trees and waited until we got a proper bead on those cowards. Most of them got what was coming to them.

"And I'd hate to tell you what we did to a Moor we caught gouging out the eyes of one of our men who had fallen wounded as we retreated.

The visitors remarked they had been told the Moors had distinguished themselves as valorous soldiers and clean fighters.

"Don't you believe it," shot back an American from Fort Worth, Texas. "That's just a lot of romance. The Moors are the best little sprinters you've ever seen when they're getting the worst of it. But giving the devil his due, the Spaniards on the other side, are fair fighters and we'd much rather they were with us."

FIND BLOUNT SHOP SITE

AURORA, Ont., Sept. 14 (CP).—Exactly 100 years after Samuel Blount, Upper Canada Rebellion rebel, was hanged in 1837, J. M. Walton, local historian, has found the location of Blount's blacksmith shop on the highway at Holland Landing, 30 miles north of Toronto.

Walton found part of a large forged blade protruding from the ground and several hand-made bricks with some forged coal. He suggested a marker be placed on the spot for the benefit of tourists.

Miss America, '37 Snubs Movies, Radio To Go Back To School

Atlantic City, N.J., Sept. 14.

A SOFT-SPOKEN, blue-eyed schoolgirl reigned as the number one beauty queen of the United States today—much to the embarrassment of a steel pier-full of city officials and beauty contest sponsors.

And while the officials, frustrated and weary, declared "she can't do this to us," Miss Bette Cooper, 17-year-old Miss Bertrand Island of Hackettstown and Miss America of 1937, went right on doing it. "It" being a complete and wholeheated snubbing of the fruits of her victory: a six-week vaudeville contract, a $400 offer for five days on the steel pier, and a flying trip to Hollywood for a screen test included.

"No Movies, radio or vaudeville for me!" she said today. "I'm going to stay in bed and get rid of this cold, and then back to school for me."

A streamlined youngster of 5 feet, six inches and 120 well-placed pounds, Miss Cooper is strictly an amateur beauty with no ulterior designs.

One Lively Tangle Police Sidestepped

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 14 (AP).—A woman telephoned desk Sergeant Harry Schley of the Indianapolis police and put this poser:

"Suppose a man and a woman were engaged and there were showers and presents. Then something happens and the engagement's off. How would you divide the presents?"

"I was wondering if you could send police out here to make some legal division of the presents," she said.

Schley gave her a tactful "No" and advised:

"Divide them yourselves—or send them back."

THE DIONNE QUINS GIVE YOU THEIR "BEAUTY SECRET"

"When we were tiny babies, Dr. Dafoe bathed us only with Olive Oil. Later, when we were ready for soap and water baths, he chose the soap made from the most soothing ingredients."

"Dr. Dafoe chose Palmolive, made with gentle Olive Oil. We're glad he did, for we've never had any complexion trouble. In fact, everyone says we have unusually soft, smooth skin."

"Doesn't it just stand to reason, that if Palmolive is safest for our tender skin, it must be best for yours too? We'll anyway, our advice is, only Palmolive, the soap made with Olive Oil."

PALMOLIVE WILL KEEP YOUR COMPLEXION YOUNG! Does your skin seem dry, lifeless . . . slightly coarse-looking? Even girls in their twenties have this condition. It is called "Middle-Age" Skin! Beauty experts say, "Use Palmolive Soap regularly." For Palmolive is made from a blend of real beauty ingredients, soothing Olive and Palm oils. That's why Palmolive's gentle, lather keeps your complexion soft, smooth, young!

WHY DR. DAFOE CHOSE PALMOLIVE

Because the Quins were born prematurely their skin has always required very special care. Dr. Dafoe's own statement:

"For some time after their birth, the Dionne Quintuplets were bathed with Olive Oil. When the time arrived for soap and water baths, we chose Palmolive Soap exclusively for bathing these famous babies."

WHERE Death takes a Holiday!

Suppose it were your loved one being made ready for the climax of this grim struggle with Death. Anxiously you await the outcome—hoping against hope—praying that these men in white will not fail. Your heart is in their hands, but all their skill, and all their specialized knowledge would be powerless should those operating room lights go out at a critical moment.

But those lights will not fail . . . nor will the power to operate the many delicate electrical apparatus used in modern surgery today.

Outside the operating room is an organization of highly trained Hydro men, whose duty it is to see that nothing is allowed to interrupt Hydro service, and to be ready for instant action in any unforeseen emergency.

The service which Hydro provides to, and widens the scope of, medical science in Ontario is the same service that brings so many comforts and conveniences within the rooms of your own home—lowered production costs to industry—greater utility and facilities to commerce—a greater measure of prosperity to all in Ontario.

The Hydro of today is striving to extend the benefits of low-cost electricity everywhere in the Province, and to making every effort to still further reduce power costs. As a partner in this gigantic enterprise you should be vitally interested in these efforts.

This Is Involved

One thing generally leads on to something else. It is working that way in the matter of strikes, although the procedure is rather involved. According to the Buffalo Courier Express those who are doing picket duty at the plant of the Republic Steel Corporation in that city believe they have a grievance. It is one of those strange situations where a sit-down strike will not help matters.

The Committee for Industrial Organization has a strike on at the plant, and the striking C. I. O. members have been in turn assigned to picket duty. The claim is the pickets are being paid only $1 per day for the work which they are doing, and being a picket is not as easy as it sounds.

Sixty of the members are reported as having denounced their membership in the Union on a demand of $2 per day for a picket. The duty of a picket is to see that no person goes to work in a plant where there is a strike, but if the pickets themselves go on strike against what they term unfair conditions imposed by their own union, then where are we? It may be there will have to be some new pickets to picket the old pickets who were picketing the plant in the first place. A trifle involved you will admit, but quite possible.

Chummy With A Snake

Dorothea Lawrence is a concert and radio singer, and with that kind of business we have no particular quarrel. Belongs in New York does Dorothea, but of recent times she has been minded to holiday in Montreal.

Nothing at all unusual in that, but there is in the rest of the story. Dorothea has a pet, a six foot boa constrictor which she has named Eve. And the snake is in New York while Dorothea is in Montreal, and the young lady is a bit put out because she thinks Eve may be a trifle unhappy at the enforced separation.

Some men in uniform appeared at the railway station in New York and announced there was not going to be a snake get a ride on their train. Later on Dorothea was informed by a Canadian customs man she was not going to take any snake into Canada—"not if he knew anything about it"—and apparently he did.

We quite approve of people having pets if their desires run in that direction. But we draw the line at snakes. Two or three lines. Especially when a six foot boa constrictor is concerned. Just why any young woman would select such a slimy and unlovely thing as a great snake, and then try to glorify it with the name and standing of a pet is far removed from our stock of ordinary comprehension. We are fairly certain if Dorothea feels the need of a pet or a friend, or some object on which she can lavish her surplus love or devotion she can make better and wiser choices than by invading the snake pen. Possibly there are a number of little human waifs who might appreciate a share of her comfort and affection. But a snake! Bosh!

Fear Was The Cause

When the Canadian National Exhibition came to its 1937 close it was found the attendance for the year was down 301,000 from the figures of 1936. There were only three days this year when the attendance exceeded the corresponding day of last year. On all other days the decrease was serious. The Exhibition itself had not failed; it was as always a great event, the greatest annual show of its kind in the world. The weather was not ideal most of the time and the excessive heat of late August and early September would not help at all. But the chief reason given for the falling off in attendance was the fear that by going to Toronto Exhibition children or older folk might become infected with infantile paralysis. The small attendance of Children's Day proved that, and if more proof were needed it was furnished on almost every other day of the Exhibition.

There are records of other events somewhat similar. It has been recounted that people are staying away from Campbellford and refusing to trade there or with some of the people from that town who go out into the country. And all because a suspected case of infantile paralysis was reported from Campbellford. Nothing has yet happened which shows with the least degree of finality just how people can escape infantile paralysis by refusing to go here or consenting to go there. When people undertake to make their own regulations they are apt to do things without direction or instruction which are not the wisest. Fear of the unknown is one of the hardest things with which to contend. Those who believe that safety from infection lies in a policy of isolation overlook the stubborn fact that cases of paralysis have been reported from homes well and far separated from contact with the outside world.

There Is Much Loose Talk

There was something unusual in a church service in Toronto on Sunday when Rev. H. Roche, self-styled Independent Anglican, introduced Tim Buck as the speaker at the service. There were voices from the audience calling that Mr. Buck should be put out, while others urged he had no right to speak in the church. Rev. Mr. Roche referred to Mr. Buck as a martyr in the cause of freedom, and Tim Buck during his address said he believed "the Man who was the inspiration of the Christian Church would be lined up with the Communists today in their fight against social injustices."

We do not know how well Tim Buck is qualified to say just what the Master would be doing if He were on earth today. His own followers had a hard time of it trying to grasp the great idea that Christ was not on earth to set up a worldly kingdom. We believe it is correct to say that after the crucifixion His desciples were certain that event had ended it all. They found it difficult enough to become caught up with the great fact that Christ was establishing the Kingdom of Heaven. There has been a great deal said about what Christ would do in this situation or that today, but the trouble is that those who are so fond of such argument are not always as fond of trying to give their own advice personal application. The rich young man came by night to seek and audience with the Master; the young man, according to his light, had done all things as he should have done them; he had observed all the rules and regulations. The Master placed before this young man one thing he might yet do, and that was to get rid of his wealth and give it to the poor, and that was the one thing he could not do. How many professing Christian people today would be able to prove their allegiance by measuring up to that test is something on which we have no information nor do we anticipate securing much.

Those who lean much to the custom of trying to justify what they are doing by stating it is the same as Christ would be doing if He were on earth today overlook entirely the great and abiding fact that He was on earth to establish the Kingdom of Heaven. He was not concerned with organizing new political parties or reviving old ones, nor was His time much taken up with the smashing of existing forms of government. He was a poor man as we count possessions in terms of dollars and cents, houses and acres, bonds and debentures, stocks and mortgages. It does seem that too many people seek to justify their own courses by invoking the blessing of Almighty God on them instead of having spent some time in consultation with the Almighty before launching on their course.

Travellers Who Are Welcome

One business visitor in Peterborough within recent days was calling on the dental profession, and the Examiner was informed he had little trouble in having time placed at his disposal for the presentation of his case. His business was selling dental supplies and in particular false teeth, although the trade may have by now a better name than "false" teeth. We have been told this traveller is particularly well informed; he had made a study of the matter for some time before he started on the road. He not only knows the business from the standpoint of his firm, but also from the point of view of the dental profession, and our informant told us this traveller's knowledge was so sound and much of it so new that any dentist could well afford to spend plenty of time talking to him.

A doctor in Peterborough also informed the Examiner recently that there were travellers fro mcertain firms to about giving time to go over a list of sup- whom they were not at all particular plies, and there were others who were always welcome. The reason for the difference in the reception granted the various travellers was stated this way:

"I know as soon as a traveller comes from this firm that he will have nothing new or better, but when the representative of this other house comes I want to see him. I know he comes from a place where the best brains available are working all the time in up-to-date laboratories; they are constantly trying out and experimenting with new ideas, and when they find something better than has been offered before their traveller comes with it. One makes no mistakes even on a busy day in making sure that such a traveller has time to go over his business."

That is the difference we suppose between taking orders and having something worth while to sell. The man to whom the door is open today is the one who has prepared himself for the work he undertakes; when he secures an audience with a prospect he is not going to waste his time; what he has to sell or say is going to be valuable. For that reason the business world comes to look on him with a degree of welcome which it cannot extend to the solicitor who represents a firm which is making no progress.

As It Was On The Tenth

There was something printed in a paper a few days ago about getting "the little man ready for school." It had to do with his clothing, and we read that a boy's clothes are something "in which he should take pride, but the clothes must be of quality and fit so the boy will be moved by them to have pride in them." Perhaps a trifle involved, but you get the general idea.

It was not exactly that way on the Tenth Concession. Getting the "little man" ready to return to school was not such a serious business. As a rule there was a new binding placed around the frame of his slate; he had some new slate pencils wrapped in red and blue paper, perhaps a few new books to mark progress, but the clothing part was not profoundly serious. Truth is there was a good deal of cutting down on the Tenth Concession. Folk who never lived in such a place may require some slight explanation. Simply this—when Angus, or Duncan or Malcolm started back to school they probably wore trousers which had been previously worn by father, grandfather, uncle or some such relative. The exact process is difficult to explain. There was a pattern done in brown paper of a pair of pants for a boy, and this was brought into contact with the available material salvaged from greater pants. It called for investigation and scientific movement to make certain that a pair of good pants for a small boy should spring from a pair of poor or indifferent pants outworn by an elder of the tribe. It was something like building a good henhouse out of a torn-down barn. If the relative whose pants had been led to the slaughter had been given to gay ideas in color scheme then the small Angus or Duncan or Malcolm had to trudge toward school with the color scheme of the relative plainly fastened upon him. But there were no apologies offered and none were expected because nearly all the lads along the Concession and the sidelines had received similar evidence of family endowment.

"And when, as the clothing man suggests, the "little man" was finally taken to the store to be fitted, the fitting was not always of that trim and shapely sort which breeds pride. It was known that the "little man" was growing, and so the parental desire was to secure a suit which would take that into consideration. If he had been growing then it was taken for granted he would keep on doing so. But the suit would not. It was a fixed size and with given dimensions which had in them no elasticity at all. The solution always was the same—the suit had to be secured larger than the boy who was to wear it in order that he might finally "grow into it." It was apt to be rather large all over and often enough the "little man" would have had to grow with the rapidity of asparagus on a warm night to fill out the shoulders, the length of arms and legs and the seat of the pants before evidence of decay and age had left their mark upon the raiment. An open admission of a form of poverty mixed with a dash of frugality perhaps, but such was the custom of the Tenth. Angus or Duncan or Malcolm did not put on shoes and stockings until the weather turned cool in the fall; the feet had become hard enough to run through stubble and that was the supreme test for tough feet. So it is that fitting out the "little man" for school in these advanced days is quite different to the treatment received on the Tenth Concession. But of course that was a long time ago.

At Hamilton a magistrate has ordered three sons to support their aged father. The strange thing about such a case is that the law had to take a hand in it.

Somebody is always taking the joy out of life. Now it is suggested that when Toronto schools do open the school day should be lengthened to make up for the time lost.

Ridgetown is using dynamite to get rid of starlings. That should do the trick if the authorities can devise a means of keeping the birds waiting around until the blast goes off.

SALADS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ John Henry has a dainty wife, she leads him quite a salad life, it's made of this and that; John Henry's stomach calls for more, but she has told him oft before, she fears they may get fat.

¶ John Henry has to work quite hard, he sheds each day three pounds of lard, he's tired when day gets through; he drags his frame at supper time, needs fuel to stiffen up his spine, and he is hungry too.

¶ The table's spread and it is neat, but rather light on things to eat, John feels his hunger mount; his wife attends to all he'll eat, she reckons in caloric heat, the vitamines she counts.

¶ John Henry thinks about the time, when he sat down at home to dine, and he ate spuds and beef; he'd stoke his fire box full back there, a meal was then a real affair, and not a cause for grief.

¶ John Henry is a patient jay, and lets his wife do things her way, he says the salad's great; nor does he tell her to her face, that he is weary of the race, nor chant a hymn of hate.

¶ John Henry's wife takes trips back home, and leaves him living all alone, she says he is a brick; 'tis then he hops and makes the break, and trundles home great slabs of steak—they're cut a good inch thick.

STORM which struck Sudbury is blamed for having cut off the chances of recovery for Roy Beacon, a lad of 14 years who was living in an iron lung at the hospital. The lung is operated by electricity and the storm cut that off. There was no other power available and the lad died. Attending doctor said the case was a hopeless one as both sides of the body paralyzed. Life would have been prolonged with the iron lung doing the breathing, but recovery would not have come.

In the district around London there was such a severe storm that corn fields were flattened, and that is unusual. In the city of London trees were uprooted and several fell against homes, verandahs and did much damage.

Toronto got its full share of the same wind storm, and half a dozen pleasure boats were sunk at their moorings, and a sea plane went down at the foot of Yonge street.

Near Dutton the roof was blown from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dennis. They were sleeping in a downstairs room at the time and managed to leave the house in safety before the walls began caving in.

Clarence Is In Trouble.

CLARENCE STEWART has some explaining to do to the police at Galt or Preston. An alarm was sent out that a car had been stolen in Preston and Clarence was found in Galt. So was the car. It is charged Clarence was drunk in charge of a car and not his own car either. Explanation? Clarence said two cars were parked together in Preston, and they both looked the same to him. Claims he simply got into the wrong car. Explaining drinking and driving may not be as simple.

Canadian Office and School Furniture Co. at Preston had a strike when 75 employees quit because wages and working conditions were objected to. Conference were held and the strikers have gone back to work.

AIR CONDITIONING did not exist a few years ago, but one estimate says there are 100,000 men in United States working at it now, and as they are skilled men for the most part their wages are high.

In 1933 the total orders for air-conditioning equipment amounted to $8,000,000. Gaining speed it had reached $43,000,000 in 1936 and the estimates are that it will more than double that by the end of the present year.

The figures are for factory sales from 125 manufacturers making parts, notably fans and heaters.

Technical schools, ready to meet the demand for expert workers, are now offering courses for air-conditioning workers. Enrolment is large.

Keepers of restaurants find that air-conditioned dining rooms seems to whet the appetite. Patrons feel like eating more and the more they eat the louder rings the cash register.

One Kiss For $40.

THE APPEAL Court in Australia has cut the price of a kiss from $60 to $40. Joseph Romer, 30-year-old importer, appealed a conviction and fine for assaulting Judith Lipman, 18-year-old part-time stenographer. Miss Lipman claimed the assault took the form of a kiss while she was working for him. Romer claimed he had not kissed her at all. The appeal court upheld the conviction but cut the penalty in half.

Next time the Canadian navy is recalled from shore leave, Victoria citizens will not leap so hastily to the conclusion that war has been declared. The Skeena had been ordered to stand by H.M.C.S. Armentieres, mine-sweeper which had grounded on a mud-flat.

Building Their Own Road.

WHEN THE first autumn rains have settled Okanagan dust and cooled the air, 100 volunteer workers will resume construction of the 20-mile highway from Kelowna to Naramata in British Columbia. Last September Okanagan residents, tired of government delay in connecting the two lakeside towns by road contributed money to an equipment fund and toiled Sundays and Thursdays at construction work. Four miles were completed when November snow blanketed the project. When they returned to work in spring four culverts were put in. Another two and a half miles will be completed before the snow flies.

"But I only wanted to help, Reggie. I thought you worked on a commission basis."—London Opinion.

A Politician Who Can Saw Wood

Joseph Bradette of Cochrane, Wins Bucksaw By Displaying His Skill in Competition

(From the Globe and Mail.)

MEN BROUGHT up on the farm never forget whatever knack they had of doing certain things well. They may become wizards of finance or captains of industry, but they could tell all their new associates how to pull peas with a scythe. Take the case of Mr. Joseph A. Bradette, Member of Parliament for Cochrane North. Mr. Bradette is immersed in merchandizing and in public affairs, but his roots are in the country soil. So when he heard there was to be a buck-sawing competition for all farmers and bushmen in the Kapuskasing district he entered, won the contest and now has a brand new bucksaw. Of course, Mr. Bradette didn't need a bucksaw, but memories of his earlier skill in the backbreaking business of sawing wood urged him to try his hand again.

Mr. Bradette is not a loquacious legislator, but this may be explained by his accomplishments in sawing wood. The bucksaw and the crosscut saw are not in such general use as they were a generation or so ago, having yielded largely to the sawing machine. The Cochrane Parliamentarian probably knows all about the crosscut, too. No work called for greater co-ordination of effort between two men. There could be a bit of shirking, but not by a man who valued his reputation for doing the right thing. Loafing at the end of a crosscut saw wouldn't help in winning a logging camp popularity contest.

The bucksaw generally came into use after the winter's fuel had been piled in the farm yard, conveniently near the big living-room with the box stove. Sawing this into stove lengths was among the chores, or for an off-day in farm work. With the bucksaw a youth was his own boss. The harder and more skilfully he worked the sooner he had firewood enough ready to satisfy the yawning maw of the box stove for a week or so. The box stove was always roaring for more fuel. "Heap on more wood, the wind is chill."

Mr. Bradette's winning of a new bucksaw is a happy incident. It shows that early talent remains with a man even in greatly changed conditions. No doubt there are many men in public life today, who with two good horses and a plow, could turn a straighter furrow on the farm than they do—but this is getting into politics; and there is enough politics in the regular way throughout this Province just now.

Football Pools Are Big Industry

No Fewer Than 12,000,000 Coupons Mailed To Operators Every Week

(From the St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

BRITISHERS have always been noted for their readiness to "put a bit on the horse," or in some other form of gambling, greyhounds having become a new industry during the past few years. But all kinds of gambling are eclipsed by the football "pools," which have seized the country like an epidemic. Post-office figures show that no fewer than 12,000,000 coupons are mailed to pool operators every week during the 38 weeks of the soccer season, so that, allowing for customers who send in more than one attempt to forecast results of the Saturday afternoon League games, probably about one-fourth of the entire population of the country regularly "play the pools." This is both an indication of the prevalence of the instinct for having a little gamble and the popularity of the game.

The inventor of the present system was a Birmingham man named Barnard who decided that there was room for an organization that would pool all the money received for forecasts, deduct a percentage for expenses and profits, and then divide the rest between the successful guessers. The original entrance fee was only a penny—two cents—and that is a large proportion of the pool monies today. Last year one firm paid out nearly $2,000,000 to penny investors. Mr. Barnard's scheme was soon copied and today there is a number of pool operators, who by agreement, charge five per cent. profit and 15 per cent. for expenses, the remaining 80 per cent. being distributed among the winners.

Most of the sums betted are small ranging from pennies to a few shillings. Last April a poor Jewish tailor in the east-end of London filled up a coupon and sent sixpence. He must have made lucky guesses on a day when favorites were upset, for his dividend on the twelve cents was over $150,000, the largest dividend yet paid. It is no wonder working people essay their luck.

Records show that the aggregate average weekly investments are about $3,750,000, the great majority of the individual amounts being sixpence. This has meant an enormous increase in postal business, the addition to the income in stamps and commission on postal orders amounting $1,250,000 a week. In many postoffices, particularly in districts where there are pool offices, the staffs have had to be heavily increased. One Liverpool office had to make out postal orders for 120,000 of five shillings each for winners, and a special supply had to be sent from London by air.

Operation of the pools is an exact science in itself and has given employment to a great many people, chiefly girls and young women. One of the Liverpool pools employs 10,000 of them, obtained through labor exchanges, and between the ages of 17 and 25. There are many departments, but the main sorting room is a vast building where several thousands of scrutineers do their work while music is relayed through a loud speaker to break the monotony of their task. The envelopes are previously opened by a battery of machines each of which slits off the tops at the rate 4,000 an hour. All results of games are known by 6 p.m., and so complete is the organization that by 11 o'clock the millions of coupons have been examined and checked and the winners known. There is, however, a great amount of work to be done all week, and the employees are kept on full time. They have a welfare centre, their own messrooms and medical attention, and each is given holidays at a company camp if desired.

Truly a remarkable gambling organization.

Collecting Dues From the Workers

University President Calls It a Racket; Strikes Called When Workers Satisfied

(Financial Post)

WHEN THE NRA was introduced into the United States it was pointed out that its provisions were modelled upon the "trade stabilization" practices of Chicago racketeers, such as Al Capone. Racketeering in that city, as well as in New York, took the form of enforcing rigid standards of practice in a trade or industry at the point of a sub-machine gun. NRA adopted most of the practices but enforced them at the point of court injunctions and orders of industrial boards.

So often is an idea or principle, which the community may be willing to accept within the limitations of legal or social controls, exploited for profit by venal groups.

At this time public sympathy for the laboring man and the workers' desire to organize are both being exploited by power-grasping and money-greedy individuals who pose as Labor Leaders. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, veteran president of Columbia University, painted the picture, as it applies to the United States and in smaller measure to Canada, this week when he said:

"...wage earners are quite innocently being exploited on a large scale by... racketeers. Nothing is doing so great damage to the interests of the wage-worker as this exploitation. His sympathies, his emotions and his fears are played upon. He is compelled to take action in which he does not believe and to make payments he does not desire to make, under the threat of denunciation or persecution for disloyalty to his fellow wage-earners.

"Not only hundreds but thousands of wage-workers who have had no desire whatever to lay down their tools have been compelled by their so-called leaders to engage in strikes under the guise of promoting the interests of wage-workers, while all that was really at stake was the glorification of these unworthy leaders and the satisfaction of their thirst for power.

"The truth of this statement is demonstrated by the frequency with which strikes are organized and called when the wage-workers themselves are either entirely satisfied with the conditions under which they work or would be able quickly to adjust any differences with their employers through conference or arbitration."

Recent revelations have indicated the insincerity and callousness of some of these exploiters of labor and public opinion. Harper's Magazine in July published the frank confession of a university professor, who spent several years as an active worker in the Communist party until sheer disgust at the dishonesty of the work he was asked to do forced him to retire. The Forum published in August the recital of a labor organizer who told how he exploited workers solely for the dues he collected.

SPEEDING UP.

(London Daily Express)

THE AIR MINISTRY report that in Europe our air-liners come ninth in the speed list, just managing to beat Rumania by a mile an hour. We average 125 m.p.h. against Germany's 144 m.p.h., and the reason is we use lower-powered airplanes, and so they are more economical to run. No doubt that is very pleasing to the shareholders, but not to air travellers, and on them finally the best profits will depend. The virtues of air travel are speed and cleanliness, and of these the greater is speed. Down below on the roads we also move slowly, though our cars, unlike our airplanes, will go quickly. On one stretch of the new German roads the census shows that 1,600 cars pass in two hours on a Sunday evening. That means that for two hours one car passes by without difficulty and at speed every four seconds. How is that possible? Well, the national motor roads are over sixty feet wide and have two broad tracks each twenty-two and a half feet wide, separated from each other by a grass strip fifteen feet wide. Fast roads for fast cars.

THE BEST MEDIUM.

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

SPEAKING generally, the press of Ontario is quite conscientious in carrying fair, complete and accurate reports of the doings and sayings of public men of all political stripes and thought. The Canadian Press, of which all the daily newspapers are members, is most particular about giving fair and unbiased treatment to the day's political news. For this there is, of course, no charge. It's service to the reading public.

Besides, the advertising columns of every newspaper, no matter what its editorial opinions, are open to the political parties. When a party uses the radio it pays, and plenty, for the service; when a hall is hired, rent must be paid and announcements paid for; if bills, circulars or billboards are used, these, limited in their capacity to reach the public as they are, must be paid for. Why not the newspaper advertisement, the best medium of all?

THE WORM TURNING

(San Francisco Argonaut)

A DISTINGUISHED English scholar, reviewing recently a book in the Manchester Guardian (and incidentally we would remark that the Manchester Guardian is one of the world's finest newspapers—we almost said the finest,) remarked that "It is a general defect of the essays that none of them is really long enough to do justice to its theme." No doubt he is right. But think what a criticism that is on the spirit of our age. For years editors have been saying to their writers, "Make it short!" They have seldom said, "Make your article fine, and let it do justice to your subject!"

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Sharp improvement in continental demand for Canadian wheat, estimated at 1,000,000 bushels, and strong Liverpool prices sent wheat futures more than two cents higher on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day. Final quotations were 1⅝ to 2¼ cents higher, October $1.25¼, November $1.25¼ to ⅝, December $1.23⅛ and May $1.24¼.

Wheat bounded up two cents at the start and maintained a steady keel for the remainder of the session despite heavier hedging pressure of new crop wheat, totalling 2,172,000 bushels, through the clearing house here yesterday.

Selling was well absorbed and prices showed only fractional recessions from top levels. Southern and local firms offered only minor support.

In the UPPER photograph of the ABOVE layout, a Chinese clerk is shown making changes in the reports posted on the walls of the office. BELOW, clerks translate news dispatches from English to Chinese. ALBERTA ELECTION MAY BE NECESSARY

EDMONTON, Sept. 14.—(CP). — Premier Aberhart may be compelled to have an election. There an audience of about 450 at a Social Credit rally in suburban Edmonton last night.

"What is the use of an election?" he asked. "Who else would you put in again but Social Credit? I don't think it is necessary but I may be compeled to have an election. There is such a thing as compelling us constitutionally.

'I say to you folk therefore that is the proposition. It is not a case of choice but of determination. You have a government doing the best it can for the individual, small man and the fellow that is down and out. Something must be done. I say the success is dependent entirely upon your unity."

He attacked financial institutions and said the government was emphasizing the banks must create more credit so the people could purchase what they produce.

Talks to the People – J. H. Burnham

The air is full of "probes". There are at least 27 probes under way or threatened in Canada at the present moment. There is however only one that is really needed and that one hasn't been so much as mentioned, viz. the probe into the people themselves. Let us find out what is wrong with the people themselves and all other difficulties will be solved. That is the idea at the root of Christianity. It is not the Bible says, what goes into a man but what comes out of him that is the trouble. I believe the divine plan is best. It takes it for granted that the heart of man is the real seat of iniquity and that all that God made or permits to be made is good. All wickedness is voluntary and until the blame is put where it belongs it is useless to keep on blaming something else. If it is temptation that is to blame and not man why was Christ sacrificed? Why were the offending things not sacrificed? Will we ever learn that it is not man who rules but God. This is not a spasm of emotion—it is a fact. Substituting our own plans for those of God is just another phase of modern presumption and unbelief. Indeed if one-half have to act as nurse-maids to the other half it is doubtful if either is worth saving and we will all be destroyed in another flood—of beer. But what can be done by or for a people who can sit and listen to men who say that "God is open to their criticism as any other author" and who left just enough of the Bible for them to pretend they have not destroyed it. Why class the Bible with beer? Clean your own skirts first. It is you who have wrecked the people and it is almost inconceivable that a people who cannot even keep sober should dictate to God. So long as a people are content to listen to those who tell God what He must do to qualify and what the Bible must be to suit them there is no hope—just a lot of foolishness, the modernism which has succeeded mediaevalism. The practical man has ousted the Puritan.

MASKINONGE FRY OUTPUT IS LESS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 14.—Following is a copy of a letter received recently by Mr. P. Dobacha, manager of Puff Ball Inn Resort, from the Game and Fisheries Department, Biological and Fish Culture Branch, Toronto:

Dear Sir,—Your letter of the 5th instant with reference to the fishing in the Trent River has been referred to me for attention and reply, and have been re-stocked as follows:

For 1934: Black bass, 10,000 fry; maskinonge, 40,000; pickerel, 230,000.

For 1935: 1,000 fingerlings; maskinonge, 45,000; pickerel, 1,200,000.

For 1936: Black bass, 10,000; maskinonge, 15,000; pickerel, 1,500,000.

We have experienced difficulty in obtaining a sufficient quantity of maskinonge fry for distribution in view of the fact that we could not get a sufficient number of spawning male maskinonge at the seat of our operations last spring, so that our output of fry was reduced considerably. The question of protecting the natural spawning grounds of the maskinonge in order to maintain this important game-fish is of the greatest value, and the Department intends to do everything possible along these lines by creating suitable sanctuaries for bass and maskinonge.

Thanking you for the interest taken, I have the honor to be, sir, your obedient servant,

H. K. MacKay,
Biologist and Director Fish Culture Branch.

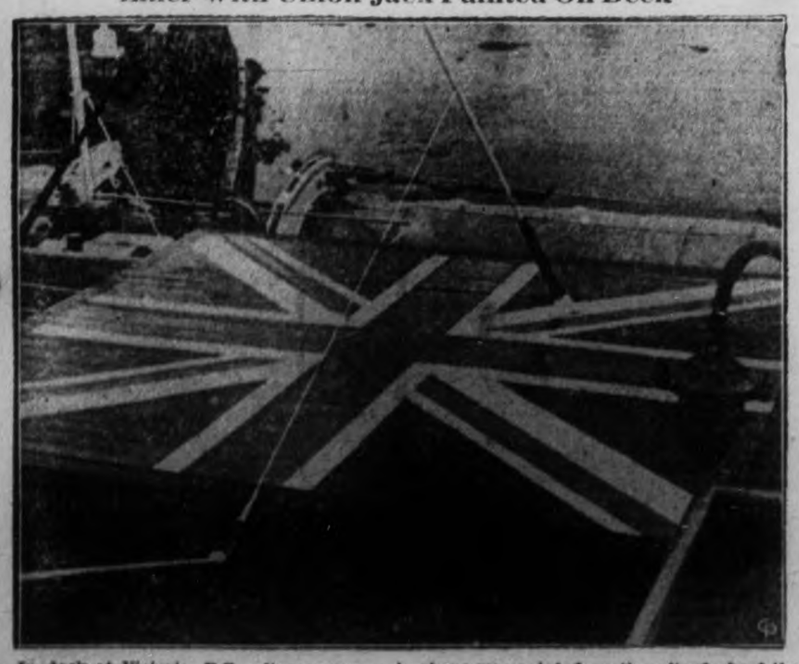
Liner With Union Jack Painted On Deck



In dock at Victoria, B.C., after a voyage from the Oriental war area, the Empress of Japan unloaded many refugees from China at the Canadian port. To protect the ship from aerial bombs of Japanese and Chinese aeroplanes, the huge Union Jack shown above was painted on the afterdeck of the liner. Several British emblems were painted in prominent parts of the ship to protect it from the fate of being raked by bombs and gunfire as have several other passenger ships in the China waters.

Giving The Potato A Chance In Variety Of Dishes

Far Too Often The Only Potato Dish On Table Is "Plain Boiled Potatoes"

By MARY MOORE

IF you serve whole plain boiled potatoes to your family night after night your toes are about to be trod on.

Not only have I been asked to "do something" about this plain boiled potato habit—but I am impelled to from my own observation.

It is a lamentable indictment when an American gentleman touring in our province, after having had dinner at our home, felt safe to remark to me about the plain boiled potato situation. He said that it was almost incredible that the only places he had not been served plain boiled potatoes on his whole three-weeks tour were at our place, and when he cooked his own family's meals over a camp fire.

I blushed to my ears—for while this may be due partially to coincidence—it is damning evidence of lack of imagination, laziness — and certainly a crushing blow to my efforts in trying to help you make your cooking interesting.

Now since potatoes in America seem to be our staple starchy food just as rice is in China, spaghetti in Italy and oatmeal in Scotland, we have to do something about them.

This collection of potato recipes is not sensational. It merely attempts to give potatoes a chance, for they are the most versatile vegetable we have (unless the tomato is remembered), and the most delicious when treated with even a fair amount of imagination.

About once a year I am invited by my husband to attend an open meeting and dinner of his doctor confreres. Because he has some influence with the entertainment committee I always urge him to urge them to have their Special Potatoes au Gratin.

Follow closely and I will tell you, my pets, how they do it—you will then know why I like them so.

Potatoes Au Gratin (a la Firandelli).

Boil medium-sized or small potatoes with their skins on until they are three-quarters tender (waxy, not mealy). Peel and cut into ½-inch cubes. To serve 6 people you will require about 10 medium-sized potatoes (or 14 small ones). Now prepare the cheese sauce. Grate 1½ cups cheese, tightly packed—slightly less if the cheese is old. Make a thin white sauce by melting 4 tablespoons butter, adding 2 tablespoons flour, and 1 teaspoon salt, and pouring on, while stirring, 1½ cups milk; continuing stirring until thick — to this add all but ¼ cup of the cheese and stir until cheese melts. Place half of the potatoes in large shallow baking dish which has been generously buttered, and pour over half the thin cheese sauce, then arrange the remaining potatoes over and cover with the remaining sauce. Sprinkle over the half cup of cheese and springle this with paprika. Place in moderate oven to heat through—when hot raise up in oven to close under broiler and finish off top by browning all the little tips quickly. This last quick passing under broiler gives it the professional touch. Serve very hot.

Canadian Mashed Potatoes

For six people pare and cut in halves lengthwise 6 medium large potatoes and cook in boiling salted water until very tender. Immediately drain, then shake potatoes over low heat to dry them. Have ready 1½ cups very hot milk to which you have added 3 tablespoons butter and 1 teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon white pepper. Mash the potatoes very well, then add the milk mixture, doing all your mashing over low heat. When sufficiently mashed, leave over heat, stirring almost constantly until they begin to bubble and some of the moisture has evaporated from the milk.

French Mashed Potatoes

Consist of adding 2 cups hot milk to 8 medium large mashed potatoes and constantly stirring over low heat until they have thickened enough to serve, flavoring as above. This cooking (which takes about 20 minutes) gives the milk in the mixture a nutty flavor, hence changes the flavor of the potatoes and is very good.

Boiled Whole Potatoes with Savory Butter

If you like the appearance of whole boiled potatoes but wish to improve their flavor, wash, drain them and add them to a mixture of 4 table spoons melted butter, 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley, ½ teaspoon paprika and ½ teaspoon each salt and pepper. Gently shake these over low heat until all potatoes are coated with the mixture and serve hot.

French Fried Potatoes

Peel and slice potatoes either like orange sections about ½ inch wide or in slices ¼ inch thick. Let stand in cold water for at least an hour to remove the starch in them. Dry them well in a clean cloth and have ready hot fat at 370 deg. F. Fry one layer of potatoes at a time for about five or six minutes. To make them puff up, before they are quite done take them out with a skimmer and drain them then return to the hot lard and continue for another minute or two until they are done. Drain on unglazed paper and sprinkle evenly with salt. Keep hot in oven with door open spread in single layer until all are done.

Original Hashed Brown Potatoes

One quart finely chopped cooked potatoes (these may be either freshly cooked or cold leftovers—4 cups makes a quart), ¾ cup cream, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 3 tablespoons butter (or chicken dripping). Mix the first five ingredients. Melt the butter or dripping in an iron frying pan and when bubbling hot, but not brown, add the potatoes packing them lightly into a layer of uniform thickness and let cook very slowly for 25 minutes without disturbing. Fold over and serve on platter as you would an omelette, surrounded by the meat course—such as beef balls, lamb chops or small pork sausage.

Occasions often arise when you do not wish to serve potatoes (and if they do not you should see that they do) because you have too many other nice vegetables in season. But maybe guests are expected, that are so accustomed to potatoes they would miss them. Potato puffs are the answer for they look like more than they are.

Potato Puffs

Two cups well mashed potatoes, 3 tablespoons cream beaten into them. Then add 2 well beaten egg yolks and 1 tablespoon melted butter, and salt to taste. Finally two beaten whites are folded in. Pile in high little mounds and bake till brown.

There are still little potato cylinders rolled in crumbled, shredded wheat and baked, and potato apples made from mashed potatoes and shaped like apples are rolled in crumbs and stuck with a clove for a stem and baked, potato croquettes, Franconia potatoes, Duchess Potatoes, Stuffed Baked Potatoes, Potatoes with green pepper and cheese, French potato balls, dear old Scalloped Potatoes (which should have plenty of milk and salt and a 2-hour cooking period in a slow oven to make them perfect—a little grated onion and white pepper help too). New potatoes baked and brushed with butter 5 minutes before they are done, Potato Surprise, but if I give them all to you you won't write to me, and I won't know if you are changing your potato ways. See?

Evening Styles Luxurious

Gail Patrick poses a handsome ermine coat over a beige chiffon gown.

By LISBETH

Evening fashions for fall and winter are luxurious. That has been said many times this season. And it remains true.

Typical of such luxury fashions is this costume worn by one of the most decorative of Hollywood sirens, Gail Patrick. Over a beige chiffon gown which is simply but beautifully styled she poses a handsome, regal evening coat of ermine—that fur of kings and queens.

This season evening wraps are practically all long, and both slim capes and coats are favored. There are madonna capes that slip over the head, there are coats with fur yokes and wool is combined for evening with silver fox.

Long redingotes are shown by some designers, other prefer pencil-slim wraps, and then there are cape-coats and the dolman—always distinctive because high style. Besides the fur yokes there are furred fronts, as done by Lelong, and, of course, white fox collars, always stylish and flattering.

Velvet Popular

Velvet is strongly sponsored by the best dressmakers, and brocades fit into the luxury picture.

Persian lamb, black caracul, Hudson seal and safari brown Alaska seal are favorites with those buying early. In the new chubby or chunky coat silhouette, which is emphasized as newest for the season, in the shorter coats, Australian opossum, beaver, nutria, skunk and dyed fox are used.

In the new models of cloth, fur trimmed, natural colored cloth with brown fur trims are especially popular. And the tuxedo style of fur trimming seems to have a great following this season.

QUESTION.—I was in a home recently where they served cinnamon rolls on top of which must have been poured some sort of a syrup, the surface was glazed and the sticky syrup top made them taste delicious.

Would you kindly give me the formula for such a syrup and tell me if it is poured on top of rolls before they are put in the oven or wait until they have risen from the heat in the oven. Thanking you, (Miss) L.H.W.

ANSWER.—Thank you for your letter.

Sticky Cinnamon Rolls

One quart raised bun or bread dough, ½ cup granulated sugar, 2 well-beaten eggs, ¼ cup soft butter, 1 cup brown sugar (half of it for the pan), 2 tablespoons cinnamon, ½ cup currants, ½ cup seeded raisins. Add the granulated sugar, eggs, and half the butter to the dough, knead and roll out ¼ inch thick. Brush with butter, sprinkle with half the brown sugar, cinnamon, currants and raisins. Roll the dough the same as for jelly roll and then cut it into 1½-inch slices. Brush a deep heavy pan with butter and springle thinly with brown sugar; lay the slices in the pan so they do not touch. Set to rise as you would bread until light. Place in an oven of 350 deg. Fahr. for 45 to 50 minutes. Take them from the pan as soon as removed from oven. It is important not to have too hot an oven. Put an asbestos mat under the pan if oven is too hot.

QUESTION.—Would you please send me the recipe for pickling silver skin onions and small beetroots? I would also like a recipe for Scotch Cakes. I follow your page in the paper every week and find it very helpful. Thanking you, (Mrs.) Marty H

ANSWER.—Thank you for your letter.

Pickled Silver Skin Onion

Peel small white onions, cover with brine, allowing 1½ cups salt to 2 quarts boiling water, and let stand 2 days. Drain and cover with more brine; let stand 2 days, and again drain. Make more brine and heat to boiling point; put in onions and boil 3 minutes. Put in jars, interspersing with bits of mace, white peppercorns, cloves, bits of bay leaf, and slices of red pepper. Fill jars to overflowing with white vinegar scalded with sugar, allowing one cup sugar to one gallon vinegar. Seal while hot.

Pickled Beets

Wash beets very well—using either uniform-sized small beets not more than 1½ inches in diameter, or larger beets that you can quarter or slice. Cook beets in water till tender, starting them in cold water. Drain them, submerge in cold water and slip off the skins—if they are large, slice or quarter at this point. Prepare the vinegar as follows: to 1 pint vinegar add 1 cup sugar (white or brown) and 1 pint boiling water and 1 teaspoon salt and bring to boiling point and drop in the beets—there should be enough of this liquid to cover the beets. As soon as boiling point is reached, pack all into sterile jars and seal. Cover beets in jars with boiling liquid.

You had probably written your letter before the recipes for Scotch Oatmeal Cookies (two of them) appeared two weeks ago. In the event that neither of them are what you desire, I am giving herewith a good method of making Scotch Scones.

Scotch Scones

Add 3 teaspoons baking powder to 2 cups flour, and ½ cup sugar. Rub into the dry ingredients ¼ cup butter. Combine 2 well-beaten eggs with ½ cup thin cream, and add to first mixture. Make into biscuits, or cut in squares and fold over into triangles. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. (very hot). Serve hot—with butter or syrup or jam.

QUESTION.—Would you please send me a pickle recipe pamphlet and a recipe for fresh apricot jam also a vegetable marrow jam. Thanking you, Mrs. E. S.

ANSWER.—Thank you for your letter.

We do not have a pamphlet containing pickle recipes, but plan to have one ready next year in time for pickling season. Be kind enough to clip the cookery pages containing pickle recipes—many of which have appeared in the past month. Many others will appear from time to time as the readers ask for them. Would you like me to publish some special pickle recipes for you? If so, write again, naming them.

Fresh Apricot Jam

Place apricots in frying basket or big strainer and quickly dip in boiling water to loosen the skins. Peel, cut in pieces and add one-half as much sugar as fruit, and cook in an enamel preserving kettle until thick. To retain rich amber color, avoid over-cooking. Store in glasses and cover with paraffin. A delicious jam combines pineapple and apricot in same proportions and same amounts of sugar.

Vegetable Marrow Jam

Peel vegetable marrow, remove stringly pulp and seeds and cut into half-inch rings and cut rings into one-inch pieces. Prepare about 6 lbs. Prepare ½-lb green ginger by paring and slicing thinly and boiling 1 hour in a syrup of equal parts sugar and water to cover. Slice 2 lemons extremely thinly, pouring the juice over the marrow to preserve it. Put all in preserving kettle (including the ginger and syrup in which it was cooked), and let stand 24 hours—after adding 5 lbs. sugar. Boil about 1¼ hours or until fruit is transparent over low heat, stirring often—bottle and seal.

Spanish Rebels Condemn U.S. Flier

Made prisoner by the insurgent armies after flying for several months for the Loyalists, Harold E. Dahl, American aviator shown at LEFT, has been tried by court-martial and sentenced to be shot. His wife, the former Edith Rogers, one-time singer with crooner Rudy Vallee, and his mother, appealed to the American government to intervene and save the flier's life. U.S. envoy, Claude Bowers, hopes to effect an exchange for insurgent prisoners held by the Loyalists. Mrs. Dahl, pictured at RIGHT, awaits the outcome of negotiations at her home in Cannes, France.

A RELISH that is green and good on hamburgers, barbecue sandwiches, and almost all cold meats is hard to find.

Stop here if you were hunting:

No Green Relish

Four 6-inch cucumbers (long and slendr), 1 medium cauliflower. Slice them in four lengthwise and slice off the heavy seedy portion. Put them through the coarse knife of the food chopper with the cauliflower. Soak this overnight in a brine of 1-3 cup salt and 4 cups water.

In the morning put through food chopper 6 large white onions, 2 large seeded green peppers, 1 hot red pepper, 6 large apples peeled and cored. To these add 2 ounces mustard seed, 8 cups brown sugar, 1 pint scalded cider vinegar, and the drained cucumbers and cauliflower. Bring all to boil. Mix together ½ cup flour with ¼ ounce (2½ tablespoons) of turmeric and mix to paste with another pint of cider vinegar—adding the vinegar slowly. When smooth, add this to the boiling mixture and continue to boil for 20 to 30 minutes, stirring often. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

Corn Roast Note

(By MARY MOORE)

THE other night we went to what was called a "Corn Roast"—but we had hamburgers fried on an oil stove, raw Bermuda onions and coffee, no bonfire, and what's more, no corn. That's the farthest cry from Roasted Corn I ever heard of let alone ate.

That roused me to having a Corn Roast proper of my own.

We bought 2½ dozen cobs of corn from a farmer who we know is death on borer. We made hamburgers, too, but fried them and onions over our open fire—which by the way was well planned.

At least three-quarters of an hour before the guests arrived we started our fire so we would have glowing embers ready for cooking purposes; these were spread out over a surface a yard square and we kept feeding the fuel (small logs) from one side only.

When our hamburgers had started sizzling we dipped the unhusked corn in water and laid it in the embers (with gloves on please, heavy leather ones). After one side is rather dark brown turn it over until other side is dark brown. Still with gloves on husk it. Have half a pound of butter cut lengthwise of the block on a large plate or platter and as the corn is "done to a turn" husk it and lay it on the butter platter for the hungry Corn Roasters to butter and eat quick. The nutty flavor developed in the corn is a new thrill for you who have not tried it this way.

HE ATE ALL-BRAN AND IMPROVED WONDERFULLY

Read this voluntary letter: "In regard to your ALL-BRAN, it is marked on the package 'best as a cereal, best for cooking,' and, as far as I am concerned, you might add best for health. Since I have begun to eat it, I have improved wonderfully."—Mr. H. E. Poole (address on request).

ALL-BRAN corrects common constipation, due to meals low in "bulk." Within the body, it absorbs water, and forms a soft mass, gently sponging out the system.

ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B to tone up the intestines, and iron for the blood. Isn't this food better than taking weakening pills and drugs?

Eat two tablespoonfuls daily, either as a cereal with milk or cream, or in recipes. In chronic cases, with each meal. Sold by all grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

INSTINCTIVELY you reach for the small, tender, young radishes—leave the big, pulpy ones.

For as the radish grows large and coarse, the flavor seems to grow right out of it. The little radishes are filled with sweetness. But the big ones taste like wood.

You'll find a similar difference in tea leaves. The choice, young leaves have the flavor—the big, bulky leaves are poor in taste.

In every package of Tender Leaf Tea, you get the choice, young tea leaves, filled with flavor. No coarse, heavy leaves are included for bulk.

A new scientific instrument was used to measure the aroma in 14 leading brands of tea. It showed that only one other tea—a more expensive brand—was the equal of Tender Leaf Tea. Some of the other brands had only one-sixth as much aroma.

Your grocer has Tender Leaf Tea in two convenient sizes—each package filled with the choice, young tea leaves. Try this tea!

Flexible Muscles Make A Girl's Movements Graceful

By Gladys Glad

A well-known author and traveler, who recently returned to this country from abroad, tells me that over in Algiers there are Nautch dancers who perform the most graceful of dances while standing in one spot and never moving their feet. These girls, he claims, are trained while very young to exert complete control over every muscle in their bodies.

They are amazingly limber and flexible, he says, and their every movement is a marvel of lithe suppleness and grace. Which is more than you can say of a good many women in this country! The only reason why any woman ever becomes awkward and gauche in her movements, is because she permits her muscles to become stiff and rigid. She isn't trained from childhood to keep them limber, as the Algerian lassies are. And when she grows up, she usually does not do much to correct any awkwardness of movement that she may have developed.

Exercise Makes Flexibility

All women, of course, desire to be supple and graceful. But any damsel who permits her muscles to become stiff and rigid just naturally seems awkward. A girl's body must be supple and limber if she wishes her movement to possess grace and beauty.

Exercise really is the best way to achieve such flexibility. Limbering exercises are beneficial from the standpoint of health and beauty, for they keep the body firm, lithe and in good condition. Awkwardness results from one-sided occupations that use the same group of muscles to the neglect of others. Hence, I shall devote this article to a series of limbering exercises designed to bring about graceful and harmonious movements.

One of the best exercises for limbering the body is to stand erect and grasp one thigh with both hands just above the knee. Pull in short quick jerks upward and kick downward again, so that the loosely held leg swings back and forth like a pendulum. Repeat with the opposite leg.

Stand erect, shoulders back, arms extended sideways at shoulder level. Bending the elbows limply, bring the hands back so that the backs of them hit the shoulders. Then throw the hands out again to their original position. This must be done with a brisk, vigorous movement, much in the way chorus girls do it in some of their routines.

Stand erect, arms hanging loosely at the sides. Then shake the arms in a slightly circular motion, and at the same time move the arms slowly forward, upward, backward and down again. Be sure, however, that the muscles in you rarms and hands are completely relaxed.

CHINESE PEOPLE DO NOT WANT WAR ROTARIANS TOLD

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 14.—"All the Chinese wants is to be left alone. She has no aggressive aim against any other nation, and desires to be at peace with the world and make her own contributions to civilization," Rev. J. M. Menzies, world traveller, graduate from the School of Practical Science at the University of Toronto, preacher and teacher, told Rotarians at their luncheon held in the St. Lawrence Hotel on Monday. Living for the past few years in Tsinan, capital of Shantung province, the speaker disclosed a clear conception of the social and political problems of China together with an intimate knowledge of its historical background. "China, Ancient and Modern," was the subject on which this member of the International Rotary Club at Tsinan, based his remarks.

China's population of five hundred million, forms the greatest homogeneous mass of people in any nation of the world. Canada is united rather than divided, to China by the Pacific Ocean said the speaker, who went on to tell that it costs more to bring freight from Port Hope to Toronto than from China to New York.

With the finding of the Peking man who is said to have lived between 900 and 5,000 years ago in the early Pleistocene age, the Chinese is regarded as the typical man of the world, for his descent can be traced through the ages to this five hundred million people of to-day. "There is the place to study mankind as he develops," said the speaker, as he produced pictures of several bronze utensils made and used nearly 3000 years ago. The moulds in which these vessels were made were assembled together in as many as 72 small pieces and resulted in an alloy which modern metallurgists attempt to copy but fail to produce. Their copper, these ancients people found close at hand, but for their tin they went to Burma, in India. Jade was one of the most highly-prized items to the ancient Chinese, who travelled to the northern borders of Tibet which was their nearest source of supply.

Sense of Touch

There exists in the Chinese a highly-developed sense of touch found only among the blind of the white race, who then develop that sense to a high degree. A thing of beauty to him must have beauty of feeling.

For inventive genius the Chinese do not exceeded. To the warrior we gave the cross-bow trigger, the saddle and stirrups for his horses, and the gunpowder that was later used in firearms, while one of their greatest contributions to posterity was the porcelain dishes which we use to-day. The Chinese gave the world dishes that could be kept clean and thus made a contribution of inestimable value to public health. Up till fifty years ago the Chinese published and printed more books than all the rest of the world. The modern Chinese is a pacifist.

They are now unified to a great extent and many of these War Lords who were responsible for internal strife have been superceded. The Communists who were driven to the North of China have now united with the government in opposing Japan. The Chinese do not want to fight although several years ago the students rose up in the universities crying, "We must fight Japan," but the government said "No." The masses have slowly learned that the old pacifist attitude must cease and that they must prepare for war, for when they are armed for peace there would be no aggression by the Japanese.

At the conclusion of his address a vote of thanks was moved to the speaker by Mr. Earl Ball. Guests at the luncheon were Messrs. L. B. Glover, W. H. Ashton, George Ironside, George Lucy who gave a vocal solo, and Dr. C. S. Reddick.

COURT OF APPEAL UPSETS FINDING

Upsetting a finding of the Peterborough County Court by which damages were awarded the defendant in the auto accident damage suit of A. L. Payne against J. Harvey Dummitt here in April, the plaintiff has been absolved from blame in a decision announced by the Appeal Court at Osgoode Hall. Appeal decision in the case as against the defendant has been reserved.

The case concerns a collision between a truck which was being driven toward Peterborough on the Warsaw Road by Payne and a car driven toward Warsaw by Dummitt on February 24, 1937. In the County Court action the plaintiff sought $120 damages and the defendant counter-claimed $120. The Judge found for $200 with costs against the plaintiff.

W. J. Arthur Fair acted for Payne in the appeal, T. J. Carley, K.C., acting for Dummitt.

LIVE DUCKS ON EXHIBIT.

Local dealers in shotguns and ammunition and other sporting equipment have taken heed of the tomorrow's opening of the duck hunting season in the area north of Highway 7. Displays of duck hunting equipment are general. Two windows include live specimens as attractions to catch the eyes of passers-by.

The Rambling REPORTERS

FAINTS AT WEDDING.

There is a story in general circulation around the city to the effect that a certain young bridegroom—a bridegroom, mark you, and not the bride—recently fainted twice during a wedding ceremony that was being performed in Sacred Heart Church. If a bride swoons at the altar that may or may not be news. But when the bridegroom passes out, that is something. It is not recorded how long the ceremony was delayed by the unusual incident. But the knot was duly tied despite the mild excitement and confusion which resulted from the double fainting episode.

ACQUIRED TASTE FOR POP.

Sixteen million a day is the daily consumption of its product boasted by the world's leading manufacturers of soft drink. But they probably do not know that of the sixteen million each day, one generally goes to a friendly little police pup in Peterborough.

No one knows how the pup came to acquire his taste for the famous soft drink, but that he has a taste for it no one will deny. He trots almost daily into one of the downtown shops which sell soft drinks. If a customer happens to be drinking one of the bottles of his favorite beverage, he begs until he wins a donation of the last inch or so of liquid in the bottom of the bottle. If no such donation is available, he has been known to go to the cases stacked along the wall and draw out a fresh bottle. As yet he has not mastered the problem of removing a bottle cap.—C.P.R.

AUTUMN FRUITS.

Autumn fruit was prominent in main street spots to-day with heavy arrivals of peaches and pears, and some of the first crop of the new grapes.

SCRAP IRON PRICES FIRM.

Scrap iron prices are still high in local junk circles with a steady demand from steel mills in spite of the sustained buying since early last Spring. Continued firmness in this market is regarded as a reflection of the requirements of steel for armaments.

EFFICIENT BROADCASTING.

The sound amplifying system used at the Liberal rally in the Armouries Monday night carried the voices of the speakers to College street east of Central school. A resident near the corner of McDonnel and College streets said he clearly heard Premier Hepburn at that distance.

TWO ON ONE CAST.

Delbert Rhodes, an American tourist from Akron, Ohio, who has been camping at James Foley's on Rice Lake, had the unique experience of landing two fish on one cast. Mr. Rhodes caught a small perch about four inches long, and while pulling it into the boat to unhook it a four and a half pound bass seized the perch.

SUGAR CANE.

R. C. Heard, janitor of the Peterborough Normal School, found sugar cane in some of the student plots at the school that seemed to be unusually high. Several of the stalks were brought to the Examiner office and the highest measured nine feet five inches. Sugar cane is not by any means a new crop in Ontario, and there are a number of farmers who always produce some of it for silage. The stalks which Mr. Heard brought in were from plots planted about corn time and before the Normal School closed for the summer.

RELINQUISHES POST.

W. W. Champ of Regina, and owner of the Hotel Champlain in Peterborough, has relinquished the post of chairman of the Saskatchewan voluntary rural relief committee. The Regina Leader-Post, in announcing the retirement, says: "Mr. Champ, a busy man in many spheres, put much energy and leadership into this trying work, and the thanks of the entire province are due to him for what he has accomplished. Mr. Champ is a citizen of the type who gives of his utmost in enthusiasm and ideas to whatever deserving cause enlists his interest. There was no exception in the vigor he brought to bear upon the work of the voluntary rural relief committee in this province in these difficult years."

MANSON COMSTOCK IS LAID TO REST

Many prominent citizens were in attendance as final rites for the late Manson Comstock were observed Monday afternoon. Following a service at the residence, 219 Sherbrooke street, interment was made in Little Lake Cemetery.

The community record of the well-known business man was eulogised by Dr. A. T. Barr of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church who officiated at the funeral service and at the graveside. He was assisted by Rev. W. P. Robertson of St. John's Anglican Church.

Honorary pall-bearers were: W. G. Morrow, W. J. Thompson, E. A. Peck, K.C., Theodore Simpson, A. L. Killaly, Dr. A. W. McPherson, T. H. Hooper and Vincent Eastwood. Sr. Serving as active pall-bearers were: Jack Comstock, Max Comstock, Gordon McIntyre, Herbert Mason, Clarence Mann and Manson Campbell.

PRISONER IS TOLD BY MAGISTRATE "YOU HAVE LIED"

When he appeared on remand with a plea of guilty to a charge of unlawful possession of illicit spirits, John Francis Willington Freeman, 39-year-old Harvey Township farmer was today fined $100 and $6.75 costs with the option of three months imprisonment.

Found guilty of a similar offence on a plea of not guilty, Percy M. Middleton, 23, who said he had lived "on and off for the past four years" with Freeman was also fined $100 and $14 costs or 3 months imprisonment in default.

Giving evidence in the case against Middleton, Corporal T. J. Woods of Lindsay detachment R.C.M.P., testified that he found 4 gallons and 2 pints of illicit spirits at the Freeman residence four miles north of Bobcaygeon on August 27 last.

Middleton was alone in the house when the Corporal called there in company of County Constable Gordon Hardy of Bobcaygeon. According to the evidence Middleton told the officers there was no liquor in the house and subsequently when Corporal Woods found the "moonshine" concealed in a secret panel of an upper room Middleton said he had made it himself. A copper worm was also found on the premises and a cream can, both of which might have been parts of a still for the manufacture of illicit spirits.

Denies Knowledge of Liquor

Giving evidence in his own defence, Middleton stoutly denied he had told the officers he made the spirits. He denied knowledge of the cache in which the liquor was concealed and said he had been absent from the house from May 12 until the night previous to his arrest.

"You claim complete ignorance of this moonshine," Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell interrogated the accused.

"Yes. I didn't know it was there at all."

Freeman previously convicted on his plea of guilty went into the witness box on Middleton's benalf, and in cross-examination by Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., said he had not made the liquor. He explained it had been brought there a day or so prior to his arrest by an unknown man who asked permission to leave it there.

Asked why he had the secret panelling in the upper room, Freeman explained he built it during the past summer to keep his late father's canes in.

Queried as to the copper worm found in the woodshed on his premises, Freeman declared he wrecked a car during the summer and the copper tubing was what he had salvaged from it. The tubing was coiled he said so it would hang up.

He declared on oath he had never manufactured "moonshine" in his life nor had he ever attempted to make it.

"Who do you expect to believe you?" Magistrate Campbell asked Freeman.

"Anyone who wants to," was the reply.

"You have not told a word of truth. You have lied. Every word of it. Go on you may sit down," the occupant of the Bench declared.

Only Decent Thing

Finding Middleton guilty of the offence charged he also told him, "I do not believe one word you say. I give Freeman credit for having tried to shield you by taking the blame himself. But that is the only decent thing he has done so far as this case is concerned."

His Worship said he could not understand why a cache should have been made unless it was for the purpose of hiding moonshine.

"And I don't know either," Middleton remarked. "I didn't know the liquor was there."

"You state that. But I cannot believe you. The two officers testify you told them you made the liquor and you say you did not make it. Am I to believe these officers are perjuring themselves?" the Magistrate demanded.

"I don' know. Unless I was excited when they came to the house and I said something I shouldn't have said," Middleton commented.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 14.—"All public places of amusement in Hastings will be closed indefinitely," stated H. G. Fairman, Reeve of the village and chairman of the local Board of Health, when questioned Monday afternoon after a meeting of the board. The Reeve said they are using this as a precautionary measure against infantile paralysis, although there are no cases in the village.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, September 15.

THE AUGURIES for this day point to exceedingly important and memorable events, with great tension and activity in all departments of human interest. All are under high stimuli for constructive efforts, which will respond in preferment, honors, increase of finances, enhanced popularity and prestige, with an enlargement of scope and opportunity for the achievement of very lofty ambitions. It is a propitious time for pushing for such goals, possibly with cleverness, strategem and persuasion rather than directness or dogged determination. Be careful with speech and be alert to treachery in personal contacts as well as business.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of major events, with important developments in both the business and private lives. Matters will all be under high pressure for rather strenuous action in the direction of progress, prestige and prosperity. But in such lofty achievements it is recommended that tact, strategem and shrewdness be employed rather than drastic or tumultuous demeanor. Be alert to craft and subterfuge in all relations.

A child born on this day may be brilliantly equipped for a successful, powerful and distinguished career, doubtless high in power, popularity and public service. It may become a politician or strategist.

BUCKHORN FAIR BEEN POSTPONED

Buckhorn School Fair, scheduled for Friday of this week, has been definely postponed for two weeks by order of Dr. H. O. Boyd, Harvey Township medical officer of health.

Postponement of the Fair will most likely mean its cancellation Art Runions, county agricultural representative, said, because October is to late in the year to successfully hold a fair.

Dr. Boyd's order postponing the Fair was issued because of the prevalence of infantile paralysis in the province.

Other school fairs will be held. The series opens to-day with the fair at Douro. Warsaw fair is on Wednesday and Apsley on Thursday.

Toronto Girl In London For Test

Selected from a group of comely young ladies as Canada's most promising screen aspirant, Miss Elizabeth Sutherland, of Toronto, is shown ABOVE, reading a movie script in a London studio. Miss Sutherland was awarded a trip to England and a screen test when she won a Canadian-wide radio competition. If she screen successfully, a movie career will be almost a certainty.

LABOR CONGRESS ASKS 6-HOUR DAY

it mentioned a specific rate, but it was made clear in debate many delegates disapproved of the principle of asking governments to establish minimum rates.

Rate Not Enough

Several rose with newspapers in their hands and protested that Alberta's proposed rate of 33 and one-third cents an hour, announced last night, was inadequate.

Arthur Martel of the Montreal Carpenters' Union said the congress previously had opposed the principle of asking governments to establish a minimum wage rate for men, a stand with which he agreed.

By asking and obtaining such action, Martel said, labor would be "getting protection through political action and not through its own efforts. How are you going to organize labor when you are getting this protection for nothing?" he asked.

Legislation for minimum wages was valueless, said Max Federman of Toronto Furriers' Union. "There is a minimum wage law calling for payment of at least $12.50 a week to women in Ontario, "but we all know there are hundreds, thousands of women in the province working for $6 or $7 a week," he said.

Urge Labor Unity

Considerable corridor gossip was heard concerning the attitude the congress might take on the question of the dispute between the Ontario administration and John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

Although the executives' report avoided mention of the CIO and resolutions on the order paper recommended that the question be ignored sources close to the executive indicated a new resolution would be drafted late in the convention advocating labor unity in Canada on all questions of major importance.

This, it was said, would have the effect of forestalling any possible split in ranks of the workers which might result from any conflict between the congress and the CIO.

Conditions of employees in hotels, restaurants and taverns in Quebec were denounced in a resolution sponsored by Montreal local 200, Restaurant and Tavern Employees' International Alliance.

The resolution registered protest against the "deplorable conditions, especially when they exist in establishments under government control," and urged the Congress to help improve them.

In Ontario, Too

Sam Lawrence, C.C.F., M.L.A. for Hamilton, said the conditions were not confined to Quebec. "In the province of Ontario they are working even longer hours for the same low wages," he said.

"The time has long since passed when any worker should be working more than six hours a day," Lawrence declared. "I am perfectly certain the restaurant industry is one of the worst in this Dominion, not alone in Ontario and Quebec."

Archie Johnston of Toronto, general organizer for hotel and restaurant employees, said much was heard of "mass industries," but the hotel business was a "massacred" industry. Nine out of every 100 employees in the Dominion were engaged in the service trades, he said, contending trade union movement had not given the industry the support it should.

Although the function of the Congress was legislative, Johnston felt he should demand that something be done to alleviate conditions in the hotel and restaurant industry.

"In the City of Ottawa, hotel workers are working as high as 84 hours a week for as low as $7 a week, and this with the knowledge of the executive of our trade union movement and of the legislators in Parliament," Johnston declared.

On the motion of William B. Lowe, Winnipeg alderman, the resolution was referred back to be made inclusive of the whole Dominion.

More Pay for Letter Carriers

Reclassification of the duties of letter carriers was urged in a resolution sponsored by the Federation Association of Letter Carriers, which asked an increased salary rate for such workers "in keeping with the arduous nature and responsibilities of the duties performed." The Congress voted concurrence.

A resolution from the Montreal Jacques - Cartier Typographical Union expressed regret that organized Labor had not been consulted before passage of the act respecting workmen's wages at the last session of the Quebec Legislature.

Congress voted the incoming executive of the Congress should be instructed to co-operate with the Quebec provincial executive to prepare the necessary amendments with a view to rendering the legislation more acceptable to the workers of the province.

The meeting also agreed the incoming executive should co-operate with the Quebec provincial executive with a view to amending or having repealed the Fair Wage Act.

WILMOT HAULTAIN IS RETIRING OCT. 1

REGINA, Sept. 14 (C.P.)—Wilmot G. Haultain, Registrar of the Regina Land Titles Office, will retire at his own request on October 1, after forty years in the Civil Service.

Mr. Haultain was born in Peterborough seventy-seven years ago and came to Manitoba in 1880. From 1883 to 1885 he was a surveyor with the Canadian Pacific Railway construction in Alberta and British Columbia, joining the Civil Service in 1901. He is a brother of Sir Frederick Haultain, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Saskatchewan. P. S. Stewart, Regina barrister, succeeds to the Registrarship. Mr. Stewart came from Mitchell, Ont.

DAY OF ATONEMENT MOST SOLEMN DAY OF JEWISH YEAR

At sundown today Peterborough Jews will commence religious celebration of the climax of the Jewish year, Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. Between that hours and sunset Wednesday, all Jews in Peterborough and district will be called upon to abstain from all food, business and social activities by way of contrition and penitence.

Special services to be held in the Jewish synagogue during the 24-hour period will begin with chanting of the ancient prayer, "Kol Nidre." Emphasis of sermons will be on the responsibility of adjusting all differences between business and social acquaintances and correcting all wrongs done during the past, Rabbi Fine said today. Jews will also be urged to renew their personal relationships with Jehovah.

"Yom Kippur is the most solemn day in the Jewish calendar," Rabbi Fine said. "It is a day on which the Jews believe they pass before the Creator and that He inscribes that which shall be their fate in the coming year. The ten-day period preceding Yom Kippur is a time of repentance and prayer."

Rabbi Fine declared the Jews of Canada are troubled because of the ills that afflict their brethren in other lands. Contemplation of their own well-being is disturbed as they look upon the plight of their brothers in Germany and in Poland, Palestine and Rumania, he said. Thus, he explained, much of the intercession during this period is devoted to praying for peace and prosperity, not for the Jews alone but for all mankind throughout the world.

"The Jewish people of Peterborough in showing their love and respect to the British Empire, will offer a number of prayers on this Holy Day for the welfare of our King and our country," he said.

BAN BEEN LIFTED ON SMITH SCHOOL

With recovery reported almost complete in the township's one case of infantile paralysis, Smith officials have lifted the ban on day school opening, Sunday school meetings and picnic gatherings. Hall's School in section No. 4 opened for the Fall term Monday with a full attendance.

Reeve George Mullen said to-day fear of any serious spread of the disease has passed with the arrival of colder weather. The little Smith township girl, who was the victim in his township, is now sitting up in bed and is apparently on the way to a rapid cure. Sunday schools will be allowed to resume their meetings next Sunday, he said.

Two other paralysis cases remain on record in the County now, one in Eamismore and one in Harvey. It is reported rapid progress is being made in both cases. The Rockcroft school in Harvey township is remaining closed pending appearance of possible further cases in the community.

Oshawa GM-Men Retain Central Ontario Title For 2nd Straight Year

Winners Score Four Runs In First Inning To Beat Kingston 4-1

OSHAWA, Sept. 14. — With Ken (Jake) Biddle hurling three-hit ball Oshawa General Motors, senior O.B.A.A. champions, won their second successive C.O.B.L. title at Alexandra Park last evening when they defeated Kingston Ponies 4 to 1. Although Oshawa nicked Tony Paczkowski for ten hits, the big right-hander hurled shutout ball after a disastrous first inning. In the opening frame Oshawa collected four hits including a homer by Doug May and a triple by Buzz Bennett for all their runs. Kingston lost a glorious chance in the same inning when they filled the bases with none out, but grand baseball held them runless.

Unable to Hit Biddle.

The losers were unable to hit Biddle and he led Oshawa to their third straight playoff win after they had dropped the first in the best-of-five series. Peg Hurst, fiery Oshawa left fielder, was ejected from the game in the first inning after a verbal conflict with Umpire Ken Colling.

Hot weather finds golfers exposing themselves to more serious handicaps than they realize. One of these is the danger of too much sun.

In parts of the country where golfers do not get much sun they are inclined to ignore the possibilities of getting too much of it. They go out on the course without headgear of any kind. On extremely hot days this is very dangerous and it doesn't matter how much you may be accustomed to going around bare-headed. Anyone who has lived near the equator will tell you this.

People living in countries where there is a lot of sun always wear some kind of light headgear. If you have been wondering why you feel a bit weak or dizzy on the course these hot days, just give some credit to old Sol. Only a few days ago Babe Ruth, who has withstood a lot of sun in his work on the diamond, was bowled over by the heat. And the Babe is much more rugged and in much better physical condition than the average business man golfer.

Your pro generally has the right sort of hat for these hot days. Anything that is light in weight and has a brim wide enough to shade your neck and eyes will serve the purpose.

Happy Now

Life has changed glamorously during the past few months for members of the Farr family, because Tommy Farr learned to use his fists as a lad in the mining village of Tonypandy, Wales. His sister, Phyllis Evans, and her husband and little son, and his sister Sally, have been installed in Farr's new home at Slough. Money earned in Farr's championship fight against Joe Louis in New York will go far toward keeping his sister Phyllis, the eldest of the family, who "mothered" her orphaned brothers and sisters in Tonypandy. She is the hostess at Tommy's new home, and is pictured here.

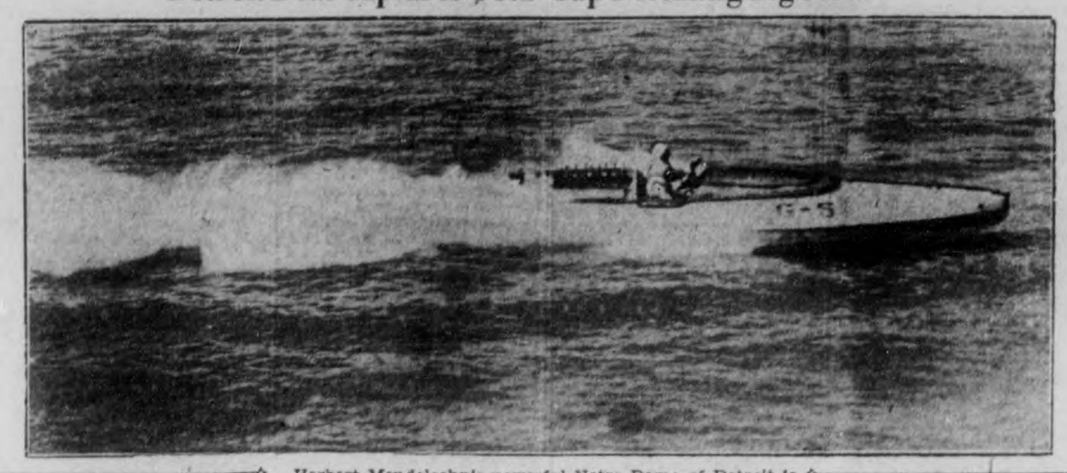
Detroit Boat Captures Gold Cup Defeating Big Field



Herbert Mendelsohn's powerful Notre Dame of Detroit is seen here zooming to victory over the waters of the Detroit River at Detroit, Mich., as it won the 34th running of the Gold Challenge Cup, America's oldest speedboat trophy. The slinky, Duesenberg-powered craft defeated an international field and shattered all existing Gold Cup speed records. Notre Dame sped home to win the first heat, scored second place in the next, and in the final heat roared along faster than ever. The Canadian boat, Miss Canada II, driven by Hal. Wilson, came second in the first heat but failed to start in the final two races for the cup.

MAX SCHMELING FARR RATED HIGH IN HEAVIES

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Sept. 14 (AP)—Germany's Max Schmeling and Tommy Farr of Wales were rated today by the National Boxing Association as the best of the challengers for Joe Louis' heavyweight crown.

Schmeling, who holds a knockout victory over the Brown Bomber, and Farr, defeated in his first title quest two weeks ago, ranked well above Former Champion Jimmy Braddock in the N.B.A.'s official ratings.

Back of the German and the Welshman came Bob Pastor of New York as No. 3 contender; Al Besto Lovell of the Argentine, No. 4; Braddock, No. 5; Tommy Gallento of Newark, N.J., No. 6; Nathan Mann of New York City, No. 7; Al McCoy of Boston, No. 8; Arturo Goday of Chile, No. 9; and Roscoe Toles of Detroit, No. 10.

Louis was installed as the association's new champion despite President Joseph F. Maloney's criticism of the Bomber's showing in his fight with Farr. Maloney declared: "He was saved by a decision handed to him on a silver platter."

TERRIERS WIN 2ND STRAIGHT

ORILLIA, Sept. 14. — Orillia Terriers were one game away from the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association senior championship last night after going into overtime to count a 17 to 14 victory over Mimico Mountaineers in what was positively the lacrosse tit-bit of the year.

Deadlocked at 13 to 13 at full-time the teams went into the extra session, and after five minutes Orillia were good winners with four goals in a row before Mimico got one back.

The third and possibly final game will be in Mimico on Wednesday night. If the fourth game is necessary it will be back her on Friday.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

THE Auburns won the group lacrosse championship last night at Lindsay when they defeated the Oshawa 222 team in a game that sent the crowd away talking to themselves. The final count was 12 to 10 and the struggle was climaxed by a fourth period that was packed as full of delirious excitement as any sporting event in this district in years has produced. For that much of the credit will have to be given to the Oshawa team who after leaving the floor four goals down and apparently folded up for the night at the end of the third session came back with a whirlwind attack in the final fifteen minutes that almost pulled the game out of the fire for them and sent the 1600 Oshawa, Lindsay and Peterborough fans on the sidelines almost dippy. Imagine with less than three minutes to go the Petes were only a goal up and minus Chute their coach and defence star who had drawn a penalty as Oshawa's 10th goal was scored! The two minutes he was off seemed like an hour to the Peterborough contingent but the red-sweatered gang held the fort and then made victory sure by bagging the last goal.

IT WAS a great battle and if it does not succeed in selling lacrosse to Lindsay sport-lovers we are badly mistaken. The Auburn outfit, still minus Whitton and Vitarelli and with several others handicapped by injuries cannot be given too much credit for the gameness and determination they showed. They outplayed Oshawa throughout the first three periods by a fighting aggressive brand of lacrosse and then when an unexpected Oshawa surge threatened to overwhelm them in the last period the Petes had enough fighting spirit to ride out the storm and emerge victorious from a grilling struggle. They could easily have blown the works in that hectic final chapter but they hung on and were rewarded with a brilliant win, and they have earned the applause of their home community if they never win another ball game.

* * * * * *

WHILE the Oshawa lacrosse representatives are out of the running the OM ball club is still very much in the picture. Yesterday afternoon the Motor City outfit captured the championship of the Central Ontario League for the second year in succession by defeating Joe Daisy's Kingston Ponies at Oshawa 4 to 1. That was their third victory in succession over the Ponies and gave them the series 3 to 1. The only game they dropped was the first fixture of the finals, a close battle at Kingston. Yesterday Jake Biddle, sent in against Tony Paczkowski, who had been prevailed upon by the Ponies management to stay away from his football training at St. Lawrence Academy for another day, stood the Daleymen on their heads again for the second time in the series. The left-handler allowed the Ponies only three hits and with his own team crashing through Paczkowski's delivery for four runs in the opening inning Biddle coasted along to win a clean-out victory. The Kingston right-hander pitched nice ball himself after the first frame in which Doug May's homer was the crowning blow, but his effort was wasted in view of his teammate's impotence against Biddle.

* * * * * *

OUR congratulations are extended to the Oshawa club and the worst luck we wish them is that they may go on and capture the Ontario title for the second year. And we hope that it does not sound like sour grapes to add that the Motors crew had a whole lot of trouble and a considerable quantity of luck in beating the Petes, who proved far tougher opposition in the playoffs than the cheesy Ponies who were lucky to win one game out of the four played with Oshawa and who were well beaten in the other three.

THE Auburns go right back into the lacrosse wars again tomorrow night when they will clash with the Cheltenham-Inglewood team in the O.A.L.A. semi-finals in a game at the local bowl. The second game of the series will be played at Cheltenham Friday night with goals on the round deciding the winner. The battle here tomorrow night will be another classic. The villagers from the Brampion district evidently have a team that is to be respected inasmuch as they have just disposed of the formidable Roden A.C. team of Toronto. The Roden outfit gave the Petes plenty of opposition in an exhibition tilt here early in the season so the Auburns realize that they are not up against anything soft. The game is called for 8.30 o'clock and should be full of thrills. Undoubtedly the season's biggest crowd will see the battle for the plucky showing of the Petes in winning the Oshawa series after taking an unexpectedly one-sided beating in the first game has local sport-lovers pulling strongly for them.

* * * * * *

THE Auburn squad is pretty well battered up after three tough games with Oshawa but it is expected they will all be able to face the barrier tomorrow night. There are hopes too that Mel Vitarelli whose injured foot is responding to treatment may be able to get into uniform too. He would be a welcome addition to the squad in the hard fight they have on their hands against the conquerors of the Roden team. The whole team is full of fight and ready to go to town in a big way.

MAX COTTON and Roy Tranter will play off the delayed finals for the city tennis championship tonight (Tuesday) at 5.30 o'clock on the courts of the Kawartha Club. The game will be played for the most part under the floodlights. Tranter is the champion for his club in the Kawartha circuit.

PETERBOROUGH softball fans are getting a break in the re-arranged schedule for the intermediate O.A.S.A. semi-finals which calls for Westclox to play the first game of the series with the Toronto winners on Thursday instead of today and brings the Toronto gang here Saturday afternoon, instead of Thursday as first arranged. This should be the outstanding softball fixture of the year. The Toronto representatives will as always prove a formidable team and the clock-makers will have to be at the top of their form every minute to stay in the running. With the local game scheduled for Saturday afternoon fans will get a chance to see the battle and the year's biggest crowd will be in the stands when the tussle gets under way.

* * * * * *

PETERBOROUGH can claim some credit for the victory of the Oshawa ball club in the Central Ontario League finals for the terrific hitting of Tommy Foley has been a big factor in the success of the GM men. Ever since Foley was shoved up to the lead-off position he has been busting the old apple for keeps and he wound up the series yesterday with three hits after combing Tony Paczkowski's offerings for four blows out of five in the Saturday engagement. It had grown into a sort of legend that Foley never hits in the playoffs but Tommy has smashed that theory into small portions by his lusty clouting in the league finals this year.

* * * * * *

LAST Minute Sport Brevities: Owing to the re-arranged softball semi-finals the Westclox team will practice at the girls bowl Wednesday night at 6 o'clock... Peg Hurst got tossed out of the final game with Kingston yesterday for arguing with Umpire Ken Colling. It is an old habit... It is tough to stop Mick Magee. The Petes player got his nose broken early in the last period last night but he was back in action as soon as he had been patched up and scored the last goal ...Auburns had an edge on Oshawa in vocal support. The Peterborough contingent was the larger and the bulk of Lindsay fans helped them root the Pet es on to victory... There were no games scheduled in the big leagues yesterday. They resume today... And now let's call the whole thing off.

ELGIN SECURES GAME ADVANTAGE HASTINGS SERIES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 14.—Elgin took the first game of the local softball finals when they swamped the Clerks 14 to 5 last night (Monday). Elgin collected 16 hits and the Clerks made 6 errors to toss away any chances they had.

Elgin started off with a bang in the first innings when 6 runs crossed the plate on 4 hits and 2 errors. They scored 2 in the third on a hit and 2 errors and another 2 in the fourth on 4 hits. Roy Richardson sent a long homer to deep centre to score another Elgin run in the sixth. Three more Elgin boys scored in the eighth on 3 hits, a walk and an error to complete their scoring.

The Clerks scored their first run in the second innings on two hits. They scored another one in the fourth on 2 singles and Whitred's double and one more in the sixth when Tape doubled and scored on an error. Their final 2 runs were scored in the seventh on 2 singles and L. Gibson's double.

The fielding of Roy Richardson at shortstop for Elgin and Calbery in the outfield for the Clerks were highlights of the game. Roy Richardson led all the batters with 4 hits, including a long homer in 4 official times at bat. Crate led the Clerks with 3 hits in 4 times up.

The shower that came about midnight held off long enough for the boys to finish our last twilight tournament of the season. The attendance, probably due to the weather, was not up to the standard, but it wasn't too bad. Twenty-eight rinks from Port Hope, Hastings, Campbellford, Norwood and Peterborough made the draw perfect. This is the first year our club ever staged these twilight tournaments and we believe that venture was a huge success, and we hope next year's committe will see their way clear to carry them on.

Winners:

First—M. Fletcher and W. Cathcart (zipper kit bags).

Second—R. Bacon and Dr. Lawrence (suit cases).

Third—R. Dyer and M. Heath (zipper kit bags).

Fourth—H. Freeman and J. Fitzpatrick (suit cases).

Fifth—T. McArthur and J. Sorenson (gallon thermos jugs).

Jack Dempsey picked himself up from the press table and flattened Luis Angel Firpo in one of the greatest modern-day heavyweight boxing fights staged at New York 14 years ago today. Knocked down six times, Firpo sent the champion through the ropes in the first round. Dempsey sprawled Firpo to the canvas twice more before the knockout in the second round.

Canadians Have Even Chance In '37 British Empire Games

Larry O'Connor Of Toronto Best Bet Among Track and Field Athletes

TORONTO, Sept. 14. — (CP). — Providing, for the basis of comparison, anyway, that the 1938 British Empire games competition is no better than in 1934, Canada should carry off a reasonable share of the track and field titles in the third "Little Olympics" in Australia next February.

Placing the best Canadia nitimes, distances and heights developed in zone trials against Empire records set at London, Eng., in '34, it would appear the Dominion's boys and girls will at least equal the 1934 record when they brought home five Empire crowns.

Bulk of the country's track and field talent is centered in Ontario, records of zone trials indicate. But the Martimes, where men's trials yet are to be held, probably will provide the leading feminine sprinter of the Canadian team, and the west likely will receive liberal representation in the sprints and weights events.

Star of Track Athletes.

Probably the most outstanding of the present track and field crop, leaping Larry O'Connor of Toronto, seems the best bet for a Canadian victory with a half-dozen or more in the comfortable position of having turned in times and distances comparing favorably with present Empire records. There is no definite word how many will be selected for the Australian trip.

O'Connor ran the 120-yard hurdles in 15.2 seconds, equal to the mark Don Finlay of England set in winning the event in London. But O'Connor, smooth as a deer over the barriers, can go faster than that. Right now, there does not appear to be an outstanding sprinter in the Dominion. Certainly there is none to turn in a 9.6 that won the 100 for Percy Williams in 1930. Young Harry Colman of Winnipeg, has the best trial time of 10.1 against 10.5 for Jack Brown, of Toronto.

Two field event marks bettering Empire records were set by Canadians in trials, and Aileen Meagher of Halifax, churned the 100 in 11 seconds flat, a tenth of a second faster than Elsie Hiscock's time for England three years ago.

New Discus Mark.

Ernie Coy of Winnipeg, set up a new Canadian discus mark in the Manitoba, Baskatchewan and Lakehead trials with a heave of 145 feet, 9¾ inches, more than nine feet better than the Empire record of Harry Hart of South Africa.

Jim Courtwright of Ottawa, can throw the javelin 215 feet or a little more—he did 202-10 in the trials—compared with the Empire mark of 207-1½.

Other top-notch efforts in Canadian trials included 49.4 by Johnny Loaring of Windsor, Ont., and 50.4 by Jack Fraser of Vancouver in the 440, compared with the Empire record of 48 flat.

Max Lenover of Chatham, Ont., did 1.58.9 in the half-mile and Bill Dale of Victoria, under better conditions, raced it in 1.56.8. Phil Edwards, British Guinana's great middle-distance star who ran as a Canadian in the Olympics, holds the games mark of 1.54.2.

CENTRAL HASTINGS RUGBY.

MARMORA, Sept. 14.—The Central Hastings High School Association met in Madoc last Thursday evening to arrange for the coming rugby season. The schedule was drawn up and the first game takes place in Stirling on Friday, September 24th, with Marmora as visitors.

Thrill Packed Struggle Gives the Auburns First Title Of C.O.L.A Season

See-Saw Battle Gives Petes 12-10 Win Over Oshawa In Final Game

In the most exciting game of the season, a strenuously fought battle in which the pace never slackened and which was climaxed by a last period that was packed full of thrills, the Auburns won the championship of this O.A.L.A. intermediate group by defeating the Oshawa 222 team in the Lindsay arena last night by 12 goals to 10 before a 1,000 cheering fans, nearly half of them from Peterborough.

It was an epic struggle, with the lead changing hands several times and the crowd on its toes all the way. Outscored 2 to 1 in the first period, although not outplayed the Petes came back in the second session to take the lead and at the half were in front 4 to 3. Playing steady and effective lacrosse in the third period they scored three goals without a reply from the Unionists and when the quarter ended they were leading 7 to 3 and Oshawa looked a well-beaten team.

Then came the fireworks. The Oshawa gang cut loose from the first faceoff in the final fifteen minutes with a flashing attack that momentarily swept the Petes off their feet. In less than ninety seconds they had beaten Red Creighton three times and were only a goal back, and from then until the final whistle it was a thrilling battle. The Petes rallied halfaway through the period, staged an offensive of their own that gave them three goals in a hurry and once more set up what looked like a safe lead only to have another Oshawa attack break loose that pulled the Motor City once up to within one goal of the Auburns' total. With less than three minutes to go the Petes were leading by the close score of 11 to 10 and were a man short but they weathered the storm like the game team they are and had the satisfaction of bagging the last goal of the night just before the final whistle.

Not discounting that last period offensive of the Oshawa team it is the simple truth that the Petes should have won by a larger margin. They had the bulk of the territorial play over the greater part of the route and had probably 2 shots to 1, but their marksmanship was off and many opportunities were missed while Clark played superbly in the Oshawa net. It was a hard-checking struggle with no quarter asked or given and the Petes took a lot of punishment in earning their victory.

While every player turned in a good card the scoring punch contributed by Ira Dundas, Pete King and Mick Magee and the effective defence work of Chute made those players standouts, while Creighton made a lot of fine saves.

For Oshawa, Clark in the nets was a big help to his team and Degray although he marred his work by his rought tactics in the early stages was very useful on the defence and also scored a couple of goals. Up in front it was the work of Bovin, Cook, Barron and Daniels, especially in the last period that enabled the Unionists to make the game so close. That quartet were good all the way and great in the final effort they made to pull the game out of the fire.

No Luck Around Nets

The Petes had the lion's share of the territorial play in the first period but had little luck around the nets. Soon after the face-off the red-sweatered team was tearing in for shots and King and Dallin both missed at close range. It was Oshawa however who scored first, Kelly Degray doing the trick when he went in alone and beat Creighton with a bullet drive. Right after Degray drew a penalty for slashing Chute and with the one-man advantage the Petes put on the pressure and did everything but score. Magee missed two opportunities at close range and Degray got back with no damage done.

Then Chute was penalized and while he was off Oshawa went two goals in front when Bovin took a pass from Whyte and sailed in to beat Creighton at close range. Soon after Degray got five minutes for slashing Don Crowe and the Petes made it hot while he was off. They missed half a dozen opportunities but finally Dundas intercepted an Oshawa pass and went in alone to score the Petes first goal.

Petes Take The Lead

Early in the second period the Auburns put on the pressure and gave Clark in the Oshawa nets a busy session. Anderson and Magee were both inside only to be foiled, and Chute also missed a great chance and was hurt when he was dropped in front of the Oshawa citadel. Nine minutes of the period had elapsed when Cliff Cadd evened up the count on a smart goal, after combining with Sloan and Dallin to beat the 222 defence. Stung by that reverse Oshawa came on again and after several close calls Degray put them ahead once more when he tore in fast and netted his own rebound. Forty-five seconds after, Magee tied the score, when he whirled around in front of the Oshawa defence and then backhanded a shot that had Clark beaten all the way. Don Crowe came back with another dazzling rush that duplicated Magee's effort and his fast shot put the Petes in front 4 to 3, the figures remaining unchanged when the half time whistle sounded.

The third period saw the Auburns apparently well in command of the game. They did most of the attacking all through the session and ran in three goals without a comeback from the 222 gang. They should have had more. Early in the period King missed on a pass from Chute and soon after Dundas failed to cash in on a good chance on a nice play by Magee. Finally however Magee tore in alone, dodged around Degray and went in on top of Clark to score a pretty goal. A little later Clark had his arm hurt in stopping a drive from Don Crowe and the game was held up for a few minutes. When it resumed King scored a typical goal when he took Jerry Creighton's pass close in and gave Clark no chance. Before the end of the period Dundas made it 7 to 3 on a shot from well out that was intended for a pas to King but beat Clark when the Petes' rover was shunted out of the play.

Heated Last Period

Then came the hectic fourth period. Oshawa opened up a furious attack from the faceoff and the period had just nicely started when Daniels slipped down the boards and fired from well out, Creighton fanning on the hard drive. That made it 7 to 4 and it was 7 to 5 twenty-five seconds after, when Cook dashed in and scored at close range. Right after Cook cross-checked Magee across the face, breaking his nose and got five minutes while the Peterborough player had to retire to be patched up. Even playing a man short, however, Oshawa continued to press and Barron put them within a goal of tieing the score when he picked up a loose ball after a Bovin rush had been stopped and fooled Creighton. Crowe relieved the pressure by breaking away and feeding Dundas a perfect pass which Ira converted into a neat goal but Bovin got that back in thirty seconds by a whirling rush that carried right through the Peterborough team.

With the score 8 to 7, Auburns pulled themselves together and staged an attack that soon brought results and it was the old-timer Pete King who did the shooting on two of the three goals resulting from this sustained offensive. He took a pass from Cliff Cadd close in to slip a lightning shot past Clark and then after Dundas on a beautiful rush had pulled the Oshawa defence out of position, and slipped a pass to him in front of the net Pete made no mistake. When Emmett Creighton dashed in at top speed and scored on a spectacular solo effort to make it 11 to 7 the Petes troubles looked to be over.

Just for a moment however, for Cook came back into the game at this point and with the teams even Oshawa started another drive that had the Peterborough fans popeyed. They stormed in several times only to be beaten by several sensational stops by Red Creighton but finally after Degray had done some nice stickhandling and then slipped Bovin a pass the elusive Shine ghosted in and scored a beautiful goal. That was not so bad but when Cook went in alone and made it 11 to 9 and Barron, after getting a crack in the face whirled and twisted inside for another smart solo goal, it was anybody's ball game. To make it worse Chute was given a penalty on the play and with exactly two minutes and 55 seconds left to play the Petes had a one goal lead and had to protect it playing a man short. It was a hectic two minutes. Oshawa stormed in and first Degray and then Barron had beautiful openings only to have Creighton beat them. Crowe took off some of the pressure with a nice dash on which he nearly scored but Oshawa came right back again and the Petes were hard-pressed. Finally with less than a minute left Chute came back and the Peterborough crowd breathed a little easier. Then with the sides even the Petes took up the attack again and just before the final whistle Magee scored the last goal of the game after a combined rush with Chute and Dundas. The counter came only a second or so before the end.

Donoghue Resigns As Jockey 'King'

EPSOM, Eng., Sept. 14 (AP).—That well-known cry of the British turf, "Come on, Steve," will be heard no more.

Steve Donoghue, now 52, had decided to call it quits as a jockey and will devote his time hereafter to training. He will preside over racing stables at Newbury in Berkshire.

Donoghue thus winds up a riding career extending over 30 years. He booted home 1,840 winners in that time and won the Derby six times.

His first mount, Turkish Delight, at Phoenix Park, Dublin, on April 6, 1907, was a winner. Two years later he rode the winner of the Cambridgeshire at Newmarket.

Beaches Short On Middle Wings Ranks Depleted By Absentees

Several Of Toronto Rugby Stars Have Departed For Other Ports

TORONTO, Sept. 14 (CP). — A shortage of middle wing players faces Coach Alex. Ponton of Toronto Balmy Beach, Ontario Rugby Football Union entry, this fall. A series of departures from the team's ranks has cut a wide swathe through the list of available men for that position. With an exhibition game with Roughriders at Ottawa scheduled for September 18, Ponton feels he has work to do.

Ernie Hempey and Ab Pople, who did fine work at middle last year, have both left Toronto, Hempey to play with Indians, Montreal's interprovincial union club, and Pople to work in Welland. Joe Davis and Earl Farley, capable middlewings, are unable to perform this fall.

This leaves the veterans Tommie Eisenhardt and Bob Reed to fill the position. While Coach Ponton is sure of their ability at middle, the situation leaves him with no reserves should they become necessary. But he hopes the youthful crop of candidates available will give him the needed material. One prospect, Cal Moore, of Sarnia, has shown promise in the workouts.

Work has been under way for the Ottawa game since August 16, when Beaches opened training, some weeks ahead of other major Toronto clubs.

Trapshooting Champ

Hale C. Jones (above), of Wood River, Ill., who won the 1936 grand American at Vandalia, O., stepped up to the traps there again recently, and won the 1937 "championship of champions" title over a field of 30 other State champions. He broke 200 straight and then cleaned up a 25 target shoot-off with three others.

The postponed game between the Canadian General and the Canada Packers will take place on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock on King Edward Park. Referee, W. Jones.

The return fixture between the Deloro juveniles and the Peterborough juveniles has been postponed owing to unforseen circumstances, but the press will inform immediately when the Smelters can travel to the city.

A special meeting of the P. and D.F.A. will be held on Wednesday night to complete arrangements for the field day. Executive Members McKinley, Kerr and Isle please note. This meeting is also open to all the players so that this venture can be made a success.

CHICAGO CATTLE HIT 19-YEAR TOP

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—(AP).—The price of cattle reached a top of $18.85 a hundredweight here yesterday, the highest point cattle have been in September in nine-teen years.

This price also was the highest for any month in nine years. Early in 1919, cattle sold up to $21.50, the highest on record.

Cattle prices have been advancing steadily the last few months, establishing new nine-year records virtually every week. Last week the average for slaughter cattle was $14.35, compared with $9.15 in 1936 and $5.70 in 1933. Receipts at the twenty principal markets totalled only 203,000 head, compared with 279,000 a year ago, and 313,000 two years ago.

ROSENEATH, Sept. 14.—The 74th anniversary of St. James' Anglican Church, Roseneath, is to be observed on Sunday, September 19, by two special services at 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. The special preacher at both services will be the Rural Dean of Peterborough Deanery, the Rev. E. C. Moore of Young's Point. The Rev. Wm. Stocks, L.Th., incumbent of Hastings and Roseneath, will be in charge of the services.

St. James' church is one of the oldest churches in the Rice Lake district, being built by the pioneer settlers in 1863. Descendants of these settlers make up the larger part of the present membership of this historic church.

The wardens are planning to have the exterior of the church re-painted in commemoration of the anniversary.

CHAPTER 33

WHEN MARI returned to Paris she had to describe the Maharaja above everyone else.

"Did he look like an Indian?" Letitia Higgins asked, eyes agog.

"Well, he didn't look Spanish. And he didn't look like an American Indian. And he was awee," Mari said. "Imagine, Letitia, he had 12 tennis courts, a movie picture auditorium right in the house, a ballroom and a dining-room where 80 people could sit at one table."

"Did he wear emeralds and a turban?"

Mari laughed. "Certainly not, except at court functions. But he did give the ball for me."

"And he did invite you to India. My goodness, I read 'THE SHIEK' and I don't think you ought to go there."

"Letitia, he doesn't live in a tent. And someday, when this shop belongs to me, and not to my creditors, Im going there. I'm going everywhere. Travel does something... it helps you not to feel alone."

Poor Letitia. Her short-sighted eyes peered out of her thick glasses at her employer and she sighed, thinking of all that some women had.

Mari had no idea of what her secretary was thinking. She hadn't much time those days to know what she was thinking herself.

She found it almost possible to be in three places at once. Miss Higgins seldom found it possible to keep up with her. Mari was at the new shop during the morning, hurrying from there to the small one to meet her customers, to direct the sewing women, and later to receive the army of representatives attendant on her opening. Her evenings were reserved for Larry Holk, the publicity man.

The jewels and the magnificent ermine cape had gone back to the houses from which they were loaned to her, having served their purpose of having been photographed on "the beautiful Madame Maribarat"—with due credit to their source.

Mari scarcely had time to glance through the mounting press notices which poured in through the offices of Larry Holk. They lay for days on her littered desk, under sketches, invoices and receipts.

She was pleasantly stunned to pick up a copy of British VOGUE and see her photograph — they'd given a whole page to it—in the white gown she'd worn to the Maharala's ball. Almost instantly the dressmaker in her responded critically and she forgot her personal pleasure. She'd been afraid that it was too daring, too theatrical. The way that panel swept down from the centre of her turban to make a panel ending in an adroitly caught-up train. Perhaps it wouldn't be a bad idea...

She rang for her chief cutter and ordered him to duplicate the gown in scarlet.

It was that way with everything she did; nothing had a personal relationship to her. It was THE SHOP.

It was well that she had the shop—the new one — to engage her that spring. Spring always did things to her. This was her fourth in Paris. It was five years since the spring when Tony Castle had come into her life, but he came back anew to her whenever spring came.

SOMEDAY HE'LL KNOW had changed to: PERHAPS, HE HAS HEARD OF ME BY NOW. Yet, curiously, she had no feeling that she would ever hear from him. If, perchance, some thought winged its way swiftly through her mind telling her that he would write to congratulate her, she put it from her. It was not good to invite disappointment.

But, surely he must hear of her, for the whole world was hearing of Marlbarat.

If they talked about her in a limited social world in London, if her name was known to American manufacturers and to fashion writers ever on the alert for rising stars, it was beginning to appear elsewhere, too.

In London she had posed with Hal Joffre, editor of the widely read CINEMA ART, and that magazine had done a story about the possibilities of her going to Hollywood to design clothes for the stars.

"Bosh," said Mari when she heard of it. "I wouldn't go for all the gold my phantom father was supposed to have mined. Letitia, tell Dumonde he'll have to take the moving off those walls in the East Blue Room. It's too wide. And tell him to hurry. I'll want to have that room ready to show in the week before we open."

Things were beginning to get frantic then. The opening was only two weeks away. Already the sewing staff was installed in the workroom, the last of the models was in the process of making, and the usual maddening things were happening. A piece of brocade that was especially ordered was being held up. The embroiderers were alarmingly slow getting the green wools with the quail pattern finished.

Mari was on edge, nervous, frightened a little.

A Hollywood producer wrote and asked her if she'd like a screen test. A woman she had met in London asked her to join her party leaving for Switzerland. A little girl in Birmingham, Ala., wrote and asked her if she would design a graduation dress for her.

Mari threw all of them away except for the letter from the little girl in Birmingham. To her she sent a length of embroidered organdie and a sketch.

"I had to do it, Larry," she said. "It's my only link with my own country. Of all the mess of things that have been pouring in here, that's the only real sign that I have that I'm known at all at home."

"That reminds me, Mari. How about going through this batch of photographs? International News Photos wants an action picture of you."

"Oh, Lord, another one? All right ...Letitia. Will you please bring me that batch of pictures somebody took when on the plane to leave England?"

Letitia brought them. Mari shoved them across the desk to Larry. "Take your pick."

"I'd rather you made the selection. This picture is going home, you know. Lots of people you know will see them."

Mari lifted her eyebrows, and with an unbelieving smile ran through them hastily.

She selected one of herself about to board the plane. Her face, with a radiant smile, was turned toward the camera. Her arm was raised in a gay gesture of farewell. The picture had life. It showed a stunning, smart young woman, a radiant successful young woman.

"How's that?" she asked. Larry said it would do, and pasted a strip of typewritten copy across the back. It was the usual thing:

"Mari Barat, rising young couturiere, returns to Paris for opening of her new establishment after successful social season in London. Among those who entertained for her was the Maharaja of Rajsmitha who gave a ball for her at his famous house at Windsor."

"Tripe But no one I know will see it," Mari said.

Tony Castle saw it nearly a month later. His own shadow fell across his easel. It was too late to work, too hot in the later afternoon to walk to the village. He seldom read newspapers these days, but there was the village paper where Duke, his setter, had dropped it in his effort to be of service.

Tony turned the pages idly. And there SHE was.

He clipped the badly reproduced photograph, and studying it, he saw the one thing he wanted to do, the thing that would give his work purpose. Regretting the dying light that prohibited him from starting at once, he put the clipping away in a drawer with a red ribbon he had won long ago.

UNCLE WIGGILY BACK HOME

"What's the matter?" called Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, dear! Oh, dear! Oh, dear!" cried his wife, three times, just like that.

"Please tell me what is the matter and please stop saying 'Oh dear,' if you can," begged Mr. Longears, who was quite excited from having to take down his camping tent and send home in the Police Dog Ambulance the Lady Mouse Teacher of the Hollow Tree School. "What has happened, my dear?" he asked his wife.

"We can't find Baby Bunny," said Mrs. Longears.

"Don't tell me our cute little orphan rabbit is lost!" said Mr. Longears.

"I fear so," said his wife. "I saw her a little while before you started taking down the tent. But after you had it folded I didn't see her."

"Have any of you children seen Baby Bunny?" asked Uncle Wiggily of his children rabbits.

Didn't See Her

"Not since you started taking down the tent," they replied.

"Oh, my goodness!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "Then I must have folded Baby Bunny up in the tent cloth. Quick, my dear!" he called to his wife. "We must unfold it and get Baby Bunny out. I suppose she fell asleep and I didn't notice her."

The tent which had been folded to be taken home after the camp was over, was opened. But no little orphan rabbit was found inside.

"Oh, I hope none of the Bad Chaps have her," said Mrs. Longears.

Uncle Wiggily began to twinkle his pink nose fast. He was about to start searching in the woods for Baby Bunny when Buster came hopping back along the trail that led home.

"Have you see Baby Bunny?" his father asked him.

"Oh, yes," said Buster. "She is riding on the ambulance with Nurse Jane and the Lady Mouse Teacher."

"Oh, then she is all right," said Mrs. Longears happily.

"Yes, she is all right," said Buster. "She's having a lot of fun with Miss Mouse, talking about when Daddy is going to teach in the hollow tree school."

Very Strict

"It may not be as funny as you think," said Uncle Wiggily trying to be severe, but his pink, twinkling nose stopped that. "I shall be a very stern teacher," he said.

Uncle Wiggily had offered to open the Hollow Tree School for the Fall term and teach it until Miss Mouse was better from having been mauled by two fox boys.

"Well, since Baby Bunny is safely on the way home, let's fold our camping tent again and get started ourselves," said the rabbit gentleman.

Soon they were back home in Woodland where Baby Bunny was waiting for them. The Police Dog had taken Miss Mouse to the hospital.

"Well, we had fun camping," said Uncle Wiggily as he looked at his Hollow stump bungalow, "but it is good to be back home."

"Yes," agreed his wife. "It is. And I think——" she suddenly stopped.

"What's the matter?" asked her husband.

"I think somebody is in our bungalow!" whispered the rabbit lady. "Yes, I'm sure there is! Oh, my goodness!"

Something very funny happened. You shall hear about it in the next story which will be named Uncle Wiggily Teaching School. And I hope the Blue Jay doesn't fall into the Red ink and make himself look like a Poll Parrot.

OFFERS HER EYE

LONDON, Sept. 14—(CP). — Explaining he could make more use of the eye than she, an elderly Scots woman offered an eye to Ernie Perry, London actor and producer.

She had read how specialists failed to save the sight of one of his eyes after he had been attacked by a dog. She suggested her eye might be transplanted and added: "You still have many useful years before you while I am 66."

"Even if such an operation were feasible I could not accept her offer," Perry said. "But this letter reveals such wonderful sympathy and courage that it has put new heart in me."

Premier Hepburn Declares Tory Leader Was Advised Advertising Inaccurate

by a relative of Leopold Macaulay, former Minister of Highways.

Mr. Macaulay's legal firm had arranged the whole deal, he said, even to putting up the money. The property had been rented for three times its worth, so that in a single year rents from the Liquor Board took care of 56 per cent of the capital investment.

Alex. Elliott.

Delivering what was virtually his maiden political speech, Alex Elliott called upon voters to support the Hepburn Government through his candidacy as the "only government in the Dominion of Canada to have a surplus and a balanced budget. A renewed mandate to Premier Hepburn will open a further way along the path of reconstruction, recovery and reform, he said.

The candidate urged that old party lines be forgotten and consideration given to the record of the Government. He characterized his leader as a man of action who had proven himself able and ready to meet changing conditions with needed reforms. The Government's minimum wage legislation was a good example of this readiness of the Premier to answer the needs of changing conditions.

The speaker claimed the Government had opened a direct way to improvement in the construction industries through relief to the taxpayers of Old Age Pension and Mothers' Allowance costs. The tightening of tax bills has resulted in direct encouragement to citizens to go ahead with building projects, he said.

He praised the administration record in Hydro, pointing to the extension of Hydro to new communities throughout the Province and expansion of the Hydro using public. In the Peterborough district Hydro has been extended to Springville, Keene, Westwood, Douro, Selwyn, Bridgenorth and Lakehurst during the Hepburn administration, he said.

Referring to a victory prediction by T. P. Lancaster, Conservative candidate, Mr. Elliott declared: "I am making no prediction because I believe the candidate who does his wing flapping before the vote is taken might not have anything to crow about after."

Stating that Peterborough County has a big stake in Ontario's $70,000,000 annual tourist industry, the candidate said: "I am in favor of a continued road program in all parts of the County."

He had always had the interests of fish and game at heart and would be willing at any time to further the cause, the candidate said.

Mr. Elliott was introduced by Alderman R. M. Glover as a man "with many qualities and connections that make him an ideal candidate." Mr. Glover said he was born on a farm, a son of the late E. M. Elliott, many years County treasurer. He said he still has contact with the country through many friends and relatives on the farm yet has been in the city long enough to appreciate and understand thoroughly the problems of the city voters.

Warden Brown

Warden Roy Brown proclaimed in dollars and cents savings he contended the Hepburn Government had effected directly for the taxpayers of Peterborough County. Administrations preceding the Hepburn Government had charged 20 per cent. of highway costs to the municipalities with a direct cost to Peterborough County taxpayers of $317,082.40 between the years 1924 and 1936. During the five years prior to 1934, the average cost to the county per year was $32,911.66, he said.

In accordance with these figures, he declared the taking over of highway costs by the Government represented a saving of over 3 mills to County taxpayers.

The Hepburn Government had taken over Mothers' Allowance costs which had taken from the pocke'ts of Peterborough County taxpayers $118,189.20 in the years between 1921 and 1936, he continued. Paying 25 per cent., and later, 10 per cent., of Old-Age Pension costs, and Mothers' payers had paid $59,465.53 during the same period, he said.

With assumption of highway costs, Old-Age Pension costs, and oMthers' Allowance costs, the saving to the County of Peterborough represented a total of 5 mills, Warden Brown concluded. In addition, the Government is now handing back a one-mill subsidy, he said.

"If they have not reached any other achievement beyond balancing the budget, providing a surplus and relieving the taxpayers of six mills in taxes, that alone ought to command the vote of every honest-thinking taxpayer in the County," he said.

Premier Hepburn.

Toward the conclusion of his address Mr. Hepburn discussed his Government's labor program with incidental reference to the settlement of Peterborough's textile strike. He outlined the Liberal Party's policy in the Federal field of striving to obtain a larger place for Canadian products in world markets by lowering tariffs on machinery and raw materials affecting the cost of production.

"We were told in 1926 that Canada was out of step because we were the only country in the world that was reducing its tariffs. As a result of that policy we attained an enviable position among the nations. For some time past we have been approaching another period of prosperity. Two years ago, yes three, we realized that with returning prosperity working men were entitled to share in increased profits. Strikes are an economic loss. No nation ever benefits by them. As a result of labor troubles no American industry to-day is free to quote prices and guarantee delivery of goods. The United States to-day has only 40 per cent. of its export business of 1929. We in Canada enjoy 95 per cent. of our export trade as of 1929."

We have re-established ourselves by maintaining our democratic principles, Mr. Hepburn said. The Government of this province passed the Industrial Standards Act to eliminate sweat shops and to bring competitive industries into line so that they could all adopt the same schedules.

Hat Industry's Agreement

"Only to-day we have succeeded in bringing the hat industry of this province under the Industrial Standards Act, by which these manufacturers are brought together for the first time, agreeing on a schedule of fair wages. In the past one manufacturer's cost of production may have been out of range with another's. Then when they are brought together under the Act we still have competition with the hat manufacturers of Quebec. I wish to pay tribute to the Hon. Mr. Duplessis for enacting legislation similar to our own. Quebec has been working hand in hand with us to eliminate unfair competition. Hence, it is reasonable to believe that as the hat industry solves its difficulties in this province we can go to Quebec and obtain the broader agreement within this industry."

The basis of the settlement of the textile strike in Peterborough was the Industrial Standards Act, Mr. Hepburn continued. A year ago the Government enacted the Wage Schedule Bill which embodied power to determine a minimum wage for men which was invoked in attaining certain of the objectives sought by Peterborough workmen.

"The Labor and Industrial Board is inquiring into costs in the cotton industry. If they find that an industry is making excessive profits and is in a position to increase the wage schedule, the order will be issued."

Mr. Hepburn stated that the Government's action in regard to minimum wages and unemployment insurance had been delayed until they had been declared to be within the jurisdiction of the Legislature. The next step in the Provincial Government's program was to enact a measure providing for unemployment insurance.

"My attitude toward labor has always been most sympathetic, but we want to do these things in an orderly way, in the way of a trained democracy."

No Gift of Timber Land.

Earlier in his address, Mr. Hepburn referred to a statement made by Hon. Earl Rowe, Oakville, alleging that the Government had given away 1,400 acres of rich timber land in a secret deal in the Royal York Hotel.

"I have never given away any of your timber land," the Premier asserted, "and I never had any negotiations with any one in the Royal York Hotel with any one about a timber deal." Most of you remember when Howard Ferguson administered the Department of Lands and Forests. After the defeat of the Hearst Government, the Latchford Commission was appointed by the Drury Government to inquire into Mr. Ferguson's administration of that Department, and as a result of that inquiry $2,000,000 was recovered by the Drury Government. With the defeat of Mr. Drury in 1923 Mr. Ferguson was back in power and the maladministration of our timber lands and forests continued until 1934.

We have the most valuable and accessible timber lands on the continent, and yet people in that area were on relief. When I was in Blind River in 1934 all the people of that place were on relief. To-day they are all at work, and a mill owner at Kapuskasing recently told me that he could employ 600 more men if he could get them. That change has been brought about by our policy in recovering for the Crown valuable timber areas that were given to friends of the former Government. It used to be that if an American wanted to get timber land he had to go to these men who were not in the Government. One of the men who made his money out of our timber lands was Mr. Hogarth, who is actively behind Mr. Rowe, and I am told he has put $200,000 behind Mr. Rowe in this election, and it is natural to expect that he is waiting to exploit those areas again if Mr. Rowe should be elected.

When we took office in 1934 there was poverty and stagnation of industry in Northern Ontario. We had to take taxes from the people in the south of the province to assist them in the north. And yet, there was no need of all that with the big market for pulpwood and newsprint in the United States. Because of this large areas of timber land that were being held by those people we introduced the Timber Allocation Bill. We could see that this would bring about a change that would take the people off relief, increase the revenues of the province and enable us to pass back that money to the people as a whole. But, when I asked for the legislation to recover those acres we met with strong resistance, and one of those who opposed us most was Mr. Black of Lennox-Addington. We put through the Bill notwithstanding Conservative opposition, and with it we have recovered 7,000,000 acres of timber and pulpwood reserves. We reduced stumpage rates and lifted the export embargo. There are now plans for twelve big mills in this province, and we have 30,000 men employed where before there were only 4,500. If our policy is continued there should be 50,000 men employed in the north country bush next year."

Mr. Hepburn also said that the revenue from the Department this year was $4,500,000 and his estimate for next year was $7,000,000, enabling the Government to provide for reduced taxation in the province, as compared with what he said was a previous liability from the Department of Lands and Forests. "We are not giving away any timber areas," Mr. Hepburn added, and explained a system by which agreements were obtained from the pulpmills guaranteeing continuity of operation."

Succession Duties.

Turning to the effects of the Succession Duties Act, enabling the Government to obtain adequate duties from rich estates, Premier Hepburn said the Government had secured $15,996,000 from that source last year, and $12,000,000 the year before, a total of $28,000,000, as compared with the average of less than $7,000,000 in the previous year under the former Government. And among Conservatives who had fillustered against the Bill was Mr. Lancaster, the member for Peterborough.

"I remember W. H. Price, the former Attorney-General, pointing his finger at me and saying that if we adopted that inquisatorial method of enquiring into what duties had been collected from estates we would have to pay money back to the estates. I took a chance. The first big estate we went into was rather funny. A wealthy young chap was bragging at lunch one day about the farmers at Queen's Park, and saying that he wasn't worrying because he had a lawyer to protect his interests. We heard about his remark, and we turned up the file relating to that estate which we found had been fraudulently settled for $630,000 in death succession duties. We finally collected from that estate for the people of Ontario $1,542,247.44, and we didn't even throw off the 44 cents."

Mr. Hepburn said that another case that had not been disposed was the Brown estate of Hamilton which had been settled on a basis of $1,200,000 six years ago when it was known that it had been sold to the National Trust Company for $8,500,000. The government was now trying to collect a further $1,550,000 from that estate, but the opposing solicitor had asked for an adjournment of the enquiry until October 18.

"If Mr. Rowe gets in this drive for succession duties from estates will be stopped the same way Howard Ferguson halted the investigation of his administration of the Department of Lands and Forests. If we are elected you will find that the resistance will cease, and we will go on and collect those monies to which the people of Ontario are entitled, and we will pass them back to you in the way of improved social services and things of that kind."

Mr. Hepburn said that revenue from other Departments had also been increased since his government had been in power. More than $8,000,000 had been obtained by the Department of Highways, as an increase over the Henry government's revenue from the same source. Another incident he related recalled that F. Homer Martin of the Treasury Department whose salary was $6,600 a year had stolen $2,385 "of your money". Indemnity was not collected from the company that bonded this man, but a treasury warrant for $2,500 was issued and actually paid for him.

Discipline was so lax in the Department, and other civil servants were involved to such an extent that F. Homer Martin was given a letter of recommendation when he resigned "on account of poor health. When things were like that at the top, what could you expect?"

Cheque From Mr. Henry

A personal cheque for $3,200 collected from Hon. George S. Henry for gasoline and other automobile expenses incurred by himself and members of his family was another of Mr. Hepburn's recollections from the days before he took office as head of the government.

"Mr. Magladerry told a Conservative audience the other night we had spent $40,000 on new automobiles after we scrapped the government's fleet used by Mr. Henry, Leo Macaulay, Mr. Price and a lot of the others. Not a dollar has been spent on cars for members of the government. We gathered in the ninety-six cars the former government bought, and sold them. There won't be any more of that kind of business so long as we stay in office."

Bonus to Steel Industry

One of the charges Mr. Rowe was making, the Premier continued as he took up another topic, alleged that the government was taking money from the farmers and giving to the steel magnates. Farmers knew by the reduced taxes during the last two years that their burdens were lightened, and Mr. Hepburn said the government had given a bonus to encourage the steel industry and the development of iron ore.

"In tonight's paper I read a report that the United States government was appointing a commission to consider the feasibility of stopping the export of scrap iron. Because of the threat of war and the increasing export of iron and steel from this continent it did not require much intelligence to read the opinion that war might break out. Because of the fact that our industries were dependent on United States manufacturers of steel we approached the Algoma Steel Company and asked them if we could induce them to develop our own iron resources. We called in Mr. McDougall of Montreal for his expert opinion. He prepared a bill to grant assistance to the steel industry, and I sent a copy of the bill to Mr. Henry as leader of the opposition. When it passed through the Legislature no vote was recorded against it. Now Mr. Rowe says we are depriving the farmers of rights they had before, and are turning the money over to Sir James Dunn. Mr. Rowe is now in the north and when he speaks at Sault Ste. Marie I venture to say he will criticise us for not giving the steel industry more of a bonus than we have given. I am happy and proud to have something to do with encouraging this industry when we realize the situation as indicated by the action of the United States in considering whether they will prevent the export of iron and steel from their country. The Algoma Steel mill now employs 3,000 men, and there is a railway up there that has been serving the community and owes us $1,300,000. The Helen Iron mine is becoming active, and this railway may be able to pay us back some of the money they owe the province. Mr. Rowe is simply trying to mislead the people with statements like that."

EXPORTS INCREASED

WELLINGTON, Sept. 14—(CP-Reuters)—New Zealand's overseas trade returns for the seven months ended July 31, 1937, show exports totalling £46, 925,000 (New Zealand) ($186,781,500) compared with £38,911,000 for the corresponding period last year. Imports totalled £30,571,000 compared with £29,390,000.

Food Riots Cetrain.

Plant and his associates say that, in self-defence, the city must broaden its relief activities. But there is no money. Foreigners have given to their capacity to give; the Chinese city government has donated heavily, and money from abroad is coming in small amounts.

"Thus far we have obtained under $20,000 to meet this situation threatening the very existence of Shanghai," Plant said. "As the stringency increases, which it is bound to do, food riots, disease and epidemics are certain.

"A majority of these people have lived on what are now battlefields. If transportation were available, we could not move them out of Shanghai. Already they have given evidence of a determination to remain indefinitely.

The foreign refugee problem is nothing compared with that of natives. Thus far 4,000 British subjects, mostly women and children, have left, 3,000 remain. Americans have evacuated 2,200, with 2,500 left.

Only a few hundred French have left, the majority choosing to stay behind what is admittedly the most efficient of foreign defences. The French have indicated they will assist 20,000 White Russians who have no place to go.

JAPS TO REFUSE ANY MEDIATION BY THE LEAGUE

GENEVA, Sept. 15—(AP)—Japan will refuse and ignore even friendly mediation by the League of Nations in the Sino-Japanese conflict, the Japanese Minister to Switzerland disclosed to-day.

The Japanese envoy, Eiji Amau told The Associated Press Japan would brook no interference in the Far Eastern crisis.

His statement came as the League pondered what, if any, action to take on China's indictment of Japanese "aggression" and her demand for a league denunciation of the Japanese military campaign.

"There is no question of Japan accepting a temporary league seat ease she is invited to defend her-elf," the Japanese envoy declared.

Amau said that though Japan is no longer a member of the league, he is following developments during the assembly session.

Officially Amau is in Geneva in his capacity as director of the Japanese Geneva Bureau to handle international conferences.

(In Tokyo the Japanese Government ordered Amau to deny Chinese charges of aggression, but a Foreign Office spokesman said he had been given no detailed instructions.

(He may "at his own discretion make an official statement to the league," the spokesman declared, adding that league action would only "aggravate" the Sino-Japanese crisis.)

REBELS HAMMER MADRID AFRESH

MADRID, Sept. 15 (AP)—A fresh insurgent attempt to penetrate Madrid, this time through the south-western suburbs, started today.

Defence commanders shrugged and commented: "No substantial gains."

Children played at warfare of their own on the heavy stone street barricades.

Mothers sat in the sun and nursed infants born since Nov. 6 when the Insurgents laid siege to the former capital of Republican Spain.

Civilian Madrid at large went about its business, scarcely noticing the din of combat.

Shellfire, the rumble of exploding land mines and the chatter of machine guns crescendoed today. A bombardment by trench mortars Monday in the users sector was followed yesterday with open infantry attacks which government officers said had been repulsed. It was the first major combat on the Madrid front in weeks.

The street barricades, raised against the day when Madrid feared her Insurgent foe might spear into the city proper, cut off motor car traffic in many districts and thousands of city-bred children used the streets for their mimic wars and hide-and-seek.

On hills overlooking the Carabanchel trenches of the Insurgents, elderly people sat and gazed with tired and seemingly indifferent eyes toward the scene of battle.

ABERHART CALLS SESSION SEPT. 24

EDMONTON, Sept. 15 (C.P.). — Action involving banks is expected to be considered at a special session of the Alberta Legislature opening on September 24.

In announcing the date of the session yesterday, Premier Aberhart said one or two new Bills and two or three amendments to present legislation will be introduced. The House probably will prorogue in three or four days, he said.

The Premier did not reveal nature of contemplated legislation, but shortly after the Dominion Government disallowed Alberta banking and court legislation on August 17, Mr. Aberhart announced a special session would be called to deal with the situation.

The disallowed legislation was passed at a special four-day session opened on August 3. One Act would require bankers and bank employees to take out licenses, another would prevent unlicensed bank employees from instituting or defending any action in any Court of Civil Jurisdiction in Alberta, a third would bar court actions testing validity of Alberta legislation except with Government consent.

ITALY PREPARING NEW ARMY TO WIN WAR END OF FALL

PARIS, Sept. 15 (CP-Havas—The newspaper Ce Soir tonight said the British delegation at Geneva was gravely concerned over a reported Italian plan to send an army of more than 100,000 men to Spain with all necessary equipment, including gas, to smash Spanish resistance before the winter sets in.

During the past 24 hours all diplomatic conversations at Geneva have centered on this plan, worked out by Marshall Pietro Badoglio, "conqueror" of Ethiopia, Ce Soir said.

BARRING STRIFE PROSPERITY HERE

HALIFAX, Sept. 15 (C.P.)—Confidence in the economic future of Canada was expressed here to-day by Lord Rothermere, British newspaper magnate, on a holiday visit to Nova Scotia.

"If there's no serious international disturbance, Canada is set for prosperity for a number of years to come," he said.

Asserting there was "no business significance whatsoever in my visit to Halifax," he refused to comment on the European political situation, and confined his remarks to local conditions.

He had a word of cheer for Nova Scotia's harassed apple growers who in the last three days have seen as much as 50 per cent. of one of the best crops in years destroyed by two violent storms.

"The fruit growers need not worry unduly about the destruction wrought by the storm on their crop," he said. "I am a small grower of apples in the Old Country. The English crop this year is bad and Nova Scotia apples should fetch a good price there."

Rome Demands Equality In Whole Area Before Accepting Any Share

LONDON, Sept. 15 (CP)—As the naval forces of nine powers launched a "pirate hunt" in the Mediterranean today, the impression grew that piracy was ended.

Whether or not yesterday's Italian note, refusing participation in the patrol unless full equality with Great Britain and France is granted, the agreement signed at Nyon, Switzerland, has already had its effect, it was maintained.

"Pirate" submarines have already received orders to return to their bases, the Daily Herald said. "The impression here grows that the menace of piracy has been brought to an end," said the Manchester Guardian.

Although only 40 British destroyers will be used directly in the anti-submarine patrol, almost 100 British naval vessels, from small mine sweepers to the giant battle-cruiser Hood, will be in the Mediterranean following the arrival of reinforcements.

Admiral Sir Dudley Pound, commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean fleet, was proceeding aboard his flagship to confer at Oran, Algeria, with Vice-Admiral Jean Esteva, inspector-general of French naval forces, who last night was placed in command of the French patrol fleet.

Six flotillas of destroyers, airplane-carriers, a squadron each of scouting and bombing seaplanes, and 10 large seaplanes used in naval reconnaissance will be under the command of Admiral Esteva.

Note Demands Parity

Dispatches from Geneva quoted diplomatic circles as convinced the Italian note demanding parity in the naval patrol was equivalent to a refusal to participate.

The Manchester Guardian made ironical reference to doubts concerning the effectiveness of possible Italian participation.

"If there is any revival of piracy," the paper said, "it would surely be an untenable situation for Italy if pirates were successful in her zone. The only inference would be that either her fleet is incapable of dealing with the submarine menace, or she is in league with the pirates."

The Associated Press said Russia was reported reliably to be determined to block the Italian demand for parity.

Italy's protest that the patrol system "seems unacceptable" was based on the prospect of an Anglo-French fleet cruising the length and breadth of a body of water the Italians call "our sea" and the proposed relegation of Italy to patrol of the Tyrrhenian Sea, which lies to the west of the Italian "boot."

Italy Seems Peeved.

ROME, Sept. 15 (C.P.). — Fascist newspapers to-day reiterated the demand, made in a note delivered to the British and French Governments last night, that the Italian fleet be granted parity with the naval forces of Great Britain and France in the anti-pirate patrol of the Mediterranean.

"Italy should have parity with all Powers in all zones of the Mediterranean," Popolo d'Italia said. "Rome's response in this matter can not be discussed.

BRITISH ADMIRAL WARNS 2 ARMIES HALT WILD FIRING

SHANGHAI, Sept. 15 (A.P.). — Admiral Sir Charles Little, Commander-in-Chief of British naval forces in the Far East, repeated today his warning to the Japanese and Chinese armies to cease reckless firing over foreign warcraft in the harbor that is endangering not only lives aboard the warships, but in the densely-populated foreign settlements.

The warning from the British Admiral came after a day of furious fighting along the northern borders of the International Settlement. The commanders of the U.S. and French fleets and the Italian and Netherlands naval commandants joined in the warning.

Machine-gun fire from the concrete nests of China's new defence line north-west of the city mowed down Japanese attacking in an effort to crack the 30-mile front.

Within the Settlement fears of the spread of cholera were felt. The first British death was reported. The victim was Private Thomas Brown of the Royal Regiment (North Lancashire).

The dread plague affects 640 Chinese and five foreigners in the French Concession and International Settlement alone. No attempt was made to estimate the number stricken outside the foreign districts, but it is believed to be many times greater because of the terrible conditions among Chinese refugees.

The naval commanders called attention in their warning to the many persons killed and wounded in the International Settlement during the last month, both from planes flying overhead and the resultant anti-aircraft fire.

The battle surged around the northern border of the International Settlement along Soochow Creek where the Chinese right flank rests.

The Chinese indicated their intention of making a determined stand along the 30-mile line to which they withdrew over the week-end, leaving the Japanese in possession of a large area of the Shanghai Delta.

DROWNS HUNTING

ROCKLAND, Ont., Sept. 15 (CP) —John Aube, 20, of Orleans, Ont., was drowned in the Ottawa River near here today when the rowboat overturned.

Aube and Samuel Hedlan were duck hunting with two dogs. After shooting a duck in the river they were rowing out to get it when the dogs got excited and upset the boat. Hedlan was able to keep afloat until rescued.

Rockland is 40 miles east of Ottawa.

Hepburn Sought Coalition Dr. J. M. Robb Insists

Even The President Feels Pinched

Washington, Sept. 15.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT yesterday was asked at his press conference about the general monetary situation, and particularly if he thought there was any prospect of a "money pinch."

The President referred his questioner to the United States Treasury. Then he added, with a smile, that he himself is always in a money pinch.

200 BRITISH, FRENCH SHIPS FOR PATROL

PARIS, Sept. 15 (CP)—When reinforcements reach the Mediterranean, Great Britain and France will have close to 200 ships available to pursue the hunt for piratical submarines in the Inland sea, a survey disclosed today.

Nominally only destroyers and aircraft will be used in the anti-pirate patrol, but other naval units will co-operate whenever possible.

In addition to 90-odd naval vessels flying the British flag, France will have nearly 100 warships in the Mediterranean, where she maintains the great naval base of Toulon.

Rowe Will Name Ottawa South Man

TORONTO, Sept. 15.—Conservative Leader Earl Rowe of Ontario will select the Conservative candidate in Ottawa South, where a dispute over the party's representative in the October 6 voting has prevailed, Cecil G. Frost, Conservative organizer, on Tuesday announced two men seeking the nomination have agreed to withdraw in favor of Mr. Rowe's choice.

Arthur Ellis, member in the last Legislature, is again seeking the nomination. Mr. Frost's statement follows:

"I am very happy to announce that Alderman George S. Sloan and Osmond R. Rowe, both of whom were widely supported to represent the Conservative Party in the riding of Ottawa South, have demonstrated their splendid party loyalty by agreeing to withdraw from the contest in favor of a candidate to be selected by Hon. Earl Rowe."

Northern Ireland has more employed persons than a year ago.

Meant End Two Old Parties, Union With Duplessis To Defeat King

THESSALON, Ont., Sept. 15 (CP) —For the second time in a week Conservative speakers today declared Premier Hepburn had made a coalition government offer to Conservative leader Rowe.

With Mr. Rowe on the platform, Dr. J. M. Robb, former Ontario health minister and Conservative candidate for the Oct. 6 election in Algoma Manitoulin, made the statement. In Cobourg last week W. H. Ireland, President of the Ontario Conservative Association mentioned a coalition offer.

"A little while ago Mr. Hepburn got in a panic and sent a hurried call to Mr. Rowe," Dr. Robb said. "And he was willing to give up the premiership.

"He would, by uniting with Rowe, completely destroy the Conservative party and the Liberal party in Ontario. That coalition party being successful would thus go on and unite with Premier Duplessis of Quebec and defeat Mackenzie King."

Mr. Rowe said that while the Hepburn Government boasted of collecting $82,000,000 in taxes last year, it gave farmers $398,000 less in grants than previously.

Imports From Alberta

"At the present time we haven't seen anything of an agricultural policy," Mr. Rowe said. "We have as Minister of Agriculture a Western Canada politician. He fired men in his department and brought about a dozen politicians from Alberta."

(The reference was to Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, who formerly held the same portfolio in an Alberta government.)

The Conservative leader said agricultural service had been neglected. "We purpose to put these services back," he added. "We will re-establish the bounties."

He charged the government with having initiated the "most vicious, cold-blooded patronage policy of any government since Confederation."

Brief reference was made to Premier Hepburn's "break" from Prime Minister Mackenzie King. Mr. Rowe said the Ontario Premier had a new policy "that probably some day can coalesce with Duplessis in Quebec and drive the Liberals out."

One result of a Hepburn-Duplessis Union could be amalgamation of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways, he asserted.

Romantic 'Mine With Iron Door' Starts Another Search

Engineer Hopes 40 Maps Will Lead To Four-Century-Old $90,000,000 Missionary Hoard

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 15 (AP)—Nathan Sturdy, mining engineer and member of the Smithsonian Institution, planned to leave today for Tucson, Arizona, to search for "the mine with the iron door," immortalized in legend and history.

In his office in Pittsburgh's downtown "golden triangle," Sturdy said he not only hopes to find the mine, but also more than $90,000,000 in gold, stored there four centuries ago by Spanish priests, the legends claim.

In the 16th century, so the story goes, Spanish missionaries in the southwest accumulated great hoards of gold from Indian miners.

The gold was to be shipped to Spain, but Spanish ship captains that could be trusted were rare on the California coast. The priests hid the gold until "safe" ships arrived, then it was transported from Arizona by pack mule.

Last of these priests was Francist. Before he could ship his store back to Spain, he was recalled. He stored the metal, the tradition is, somewhere behind the "iron door" of the Escalante mine.

Seer Sees Winter Early, Cold

Fort Erie, Sept. 15.

JOHN KOON of Cosy Dell came into Fort Erie yesterday from the near-by summer resort on the Niagara River and made his annual prediction about winter weather on the peninsula.

The octogenarian "Mayor of Cosy Dell" said this winter would be cold.

"Why, the robins are all leaving for the South even before the grapes are ripe," he said. "In normale falls they always remain behind to get their fill but this year they're not waiting. That's a sure sign of an early winter and is backed up by numerous other woodland indications."

13 CASES PARALYSIS

STRATFORD, Ont., Sept. 15 (CP) —Another case of infantile paralysis, that of a six year old boy, was reported here today, bringing the total number since the epidemic started to 13. Three were children from rural communities.

The newest case has been taken to the Isolation Hospital, bringing the number of cases confined there to nine.

Next War To Be Fought Without Church Toronto Pastor Predicts

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 15.

REV. DR. RICHARD ROBERTS of Toronto said today the next war will be fought without the support of the church.

"There will be no recruiting from the pulpit, no prayers for victory in the next war," he told the 85th annual pastors' conference at the Hartford seminary.

The pastor of Sherbourne United Church at Toronto referred to war as "general murder" and "a diseased international relationship."

"The church is suffering yet from the consequences of the last war," he said, "and it will not support another."

Desire Benefits Easily Available People Of Canada

Good 'Hopper End Is To Eat Them

Winnipeg, Sept. 15.

MRS. ARTHUR MARZIN, an English traveller visiting Winnipeg, yesterday suggested that a good way to eliminate the grasshopper menace was to eat them like the natives in Palestine eat their grasshoppers.

"When I was there I saw men on the sidewalk selling toasted grasshoppers, nicely browned like shrimps. They looked quite tasty," she added.

BALMORAL GIVES KING LITTLE ROOM FOR ENTERTAINING

LONDON, Sept. 15. — (CP). — Visit of the King and Queen to Balmoral prompted the Evening Star to give the following behind-the-scenes information on how a Royal castle is run:

"Balmoral is comparatively limited in accommodation, and the King has no definite workroom as he has at Buckingham palace or at Windsor castle. His Majesty, like his father, uses the library for audiences and receptions and generally to transact business with his ministers. The library is comfortably furnished with arm chairs and at a desk near the window overlooking the Dee Valley His Majesty does his personal correspondence.

"A special suite of rooms is allocated to ministers in attendance. It is in the wing opposite the library and consists of a day room and bedroom with a bathroom attached.

"When a Cabinet Minister arrives a footman is specially detailed to wait on him, and to those who have not been to the castle before this servant is always of great value in keeping the guest primed as to the routine of the day.

"Ministers are not expected to accompany the King on shooting expeditions.

"Mrs. Neville Chamberlain did not accompany the Prime Minister when he went to Balmoral as Minister in Attendance.

"However, this is only according to precedent. Since the Victorian era when ministers have been summoned to Balmoral in attendance, the command has never included the ministers' wives.

"The King usually receives his ministers in the evening between tea and dinner, when they meet in the library, and no one is then permitted to interrupt.

"Balmoral is not a large house, and the accommodation is not suitable for many ladies.

"Moreover, the minister is summoned as an official of the Government, with a definite duty to discharge. Commands are usually for three days and two nights."

Propose Nickel Be Included— Charge Money Barons Waxing Fat Exploiting Mines

OTTAWA, Sept. 15 (C.P.). — The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada to-day voted to ask the Dominion Government to declare monopolies over production and distribution of nickel and radium.

The Labor Convention adopted without debate a resolution of the Alberta Federation of Labor describing "the territory contiguous to the Province of Alberta" as "one of the richest known sources for the securing of radium," and asking that the Congress seek to have the Dominion Government "establish its monopoly in the development of this source of radium to the end that by this method the scientific benefits that can accrue from this mineral will be more readily available to the people of Canada."

(Mining of pitchblende, the radium ore, is carried out now by a private company operating at the eastern end of Great Bear Lake in the North-West Territories.)

Spurred by the appeal of Fred Collins of Toronto, the convention adopted another resolution of the Alberta Federation of Labor calling for a Government monopoly on nickel deposits, processing of the metal and its export and asking that no exports of nickel be made except to countries offering satisfactory proof that their purchases were solely for domestic use.

Canada, Collins said, has 90 per cent. of the world's nickel and "it is no secret that exports of nickel to warring countries have increased to unbelievable proportions.

"It is no secret that in the last war Canadians were killed by bullets containing nickel mined in Canada by Canadian workmen and shipped to Germany by Canadian companies.

"If this country becomes embroiled in war again we shall again have the experience of the flower of the Canadian nation being murdered with Canadian materials.

"The money overlords of this country are growing fat on the exploitation of mines and they are prepared again to offer Canadian workers as a sacrifice to their profits."

No More Immigrants

The Alberta Federation of Labor gained support also for its resolution asking congress to oppose any attempts to lower immigration barriers.

The meeting accepted a resolution from Winnipeg Lodge No. 6 of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America asking that the congress co-operate with the standard international railway unions to obtain legislation in Canada similar to the United States railroad retirement act, possibly at the next session of parliament.

The resolution's preambly said railway pension schemes in this country are "totally inadequate" and said some of the smaller lines lacked schemes of any kind.

The Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian National Railways, it continued, have dissimilar schemes, that of the Canadian Pa-

CANADA KEEPING HER DAIRY COWS

OTTAWA, Sept. 15 (C.P.).—Canadian farmers are keeping their dairy cattle. Large numbers of beef cattle are moving to the United States, but because of good prices at home it is unlikely the American quota on Canadian dairy cattle will be filled this year, Agriculture Department officials said to-day.

Similarly, exports of cream across the border under the quota in the Canada-United States trade agreement are expected to be small due to insufficient spread between Canadian and United States prices.

Under the agreement, 20,000 dairy cows a year may be sent to the United States at 1½ cents a pound duty. In 1936 only 40 per cent. of the quota was filled and this year up to July 31 exports were less than 4,000. United States customs figures place the total at 4,006 on August 28.

The cream quota is 1,500,000 gallons at 35 cents a gallon duty. Last year exports were 35,000 gallons. That figure has been more than doubled by the end of July, and according to American figures reached 80,000 gallons at the end of August, but it was still a small fraction of the quota.

Good butter prices in Canada and a staple market for cheese in the United Kingdom have kept cream exports low. Cream prices would have to rise substantially in the United States, officials said, before creameries would find it profitable to skim the milk and ship large quantities under the quota.

U.S. Spanish War Veteran Of 24 "Not Anxious To Go Back"

Canada Frees Dozen As They Return From Action On Many Fronts

QUEBEC, Sept. 15 (CP) — Nine white youngsters, a youthful negro, and two middle-aged men—the dozen of them veterans of the Spanish civil war—were released yesterday by immigration authorities and headed for their homes in the United States.

They are United States citizens, held since Sunday when they arrived in Quebec from Le Havre on the liner Ausonia, while Canadian and United States immigration officials investigated their cases.

The group, 11 of them natives of the United States, were in the station waiting-room here on hour before the Montreal train left.

None looked like a soldier. One of the older ones—he was tall, dark and bronzed—gave his name as George Morley.

Besides Morley, only two—Robert Brady and rank Loukas—would give names. The others "didn't care to."

Robert Brady, tall, pale and 26, said he was wounded in "the fight at Brunete—the bloodiest battle in the world." Shrapnel got him while he worked a machine gun.

BRIGHTMAN and Norwalk, sandlot baseball teams, were playing a tight game. At a crucial moment a stray cat ambled on to the diamond, sniffed around for a few moments, finally selected third base as a homey looking spot and there gave birth to three kittens. A red-faced umpire removed the tabby to a more secluded nursery.

$1,500,000 Damage 600,000 Bbls. Loss Done Two Storms

Scores Of Coastal Craft Driven Ashore, Trees, Power Lines Levelled

HALIFAX, Sept. 15.—(CP).—Annapolis Valley orchardists saw their hopes of a record harvest this year fade to-day as their crops were struck yesterday by a violent two-hour gale as they were recovering from the effects of a storm during the week-end.

The two storms left a trail of ruin through Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and unofficial estimates of damage to the apple harvest placed the loss at 600,000 barrels, valued at approximately $1,500,000.

Thousands of workers went to work in the vast orchards in the 120-mile Annapolis Valley apple belt to-day, picking up windfalls to be delivered to factories for manufacture of by-products.

The wind storm that reached a velocity of 60 miles an hour at times drove the freighter Sonia aground on a soft mudbank of the Petitcodiac river yesterday, but she was refloated at high tide without difficulty. No damage was reported.

Scores of coastal craft were driven ashore by the storm that cut off communications between New Brunswick and Nova Scotia for a time. Telegraph and telephone connections in the two provinces were damaged by the high wind and falling trees and branches that snapped them in two.

Practically every fruit grower in the valley suffered from the gale that was accompanied by a heavy rain.

Power lines were snapped in Moncton and Liverpool, on the Nova Scotia south shore, and both places were in darkness for some time. One dwelling in Liverpool was moved 20 feet from its foundation.

CABINET MEMBER OWING PROVINCE $50,000 SAYS ROWE

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Sept. 15—(CP).—Victory for the Conservative party at the October 6 Ontario elections will be followed by steps to collect money owing the province by a Cabinet minister, Hon. Earl Rowe told a Sault Ste. Marie audience last night. The Conservative leader headed for Blind River and Sudbury to-day to continue his northern campaign.

Before leaving Sault Ste. Marie, he designated Controller George S. Dunar of Ottawa as the party's candidate in Ottawa South. The Conservative leader made the choice because of differences in Conservative ranks in the riding where Arthur Ellis, member in the last Legislature, obtained injunctions against holding a convention.

He expressed appreciation of the "unselfish attitude" shown by Alderman George S. Sloan and Osmond F. Howe, prominent contenders for the nomination, in withdrawing in favor of their leader's choice. "I have requested Controller G. H. Dunbar to run as our official candidate and am happy to announce he has accepted," said Mr. Rowe.

$50,000 on Timber Dues.

"Why is it a Cabinet Minister sanic in Mr. Hepburn's Government and owe the Government $50,000 and get more timber limits while a small operator has to pay his dues promptly?" he asked his Sault Ste. Marie audience. "Why should a Cabinet Minister pay when he likes and owe the province $50,000 while the Premier goes up and down posing as the great tax collector?"

He accused the Premier of having plans to renew Hydro-Electric Power contracts and had already renewed more than half the ones cancelled in 1935. The Premier was challenged to deny the contracts were required and Mr. Rowe charged the Government "sought frantically to avoid a power shortage."

The Liberal administration "ruthlessly" reduced Government services "to set up a $9,000,000 election gold pot to please its millionaire friends on Bay Street," Mr. Rowe said. "Was the bind man concerned with a $9,000,000 surplus when his Government reduced the grant to the National Institute for the Blind?"

The education grant was reduced $1,250,000; health service grants by $600,000, and hospital grants cut $1,000,000, he continued. In the face of these cuts the Government obtained $32,000,000 more in taxes last

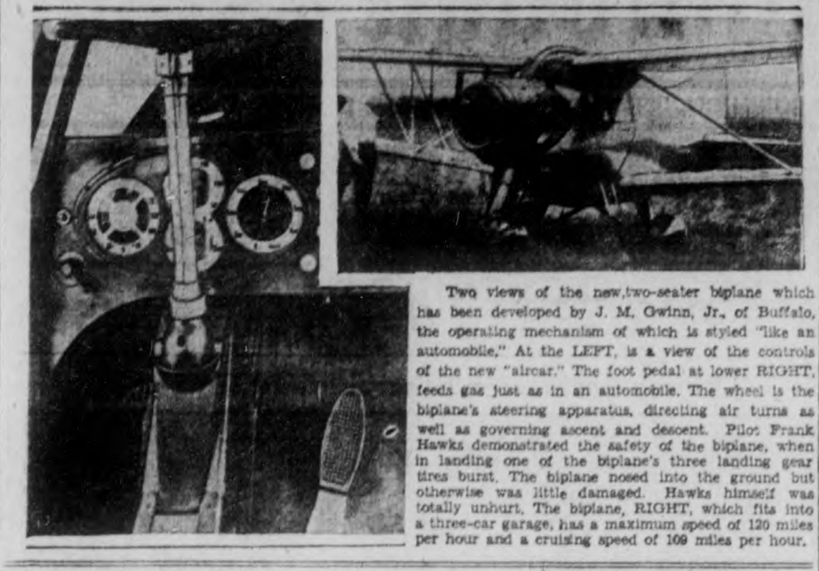
New Type Of 'Plane Operates Like Automobile



Two views of the new two-seater biplane which has been developed by J. M. Gwinn, Jr., of Buffalo, the operating mechanism of which is styled "like an automobile." At the LEFT, is a view of the controls of the new "aircar." The foot pedal at lower RIGHT, feeds gas just as in an automobile. The wheel is the biplane's steering apparatus, directing air turns as well as governing ascent and descent. Pilot Frank Hawks demonstrated the safety of the biplane, when in landing one of the biplane's three landing gear tires burst. The biplane nosed into the ground but otherwise was little damaged. Hawks himself was totally unhurt. The biplane, RIGHT, which fits into a three-car garage, has a maximum speed of 120 miles per hour and a cruising speed of 109 miles per hour.

'38 CAR LICENSES WITH CUT, READY SEPT. 21 - HEPBURN

LINDSAY, Ont., Sept. 15 (CP).—Ontario's reduced automobile lists September 21, Premier Hepburn licenses will be available to motor- told a political meeting here last night, at the same time charging Conservatives had been skeptical of the general $5 reduction he promised recently.

"Our Tory friends have been saying this was only an election dodge, that we were not really going to do it," he said. "I'm going to take them by surprise, because on the 21st of this month the new plates will be available at the reduced rates. This is going to mean a saving to the people who drive automobiles of $2,700,000 a year."

That saving was possible, Mr. Hepburn said, because he had resisted the "pressure" of Toronto financial houses when floating new Provincial loans.

The first thing he had had to do after taking office in 1934 was to fight the Toronto financial interests, the Premier said. The Henry Government had obtained a large loan on 5½ per cent. bonds sold below par. Bond dealers made $14,000,000 profit on the deal—in which the government was advised by three experts who received $65,000 for their advice, he claimed.

Faced with the necessity of obtaining additional funds at once, the Hepburn government floated a loan at less than three per cent. "after a terrific battle," he said, which meant a saving of $2,500,000 a year in interest charges on the one loan.

More Men At Work.

Where Ontario had once, in 1923, produced as much newsprint as Quebec, in 1934 it was producing only about half the Quebec total, he said. He claimed this was due to the Conservatives giving timber limits away to their friends who did not develop them but held them for speculation, while Quebec insisted on development.

Through change in policy, 30,000 men were now at work in Northern Ontario bush compared to 4,500 when the government took office. Next year, with 12 new mills under construction, 50,000 men would be at work there. Revenue from lands and forests was now about $7,000,000 a year, and would soon be $10,000,000, compared to a loss under Conservative administration.

Mr. Hepburn contended that in permitting export of pulpwood, the government was creating work for men cutting wood which would otherwise be wasted, since pulpwood, like other crops, had to be

MALE SITS ON EGG

LONDON, Sept. 15—(CP).—Current attraction of London Zoo is Pharaon, widower King Penguin, who is trying to hatch the egg left behind by his mate when she died several weeks ago.

A keeper who "listened in" at the egg said he could hear no noise, such as a chick on the point of hatching would make. And it is now considered unlikely it will hatch.

WARSAW INSTITUTE VISITS INDUSTRIES

WARSAW, Sept. 15.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Twenty-five W.I. women and two men made the trip to Canadian Industries on Wednesday. About 10 a.m. they visited the Westclox and were interested in the assembling of parts, spraying on of enamel for cases, and making cases.

It was interesting to see a girl winding watches, thirty a minute, to learn that every timepiece is tested for five days before it is put on the market, and that 25,000 clocks of various kinds, including electric and watches, are put out every day, and that a firm in U.S. puts out 30,000 a day.

Some went to the Lift Locks.

In the hour before noon the Quaker Oats works were visited where the machinery seemed almost human in making the boxes for different cereals, filling them, casing, closing and packaging. Making spaghetti and muffets was particularly interesting. Then we saw the huge piles of different weights of materials used in making bags, from the heavy and coarse used for coarse products to fine white for fine flour. A machine which drew particular interest was for turning the bags right side out. No hands touched the foods or food materials.

Visit Nashua Paper

After lunch all went to the Nashua Paper works where again they were kindly received and everything was so well explained. The actual making of the pulp and paper was not seen, but how paper is treated for various uses was. Various modes of waxing paper was shown. Making of bottle stoppers, cartons and printing them in various colors, also the printing of wrappers, and packaging them was very interesting. The whole procedure was fascinating.

The Brinton Carpet plant was visited where everything from the making of the yarns to the beautiful finished products was seen, though probably few could understand it all. Still it could easily be realized that a splendid quality of goods of beauty was manufactured, and a greater appreciation of the goods that go into home and public buildings.

The branch appreciates very gratefully the kindness and courtesy shown them by the firms it visited.

TWO MEN FINED FOR ABUSING COW

WHITBY, Sept. 15. — Clarence Mapes and Louis Bird of Whitby Township were yesterday found guilty of ill-treating a cow by Magistrate F. S. Ebbs in Police Court. Bird was fined $10, and costs, or ten days, and Mapes allowed suspended sentence.

Evidence was given by W. C. Thomson of Pickering Township and Toronto that on August 21, when travelling on one of the county roads, he came across the accused pair dragging a cow tied behind a truck, and when he arrived on the scene the cow was bleeding at the knees and cuts on its body, and was in a state of exhaustion.

To let him pass the cow was dragged on its side across the road by the tail. Mr. Thomson notified the Humane Society, and with them investigated the case.

Mapes and Bird testified the cow was stubborn and that they had it on the truck but it broke a rack and would not move. They were leading it, and the cow was not dragged far, they said. Magistrate Ebbs stated "the ill-treatment of animals in Ontario County will be severely dealt with."

FEW FARMERS PAY AN INCOME TAX

TRENTON, Sept. 15.—"We talk about the agricultural population being the backbone of Canada, but we are too prone to be carried away by politicians and others who expound the glories of farming," stated W. A. Fraser, M.P., for Northumberland, addressing the Trenton Rotary club Monday night.

"The set-up in Italy, Russia and Germany is the result of a faction getting a strangle hold. Everything must be kept in alignment with agriculture; if any faction gains such strength where they overcome this alignment, then all will suffer," he said.

Mr. Fraser stated that one-third of the population of Canada is engaged in agriculture. "Of that percentage, 250,000 receive no remuneration, and the average return is $1 a day. There are less than 2,500 farmers paying income tax in Canada to-day."

"It is the lesson learned by the boy on the farm that makes him realize the value of money. The topnotchers in farming are those who have learned thrift," he concluded.

Lincoln Ellsworth, the American Antarctic explorer, will arrive in Johannesburg, South Africa, next March to attempt another flight over the Antractic region.

U.S. ACTS TO BAR ARMS CARGOES TO CHINA, JAPAN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP).—Officials of te United States Maritime Commission worked today to carry out a partial embargo ordered by President Roosevelt on arms shipments to China and Japan.

The full commission was summoned to a special session to consider whether it will intercept the United States freighter Wichita, en route from Baltimore to China with a cargo of 19 airplanes, as the first application of the new rule.

The vessel, which sailed from Baltimore on Aug. 27, was expected to reach San Pedro, Calif., during the day for refueling.

Roosevelt issued the arms ban yesterday by forbidding 37 ships owned by the government operated privately to transport munitions to the far eastern war zone.

All other American merchant vessels were cautioned if they attempt to take such cargoes to the Orient, they do so at their own risk.

The edict was proclaimed after the President had conferred with State Secretary Hull and Chairman of the Maritime Commission.

Law On 24-Hour Basis

The president's statement emphasized the neutrality act was not being invoked at this time, but that government policy in this respect was being kept "on a 24-hour basis."

The neutrality law, which the president must apply once he finds a state of war exists between nations, automatically would bar United States munitions exports and financial aid to belligerents. It would permit Roosevelt to forbid American ships to transport to the war zones any other commodities which he might designate.

The president repeated at his press conference yesterday his intention to do everything possible to keep the United States out of any war.

Thus far, neither Japan nor China formally has proclaimed a state of war. Nevertheless the president is represented by associates as believing that Japan's blockade of the China coast presents such a potential danger to ships carrying arms cargoes that it cannot be ignored.

ROGERS SUPPORTS RIGHT TO ORGANIZE

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 15 (CP) —Hon. Norman Rogers, Dominion Minister of Labor, addressing a political meeting here last night, said labor should not be denied the right to organize for collective bargaining.

Speaking in his own federal riding in the interests of William Y. Mills, Liberal nominee in the coming Ontario election, Mr. Rogers said if his position differed from that of Premier Hepburn, "You may take it as evidence of freedom of thought within the Liberal party.

"Differences of opinion have never hurt any political party, so long as they are honestly and frankly expressed," he added.

Mr. Rogers said he has taken "a definite position on the side of the workers to organize for all lawful purposes, and I cannot take one view in Ottawa and another in Kingston."

He was in full agreement, however, he added, with Mr. Hepburn on the Ontario premier's insistence upon suppression of lawlessness.

The right of association was a civil right guaranteed by the constitution and by treaty. Mr. Rogers said he did not intend "to say any more on this question, for I have responsibilities to labor for the entire Dominion just as Mr. Hepburn has responsibilities for the whole of Ontario.

Employment was helped in Canada by the Dominion government's policy of promoting foreign trade, said Mr. Rogers. Reciprocity with the United States raised the prices of farm products from 50 to 100 per cent.

The province of Ontario co-operated in giving employment to some 9,000 men on federal projects. Highway construction was distributed over the entire province instead of isolated in the north and every municipality benefitted from this program in reduced relief costs.

ANARCHISTS GRAB CONTROL IN GIJON

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, Sept. 15 (CP)—Anarchists have made a coup d'etat at Gijon, lone Spanish government coastal stronghold in the northwest, and have set up an Asturian dictatorship, Insurgent officers announced at Irun today.

Military advices said Belarmino Tomas, an anarchist, headed the movement.

He issued a decree breaking off relations with the Spanish central government and setting up a separate anarchist state in Asturias, with himself the dictator.

Earlier the Insurgent command reported one column of its three-pronged drive on Gijon had captured a series of mountain villages in the wake of retreating Asturian troops.

The Asturians fell backward and upward along the Leon-Oviedo highway, about 50 air miles south of Gijon.

One of Tomas' first acts was to order the imprisonment of the general staff of the Spanish governments' retreating northern army.

In addition, Insurgent headquarters at Irun said, he imprisoned foreign military experts with the government forces.

Several high Spanish officers were ordered executed. Two ships were loaded with Rightist prisoners, the Insurgent announcement said. And the captives warned they would be sunk if Insurgents made further bombing raids on Gijon.

MAY BE CHANGE WITH ATTITUDE TOWARD CHURCH

VALENCIA, Spain, Sept. 15 (CP). —The first mass since the outbreak of the Spanish civil war more than a year ago, was celebrated in Madrid on August 15, but reports this would signalize the immediate re-opening of Catholic churches throughout republican Spain, proved premature.

The government has made it clear there will be no general reopening of the churches at present, but the possibility of authorizing Catholic services is being considered. Reports of wholesale desecration and destruction of churches in government-held territory were not borne out by investigations made by a group of newspapermen from the British Dominions, just back from a tour extending from Madrid to Barcelona.

The party came across a number of churches in the interior and the cities that had been put to the torch by uncontrollable mobs during the early days of the revolt. Officials claim many others were razed by incendiary bombs released by insurgent raiders.

"There were excesses during the early stages of the war, I do not deny it," said Julio Alverez Del Vayo, chief commissar of war, discussing the question of churches. "It is true that people were even shot without trial, but that was due to the frenzy of undisciplined, irresponsible groups," he added. "That is something of the past, to be regretted, but now public order and discipline have been restored."

Catholic churches which have not been touched by the ravages of the rebellion, have been closed for "reasons of emergency," but no restrictions have been placed on Protestant houses of worship. In a country preponderantly Catholic, it came as a surprise to learn that services were being conducted in no less than 20 Protestant churches in Barcelona alone.

"The government is not waging a war against the Church," Del Vayo declared. "It is not a question of Catholic persecution, although some day we may be able to publish statistics showing the part played by priests in the insurrection against the government. The government has nothing against opening the Catholic church, but our best friends in the church have advised us it would be dangerous until the whole internal situation is re-established."

Insurgents Accused.

In Barcelona, the party of newspapermen was taken on a tour of inspection of city churches by a former Catholic priest. With five other former priests, he is employed by the government in preparing weekly religious bulletins which are distributed among the people.

The guide admitted a large number of priests had been executed immediately after the outbreak of the revolt. Many, however, were still in government territory.

The government charges the insurgents with wilful destruction of the Church of Santa Maria in which was preserved the baptismal font of Cervantes, author of Don Quixote. In the Magistral Church was also the tomb of Cardinal Ximenez de Cisneros, a work of art designed by the Florentine master of sculpture, Domenico Francelli. The tomb was finished at Carrara, Italy, by Bartholomew Ordonez and brought to Spain in 1520.

YOUTH TRAINING RALLIES PLANNED

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (CP). — As part of the Dominion's youth training plan, the Ontario government will sponsor a series of "youth looks to tomorrow" meetings. The Dominion government is assisting the provinces in seeking places for Canadian youth in business and industrial life.

J. F. Marsh, Ontario Deputy Minister of Labor, today said a province-wide "Youth Day" would be arranged later to draw attention to progress in the placing of apprentices. Committees too have been organized to handle the affairs of the new movement.

Various centres organized their committees to include prominent citizens, mayor and reeves, educational workers, service clubs, church workers, chamber of commerce representatives, trade unions and leading labor employers.

A badge, to be designed by this year's prize winner at the Ontario College of Arts, will be worn by young men and women taking apprenticeship training.

Herbert Smith, famous miners' leader in Britain, has investigated his fortieth coal mine explosion.

Glimpses Of War On Many Fronts

HONG KONG, Sept. 15 (CP-Havas)—Japanese marines who landed at Bias Bay were forced to return to their ships, Chinese forces reported here today. Chinese authorities at Swatos said they doubted whether the Japanese could have made any landing in force on the South China coast.

HONG KONG, Sept. 15 (AP). —P. V. Thomas, head of the American Seventh Day Adventist Mission hospital at Waichow, charged Japanese today with the apparently deliberate bombing of the hospital. Thomas, who arrived here today, bringing wounded members of his Chinese staff, said Japanese warplanes bombed the hospital for 15 minutes yesterday.

American flags, he said, were prominently displayed over the mission and the attack was apparently deliberate as there were no military objectives nearby.

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, Sept. 15 (AP).—Guerilla warfare today stalled the insurgent march toward Gijon, last government stronghold in north Spain. Border dispatches reported bands of Asturian defenders adopted new strategy to halt the Navarrese moving through the northern mountains toward the Sella river to mop up the last government resistance on the Bay of Biscay.

SALONIKA, Greece, Sept. 15 —(AP)—The 31,000-ton British battleship Malaya steamed out of Salonika unexpectedly today, destination undisclosed.

Authorities here did not know whether the Malaya was departing to engage in the general Anglo - French anti-piracy patrol scheme in the Mediterranean, or whether she was enroute to the scene of a new attrack on merchant shipping.

The Malaya is a unit of the first battle squadron of the Mediterranean fleet. She was to have stayed here another week.

SIANFU, Shensi Province, China, Sept. 15 (AP). — Leaders of China's Communist forces, now incorporated into the central government, announced today their troops were on the march against the Japanese in North China.

General Chu Teh and Peng Teh-Hui, who have fought the Nanking government for years, took the oath of allegiance today and promised the fullest resistance to the Japanese advance. It is estimated they have at their command 100,000 to 200,000 troops.

TOKYO, Sept. 15 (CP-Havas).—Claiming new victories in the north, including the occupation of Tatung, North Shansi railway town, Japan to-day landed men and guns at Bias Bay on the South Chinese coast, adding a fourth front to the widely separated battle lines.

TUNGJEN, Kweichow Province, China, Sept. 15 (AP). — While most foreign missionaries in China are fleeing the danger of war, two arrived here to-day and began missionary efforts, despite the hostilities between China and Japan.

The two arrivals were Gerald R. Zimmer, Marion, Ohio, and Sylvia Zimmer, Morgantown, W.V., representatives of the Evangelical Church Mission, with headquarters in Cleveland.

GENEVA, Sept. 15 (AP).—The dangerous international situation caused Switzerland to-day to mobilize the greatest detective force it ever has used for a League of Nations session.

Tension was increased by charges of piracy in the Mediterranean, the Spanish civil war and, particularly, by bomb explosions in Paris, which wrecked headquarters of two employers' organizations Saturday night.

Strong details of police, most of them in plain clothes, guarded the League Assembly Hall from within and without.

PEIPING, Sept. 15 (AP). — Heavy fighting was reported today between Chinese and Japanese armies on the important Peiping-Hankow Railway, 30 miles south of this ancient capital. Japanese officials said Chinese troops flanking the railway broke through Japan's lines yesterday, but that the Chinese later were surrounded and "annihilated."

MONTREAL, Sept. 15 (CP). — Canadian and United States volunteers returning from service in the Spanish civil war reached Quebec and Montreal during the week-end after efforts on behalf of Government forces. Twelve of them, United States residents, were held at Quebec by immigration authorities. The 12, whose names were not disclosed, will be detained until investigation of their cases is completed, officials said. Then they will be allowed to return to the United States or be sent back to Le Havre.

STORM ON PIGEON THRILLS TOURISTS

LINDSAY, Sept. 15.—Four United States tourists, two married couples, underwent a series of adventures over the weekend that have provided them with plenty of interesting tales to tell friends during the long winter months.

Back home in Oil City, Pa., they will have plenty of reason to remember Bobcaygeon, north of here, where they spent their vacations.

Accompanied by Percy Nicholls, guide, they left Saturday morning on a fishing trip. By mid-afternoon, Pigeon Lake was whipped by a sudden storm into a vicious sea which swamped the boat and, finally, stalled the motor. In inky darkness, they spent most of the night clinging to the craft, until Nicholls managed to make Big Island, by the light of lightning flashes. For more hours they wandered in the dark until Nicholls found a cabin and managed to light a fire. Here they were found Sunday by a search party which brought them back to warm blankets and hot drinks.

SMITH CAMPAIGNS FOR SEN. COPELAND

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (AP). — The charge that a "bankrupt" government to-day is driving business firms from New York City by excessive taxation, was voiced by Alfred E. Smith in a campaign address for a Tammany Mayoralty nominee.

The "happy warrior" of another political day took the stump last night in behalf of Senator Royal S. Copeland, candidate in both the Democratic and Republican primaries Thursday.

Carrying the burden of oratory in the last lap of the three-cornered race, Smith assailed rising city taxes and praised Copeland the only candidate who could defeat the "Hippodrome artist in the City Hall." He did not refer to Mayor La Guardia by name.

"The government is bankrupt and hasn't got a cent," he asserted. "It can't meet even the interest unless it can reach into the pockets of everybody."

Plans To Discuss Klan.

Smith will close the Copeland campaign with a speech Wednesday night in which it was announced he would discuss the Ku Klux Klan controversy.

The Klan spectre was raised by Copeland who declared Hugo Black, United States' Supreme Court Justice, was a member of the Klan. He added that Jeremiah T. Mahoney, his rival for the Democratic nomination, was also "tarred with the stick of the Ku Klux Klan" because of his endorsement of new deal men and measures.

Mahoney, disregarding the Klan "issue," promised at a political rally he would seek a reduction in taxes, allot a "fair share" of available funds for low cost housing projects, and renew efforts for amicable labor disputes.

Mayor Laguardia in his only preprimary campaign address told a luncheon of Republican women he "was not going down on his knees to beg for votes" but was willing to accept the nomiantion. He already has been nominated by the American Labor Party and the City Fusion Party.

Attorney Goes Astray On Bloomers

Oklahoma City, Sept. 15.

JOHN T. Cooper, attorney for the Oklahoma Industrial Welfare Commission which regulates wages and hours for State workers, admitted he may have to revise his minimum clothing budget for the working girl. He set the figure at $221 a year.

"I've just been informed," said he, coloring slightly, "that bloomers are old-fashioned and women don't wear them any more." He had set aside as indispenable $4 a year for bloomers.

Mr. Average Man

The National Recreation Association in the United States has been carrying on a survey to see what Americans do in their spare time and the investigation has had some surprising results. The findings of the Association are of interest to Canadians for generally speaking conditions are similar on both sides of the line and what applies to the average American applies equally well to the average citizen of the Dominion. It is a little startling therefore to find that the investigators have decided that a quiet evening at home is the normal routine of the average American which knocks the idea that home life is disappearing into the proverbial cocked hat.

The report adds that he lives a staid and respectable life, free from great excitement, reasonably full of social contacts with his friends and neighbors and on the whole, improving to his mind and manners.

The first thing in order of preference is reading a newspaper or perhaps a magazine. Comfortably seated in his easy chair Mr. Average Man turns on the radio, except once a fortnight or so when he goes to the movies. Otherwise he fills out the evening hours reading fiction. If there is not a good book at hand and the weather is favorable he may go for a pleasure drive or he may stay home and write letters, read non-fiction or converse. Conversing is not his long suit; it comes tenth on the list of preferred recreations. There are other things he may do which are not listed, such as pottering around the house, and doing little odd jobs of repairs but in any case he finds something with which to busy himself for loafing comes twenty-seven on the list, nearly a third of the way down to poetry writing which is number seventy-two.

In an average year, according to these figures, the average American buys a box of candy less often than once a month. Soft drinks may tempt him a couple of times a week and perhaps once a month he buys a package of gum. He is not an excessive smoker; a pack of cigarettes a day or its equivalent in cigars or pipe or chewing tobacco suffices. He pays $2.20 a year for musical instruments which somehow suggests a vivid interest in mouth organs and jewsharps as the only music he can afford.

The survey findings are a bit surprising but they say that figures cannot lie and those results are based on figures.

Through Traffic Costly

Ald. G. N. Gordon proposes to introduce a bylaw before the city council regulating the routing of commercial traffic in and out of Peterborough so that the bulk of this traffic would be diverted from Charlotte Street and other similar thoroughfares.

The proposed bylaw is in line with the complaint so often registered by urban councils and given so little consideration in the seats of the mighty that principal city streets are being torn to pieces by through traffic on provincial highways and that the whole expense of maintaining and repairing those streets falls upon the municipal taxpayer.

It does not seem logical that the cost of provincial highways between cities should be borne by the whole province until city boundaries are reached and then that within those boundaries the whole burden should be loaded upon the municipality. The cities provided paved streets within their limits primarily for the use of their own citizens but the advent of fast motor transportation, both of passengers and freight, has made those streets links in the highway system and they are carrying a heavy volume of through traffic without receiving any contribution from the provincial government which maintains all the highway system outside the city limits, despite the fact that the additional wear and tear upon city streets adds materialy to the expense that has to be met by the urban municipalities. Ontario cities have a legitimate complaint in that respect and they should keep hammering at the door of the Queen's Park government until their grievance is adjusted.

It May Sell September

Even out of such a distressing situation as the infantile paralysis epidemic a measure of good has been produced. The fact that in many centres, notably in Toronto, the opening of schools has been postponed as a precautionary measure has had the effect of causing families who spend the summer at Ontario lake resorts to prolong their stay and as as result many folk who usually flit back to their city homes around Labor Day each year have discovered that September is a charming month to spend at the summer cottage, and this year's experience may have the effect of adding permanently a few more weeks to the summer resort season each year, especially among those who have no particular reason for hurrying back to their urban habitat as soon as August has passed.

It has been one of the chief complaints of those engaged in the summer resort business that the season is too short and there have been spasmodic attempts to sell September as one of the most desirable holiday months of the year, without obtaining very satisfactory results. The epidemic may do what these previous campaigns have failed to accomplish, that is convince a lot of folk that September with its bright warm days, cool nights, glorious sunsets, its freedom from mosquitoes and its snappily biting fish is a splendid time to spend a week or two at Ontario's lake and river playgrounds. Out of that conviction may develop a prolongation of the summer holiday season with important financial results not only for those who deal directly with summer visitors but for the community generally.

Their Chances Are Small

There is evidently to be no lack of candidates in the provincial election for three-cornered battles are promised in numerous ridings and in a number of constituencies as many as five aspirants for office will enter the political jousts. It is the privilege of course of every citizen who is eligible to have himself nominated for political office if he wants to be or for a group of people who have some political or economic policy they desire to advance to place a candidate in the field. This is a free country and there is no constitutional obstacle to prevent anybody who fills the legal qualifications from plunging into the political sweepstakes.

At the same time it is fairly obvious, from the political history of the province, that the vast majority of Ontario voters prefer to pin their faith upon one or other of the two old parties rather than take a chance on some new political organization. That being so it is not to be expected that many of the third-party standard-bearers will find themselves in the next legislature. There will be votes for C. C. F. and Labor candidates and even for the handful of Communists in the field but there will not be enough to elect very many of them. The co-operative Commonwealth party in the last provincial election which proved to be a landslide against the Henry government succeeded in electing only one candidate in the province and there is no reason to believe that the showing in the current campaign will be much different, despite the optimism expressed by some of the leaders of the movement in Ontario. As for the few Communists who have launched their boats on the political waters they are not expecting to be elected; they are merely in the campaign for the chance it gives them to spread Red propaganda around the province.

That German "Plot"

Canadians, who have so little in common with Germany of the present day, will share the amusement provoked in Berlin by reports from Chicago that a Nazi plot to seize control of the United States Government has been unearthed.

The whole story belongs properly in the realm of fantasy. An organization of several thousand Germans has been formed in America and an opportune moment for the great enterprise is now being awaited. At that moment the United States will cease to be a free and independent nation and will pass to the vassalage of the Wilhelmstrasse.

Just how an organization of several thousand men is to overthrow a government maintained by the will of 130,000,000, with the support of an army and navy which are not to be brushed aside lightly, is not made clear. It is all very flattering to the daring and the resourcefulness of Nazi conspirators, of whom there are no doubt a few abroad, but not to their common sense.

Just at present the German Government has many pressing and difficult problems on its hands, not the least of which is the arresting of the processes of economic distintegration now making such rapid progress. It is doubtful if the possibility of American conquests is given even a passing thought by the intensely preoccupied statesmen of Berlin.

The Duty Of The Hour

The Examiner was in conversation with a citizen the other morning who felt that he had a grievance. His name had been omitted from the voters' lists by the enumerator and he flatly refused to go before the revising officer and have the error amended. And he gave his reason. It seems that in the last election his name was similarly left off and on that occasion he did visit the revising officer and was duly registered—and then when the revised list came out he found that for some reason or other his name was still off and he could not vote on election day.

We are willing to admit that was an irritating incident, one that provided ample excuse for an elector becoming angry at this double instance of official inefficiency but we refuse to accept it as a legitimate reason for a citizen refusing to do everything in his power on this occasion to protect his franchise. The right to vote is the privilege of every citizen of Canada and that right should be prized. The mere fact that election officials have erred is no reason why the elector himself should throw away the privilege of expressing his opinion on election day with his ballot. It is his plain duty to use the machinery that is provided to give him a vote and if, as on the previous occasion complained of the officials slip up again at least he has the satisfaction of knowing that he has done all that he could do to guard his franchise and if he is still without a vote the fault it not his.

We refer to this particular case because it serves to stress the importance of every voter making sure that when election day arrives he will be in a position to exercise his franchise. Urban voters must have their names on the list; the election act does not permit them to be sworn in on the day of the election. The enumerators have finished their work, and their lists are posted up in the various subdivisions or may be seen at the Sheriff's office, the office of the electoral officer, or at the committee rooms of the candidates.

Every elector should make it a point to check these lists and escertain whether or not his name appears. If it has been omitted it is a simple matter to have the revising officers, who begin their sittings in a day or two, correct the lists. It has already been ascertained that a number of names have been left off by the enumerators; it is just possible your own name or that of some member of your family who is eligible to vote has been omitted. No particular harm will be done if the error is discovered in time for the adding of names is a simple matter. You must act however before the revising officers have concluded their sittings because if your name is not on the revised list then you are simply disenfranchised for the time being and there is nothing you can do about it. There will be no use blaming the enumerator. It was his mistake in the first place but you are the real culprit if you refuse to take advantage of the machinery that has been set up to protect your franchise and make sure that you have a chance to vote.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Just about the time the Ontario political broadcasts are over the American football games will be taking the air.

John Queen has been nominated once more for the Winnipeg mayoralty. This is one case in which a Queen seems to be Labor's ace in a political sense.

New Brunswick blueberry crop is expected to total five million pounds this season. We will leave the housewives among our readers to figure that out in terms of blueberry pie.

Sudbury had more than four and a half inches of rain the other day and we are waiting to see whether or not the blame for the downpour will be laid on the doorstep of the Hepburn government.

It has cost Lindsay seven cents to forward a tax rebate of one cent to a Toronto man who owns property in Lindsay. It is to be hoped the incident does not bob up again as an election issue.

Premier Mussolini's newspaper accuses Russia of putting piracy into the Mediterranean. The charge would carry more weight if the evidence on which it was based was set forth.

The attendance at the Canadian National Exhibition fell off 300,000 because of the prevailing epidemic but nevertheless over 1,300,000 folk saw the big fair and that is no mean patronage.

Hon. Harry Nixon told an audience that many people in Ontario would be happy if A. St. Clair Gordon of West Kent were made a cabinet minister. Including, we assume, Mr. Gordon himself.

Three persons were executed by a firing squad in Russia for mismanaging a cattle breeding farm. Liberty under the Soviet system seems to take some queer twists at times.

According to the United States Department of Agriculture the radio makes more contented cows, more gentle horses and satisfied fowl. It would be interesting to know how it would act on Hon. Duncan Marshall's prize bull.

Mr. King and Mr. Bennett are taking no chances of being accused of interfering with the Ontario provincial election. The Premier has gone fishing and the Conservative leader is visiting British Columbia.

Hon. Earl Rowe did not arrive at Welland for a meeting the other night until 10.30. If the Conservative leader does not mend his ways they are liable to start referring to him as the late Mr. Rowe.

I WOULD BE TRUE

I would be true, for there are those that trust me;
I would be pure for there are those who care;
I would be strong for there is much to suffer;
I would be brave for there is much to dare;
I would be humble for I know my weakness;
I would be giving and forget the gift;
I would be friend to all—the foe, the friendless;
I would look up and laugh—and love—and lift.

ALTHOUGH he gave much money away, an English paper says that the late Sir James Barrie lived so frugally that he is expected to leave a large fortune. For over thirty years his plays brought him handsome royalties. Early Marriages

IN NINE of the United States the marriage laws allow boys to marry at the age of 14 and girls at the age of 12. This is revealed in the report of a nation-wide survey of the marriage laws published at Washington.

The nine States are Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Maryland, Mississippi, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Tennessee, and Washington.

Legal minimum ages for marriages in other States vary from 16 to 18 for boys, and from 14 to 16 for girls.

CITY OF LONDON bankers who have their own sources of international information, often better than that received by the Foreign Office express the opinion that European war risks are diminishing. A Summer Evening In Old Glengarry

Sunshine Over Fields and Farms All Day And Sunshine Over Happy Gatherings

(Written For the Ottawa Journal By Rev. James G. Berry.)

IT HAS been very warm in Glengarry this Summer. Day after day the air has been humid and close, something to escape from, although escape was all but impossible; only in the late evening the air became cool and one was able to sit out of doors and accept it, under the dark silhouetted trees.

It was then that the querulous mood induced by the uncomfortable heat lifted, and another mood took its place, one of satisfaction and gladness that there was sunshine over Glengarry making everyone hopeful and happy.

The farmer was not so happy a couple of months ago. He was still waiting day after day for an opportunity to sow his grain. Much of it was put in late and he was of a rather doubtful mind. But it has so happened that the hot Summer with rain at intervals has made things turn out better than was expected.

It is true that the yield of oats is disappointing; but the hay crop can be described as good in comparison with the super-excellent crop last year and there have been other compensations too. The farmers I know are cheerful and contented and as I write most of the threshing has been done.

It has been a busy time and when the day has drawn to a close they have been tired.

But not so tired that they cannot spend the late hours of the evening once in a while at one of those out-of-doors social gatherings which have been so plentiful: It is a matter both of duty and pleasure for the farmer to be there, with wife and family; of duty because he is expected to give his support to the proceedings and to the cause, of pleasure because he enjoys what is provided for his entertainment.

It is my good fortune to be present a short time ago at one of these gatherings. It was held in the very heart of the village, in the pleasant grounds of a house which has stood for many years, a memorial of men who builded well. The lawn sloped down to the river which had almost ceased to have any flow at this point of Summer; and only a few yards away, it was spanned by the bridge.

It was late before the company gathered. Indeed one has simply to wait for them, for the time may be advertised but it is their time that is the deciding factor. But it was interesting to wait and note all who came and to give them a word of welcome. There were not a few visitors, come back to the old spot "entwined with many ties of home and infancy." The gathering was a happy meeting place for all.

One of the visitors, a native revisiting the old home was asked, later, to say a few words, and speaking from the fullness of his heart he touched a chord in the hearts of all. Other places farther afield might be good to live in, but there was a unique feeling in his heart when the road ran into the village street and home at last. It was good to hear him.

There came at last the time for the program to begin and it was pleasant to see how much it was enjoyed. It deserved to be enjoyed for it was good and varied. There was the skirl of the bagpipes, and the Highland dress which awaken deep racial instincts and memories. There were songs both grave and gay. There were readings and dialogues and musical monologues. There were youthful dancers and words of wisdom from the old. And even as behind and beneath hidden from sight in great cities there is a host of silent workers who make the comfort and convenience and smooth working on the street levels possible, so there was the company of faithful women providing refreshment on the Summer evening.

It was dark under the trees but the platform was a bright point of light and interest. There was the hum of talk, the ripple of laughter, the coming together of old friends, the renewal of old memories. There was happiness, simple and unforced. During the day over farms and fields and village there had been sunshine over Glengarry and without any doubt there was sunshine over that happy gathering.

The words of the old wise Latin Horace came into mind. It is good to unbend and enjoy oneself at times. And the happiness was enhanced when one remembered that the same sunshine was over many another place as well.

Makes An Omelette Over Niagara Falls

Some Startling Exploits of Blondin Recalled For Benefit of New Generation

(From the New York Times.)

THE FAMOUS exploit of Blondin in walking over Niagara Falls on a tight-rope with a man on his back took place seventy-eight years ago this month. It is a feat not likely to be repeated, even to advertise the most prosperous breakfast food, for the authorities would frown on it and an airplane makes a much less chancy job of it.

The dispute is still unsettled as to who showed the greater courage Blondin or the man he carried. Blondin, to be sure, supplied the skill and the motive power and supported the weight of his passenger. But he was a professional rope-walker who under scarcely less hazardous conditions had accomplished the feat many times before. This gave him supreme faith in his strength and technique.

The other man, Henry A. Colcord of Chicago, was a rank amateur with only his faith in Blondin to sustain him. He was an artist unknown to some and hoped to capitalize the crossing to sell his pictures. He did, too, and continued his career as a painter up to the time of his death. It would be interesting to know whether he ever painted a picture of Niagara Falls. He certainly had a unique opportunity to observe them.

Blondin was a Frenchman whose real name was Jean Francois Gravelet. He had carefully prepared for the enterprise, but many people believed he would never undertake it. The rope, 1,100 feet long, was stretched 160 feet above the gorge. Blondin's skill was perfectly incredible. He made the crossing a number of times and each time in some more astonishing manner. He crossed blindfolded, in a sack, trundling a wheelbarrow, on stilts and sitting down midway while he cooked and ate an omelette. Apparently the only thing he never tried was broadcasting a theme song from a portable radio set. But the high point of all his exhibitions was carrying Colcord over on Aug. 19, 1859.

On the morning of the event both men were "perfectly cool and confident." Thousands of spectators lined the banks of the Falls in dense masses. Blondin wore the conventional gay jersey and tights and chamois skin shoes, Colcord appeared in full evening dress except for the top hat. He climbed first into the chair strapped to Blondin's back and then upon his shoulders with his hands on the athlete's head.

Step by step Blondin moved along the gently swaying cable while the mists of the rushing waters half concealed the two figures. Three times Colcord had to climb down from Blondin's shoulders into the chair so that the equilibrist might rest. Each time that he did so more women, and men, too, among the spectators fainted. In the middle of the harrowing journey the guy ropes which held the main cable taut snapped, and the support began to swing freely from side to side. By this time the crowd was hysterical but Blondin managed to keep his balance. After half an hour of "cautious progress and breathless suspense," the two weary men stepped from the rope to safety on the Canadian side. They were promptly mobbed in the rush of the crowd and compelled to sign hundreds of autographs on any scraps of paper or board that were handy. Many an old album preserves those faded signatures today.

CANADIAN FRUIT.

(Owen Sound Sun-Times)

"WHY NOT eat more Canadian fruit? We might say the season is at its best now, but that would not be correct, for there will be no let-down until well into the winter—and even then, what about the big, juicy Spy apples for which this part of the country is famous? Or the McIntosh Reds? Or the late peaches, pears and plums? Eat Canadian fruit. There is nothing better for the health and nothing more appetising. All the grapefruit, oranges and other imported fruits cannot begin to compare with our own home-grown stuff.

"We are not advocating the eating of Canadian fruit as a health measure only; there is the feature, too, that by using our Canadian products we are helping the Canadian growers—keeping the money in the country instead of sending it out.

"Nor do we suggest that nothing but Canadian fruit should be eaten. By all means, if you want your breakfast grapefruit or orange, have it, but give fresh, delicious, healthful Canadian fruit a more prominent place on your daily menu."

QUEBEC IS ENVIOUS.

(Montreal Star)

MONEY is rolling into the Ontario treasury from motor taxation in a way that makes other provinces green with envy. There is no mystery about it. Ontario governments, past and present, have had imagination enough to see that it was—and still is—necessary to spend money in order to get more money back. Lower licences mean more cars on the road; more cars on the road mean more gasoline consumed; more gasoline consumed means more money back in the Treasury from gasoline taxes. The same thing applies to better roads, good camp sites, supervision of tourist accommodation and a lot of other things that mean immediate expenditure for the sake of a bigger income tomorrow. In other words, Ontario does not regard the whole field of motor taxation as something that can be forever worked to the extreme limit of productivity. It knows that poor roads, exorbitant licences and failure to provide the facilities and amenities available elsewhere mean dropping revenues, — or revenues which amounts to the same thing. We have much—very much—to learn from Ontario in this Province,—if we really want to.

A NEIGHBORLY ACT.

(Kitchener Record)

MANY nice things have been said about James Handlan, the Manitoba farmer who threshed 38,000 bushels of the new Thatcher rust-resistant wheat and then turned down an offer of $57,000 cash for the crop because he wants his grain to go to the prairie farmers for seed. Mr. Handlan's flat rejection of the offer constitutes a splendid neighborly act.

Not only has Thatcher proven to be rust-resistant, but it has compared favorably with other wheat varieties in yield, quality and ability to withstand drought.

It is reported that Manitoba grew enough Thatcher this year to meet its 1938 seed demands, but there is a keen demand for Thatcher seed in southeastern Saskatchewan.

If the rest of the Manitoba farmers who grew Thatcher follow the example of James Handlan there will be little danger of this variety of wheat getting into the hands of profiteers.

PATH OF EMPIRE.

(New York Sun)

THE DIFFICULTIES of the British Government in external affairs are numerous. Japan is treating the stiff note sent to it about the attack on the British Ambassador to China with a coolness that indicates it has little fear that London will adopt stern measures. The Soviets have exhibited their customary boisterousness in their tactics over the torpedoing of ships in the Mediterranean. In Palestine the unrest is continuous, and at any moment the racial antipathies exhibited there may produce a serious outbreak of violence. The irritating factors present in relations with Germany are notorious. North Africa is upset and threatens trouble. Again it is obvious that managers of empires have a tough job.

Talks to the People – J. H. Burnham

The Closed Shop must be voted down at the coming election. After announcing with a truly brazen blare of trumpets that all men are free the Trades and Labour Congress of Canada has this day (Sept. 13th) declared in favour of the Closed Shop by which all workers not admitted to the Union are debarred from employment and left there. It is difficult to imagine a more tyrannical or heartless measure than the Closed Shop now the settled policy of all Canadian labour unions. That it will ever be allowed by a free people to become the rule and law that a man or woman, boy or girl must stand in with the executive of the local labour unions or starve is simply out of the question. But on the other hand that anybody because a member of a union should be debarred by employers is equally intolerable and for the same reason. If this is to be a free country now is the time to say so. The Closed Shop is the graveof freedom and free labour.

PETERBOROUGH GOLF CLUB.

C.L.G.U. day again saw a large turnout of players. The spoon for the best net was won by Mrs. Blaiklock; her score of 81 was good enough to win her first spoon. The other spoon for the least number of putts on three sealed holes (1, 4, 8) went to Mrs. Strickland; her total of 4 shows how deadly her putter was.

A white elephant contest was also held and lots of fun was the order of the day. Each competitor brought a prize, and a list of competitions were drawn up. The winners were then blind-folded and allowed to pick her own prize from out of the pile of prizes.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Sept. 15—(CP). — Wheat futures saw-sawed within a 1⅛ cent range on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day in a dull session. Closing value were unchanged to ⅛ cent lower, October $1.25⅛, November, $1.25¼, December, 91.22¼, and May $1.24 to $1.24⅛.

Hedging pressure was on a reduced scale as Western Canadian farmers seemed unwilling to part with their holdings at prevailing prices. Whenever values climbed as much as a cent above yesterday's close, exporters and investors withdrew their support and scattering offerings caused recessions.

Canadian wheat sold for export was small in comparison with the 1,750,000 bushel business reported yesterday.

Brokers estimated to-day's volume at only 250,000 bushels.

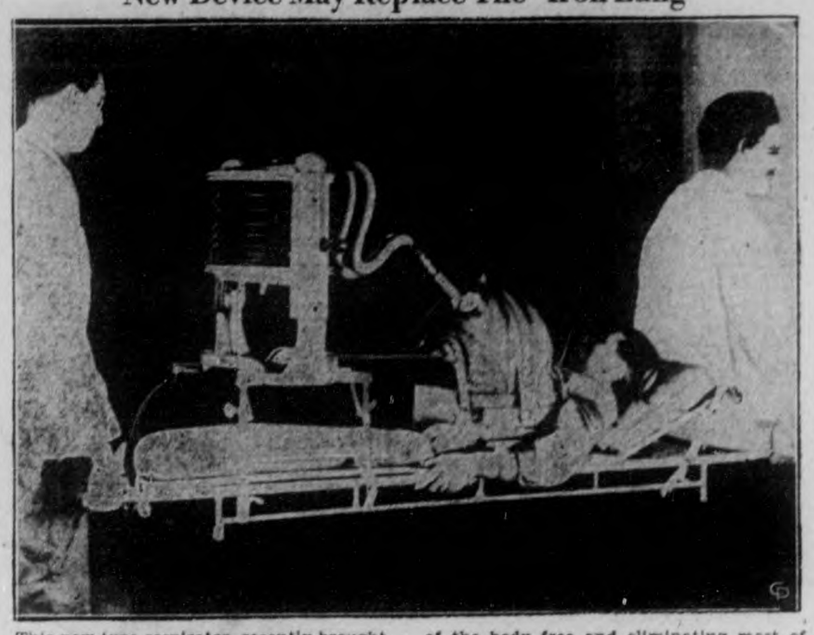
New Device May Replace The "Iron Lung"



This new type respirator, recently brought to New York from Sweden, is said to be a long step in advance of the "iron lung" as an aid to sufferers from infantile paralysis. Made of aluminum, the device covers the chest and abdomen, leaving the lower part of the body free and eliminating most of the discomfort entailed by use of the original iron appliance. It also allows for adjustments in treating kidney and other ailments. The new "lung" is the invention of Dr. B. O. Sahlin.

LINDSAY OPPOSES CAR LOTTERIES

LINDSAY, Sept. 15.—John Chalmers, of Valentia, Mariposa Township, has been placed under arrest, charged with the theft of a blanket from his employer, William Lavy. The accused, who was remanded, admitted the theft of many articles.

At a meeting of the Town Council Monday night, Mayor Logan introduced a request from Peterborough Council Knights of Columbus for permission to sell tickets on a car. He pointed out that the Chief of Police was against the idea. Ald. Butler pointed out that people did not have to buy a ticket if they so desired. These people buy meals while in town, and the alderman could see nothing wrong with the request. It was decided to ban all cars except from the Lindsay trading area. A similar request from Orono was approved.

Howard Hines, a former Calgary boy, and who now resides in Peterborough, was fined $10 and costs in police court Monday afternoon on the charge of consuming liquor in an illegal place.

David Harrison, of Port Perry, while working on the farm of Austin Franklin, close to the village, sustained a broken leg, lacerated hip and knee when he was run over by a harrow. He stepped up in front of the team to repair the harness, when he was knocked down by one of the horses.

DESIRE BENEFITS EASILY AVAILABLE

cific providing among other things that men entering the service at the age of 40 or more are not eligible and that persons taking part in strikes lose their seniority in the pensions plan.

In support of the resolution W. J. Smith of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks of Toronto said the question was not only one of providing adequate pensions but also "removing the club" threatening railwaymen under the present system.

Sam Shearer of Vancouver said railway workers want the power to strike, if necessary, without sacrificing their seniority.

The convention adopted a resolution of the Calgary Trades and Labor Council asking that the old age pension be amended to become a retiring allowance act and that its benefits be made available at the age of 60. The resolution also suggested that 15 years Canadian residence be required for eligibility and that "no deductions shall be made from incomes of less than $1,000." The pension, under the resolution's provisions, would be payable only to persons who actually retire.

Pensions at 60

The congress accepted a resolution from Winnipeg Lodge No. 35 Railway Carmen of America to seek amendment of the Old Age Pensions Act lowering from 70 to 60 the age at which a person become eligible for pension. The same resolution asked removal of the stipulation that property be signed over to the government before pension payment.

From John Doyle of Hamilton came the suggestion old age pensions should be made available to persons reaching the age of 50, but Arthur Martel of Montreal declared in his belief congress would make a mistake in asking for such a concession. "Do you realize," he asked, "that we would admit we were through at 50 by asking for that?" He added: "At the age of 50 a man is reaching the stage when he is of best use to society."

The convention adopted a resolution of Vancouver Lodge No. 58 of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen condemning the practice of major Canadian railways in pooling train service over some sections of line. Such practices, the resolution said, resulted in reduction of work available for railwaymen.

Embodied in8 the resolution also was a request that railway unions wage a vigorous campaign against any move that might be made to merge the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways.

The convention rejected after vigorous debate a resolution from the Stratford Lodge No. 103 of the International Association of Machinists which asked that "where an organization of unemployed workers exists representation on the local trades and labor council with voice and vote shall be granted."

J. B. Salsberg of Toronto, supporting the resolution, said organizations of unemployed had assisted labor in strikes, picketing and preventing scabs from entering strikebound plants. He recalled an instance near Toronto in which unemployed working on an Ontario highway project had gone on strike against "starvation wages offered by Hepburn (Premier Hepburn of Ontario)."

The unemployed, he said, "are not a class outside. They are part of our class and deserve the co-operation of our movements."

Impossible Situation

Secretary R. J. Tallon said the constitution of the Congress made it impossible for it to admit the unemployed whose organizations were not controllable. "It would be absolutely impossible for us to perform our function if we opened our doors to irresponsible organizations," he declared.

President Draper supported the secretary's stand, declaring he did not favor admitting to councils representations of organizations unable to pay their per capital taxes.

A substitute resolution was urged by Sam Shearer of Vancouver on the ground "the unemployed are not a temporary affliction, but a permanent problem as long as we have the present economic system." He urged they be given a voice on councils, "without a vote if you will."

Final plea for the resolution came from Beatrice Ferneyhaugh of Toronto, who declared that if the Congress turned it down, "it will appear we are dissociating ourselves from the interests of the unemployed."

The convention voted in favor of a resolution sponsored by the National Association of Marine Engineers which requested Congress to urge revision of the Fair Wage Act to bring within its scope all steamship operators obtaining financial assistance from the government through subsidies or subventions. Some of these companies, the resolution said, were inimical to labor.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A sure bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

year, so the surplus should have been at least $19,000,000.

Not a New Policy.

Mr. Hepburn's iron ore bounty was not a new policy, for in 1923 James Lyons of Sault Ste. Marie induced former Premier G. Howard Ferguson to advance such a bounty. Mr. Rowe said his Government would pay the bounty to help keep the Helen Mine near Sault Ste. Marie in operation, and also re-establish other bounties.

Stone and Webster, a United States engineering firm, which Mr. Rowe said was now on the Government payroll, would be "fired" and competent Canadian engineers hired to run Hydro. The United States engineering firm, he said, was "definitely" tied up with the private power interests of the United States.

Mr. Lyons, a former Minister of Lands and Forests, who introduced Mr. Rowe, charged the Government was responsible through patronage activities for "a reign of terror" in the north. People were afraid of losing their jobs because they were not Liberals, he added.

Besides an afternoon meeting at Blind River, Mr. Rowe will speak at Espanola and Thessalon before journeying to Sudbury for a night address.

ROMANTIC MINE WITH IRON DOOR

Francist took with him maps of the great Mogul vault which cuts through the Catalina Mountains. It was on the maps, the aged padre recorded the amount of his hoard.

"It was 2,500,000 ounces," Sturdy said. "At present gold values, about $90,000,000."

Brought Original Maps

About 50 years ago, as Sturdy told the story, a great-great-nephew of Francist came over here from Spain with his uncle's maps. He hired a prospector, known only now as "Old Pearson," and together they searched the hills for months with no success.

A Frenchman, Charlevoix, spent 40 years looking for the "Iron Door." His widow and daughter still have the maps.

The 80 acres on which the mine is supposed to be located, is now valued at $40,000, Sturdy said. He owns one fourth of it, and the rest is owned by a friend and the Apache Indian Reservation.

Sturdy's friend, C. W. McKee, of Phoenix, Arizona, has been searching for the door 13 years.

"McKee and I plan," Sturdy declared, "to remove tons of rock that has tumbled down from the mountain these past years. All the maps existant lead to one particular mountain. Under these fallen rocks we'll find the door."

McKee has collected 40 maps, Sturdy said, one drawn on human skin, and inscribed with strange, Indian signs.

The Escalante Mine was the inspiration of Harold Bell Wright's novel, "The Mine With the Iron Door."

"Never at any time," said he, "has he told me how to vote and I'm proud to follow him in any legislation he may see fit to put on the statute books. No, Sir, he's no dictator, but, Oh boy, is he a leader, I'll say he is."

DANGER SEEN OVER AS PATROL STARTS

Tyrhenian Sea, between Sicily and Libya.

"The Franco-British proposition therefore excludes Italy from the patrol in the most important zones in the Mediterranean. Thus the watching of all the Mediterranean would to all intents and purposes be reserved for the navies of Great Britain and France, which does not correspond to the situation occupied by Italy in the Mediterranean."

It was a bitter dose—to be told that Great Britain and France would police every important lane of maritime commerce in what the Italians fondly describe as "our sea," leaving them only the Tyrrhenian to guard.

France and Britain proposed even to patrol the Tyrrhenian off Italy's western coast if Italy persisted in her somewhat qualified rejection of the invitation.

Italy informed the Paris and London Governments that "the situation which would result seems unacceptable," making it impossible for Italy to accept "anything but absolute parity with whatever other nations in whatever zone of the Mediterranean."

WAR ON DRIVERS

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 15 (CP).—War against drivers of cars which kill dogs has been declared in Hamilton as a result of killing of 11 canines in the city streets in one week. Offenders would be summoned, said Sidney Inglis, S.P.C.A. inspector, who described the "callousness" of some drivers as "appalling."

Dog's Run May Save Poisoned Woman

CAMDEN, N.J., Sept. 15 (AP).—A white poodle dog slunk disconsolately about a lonely house on the outskirts of Lucaston, N.J., today with death waiting to rob him of a hero's laurels.

The aid he had brought to Mrs. Christine Toth, 70, ill of toadstool poisoning, probably came too late. Physicians said her condition was critical.

Mrs. Toth was without means of summoning help, but her poodle dog, a constant companion for four years gave her an idea. Scrawling a message on the back of an old envelope she tied it to the dogs collar.

Rev. Harry B. Stockton, pastor of the Lucaston Methodist Episcopal Church, living a mile away, was awakened by the dog's barking. He called Dr. Harold Paul Coxson, of Stratford.

PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, CANADA, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1937

The Cause Of Accidents

OGDEN, Utah—Three H's—hooch, haste and huggin' —cause 85 per cent of all auto accidents, City Judge Hyrum Belnap observed as he sentenced a man to 30 days in jail for drunken driving.

DRUNKEN DRIVER IS GIVEN 14 DAYS IN COUNTY JAIL

"If you choose to take your liquor before driving you must be prepared to take your gaol term after," observed Magistrate A. E. Gee in sentencing Samuel Lowe, 496 Gilchrist street, to 14-days imprisonment after the accused entered a plea of guilty to a drunk-driving charge this morning.

According to police the accused sideswiped a car when he was driving south on Aylmer street shortly after eight o'clock Tuesday night and subsequently was involved in collision with another automobile at the intersection of Aylmer and McDonnel streets.

The other car involved in the smash-up at the intersection was being driven east on McDonnel street by Bruce Hardy, Lealy's Lane. In an effort to avoid the crash Hardy drove his vehicle up over the south west curb, while Lowe's car crashed a hydro pole.

Three doctors and an ambulance rushed to the scene in response to a call it was stated, and witnesses lifted Lowe from the wreckage of his car and laid him out on a nearby lawn believing him to be dead. He escaped however with a few minor cuts and bruises.

On his appearance Lowe urged he was not intoxicated, but he admitted having "a couple of beers" a short time before the accident. He had some difficulty in hearing the charge as read by the magistrate on account of apparent deafness.

Three Transients

A trio of transients who gave their names as Arnold McLeod, Joseph Brown and Edward Leeson were arraigned on joint charges of theft of a suit of clothes from Parker's Dye Works. The first two pleaded not guilty to the charge, but Leeson even before hearing the charge against him told the Bench "I plead guilty. I was filled up with that dynamite wine." On application of Edward Bortridge acting for the Crown each of the three was remanded in custody to Monday next, while police check on their movements.

Charged with assault occasioning actual bodily harm, Howard Smith obtained an adjournment of the hearing until Wednesday next. Mr. Borbridge asked for the adjournment on behalf of the complainant Max Swartz on the grounds that today is a Jewish holiday.

Glancing at the calendar His Worship remarked, "A week today isn't another Jewish holiday I hope. Our calendar shows only fish days and statutory holidays."

Defendant was represented by W. B. Gordon.

After entering a plea of not guilty to an intoxication charge and when police asked for a remand, Andrew Logie a transient urged, "I place myself at the mercy of the court. Give me a chance and I'll leave town at once. I want to go to Bala for work in the lumber camps." Later he changed his plea to guilty and was fined $10 and costs with the option of "ten days."

At Hepburn Meeting

Inspector James F. Reid told the court that Logie was arrested on George street as he was trying to break into a house. "He has been around here a week or more drinking and the other night caused a disturbance at a meeting in the Armouries addressed by the Honorable Mitchell Hepburn. He was warned to get out of the city on that occasion," the officer said.

Thomas J. McCaulay, R.R. 9, Peterborough was fined $10 and $4 costs and his license was suspended two weeks when he pleaded guilty to a reckless driving charge. According to police the defendant was driving his car north on George street without lights around 11.40 p.m. Tuesday. Sergeant Thompson and Constable W. A. Clarke stepped into the roadway to signal the car driver to switch on his lights, but reported they had to jump clear to avoid being run down.

As counsel for the accused, W. F. Huycke, K.C., made a lengthy plea on his behalf and urged that a minimum penalty would meet the needs of the case. He told the court that it was a strange coincidence but twenty-two years previously almost to the exact date, McCaulay had been transferred to the 18th Battalion with which Mr. Huycke was then serving, just prior to the Battle of the Somme.

James Murphy was fined $10 and costs or 10-days on pleading guilty to an intoxication charge.

Norman Manley, 44 George street pleaded guilty to a reckless driving charge and was fined $10 and costs. His driving permit was suspended for one month. A further charge of failing to stop at the scene of an accident was withdrawn by the Crown. Accused was represented by A. L. Elliott.

Manley was driver of a car that recently ran into a herd of cattle on Keene road. Three animals owned by Dave Andreas who farms the old Duffus homestead were so badly injured they had to be destroyed.

CARS IN COLLISION.

Two automobiles were slightly damaged in collision at the intersection of Charlotte and Reid streets at 9.45 o'clock this morning. The vehicles involved were a car that was being driven east on Charlotte street by R. Cooke, 178 Dalhousie street and a car that was being operated on Reid street by A. C. TEACHING ORAL HYGIENE.

The eighth dental survey of the employees of the Ovaltine plant has just been completed, and it reveals a continued interest on the part of the employees in maintaining healthy mouths. Not only is a careful survey made of the teeth and gums, but what is just as important, instruction and advice are given as to the best methods to employ in caring for them. It is not enough to be free from disease, says the clinician, but the ideal is to keep that tone of body which makes for efficiency, happiness, and robust health. The management reports that the result obtained have been very gratifying to them.

BIG ENSILAGE HARVEST.

Peterborough farmers are busy with the work that marks the end of one agricultural year and the beginning of another. Many of them have completed the sowing of fall wheat and are reaping one of the bulkiest harvests of fodder corn reported in recent years. Recent gales have blown the corn stalks about, adding difficulty to the ordinary job of reaping. It is expected that silos will be fille dto capacity. This crop is usually green for the last weeks of the season, and fields of corn that were planted late have attracted special attention here and there throughout the country.

GIRL RECEIVES BAD CUT ON FACE

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 15—Donna Owens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Owens received a nasty cut on the cheek when the car in which she was riding was in a collision with a car driven by Chas. Bishton of Warkworth. The accident occurred when Mrs. Ralph Stevens, Queen street, was backing her car from her driveway to the road and was struck by the Bishton car which bent the fender and shattered a window at the back of the car where little Donna was sitting. Mrs. J. Owens who was riding in front with Mrs. Stevens received a slight bruise on her arm from the impact. Bishton was following a car driven by Russell Doughty of Havelock along the River road coming south toward town and it is alleged that he had been attempting to pass Doughty for several miles back. Doughty pulled to a stop when he heard the crash of the other two cars and when Constable Geo. Hardy was called a charge of driving with defective brakes was laid against Bishton and of driving without a permit was laid against Doughty.

FEW HUNTERS OUT TO OPEN SEASON

Although early rain today provided good duck hunting conditions, few sportsmen of this district braved the elements to inaugurate the season. Ducks were reported plentiful north of the city on the Otonabee and Lake Katchewanooka and on the upper Kawarthas.

Several fair bags were reported as the reward of huntsmen of this city who did venture forth. The fact that the open season was in effect only for the area north of the city and Highway 7 banned the favorite hunting spots of many local duck-shooting enthusiasts, however.

Ducks were reported plentiful in the area south of the city. Fish and Game Inspector Lyons was out at an early hour of the day patrolling the south Otonabee region to enforce the ban.

FAMILY MATTER NOT FOR COURTS

Classifying it "as a family matter that should never have been brought into court," Magistrate A. E. Gee this morning threw out a case of common assault in Police Court here. His Worship advised the parties to make an effort to establish friendly relationships with each other.

The case concerned a charge of assault against Mrs. Giovina Giardino laid on the complaint of her niece, Miss Nina Caccavella. T. J. Carley, K.C., was counsel for the defence, the prosecution being conducted by Edward Borbridge, acting for the Crown.

Evidence adduced by the prosecution established that some differences had recently arisen between the two families, related to each other by marriage, over the custody of five-year-old Anna Maria Caccavella, a sister of the complainant.

Evidence further revealed that when Mrs. Caccavella died she left the infant Anna Maria in the care of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Giardino and the latter had since brought up the child and cared for it, although the child was not legally adopted by her.

Recently, Maurice Caccavella, father of the child, sought to obtain custody of his daughter from Mrs. Giardino, and he admitted under cross-examination he regained possession of the child by taking her off the street while she was at play.

This it was submitted had led to a dispute between the defendant and complainant.

"This is just a family matter. The assault if there was any did not result in injury to the complainant. I hope you people can get together and settle your differences. This case should never have come to court. If there is any trouble over the custody of the child it will have to go to another court." His Worship said.

In discharging the defendant, Magistrate Gee told her, "The Crown has produced evidence of certain trouble between yourself and your niece. The matter is very trivial. So trivial that I am going to throw it out, but at the same time I do hope you people can get together again on friendly terms."

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, September 16.

The sidereal operations for this day may be interpreted as intriguing and perplexing, probably because certain elements of the subtle, undercover and mysterious seem to hold sway. Writing, both business and of private nature, assume this curious or mystifying aspect, but a clever and cautious manipulation of such subtleties may result in much satisfaction. Elders assist. In purely private relations, romance looms large, with abrupt and startling bids to high adventure.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of unusual, subtle, and intriguing adventures, with much occurring of a mysterious or baffling nature. Writings particularly partake of this curious portent, although if sagaciously handled many of these perplexing affairs may be turned to advantage. Elderly persons seem disposed to be of assistance.

A child born on this day may be deep, studious, and dependable, but, at the same time, adventurous, romantic, emotional, artistic, and given to mystical matters or to occupations of an altruistic or modernistic trend.

MRS. ALICE GALVIN DIES IN 89TH YEAR

Succumbing to the effects of a fall in which she suffered a fractured hip Tuesday evening, Mrs. Alice Galvin, one of the oldest native residents of the district, died in this city this morning. She was in her 89th year.

She was born in Douro township, daughter of the late Edward O'Donell and Mary Maloney. Forty years ago she came to this city, residing latterly at 324 Charlotte street. She was a member of St. Peter's Cathedral, a member of the St. Peter's Altar Society, the Catholic Women's League, and the League of the Sacred Heart.

A well-known farmer in Enniskmore over a period of many years, her husband predeceased her 10 years ago. Surviving are one son, John, at home; and two sisters, Mrs. Peter Murphy of this city and Mrs. Margaret Nope of Rochester.

The funeral will be held Friday from the residence, 324 Charlotte street, at 8.45 a.m. to St. Peter's Cathedral for Requiem Mass at 9 a.m., and to St. Martin's Cemetery, Ennismore.

LIBERAL RALLY IS HELD IN GALWAY

Planning to visit all parts of the county riding, Alex. L. Elliott opened his country campaign at Swamp Lake in Galway Township Tuesday night, accompanied by Warden Roy Brown and Dr. E. M. Crough.

Reeve John Clark was chairman of the largely-attended meeting at which the Liberal candidate emphasized some of the major issues of the election to be decided on October 6. Mr. Elliott said that the administration of the Hydro-Electric Commission under the Hepburn Government had been a period of sound expansion. During the last three years 3,600 miles of Hydro rural lines had been constructed with an increase of 21,000 consumers living in country districts. Extension of the service had created a greater demand for electric products reacting to the advantage of urban communities who manufactured and sold electrical equipment. One of the centres of this industry in Ontario was Peterborough.

Warden Brown referred to the reduced taxation provided by the Hepburn government amounting to six mills on the dollar for all the ratepayers of Peterborough County. He said he regarded this accomplishment as one of the strongest reasons why farmers should work for the success of the Liberal candidate in this riding.

TOLL OF CIVILIANS DEPLORED IN WAR

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Ont., Sept. 15.—"The masses of the people of all nations want peace and what the masses want will eventually come to pass. If we do not express ourselves, then how is the sentiment of the people to be known? Therefore I raise my voice in protest against the wholesale slaughter of innocent civilians which is being carried on in China and Spain today," said Rev. Peter Bryce, D.D., Moderator of the United Church of Canada in an address to the Lindsay Presbytery at its annual meeting in Queen Street United Church yesterday.

The speaker pleaded with his listeners not to think too harshly of the Japanese. "Some of the finest Christians in the world are in Japan and their hearts are sore at the actions of their fellow countrymen," he said.

Political rivals are suspected in connection with the robbery of the French labor unions' headquarters in Paris of $5,000 in cash and important documents.

C.G.E. TESTERS HOLD ANNUAL RE-UNION AT KAWARTHA CLUB

Rain failed to cheat C.G.E. Testers and former Testers out of an afternoon of sport when they gathered for their ninth re-union at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club from many points in Eastern Canada. With 175 in attendance, it was the largest re-union gathering of the series.

The re-union opened with a buffet luncheon at noon, a golf tournament following. Only 75 of 90 players endured downpours to finish the 9-hole foursomes. H. C. F. Poste of the St. Lawrence Power Company taking honors with a low gross of 39. Bruce Munro was runner-up with a score of 44. To F. R. Barnaley of Montreal went the "average golfer prize, to C. S. Leary of Toronto went the "most consistent golfer" prize, and W. T. Holgate took the ribbon for the highest gross score with 78 for nine holes.

Feature of the afternoon was anchery-golf contest, F. Nagler and W. Joy of Toronto, equipped with bows and arrows, composed the archery team, and R. Jennings and L. Hicks, also of Toronto, composed the golf team. The archers easily shot drives of 350 yards, but experienced difficulty in judging distances when approaching targets. The contest went to the golfers three up on points.

Tennis matches, a softball series, a horseshoe pitching contest and other special contests were washed out by the downpour.

Following a re-union dinner, B. J. Burgess, president of the Test Alumni Association, presided over a short program. L. H. Wickwire of Noranda Mines was cited as the member from the most distant point, while J. A. Ackhurst of Halifax was cited as the guest from the most distant point. Twenty-seven 1937 test students and apprentices were introduced and welcomed into the ranks of the Association.

PRESENT SHOWER HAVELOCK GIRL

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Sept. 15.—A lovely kitchen shower was held on Monday evening at the home of Miss Marguerite Clarke, in honor of Miss Beryl Russel, of Toronto, bride-to-be of this month. Some twenty-four of Miss Russel's Havelock friends were present and a very enjoyable time was had. Crokinole was played during the evening, Miss Muriel Russell winning the first prize and Miss Evelyn Parcels the consolation award. The many ivory and red kitchen utensils were presented by Misses Shirley and Marilyn Hutchinson, Miss Russel expressing words of appreciation.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

REV. ROBERT BOYLE SEEKS TO RETIRE FROM MINISTRY

Peterborough Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in Canada met at St. Paul's Church, Port Hope, on Tuesday; the Rev. J. A. Preston of Keene presiding as Moderator.

The forenoon session was devoted entirely to retreat, the first hour being spent in prayer and meditation. The second hour was devoted to addresses, one on "The Ruling Elder," by the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, pastor of St. Paul's, Peterborough, and the other on "The Teaching Elder," by James Dutton.

The morning session closed with administration of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

In the afternoon, consideration was given to a request from the General Assembly relating to the method by which congregational property is held. Congregations were instructed to look up their title deeds and see they were in conformity with the constitution of the church.

A committee was appointed to deal with matters remitted from the General Assembly including budget allocations and methods of church finance.

An application from the Rev. Robert Boyle of Lakefield seeking to retire from the ministry was presented. He is completing almost forty years in the ministry, which have been spent in charges in Eastern and Western Canada.

The Presbytery agreed to send on Mr. Boyle's application to General Assembly and commended him to the Pension Board of the church. A resolution was inscribed on the minutes testifying to Mr. Boyle's faithful and devoted service to the church.

Subject to acceptance by the General Assembly his resignation will take effect on the final Sunday in October.

Named Interim Moderator

Dr. Barr was appointed interim moderator and he was also named on a committee in conjunction with the Rev. Mr. Preston and Mr. Dutton, to go over the field with a view to bringing Omemee in as a part of the charge of Lakefield and Lakevale.

The Budget committee presented a comprehensive report and agreed that steps be taken to reach congregations that have failed to meet their allocations. The Rev. J. W. Foote of Port Hope as convenor of the committee presented a plan for informing congregations of the necessity of the church.

Three students living within the bounds of the Presbytery were certified to Knox College. They were Leonard Wilson, Bowmanville; R. H. Williams, Millbrook, and Ferguson Barr, Peterborough.

NOISE IRKS CADI IN OSHAWA COURT

OSHAWA, Sept. 15. — Clanging noises by busy firemen and railway shunters irritated the Police Court yesterday morning and threatened to bring the Fire Department before the Cadi.

"I've told them time and again that if some of them were before you it might have some effect," said Chief Owen Friend when noises of hammering in the fire hall below punctuated the opening order of court.

"All right, I'll speak to them if you bring them," said Magistrate Ebbs and the Chief set off for the luckless firemen. Crown Attorney Allin Annis then rose to his feet and stated that representation should be made to the railway asking them to stop ringing the shunter bell when passing the court.

"They seem to save it all for here," agreed the Bench. "Between the firemen, the new factory and the railway, we had better hold court in the back yard."

The Crown suggested that if the press took notice of the situation something might be done about it, and Chief Friend returned from the fire hall lempty-handed stating that he couldn't find the offending hammerer, but they wouldn't be bothered again.

TREES DAMAGED WEEKEND STORM

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Sept. 15.—The wind storm, of high velocity, accompanied by some rain, which passed over the village and vicinity on Saturday afternoon brought down a number of trees, the power being cut off for a time until the Hydro lines could be cleared.

A large maple at Kidd's corner (King and Main streets) which had been damaged in a previous storm this season, lost another big section, and two tall spruce trees growing close together by the creek on the north side of Miss Burnham's property on Main street, were completely uprooted, crashing down across the lawns as far as the front verandah. A big lilac tree at the corner of the house fortunately deflected the top of the tree when it fell, thus saving the verandah from being struck and probably a part of it demolished.

Many trees were reported down on the highway and side roads; small branches and twigs littered lawns and gardens in all directions; vines were torn down, in many cases; and plants lacking in sturdiness were flattened to the ground.

Fortunately the storm died down to a considerable degree during the evening, undoubtedly lessening the harm that would otherwise have been suffered had the wind continued with the force which prevailed during most of the afternoon and until well on in the evening.

JANETVILLE W.A. HOLDS MEETING

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, Sept. 15. — The September meeting of the Women's Association was held in the United Church on Wednesday evening with a goodly number of members and interested friends present.

The president, Mrs. E. A. Bradburn presided. Several important business items were dealt with which included arrangements for a presentation and reception for a bride of the near future. Plans were made to hold the annual fowl supper on Monday evening, November 1st, the anniversary services to be held the day previous, Sunday, October 31st.

The treasurer, Mrs. Albert Heaslip presented a most gratifying report which included an item of $117 as net proceeds realized from the sale of home baking at Lake Scugog during the Saturdays of July and August.

The president expressed her sincere appreciation to the ladies for their co-operation especially during th extremely warm weather, to those who loaned cars, to Mrs. Peel for the use of her home as headquarters, and to all who helped in any way to the success of the venture.

The "Travelling Apron" from the north was opened and found to contain $7.75 which together with the South Apron, opened last month, brings the total proceeds from this means to $15.

Mrs. J. Nicholson and Mrs. G. Bradburn were appointed as program convenors for October. Mrs. Charles Deyell convenor for this month read the scripture lesson.

Mrs. John Nicholson presented a splendid paper on "The Trial Between Elijah and the Prophets of Baal."

A piano solo by Miss Helen Deyell was enjoyed as was a reading by Mrs. Sam Stinson. The meeting closed with a hymn followed by prayer.

Check For $21,439 Is Given To City

A cheque for $21,439 from the Provincial Treasurer representing Peterborough's share of the Government's municipal subsidy was received by City Treasurer Morley Shaver on Tuesday. The amount equals one mill on the local assessment scale.

The subsidy has long since been anticipated by city officials and allowance made for it on current tax bills, so actual arrival of the subsidy will make no difference in tax collections. The amount will go into regular city funds.

In Lindsay and other centres where no allowance for the subsidy was made on tax bills, rebate cheques are being mailed directly to taxpayers.

GOOD PROGRAMS W.M.S. MEETINGS

HASTINGS, Sept. 15 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Women's Missionary Societies of the three Protestant churches of the village held very interesting meetings on Thursday afternoon.

The W.M.S. of Trinity United Church were welcomed to the home of Mrs. Robert Collins, of Asphodel Township. Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe presided over the business. The program, a varied but splendid one, was prepared by Mrs. A. M. Brooks' group and consisted of a solo, "Silently Now I Wait for Thee," by Mrs. Gordon Faux; a solo, "Sweet is the Voice of the Mother," by little Miriam Newell, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Newell; the topic, "The Value of Prayer," by Mrs. A. M. Brooks; a reading, "Work and Tools to Work with the Lord," by Mrs. Alex. German; a bird's-eye view of the work in foreign fields, by Mrs. F. W. Newell; a reading, "His or Mine," by Mrs. Arthur Fleming; and a solo by Miss Helen Collins.

Following the meeting lunch was served by the members of the group.

St. George's Anglican Church

The members of the W.A. of St. George's Anglican Church motored to the home of Mrs. Roy King, of Percy Township, for their regular monthly and devotional meeting.

A letter was received from Miss Street acknowledging the receipt of the half-yearly pledge, also the extra $7 sent by the branch. Beautiful work was displayed, being done by Miss Plant and Mrs. James Fuller during the summer months. Mrs. Dalnard read an interesting story on "The Duke of Wellington."

Time was then spent on discussing the making of a baby's layette and other work for the winter months, after which the hostess served lunch.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian

The W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held in the basement of the church and 16 members were present. A busy afternoon was spent in the quilting of two quilts and the packing of the bale for the Northwest. The bale consisted of babies' layettes, two quilts used and new clothing and other articles. Just before finishing the packing their pastor, Rev D. K. Ferrie, who just returned from his honeymoon, dropped in and gave them a few words of praise for the work being done. A mystery tea, each lady providing something for the meal, proved all that could be desired.

MINISTERS ELECT OFFICERS FOR YEAR

(Examiner Correspondence)

HASTINGS, Sept. 15.—On Tuesday afternoon September 7th, members of the Havelock and District Ministerial Association were the guests of the Reverend and Mrs. William Stocks at St. George's Rectory, Hastings, for their opening meeting of this season. The following members attended: Revs. S. A. Kemp, R. E. Lemon, A. S. Cleland, F. W. Newell, Wm. Stocks.

At the election of officers, the Rev. F. W. Newell was re-elected president and the Rev. S. A. Kemp, secretary treasurer. The Rev. R. E. Lemon was elected vice president.

In response to a message from Toronto from the joint committee of Churches on Western relief, it was decided that the churches of the district would make a united effort to assist in providing fruit and vegetables for those in the drought-stricken areas of southern Saskatchewan.

The October meeting of the association is being planned to be held at Marmora when a paper will be given by the Reverend William Stocks, on the subject of "Church Music."

Chicago Air Waves Full Of Lessons

CHICAGO, Sept. 15 (AP).—It was tough on parents who customarily twirl the dials for cooking tips and sports results but nevertheless they had few complaints today against Chicago's experiment in radio education for 315,000 elementary school pupils.

Opinion was sharply divided among the youngsters, however. Many couldn't get the vacation idea out of their minds and found it easy to play hookey when teacher is heard but not in sight.

Telephone calls from parents reflected widespread interest in the plan inaugurated yesterday, said Miss Minnie E. Fallon, assistant school superintendent. It will be continued for the duration of the infantile paralysis outbreak which postponed schools' reopening.

BETHEL SOCIETY PLANS 2 QUILTS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

EAST EMILY, Sept. 15.—The regular meeting of the W.A. of Bethel United Church was held at the parsonage on Thursday, September 8. There was a large attendance, with the president, Mrs. Ira Switzer, in the chair. Mrs Oswald Ruth read the Scripture reading. The various reports were then given which proved very satisfactory.

Several items of business were then discussed and it was decided that the ladies divide into two groups and make two quilts to be sent to the West. Miss Marion Deyell read the chapter from the study book.

The following program was given: Duet, Misses Jean McTavish and Roberta Deyell; reading, Miss Hilda Howden. Miss Greta Clark, guest speaker, who is home on furlough from China, gave a very interesting talk on her work and the Christianising of the natives. Mrs. Oswald Ruth sponsored a very interesting contest and the hostess of the evening served lunch to end a delightful gathering.

TECUMSEH PROBES ITS FIRE TROUBLES

TECUMSEH, Ont., Sept. 15. —(CP)—Charging that firemen failed to respond to fire alarms and that Tecumseh's fire truck would not start, Mayor Fred Bouteiller of this suburban Windsor town, ousted Councillor L. Beausoleil from the chairmanship of Tecumseh's Fire Committee last night and appointed Councillor Ed Hunt in his stead.

Councillor Hunt was ordered by the Mayor to make a close study of the fire protection facilities available in Tecumseh and to take whatever steps at re-organization he saw fit.

"We had one fire in a garage some time ago and although the fire alarm rang for 15 minutes, not one of the firement showed up," Mayor Bouteiller said.

"I concluded the men were working at a canning factory and that it was impossible for them to come. That being the first occurrence of such a nature, I was content to let the matter pass.

"Sunday another alarm was turned in. It is true that it wasn't a big fire. But a few of the firemen turned up in answer to the alarm and they couldn't start the fire truck," Mayor Bouteiller said.

PLEASING PAPERS LAKEFIELD W.M.S.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 15 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Women's Missionary Society of Lakefield United Church held the first meeting after vacation on Tuesday afternoon. The meeting was held at the lovely summer residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Charlton, on Clear Lake. The weather being most favorable, a good attendance of ladies met at the church and were taken in cars for the delightful drive to "Kenkora."

The genial hostess had driven on ahead with her car full of members and was waiting to receive the other guests. A cheerful fire glowed in the huge fireplace and banished any little autumnal chill that might be lurking in the cosy rooms. Large gift bouquets of gladioli lent a charm all their own to living-room and balcony.

The numerous glass doors separating living-room and verandah were thrown open, so the members were not long in selecting the most inviting spot for their meeting place —the wide screened-in verandah which commanded a full view of almost the entire lake. The afternoon sun, in all its glory, shone on lake and distant shore, and one felt that man's most beautifully constructed cathedral could not compare in loveliness with God's great out-of-doors that surrounded one on all sides in that charming spot. A spirit of reverence prevailed, and all joined heartily in singing the opening hymn, "Jesus, Thou Joy of Loving Hearts." Miss Milburn presiding at the piano.

Pleasing Program

The meeting was in charge of Mrs. James Hendren, who offered the opening prayer. A very pleasing reading was given by Mrs. W. J. Charlton. Another reading, "The Moving Finger Having Writ," was given by Mrs. Porter. Mrs. Hendren read a short article on the life and recent death of Ellen Lakshmi Goreb, the author of that beautiful hymn, "In the Secret of His Presence How My Soul Delights to Hide." The four stanzas of the hymn were also read by Mrs. Hendren.

Mrs. Yale presided for the business items. The sectional rally, to be held in October, was announced and discussed. It was decided that the members again knit or crochet blocks for a quilt, as last year. A short resume of the Missionary Monthly for September was given by Mrs. Yale.

The treasurer, Miss Sanderson, reported a deficit in the society's allocation, and urged each member to do her best in contributing. The meeting was closed with the Lord's Prayer and the Mizpah Benediction.

Dainty refreshments were served, and the members then felt free to intermingle, many wandering to the dock to view the magnificient rock garden bordering the shore.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Charlton for her kind hospitality, and all went away feeling that they had spent a most enjoyable and profitable afternoon.

NEW X-RAY WORKS AT WANTED DEPTH

CHICAGO, Sept. 15 (AP).—X-ray surgery which is entirely painless and harmless and which promises to give everyone a look at a slice of his or her liver—if they are interested—was demonstrated here to-day before the opening session of the fifth International Congress of Radiology.

This relatively new use of X-rays with a machine which automatically makes them turn corners around bones and photographs a slice of the body at any depth desired and was described by Dr. Sherwood Moore, Jean Keiffer and Dr. Wendell G. Scott of St. Louis, Mo.

The machine, known as the "laminagraph," consists of an X-ray tube mounted over the ordinary treatment table and linked with a photographic film under the table. The tube and film in motion move in opposite directions, producing the focussing effect. With a patient lying or sitting on the table, the machine can be adjusted to pick out the image of a slice of tissue at any depth. When the film is developed it will show that slice in greater detail than has ever before been obtainable with X-ray machines, Dr. Moore declared. It is also possible, Kieffer added, to use the machine in the X-ray treatment of diseases.

Evening Branch, W.A. Of St. John's, Holds Meeting

The Evening Branch of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Church held their opening meeting for the season, with a good attendance of members.

The opening exercises were taken by the Rev Canon W. P. Robertson, the rector. A well-known hymn was sung, and prayers offered for all missions in foreign lands, including the Spanish refugees. A Bible reading by Mrs. J. Bell was followed by the secretray's report by Mrs. J. Collis, Jr. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. McIlwain, and the Dorcas report by Mrs. W. J. Downer. The correspondence, which was lengthy, was then dealt with, and plans were formed to have Miss Foster lecture and show slides on October 18.

The speaker of the evening was the Rev. Warren Turner, whose subject was "Western Canada and Its Conditions." Mr. Turner said that the average layman has no idea of the extensiveness of the prairies, which compare in no way with the beauty of Ontario. For nine years farmers have sown seeds and harvested no crops. Porridge is the main item in every meal of the farmers, and that porridge is made of second grade wheat that could not be marketed. The whole outlook is dejecting and depressing, and members of missionary circles do not realize the value of bales they send out. The joy of these destitute people when they receive gifts from the East is marvellous, as often the clothing sent to them is all they possess. The speaker closed his address with prayers that the faith of Christ may be broadcast to those people whose knowledge of the Gospel is so meagre, and as "The Love of Christ Constraineth Us" so help might be given in spreading the Gospel.

It was announced that the Deanery meeting will be held at Campbellford on October 14. The meeting closed with prayer, refreshments then being served by Miss E. Clementi and her committee.

Queen Mary Home and School Association

The Queen Mary Home and School Association held their fall opening meeting on Monday. The president, Mrs. Shirley, presided, and there was an attendance of twenty-eight. The meeting opened by repeating the Lord's Prayer, followed by the Home and School Creed read in unison. Reports were read and adopted.

The program included an enjoyable song and tap-dance number by Shirley Fitzsimmons, in red and silver costume, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Hooper.

Mr. Steer addressed the meeting on the "New Program of Studies." This new and revised curriculum is the result of a committee formed in December, 1936, who studied various forms of education in other countries, consulted teachers, and used Haddow's "Reports on Education in Great Britain" as their main reference. The idea of developing proper interests and attitudes in the pupil towards life so he will fit in in later life, resulted in the following course of studies now introduced into the schools, viz.: 1—Health: Goal of health behaviour; 2—English: Purpose, learn to speak and write clearly, accurately, and gracefully; 3—Social Studies: Combination study of History and Geography; 4—Natural Sciences; 5—Arithmetic; 6—Music; 7—Art; 8—Enterprises: Group work on special interests.

A letter was read from Mrs. Spicer announcing the Regional Conference to be held in the Prince of Wales School on Thursday, October 7. There will be an afternoon and an evening session and supper will be served. At the October meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association, the diplomas will be presented to the graduating class.

After the singing of "God Save the King," the Refreshment Committee served tea and sandwiches.

Identical Twins Differ On Men

DETROIT, Sept. 15—(CP).—The Pauline Taylors, Detroit's "identical twins," made plans to-day for their 17th birthday celebration September 22 as they began their senior year at Southeastern High School. Both are glad to be back at school after working as clerks in a store at St. Ignace, Mich., this summer.

Unrelated, the girls look alike, act alike, wear the same clothes and—except for the matter of "boy friends" agree on everything. They were born two hours apart, one in St. Ignace and the other in St. Catharines, Ont. They met here two years ago and have chummed together since.

The St. Catharines Pauline differs from her St. Ignace counterpart only in having a middle initial, "E." She prefers "tall and dark men and just now is a little worried about a friend in Peiping whom she has never seen but has corresponded with regularly for a year. "I haven't heard from him since the war began in China," she said. "According to his pictures, he's terribly good-looking."

To the other Titian-haired Pauline, boys must have personality, and lots of it.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

AND yet believe me, good as well as ill,
Woman's at best a contradiction still.
Heaven, when it strives to polish all it can,
Its last best work, but forms a softer man.

Dear Friends:

This is in answer to a letter from "A Woman" which made me laugh heartily. She says in part: "Roberta, could you not write about the way some husbands WILL persist in trying to run a woman's work in the home. I have as good a husband as may be, but sometimes when he is home on holiday from the office, he drives me nearly frantic when he sets out to help me (as he thinks) with the housework."

Can you see them together? This time she writes about how they started out cleaning the summer kitchen. He began to pick things up and ask what she was keeping THIS for, so she explained. Then he asked about something else, all the while muttering to himself about the ways of women.

Then she began to fear that if he kept throwing things out she would need later on in winter, and she had to go and pick them up and put them back, they might quarrel, so she told him sweetly that she would manage the rest and that he could go in and have a smoke and read the paper.

But he had put his hand to the summer kitchen and he was not going to rest, read, or smoke until it was all clean and tidy.

He kept up a running fire of comments about what use THIS was, she had had the other thing quite a while, and what good was it anyway. Then he could not understand about the dust, and he bet it had never been cleaned since they moved. What did she need with a rag-bag, she told him it was to get pieces for mending, and he said there was enough rags in the house to mend all the things in Peterborough. Oh, they were having a fine time.

And still he was bound he would clean that summer kitchen if he died in the attempt. He poked into this, he took down the other, and still kept tut-tutting about her method of keeping house. If he kept his office like that, where would they be. In the poor-house.

And don't forget that this was all good clean fun. She held on to her temper with both hands, and finally he landed on some fishing togs and an old rod and reel, some fish-hooks, so he landed out in the yard to do some casting among the dandelions.

But now, she vows, in her letter that never again will she allow him to help her clean house. (And at that he is getting a break.) But what she cannot understand is why men act like that around the house; why do they assume that women are such poor housekeepers because one place cannot be kept spotless when it is the dumping ground for every member of the family.

She swears she is going down to his office and clean his desk, or find out why he has this and that lying around it, or sitting in the office now in use. Why he has not answered his letters, why he leaves most of his dictation until late in the afternoon, so that his stenographer must work after hours to get his letters out.

She is also going to find out why he spends so much time smoking and talking with his partners with his feet up on the desk, why he spends so much for office supplies when he could get them for less. She is going to try throwing some of his things out and tut-tut all over the place at the way he runs his business.

Doesn't it make you laugh, and haven't you had some experiences along those lines yourself? Once I got help cleaning out a clothes closet, but I will draw a veil over the proceedings, or let you make a guess at it yourself. (But I did get in a few words about how out of date my clothes were.)

How will it end? Oh, the lady took it all out in her letter to me. It was a bit choppy as she seemed to be sputtering a little, but I sorted it out so that we could all enjoy a laugh. Why don't YOU send in some of YOUR funny experiences so we can have another laugh?

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Shower Is Held For Hastings Girl

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Sept. 15.—A presentation and miscellaneous shower was held in Our Lady of Mount Carmel parish hall on Tuesday night, in honor of Miss Mary Coveny of Hastings, who is to marry Gerald Condon of Douro on Thursday.

Miss Mary Jones, president of the Sodality, read the address, and Miss Mary Walsh presented a beautiful blessed statue of the Immaculate Conception to Miss Coveny.

The hall was tastefully decorated with autumn flowers for the occasion, and many nice presents were given to the bride-elect. About sixty young people, members of the Sodality and young men and women of the parish, were present.

Father Costello, the pastor, opened the evening on behalf of every one present, with words of greeting to Miss Coveny, and said that she was setting a good example.

Following this the presentation was made, for which Miss Coveny thanked the Sodality and extended an invitation to all present to visit them at their new home.

Gerald Condon, the groom, was introduced to the young people by Father Costello.

Father Costello announced that in the near future, a young people's club will be organized for the fall and winter, and that there will be no fees. The date will be announced from the pulpit. He gave a lengthy discussion on Catholic action, stating that times have changed in the past five years, and that a wave of paganism is sweeping over the countries, calling for Catholics to stand up and be real workers.

Lunch was served by members of the Sodality, and the balance of the evening was spent in dancing.

Mission Circle Plans Convention

Mrs. Robert Kitchen, 638 George street lent her home for the opening fall rally of the X.L. Mission on Monday evening, when the girls, in large numbers, responded to the call for increasing efforts.

The theme of the worship service was "The Unchanging Christ," and was led by the president, Jessie Martin, with Mrs. Kitchen offering the prayer. The meeting was largely of a business character. The first question dealt with was the Presbyterian Mission Circle Rally, which is to be held this year in St. James' United Church. Details for the part to be played by the entertaining church were fully discussed and settled. This rally promises to be a very successful affair, with Miss Evelyn Folett, the Dominion Board secretary of Mission Circles as guest speaker.

Another interesting question was the poster contest which will be judged at the coming rally. In this connection a special meeting was called to which all interested girls were invited to bring their best poster ideas. A 'membership campaign' which will terminate in a birthday party for the X.L. girls at the end of the year, was discussed. A report of the interesting lecture given by Dr. Peter Huih of China, at George Street United Church was given by Connie Wagar who pointed out that Mission Circle girls might learn much from the Christians of China.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by a committee including Miss Jessie Martin, Mrs. A. Roxborough and Mrs. E. J. Wagar.

With a vote of thanks to Mrs. Kitchen and her committee the Circle was adjourned to meet in October at the home of Miss May Welch, Princess street.

JIM DIDN'T KNOW ... WHAT WAS HOLDING HIM BACK

Be Fit . . . Be Vital
Avoid Dull, Logy Feeling

IF you feel logy and tired at times—unable to cope with things—it may be due to sluggish intestines—the result of too little bulk in your diet. And Post's Bran Flakes may be just what you need to correct it. They help to supply this needed bulk. You'll find them different from any other cereal you ever tasted—full of wholesome goodness and with a delicious nut-like flavour you'll really enjoy. Eat Post's Bran Flakes every day.

WHY MANY PEOPLE CANNOT ATTAIN SUCCESS

by Ronald Spencer

Success is within the capabilities of most people, yet many cannot attain it. Usually they lack the vitality—the self-confidence without which real achievement is almost impossible.

Quite often such people are not in the least aware of the conditions that hold them back. They only know they feel listless—unable to cope with things. This may be, and very often is, due to a sluggish system—the penalty of a sedentary occupation or the stress of modern life. The food wastes do not move readily along the intestinal tract. Elimination is delayed or imperfect. This sets up poisons in the body—causes logy, tired feeling.

Whether you are aware of tired feeling or not, you will find Post's Bran Flakes a real help to you in keeping fit and vital. They help to provide the natural "bulk" that keeps food wastes moving—help to promote regular elimination. If listless, tired feeling is not readily relieved in this way, see a physician.

And you will enjoy eating Post's Bran Flakes. They really are a most appetising, delicious-eating cereal.

By regulating your diet,
Perhaps your nervous system is at fault.
If you have the worry habit,
And are irritable and fidgety,
You cannot expect to develop bodily curves.

And your body is kept thin and angular.
The use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food
Is a most satisfactory way to regain normal weight.
This treatment makes the blood rich and red,
Restores the vigor of the nervous system,

MILLBROOK W.M.A. HAS QUILTING BEE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Sept. 15.—A pleasant afternoon was spent in the Sunday School auditorium of Grace Presbyterian church on Wednesday afternoon, when a number of the members of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary met for a quilting, and a social hour together.

The quilt which was completed, and which required a considerable amount of work since it was in the "Dresden Plate" design, was privately owned, the ladies receiving $1.50 for their labor. Yellow and black predominated in the pattern, and when finished the quilt was generally conceded to be a very handsome one, both in design and workmanship.

Following the hours of work a lunch was served, coffee, sandwiches and cake, for which a small fee was charged, two dollars being added to the W.M.S. funds from this item.

Among those who were present at the work meeting were Mesdames Mrs. J. R. Thompson, S. E. Eakins, Chas. Thorndyke, H. Mail, Z. Seaton, M. E. Syer, R. J. McMahon, and A. S. Hall.

The name of Mrs. J. Hatherly was inadvertently omitted from the list of those taking part in the program of St. Andrew's W.M.S. meeting on Wednesday. Mrs. Hatherly closed the study period with the poem, "The Tall White Christ of Galilee."

NORWOOD

SOCIETIES HOLD JOINT MEETING

The September meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Norwood United Church was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Sunday School room with guests present from the Missionary Societies of Presbyterian, Anglican and Baptist churches to hear an address by Miss Greta Clark, missionary from China.

Mrs. Hugh Robb the president opened the meeting with the worship service from the Missionary Monthly, the theme of which was "The Unchanging Christ." "Jesus Thou Joy of Loving Hearts" was sung and Mrs. Robb led in prayer. Mrs. Robb extended a hearty welcome to the visitors and to the guest speaker.

Mrs. Edward Scott convenor for the September group was called on to take charge of the remainder of the meeting. The Bible reading was taken by Mrs. Lilian Andrews. Mrs. Charles Renaud favored with a beautiful solo. Mrs. Scott introduced Miss Clark who based her remarks on the 12th chapter of Isaiah and of what that day of which Isaiah speaks means in a Christian's life—the comfort and joy of completely trusting God and leaning on His strength—really living the victorious life. "If we experience this richness of the spirit we must declare His doings among the people," the speaker said. Miss Clark told of her work in the Honan diocese and of the interest that the educated and well-to-do Chinese are taking in Christianity and of how students who have a great influence in that land are gradually being won. She stressed the power of prayer and closed by earnestly requesting prayers for China in the terrible struggle now taking place there and for General Kai Shek, the great Christian leader, who has been made dictator of all China in this crisis and for all Christian Chinese that they may adhere steadfastly to their faith.

Mrs. Scott moved a hearty vote of thanks to Miss Clark for her inspiring and soul-stirring message and closed the meeting with the Mizpah Benediction.

A dainty lunch was then served and a social hour much enjoyed.

X-RAY AND RADIUM BRING NEW RELIEF

CHICAGO, Sept. 15 (AP).—Persons suffering from backache, chronic sinus infection, boils, ringworm, acne and athlet's foot were promised a quick remedy to-day by X-ray and radium specialists attending the fifth International Congress of Radiology.

The physicians who reported successful treatment of these almost universal ailments with X-rays and radium said their claims sounded like those made for patent medicine. They brought forth thousands of cases, however, to prove the electrons shooting from radium and X-rays can do things which no other medical treatment will accomplish.

Dr. Fred M. Hodges of Richmond, Va. and Dr. Fred E. Butler and Dr. Ivan M. Wooley of Portland, Ore., related they had successfully treated with X-rays more than 2,000 cases of sinus infection which had failed to respond to other treatment.

Dr. Hodges also told the 2,000 radiological experts he had successfully used the same X-rays found effective in cancer treatment for overcoming such diseases as acne, adolescent pimples, boils, carbuncles, erysipelas, infections of the nose and eye, ringworm, athlete's foot, mumps, mastoiditis and chronic arthritis.

CZECHS MOURNING THEIR 'FOUNDER'

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 15 —(AP)—Dr. Thomas F. Masaryk, 87, Grand Old Man of Czechoslovakia and founder of the republic, Tuesday lost his long fight against death.

Jan Masaryk, son of the first president of the republic which was born out of the Great War, personally announced the death:

"My father died at 3.29 this morning."

Flags in Praha and at the Chateau de Lany, the residence given Dr. Masaryk by the people, were flown at half-mast. The country folk among whom he had lived his last years uncovered their heads and bent knees in silent prayer.

His son and daughter were at the bedside. Madame Masaryk, the former Charlotte Garrigue of Brooklyn, died in 1923.

Masaryk will be remembered by many as a patriot and democrat whose efforts in the Allied capitals during the Great War made possible the creation of his country.

He was honored in the post-war years as one of Europe's great statesmen; but to his fellow countrymen he was even more: the symbol of their liberty and the revered patron saint of national freedom.

Masaryk became president of the Czechoslovakian state when it was born in 1918. He was re-elected in 1920, 1927, and again in 1934. In December, 1935, advancing age compelled him to resign and turn over the presidency to Edward Benes, his disciple and colleague.

92 Years Old—And Fit As a Fiddle

Takes Kruschen Every Morning

"I feel in duty bound," writes Mrs. A.J.W., "to express my gratitude for the marvellous results my father has obtained from Kruschen Salts. He is ninety-two years old, and is as fit as a fiddle. He can get around easily, and even run up and down stairs. His friends marvel why it is he is always alert, and never feels listless. He always tells them the reason: "my regular daily dose of Kruschen Salts in my first cup of tea every morning."—(Mrs.) A.J.W.

Most people grow old long before their time because they neglect one vital need of health—the need for internal cleanliness.

Eventually they start the healthy Kruschen habit. Then, probably for the first time in their lives, they start getting rid every day of all waste matter from the system. Instead of being clogged the intestines are clean and clear. Instead of liver and kidneys being sluggish they are active and efficient. New, healthy blood goes coursing through the veins — carrying health and strength and energy to every part of the body.—(Advt.).

Oshawa Unionists Outlucked In Final Minutes Of Battle

'Ole Lady Riding With Petes,' Writes Motor City Sports Scribe

(Oshawa Times)

Oshawa's 222 lacrosse team dropped from the season's competition Monday night, but they certainly didn't fade out—they were smothered by a timer's bell, while in the full blaze of a glorious rally that came within inches of being a victorious drive.

The game was the most hectic, sensational and exciting one which we ever hope to see, much less participate in and there was a large crowd on hand, with plenty of Oshawa fans there, too. The first three periods were feature by close-checking from both teams.

Oshawa went into the last period trailing by four goals and had three of them back within the first minute and a half. Then came a tough-luck penalty when Cook accidentally cut Magee over the face and got five minutes for drawing blood. It was the toughest kind of luck, for that penalty saved Peterborough.

Oshawa had been completely disorganized, had them on the run, with Kelly Degray leading the attacks on the Peterborough net and Daniels, Bovin, Barron and Cook peppering shots at Creighton from every angle. The "Auburns" were beat right there but that penalty saved them.

After making the score 7-6 Oshawa saw Peterborough come back to take a 4-goal lead again, while Oshawa played a man short. Back at full strength and with only four minutes to play, the Oshawa team again staged a gallant rally and again scored goals in a row to make the score 11-10.

Chute got a penalty for Peterborough with less than a minute to go and then Oshawa surged up the floor in quest of the tying goal. They had all the play for 50 seconds. Two shots hit the goal-posts and another bounced off "Red" Creighton's foot after it had passed his stick and was headed for the back of the net. Either of those three shots would have tied the game, and Oshawa would certainly have won for the Peterborough team were finished, but luck wasnt with the 222 team and a long bounce off the back boards gave Peterborough their chance to break away, and they rushed in on the deserted Oshawa net to score the last goal, just as the bell rang.

It was a glorious battle, and a heart-breaker for the hard-working Oshawa boys to lose. They tried desperately and deserved to win on the strength of their fighting spirit in the final period alone, but they didn't have the luck with them and when it was over the "Auburns" were the first to admit that they had got the "breaks" but the Oshawa boys, the bitterest of lacrosse series over, wished the "Auburns" the best of luck on their way to the Ontario championship.

Swims Channel

Louise Horna, aged 21, an Austrian parlormaid, employed in London, swam alone from Portsmouth, Eng., across the four-mile channel to Ryde, Isle of Wight. She was found staggering across the beach shortly before midnight, exhausted and suffered from cramps. The channel has some strong currents, and Miss Horna was nearly run down by one of the many steamers which use it. She is seen here.

TIMMINS TEAM NAMED CHAMPS

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., Sept. 15—(CP).—McIntyre Mines of Timmins, Ont., were Eastern Ontario baseball champions to-day under an edict issued by E. J. Sutherland of Smith's Falls, president of the E.O.B.A.

The Timmins team was named titleholder last night after the Green Valley Club, Ottawa champions, refused to meet the mines team in the finals in the northern city unless it was given an $800 guarantee.

Ike Solomon, McIntyre Mines representative, refused to accede to this proposal and Frank Boucher, Ottawa City League president, would not accept any other proposal.

E.O.B.A. officials said they had been previously informed that the Green Valley team was agreeable to playing the finals in the north, and northern officials had been so advised.

When it became apparent the Ottawa club would not play in the north unless the guarantee was posted, decision was made to award the title to Timmins, Sutherland said.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two THINGS went sky high in Central Ontario rugby circles this week and at the time of writing nothing has been definitely settled. Monday night's meeting at Cobourg was postponed until tonight (Wednesday) upon the word that Oshawa Blue Devils may return to the circuit and the possibility that a Toronto Club may enter the loop. The addition of one or possibly two of these teams would make a five-team circuit for this section of the province and leave the Trenton, Belleville and Kingston clubs in a separate group by themselves. Rumors last week called for a six-team league with eastern and western divisions to play an interlocking schedule but the Lindsay club were against this as it called for a long hop from the Scugog town to the home of the Limestoners. However the schedule only called for one game with Lindsay at Kingston and they were willing to overlook this one difficulty in order to get the league going. Local representatives at tonight's Cobourg conclave will bring back word we hope of a strong organization to carry on the autumn sport which we will pass on to you Thursday.

* * * * * *

INCIDENTALLY word comes from Belleville that instead of an interlocking schedule with the eastern group, the games played would be an exhibition variety and which we believe would find more favor with us as it does not call for the lengthy journey to Kingston. The idea is believed to have developed from a recent conversation between Bill Fry and Lou Brooks, O.R.F.U. convenors and runs along these lines. The local group has only three teams operating this season and as the rugby moguls felt that two home games were not sufficient to cover the year's expenses and as the situation was somewhat the same in the eastern group, it was thought a good idea to hookup the two sections in order to provide more home games for he fans. Inasfar as travelling is concerned the two groups are about even. Belleville has only one trip to Kingston and one to Trenton, it is not far from what the local pigskin chasers will have to pay in transporting their players to Lindsay and Cobourg, an item we believe will amount to some three hundred odd sinkers.

* * * * * *

WITH a three team set-up each club has two idle playing dates available for exhibition games throughout the season's schedule. And Bill Fry's idea cas for the ide team in that circuit to pay with the idle club in our group. For instance when the Kingston Garrison and R.C.A.F. are playing the Quinte squad is idle and says Mr. Fry 'When Belleville have their idle two days they will play a home and home series with the Orfuns. The R.C.A.F. can do the same with Lindsay and undoubtedly the Kingston Garrison would accept the same proposition with Cobourg. This would give each club three home games before the winners of each group advanced to the O.R.F.U. playdowns.' This we believe to be a sound idea, cuts down travelling expenses and gives each an extra gate to help carry them on into the provincial series. The financial end of the running a rugby squad is no easy problem and the clubs deserve all the support they can get. However this is only a suggested plan of the two convenors and must be thoroughly threshed out at tonight's meeting and with the advent of an Oshawa or Toronto squad entering the local group it is hardly likely that anything will be done about it. Incidentally during the past three years Peterborough and Belleville squads have hooked up in six games, having won two and tied two, so that even as an individual exhibition series, a pair of games between these two teams should prove popular.

TOMMY FOLEY, one time King of the Willow for our local senior baseballers was the leading batsman for Oshawa in their 4-1 victory over Kingston to retain the C.O.B.L. championship. Tommy collected three safeties in the final game and has batted over .600 in the playoffs. A little matter that highly pleases the Oshaw scribe, inasmuch as the regular writer of this column did a bit of panning on Foley's account to wit, that the said Tommy could not hit the size of his collar in the playoffs. In the three games against Tony Paczowski, the pitching wonder from across the international line who was supposed to bring back the title to Kingston, Oshawa garnered 11 hits, 12 and 10 for the grand total of 31. They got 15 off Williams and Buck. During the game Joe Daley, colorful Irish battler and manager of the Kingston club announced that this was his last season in the game.

* * * * * *

SPEAKING of the Hurst incident, the following comes from the scene of the battle: "Peg" Hurst got thrown out of the game in the first inning and he had it coming. The fiery little left-fielder is one of the best batters on the Oshawa team and many a time we have seen his fighing spirit rally the team just when they needed pepping up but thre is such a thing as taking it too far. Hurst stepped ou of the batter's box, in the first inning, afer Tony had started his wind-up. The throw hadn't been started but the wind-up had and that's just the same. The ball was over the plate and Umpire Colling rightly called it a strike. Foley stole 2nd base on the pitch, and since Hurst would only would have made a "fake" swing at the ball anyway in order to help Foley steal, he was actually no worse off than if he had swung. Foley stole second, which was what was wanted and Hurst should have kept quiet. Instead, he raved at Umpire Colling, arguing that it was not a pitch (which if agreed to, would have meant that Foley had to go back to 1st). We don't know what was actually said but Colling warned him and then finally ordered him out of the game. Getting tossed out of the game in playoff time is serious business and the Oshawa team needs such players as Hurst in their line-up. They're not much good to the team sitting on the bench. Both Hurst and Doug. May have both had Umpire Colling plenty hot at several times during these playoffs and Monday Colling quit "taking it." Umpires don't have to "take it" and it's to be hoped that this episode will be remembered by all the Oshawa players. Umpire Colling was right when he tossed Hurst out of the game but he was dead wrong when he refused to allow Miller to go down to 1st base, when hit with a pitched ball, right after that. Miller took Hurst's place at bat, when "Peg" was put out and he was hit by a pitched ball. Miller was standing in the batter's box when he was hit and a batter does not have to make an attempt to get out of the road of a pitch. He must not jump in front of a pitch but he doesn't have to jump out of the road either. Miller did not move his feet and he was still in the box when hit. Reading Umpire Colling's mind, we feel certain that the only reason he didn't let Miller go down was because Miller had built up a reputation for getting hit by pitched balls and also because he knew that Miller had not made any move to get out of the way. Mr. Colling was wrong on that one and while we'll support him when we agree, in this case we think friend Ken was just being "smart."

* * * * * *

OF Saturday's game in this crucial series, the Kingston scribe writes: "Too much power and too many assists! That's what beat Ponies on Saturday. The solid driving of the Oshawa clubbers and the gobbling up of bounders in the infield gave the visitors the big edge for the C.O.B.L. title. You won't find anyone who will tell you Oshawa weren't the better team on Saturday, but you'll find a lot who'll wonder with you how Turner got by through nine innings of pitching and allowed only four hits. Any time you get three infielders accepting 18 chances you know what the result must be. Jubenville had seven, May six and Rowden five on Saturday and they were mostly on hard chances. It just so happened that the Ponies for the most part were smashing the ball right into the hands of the infielders. It looked for a long time as if there wouldn't be any game, for rain halted the start for almost half an hour. Even when it did get under way there was a slight drizzle ut it cleared away and the game finished in good time.

WORD was received from E. J. Dopp, secretary of the O.A.L.A. that owing to bad weather conditions, the first game of provincial playdown series between Cheltenham-Inglewood Combines and the Auburns which was scheduled here this evening (Wednesday) was allowed to be postponed. But that the original arrangement would continue in regards to the second game, that is, the Petes will meet the Combines in their home game on Friday night at Brampton, the battle to be staged in the covered rink in that city. The O.A.L.A. secretary further rules that the second game of the series must be played on Monday as th Petes' home game, regardless of the weather. If rainy conditions prevail here the game will have to be transferred to Lindsay or played in the local armouries if that building can be obtained. The Auburns expect to be at full strength for Friday's tussle with Whitton and Vitarelli, the last two absentees back in the lineup and should give a good account of themselves, although stacked up against rather a tough proposition in the Combines.

HERE and There: Max Cotton won the singles championship for the city for his fourth consecutive year. The match which was played under floodlights at the Kawartha club courts was keenly fought with Roy Tranter, the opposing finalist pushing the champion all the way....Oshawa GM-men, Central Ontario champions, we expect, will meet the winners of the Hamilton-Merriton series, in the O.B.A.A. senior semi-finals and if Hamilton wins today (Wednesday), the first game will likely be on Saturday....The final game of the Southend Softball league will be held on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'cock on the Brinston grounds. A victory for the DeLaval gang will give them the championship whereas a win for Keene will delay the title battle until next week.

GOLF-FACTS NOT THEORIES

By Alex Morrison

Number 86

My partner in a recent foursome was handicapped by a fault which many players have at one time or another. His tee shots found him skying the ball. Even though he was using a driver with an absolutely straight face and no loft, the ball would go up in the air as though hit with a mashie.

He told me that he had tried all kinds of clubs without being able to overcome the fault. Obviously, he attributed most of his trouble to the loft of the clubface. Actually, this has little to do with such a result. The main cause is to be found in the path traveled by the clubhead.

If the clubhead travels in an up and down arc, the ball invariably is lofted. When the clubhead travels in a flat arc through the bottom of the swing, much as a putter would, then the ball will have a comparatively low flight. So when you are skying the ball, you are swinging the clubhead in an arc that is too upright. The thing to overcome this is a flat arc.

You can at least approximate the right arc by keeping your left hand firm throughout the swing. Take a firm hold on the club to begin with and make sure that this hand still has a firm hold at the end of your swing.

Max Cotton Retains Net Title For Fourth Consecutive Year

Roy Tranter, Opposing Finalist, Puts Up Hard Fight Before Losing Out

Through frosty weather, a shifting wind and a light but driving rain, the city championship was run off last night (Tuesday) on the Kawartha tennis courts. Max Cotton, perennial champion, emerged victorious for the fourth consecutive time beating Roy Tranter in a magnificent struggle. Scores were 2-6, 6-1, 5-7, 6-4, 9-7. And they tell the story,—but not all. The first set was a spectator's treat, filled with everything that the game can offer. A better example of courage and gameness has not been seen from this corner in many a moon.

With the match evened at two sets all, the challenger jumped into a quick 2-0 lead. At this point, Cotton got back in the hunt so decisively that he not only tied the score, but led at 3-2 with his own service coming up. Before Tranter again came to left, the champion was away to a 5-2 lead and appeared to have the match sewed up. Then the fun began, and with beautiful driving and by pounding hard at Maxie's backhand, the loser knotted the count, rallying from one match point. After Cotton was a game ahead, Roy caught up to and passed his opponent to lead 7-6. Calling on all his reserve forces, and with a determination that could not be denied, the winner snatched three straight games to run out the set and the match taking nine games to Tranter's seven. Altogether the latter staved off no fewer than six match points before bowing in defeat.

The first two sets were run off in easy style, each man taking one in much the same manner. In the middle fracas, Cotton was off to a three love lead before Tranter got back in the fight. Pressing hard, he caught Max at 4 all and gained the intermission period one set out in front. The fourth set was almost a repeat on the third, but in this frame the challenger's efforts fell short of the mark and the duel went into more extra innings.

Max Cotton was full value for his win, playing cleverly throughout. His service was fair enough, his net play and overhead game was slightly superior and he made phenomenal gets. But give Tranter credit. Any match which goes to five sets is anybody's game. The loser's ground strokes were flawless for the most part. He had many fine placements and played with noteworthy courage. His service was the weakest part of his game, losing for him a number of costly points.

Boston Bees Wallop Cubs And Giants Lengthen Lead

Hubbell Secures His 19th Victory—Yankees Drub Indians 17-5

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(CP).—There's no rest for the weary.

Slapped down and around twice on the same afternoon by the Bees, dropped 2½ games in back of the Giants, the Cubs to-day faced two more games with Commodore McKechnie's scrappy crew—and especially with Commodore McKechnie's veteran rookies, rookie veterans or, by any name you please, crack pitchers.

The latest of them, Milt Shoffner, was set to go to work against the Bruins this afternoon. Behind him are Lou Fette and Jim Turner, the all-season sensations who should be rested by to-morrow.

The double defeat handed the Bruins yesterday—9-0 as the Bees slugged behind Johnny Lanning, 4-2 as they fielded smartly behind Danny MacFayden—did the Cubs no good whatsoever.

While the Giants were splitting a pair with Pittsburgh, it cost the Cubs a full game and, besides, tacked two more defeats on their list. The Chicagoans, in the "games lost" column, now are four games to the rear of the league leaders.

The latest standing showed the following:

Giants—won 80, lost 52, to play 22.
Cubs—won 79, lost 56, to play 19.
Behind 2½ games.

The Giants came out of the only double-header of their last western invasion well enough. In the opener, which they won 12-2 they gave Carl Hubbell more than the silent southpaw has had all season and enabled him to coast to the honor of being the first major leaguer to win 19 games.

Even in the nightcap, which they lost at 6-2 to Cy Blanton, they nicked the Pirate left-hander for eight hits and might have pulled the game out of the fire in the eighth, when Frank Leiber, who had batted in four runs in the opener, grounded into a double play with the bases jammed.

Yanks Drub Indians

The rest of the day's program was enough to leave pitchers strewn about in slap-happy carload lots. The Yankees, as usual, led the parade with a 16-hit display good for a 17-5 victory over the Indians and leaving the American League champions needing only to-day's double-header to erase Cleveland's last mathematical hope.

The Browns and Tigers also climbed into double figures, the Browns with an 11-4 shellacking of the Athletics, Detroit with an 11-6 clouting of the Senators.

Following the Bees' example, the Cardinals and Dodgers swept right through their bargain bills. St. Louis climbed into a third-place tie with the Pirates by beating the Phils 9-8 in 14 innings, and then 1-0 in 4½, while Brooklyn first nosed out the Reds 4-2, then swamped them 11-2.

Breaks Own Mark

Rain ended Ab. Jenkins' attempted land speed record run, but not before he covered 177.05 miles in one hour's run, breaking his own record of 171 miles. Ab. Jenkins is shown at the wheel of his "Morman Meteor before the start of the run over the Bonneville Salt Flats of Utah.

NEWARK BEARS WIN 1ST GAME

NEWARK, N.J.—(CP).—Newark Bears are on their way in the play-offs of the International Baseball League, with a one-game advantage in the best-of-seven semi-final series.

They went out in front yesterday with a ninth-inning rally that overcame a 1-0 deficit and gave the Bears a 2-1 victory over Syracuse Chiefs.

Earl Cook, youthful hurler from Lennoxville, Que., who gained considerable baseball prominence in Toronto amateur games, appeared to have the game won for Syracuse when he was nicked for two home runs that sent Newark whistling past the Chiefs to victory.

Two International League newcomers, Atley Donald and Johnny Vandemeer, will face each other in to-day's second game while Montreal and Baltimore will attempt to get started to-night at Montreal. Their opener yesterday was postponed because of wet grounds.

MONSWEEP IS TOPS THORNCLIFFE RACE

TORONTO, Sept. 15 — (C.P.). — Monsweep, Harry C. Hatch's 1936 King's Plate winner, scored a half-length victory over W. C. Hanna's Tricky's Son in the running of the mile and 1/16 feature race at Thorncliffe track yesterday. The Parkwood Stable's Epicurus was third, a neck behind Tricky's Son.

The feature was fashioned for three-year-olds and up, foaled in Canada, with a $1,000 purse at stake.

Jockeys McTague and Sterling Young divided the winning mounts in the first four rates, McTague providing an early feature by piloting J. F. McQuay's Sea Kale to a nose victory in the first race at seven furlongs, the winner returning $125.50 to $2 straight ticket holders. The place and show payoffs were $50.70 and $20.05 respectively.

McTague's second victory of the day came in the six-furlong sixth when he rode Tombo Tuck to a length victory over Pagan King. Festive Board was one-half length back in third place.

Jockey Young scored wins in the second and fourth races with Isle Royal and Fort Dearborn, respectively.

Cooper Wins Canadian Open

Over a rain-drenched and wind-swept course, "Lighthorse Harry Cooper, of Chicago, played consistent golf to capture the 1937 Canadian open golf championship plus a cash prize of $1,000. After the final 36 holes, Cooper stated that it was "the best golf I have ever played under the worst weather conditions." Cooper, who was putting extremely well, carded rounds of 67-72-72-74 to wind up the competition two strokes ahead of Ralph Guldahl, United States open champion. Cooper is seen here with the Seagram Gold Cup, emblematic of the Canadian open, Canada's highest golfing award. The tournament was played at Toronto.

Huck Welch Back For 1937 Grid Wars; Oke Olson, Star Of Indians, Is Injured

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (CP).—Ask Hawley "Huck" Welch today about those retirement plans he talked of a short while ago and he'll probably just grin and say: "Well, maybe next year."

For Huck, who boots a football in a fashion to warm any coach's heart, turned up yesterday for the first time this season at the Hamilton Tigers' workout. Although he didn't say definitely he intended to play, it's a pretty good bet Huck will be on the firing line when Tigers start their Big Four schedule.

While Tigers got the cheering news Welch might be back, Big Four teams buckled down to hard work in preparation for coming exhibition games. Two training camps were hit by injuries to star players.

Oke Olson, the man Coach Johnny Ferraro expects to quarterback for his Montreal Indians, was carried off the field with an injured knee. Indians, however, had their classy middle wing, Pete Jotkus, out for his first practice. In Ottawa, Fleet Andy Tommy was unable to work because of ruptured blood vessels in his thigh. Doctors ordered the Rough Rider backfielder to lay off until next week.

Argos went through a brisk drill at Toronto that started with running and booting exercises, and launched into mid-field grappling. Art West and Leo Deadey, both backfielders, furnished railbirds with the best displays.

ORDER HAVELOCK TO REPLAY GAME

BELLEVILLE, Sept. 15.—Called in the eighth inning because of darkness, a sudden-death playoff game between Napanee Mic Macs and Havelock softball nine was ordered replayed by O.A.S.A. Convenor Harry Rollins Monday night.

The game was held at Coleman Flats, in this city, after each squad had won its home game. Napanee led by a score of 13 to 8 when Umpire Don Thomas ruled it too dark to continue.

The contest was featured by heavy hitting by both teams, as cold weather kept the pitchers from reaching top form. A numbing wind also handicapped the fielders, with the result that the game was spotty throughout.

In the early stages, Bunton, Havelock's ace hurler, had the upper hand. His drop worked beautifully as he whiffed seven batters, but in the late innings his offerings were touched hard and often. Henderson breezed along for Napanee, and although hit consistently, he went well with men on bases.

Convenor Rollins announced that the game would in all probability be played in Belleville on Thursday night.

'GREY GHOST' SETS RECORD

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 15—(AP).—Greyhound, the "grey ghost" of harness racing, clipped almost ten seconds off the existing world's trotting record for 1½ miles yesterday, but a high wind kept him from cracking the mile mark—the previously announced goal.

With Sep Palin of Indianapolis handling the reins, Greyhound made a turn and a half around the State fair grounds track in 3:02¼. The old record for the 1½ miles was 3:12¼, set recently by Rosalind at Syracuse, N.Y.

The big grey gelding, now five years old, started his time trial on the backstretch, running into the wind. It took him a minute and two seconds to run the first half-mile, but then he began stretching out and trotted the last mile in 2:00⅘. He made the last quarter in 29 seconds.

Two running horses hitched to sulkies served as pace-makers. Palin's original intention was to send Greyhound after the mile record of 1.56¾, set by Peter Manning in 1922, and he announced he would send the famous trotter after the mile mark Saturday if track conditions are favorable.

The time by quarters for yesterday's run was: :31, 1:02, 1:32⅘, 2:03, 2:33, and 3:02½.

Joe Louis Is Given 30 Days To Sign Schmeling Contract

Champion May Be Shorn Of Title If He Refuses, N.B.A. Declares

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Sept. 15 (A.P.). — That Max Schmeling-Joe Louis fight situation bobbed up before the National Boxing Association yesterday with a strongly worded suggestion that Louis signify within thirty days his willingness to fight the German or doff his heavyweight crown.

Schmeling, ex-champion ranked by the N.B.A. as No. 1 contender for Louis' title, already has a knock-out over the negro to his credit.

The ultimatum is in a set of proposals the N.B.A. Resolutions Committee will offer for ratification to-day.

The resolution says:

"Resolved, That Joe Louis be given thirty days within which to submit his willingness to defend his title against Schmeling at a time and place and under such conditions as the national body shall direct. Failing in which, that his title shall be declared vacant."

Scallions for Uncle Mike.

The committee, headed by Kenna Clark of Fairmont, W. Va., also scowled upon the way Promoter Mike Jacobs of New York makes contracts with Louis and Jim Braddock, the immediate ex-champion, and declared for invalidation of the agreements. The committee came out against the reported five-year clauses in the contracts.

A resolution ready for presentation asserted:

"We wish to point out that titles are conferred to recognition of superiority and not solely for money making purposes."

It was proposed to give Mike Jacobs ten days to produce the contracts and, if found as reported, they would be invalidated. Other such agreements between promoters and fighters, covering anything more than a single fight, also would be banned.

The New York Athletic Commission is not affiliated with the N.B.A. and does not recognize its orders.

In connection with Louis and Schmeling, the committee proposed to invoke without delay the rule that champions must defend their titles at least once in six months on pain of losing them.

New Matchmaker

Here is Al Weill, new matchmaker for the Madison Square Garden Corp. in New York. He succeeds Tom McArdle, who has matched fighters for many years. Weill was appointed to his position by promoter Mike Jacobs, new fistic impressario.

Fat Persons More Open To Diseases

VANCOUVER, Sept. 15 (CP).—Fat persons do not derive the same energy from their foods as the average person and are left more open to diseases and respiratory disorders, it is claimed by Dr. Burgess Gordon, associate professor of medicine at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia.

At the 45th annual convention of the British Columbia Medical Association yesterday, Dr. Gordon told of a man weighing 420 pounds who remained indoors three years because he was a subject of laughter. His starch intake in bread alone was 10 loaves a day.

Finally, Dr. Gordon said, the fellow decided to get "a breath of air," but found he could not get through the door. Overeating, said the Philadelphia physician, is a disease, sometimes hereditary.

CHAPTER 34.

The next year pass swiftly. Maribarat was a new name in the couture world that was watched with interest and with skepticism. She was yet too new to have been tried. Before her others had come, new stars in the firmament that had flared and faded quickly.

Advised now by a large committee of representatives from her backers, she was cautioned to be conservative. And, wearied by the intensity of her efforts, her romantic dreams spent, she was glad enough to follow the lines prescribed for her. Her establishment had grown to such proportions that much of the executive work had been apportioned to others. Only in the creation of her models was she sole mistress.

She had little time or inclination to regard her work or herself from a standpoint of art. It was only when beautiful new fabrics were there for her sensitive fingers to touch and respond to that any of the things she had felt years before returned to her.

With a wealth of rich velvets, of clinging sheers, of metallics or supple wools before her, with her sketch pad in hand, then she was as she had always been. From her soft pencil, and endless flow of beautiful lines emerged.

The hum of work was never slack in the third floor workrooms. Her manequins had no layoff seasons. For all that her prices ascended, her clientele did not fall off. She had a rotating trade; there were the seasons when the buyers from New York, still wary because she was not yet considered one of the exclusive group of the big houses yet, tempted by the adaptability of her collection, made their visits and bought prodigiously of her. She had the trade of the continent and of America.

It was then that she first discovered her dislike of designing for actresses. Larry Hoik advised her that she must cultivate their sponsorship; there was "nothing to equal the publicity value of doing a play."

Mari would not tell him where the complex had begun, or what bitter memories it invoked.

She had changed in many ways in that year. When, at the beginning, she had realized how little of her business was her own, and how completely the responsibility was hers, it had laid heavily on her mind. Then, as time passed and the records were there for her to know how well she was succeeding, she had a new world weariness. She didn't know that it was a lack of her life. Previously her ambition had sustained her and had made up to her for other things that women want, and now that her ambition was in the process of realization, she found it an empty thing.

With her responsibility had come a new aloofness, a point of view towards life that was deliberately unobjective. She did not want to view life and its relation to her, yet she was not prepared to be objective.

She asked nothing more than to be a passive observer save in the hours when she was passionately engaged in her work.

You saw that in her. You saw her withdrawal. You saw it in her manner, her gracious attention that was seemingly all yours, yet you felt that she had never been touched and would never retain what she had heard.

There were men in her life that year. Attracted by her cool beauty, her impersonal attitude, they thought she was mysterieuse. They didn't know that her poise, her quietness, her lack of small talk was nothing more than a pose that covered—emptiness.

With her success, her social circle had widened. And with the increasing numbers of new friends and new activities, there had been new men. Men at first were fascinated, then were a little in awe of her. Later, they all acted in the way of men rationalizing about her, confident in their own attractiveness. They tried to break down her reserve, to pierce the shell.

Mari often wished that there was one man who might make her feel alive, not an instrument of a profession.

Of this she said nothing to anyone, either man or woman. Essentially a lonely person, she could not, as she approached her thirties, break an old habit of keeping her feelings to herself. And there was no one to whom she could have talked.

Mark Sutherland was as nearly her intimate as any person could have been. Even Mark who had known her for six years knew less of her—or believed he did—than he had known at first.

Perhaps it was her reserve, her unyielding attitude toward him that kept him constantly at her side; that is, constantly for Mark. Wherever he went in the travels that made up his life, he was sure to turn up in Paris at frequent intervals.

He was well known to Mari's friends as she was, as she was later to learn.

Her feeling for him had had curious inflations in the years she had known him, yet she had never labeled them. She was glad to see him when he returned to Paris, content to have him for her escort, enjoyed him because she felt more at ease with him than with others, and felt no loss when he was off again.

There was one man who understood her. He was a doctor from Vienna. Mari was aware of his dark, piercing eyes searching her soul, his waiting for her to speak, and was prepared to fend him off with her studied silences. But when she was alone with him she could not resist him. She talked as she never talked before.

And when she was finished, he said, "My dear, Mademoiselle, you have no troubles and therein lies your dissatisfaction."

When she protested that she was not dissatisfied, he shrugged his shoulders and said, "How can you help but be? You are not a shallow woman. You could not be shallow and be the artiste that you are. Yet, art is not enough. Art must be fed from the well within and your well is dry. All art depicts life and if you avoid living, how can you touch life? It is not something that can be lived vicariously. It must be partaken. The lives of people around you are like the things you read in books, something that you see but do not touch. You need vibrancy; without it, you will soon see that this nothingness which exists only for you now will spread into your creative powers."

Mari thought about that many times later, and the truth of what Dr. Brande had said was impressed upon her. She began to worry about it.

And one day she thrust her sketch pad away from her and commanded Letitia Higgins to arrange for her accommodations on the express to the Riviera. It was a vacation that she needed.

At the last moment, she called Letitia back and told her to arrange for accommodations for two. She would take Letitia for there was much work that she and her secretary could do.

Letitia stared at her employer for a moment, and forgetting herself said, "Certainly, Madame. For ... for Mr. Sutherland?"

Mari didn't look up at once. She should have been shocked but she wasn't. So THAT was what others had thought.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY TEACHES SCHOOL.

"Look! Look!" shouted Baby Bunty.

The little orphan rabbit, who had ridden home from camp on the Police Dog ambulance that took Miss Mouse to the hospital, was jumping up and down in front of Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow.

"Somebody is in our bungalow!" said Jingle.

"Truly there does seem to be some one there," said Uncle Wiggily, who had just brought his family back from camp. "I had better call the Police Dog at the hospital."

The rabbit family, all tanned and brown from their summer at Blue Lake, stood in front of their hollow stump home. Looking out at them from one of the front windows was a strange face.

"It's the Bob Cat!" cried Baby Bunty. "He has been living in our bungalow while we were away."

"That can't very well be," said Mr. Longears. "The Bob Cat was up at the lake often enough chasing me. I must go closer and see who this is in our bungalow."

Take Care.

"Wiggy! Be careful!" screamed his wife as her husband hopped nearer. "Wait for the Police Dog!"

All of a sudden Uncle Wiggily began to laugh.

"What's the matter?" asked Nurse Jane, who just then returned from having made Miss Mouse comfortable in the hospital.

"This is funny!" laughed the rabbit gentleman. "There is no one in our bungalow."

"Then what's that face looking out?" asked his wife.

"It's a false face!" chuckled Mr. Longears. "Just a false face of the Bob Cat. Ha! Ha!"

"Oh, I remember now!" said Buster. "I had that false face of the Bob Cat at Hallowe'en. I found it again when I was packing to go to camp and I pinned it on the window curtain so I wouldn't forget it for this Hallowe'en."

"Oh, such a fright as you gave us!" said his mother. "But I'm glad it is only a false face."

Uncle Wiggily opened the bungalow door. Buster took down the Bob Cat's false face and soon the rabbit family was housekeeping again in the bungalow as before.

Off to School.

Next day Uncle Wiggily was up bright and early. So were the children rabbits.

"Ding-dong! Ding-dong! Ding-dong!" rang the bell.

"Oh, dear! School!" complained Buster.

"It'll be fun for a few days anyhow," whispered Jingle.

"Yes, Daddy is going to teach because Miss Mouse is ill," said Jingle. "We can have a lot of fun with him even if we are in school."

Uncle Wiggily hopped to the Hollow Tree School ahead of the animal pupils. The Rat janitor had it all opened and ready.

"I'm sorry Miss Mouse is ill," said Mr. Rat.

"I'll teach for a few days," said Uncle Wiggily. Soon all the pupils, including his own rabbit children, were in their seats.

"Attention, please!" called Uncle Wiggily. "First we shall sing our morning song and then I'll start teaching." Hardly was the song finished than a loud knock sounded on the door. Who could it be?

You shall learn in the next lesson—I mean story—which will be about Uncle Wiggily's reading. But please don't let the pussy cat wear the dog's collar to the lollypop's party instead of her rubber boots.

The members of the Ladies' Bible Class of Bethel Sunday School gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Darling on Thursday evening to spend the evening with the former's mother, Mrs. J. Darling, who is an aged member of the class and has been unable to attend her class recently, of which she was a regular attendant.

A social evening was spent together, and the teacher of the class, Mrs. E. Storey, on behalf of the class, presented Mrs. Darling with a box of candy just to show their appreciation of her as a member of their class.

NEW HOSPITAL FOR COBOURG?

COBOURG, Sept. 15.—There is every possibility that Cobourg will have a new Ontario Hospital, Harold Carr, Liberal candidate for Northumberland, told an audience at a Liberal rally here Monday night. He said that government engineers had looked over a draft of plans and already a 350-acre site had been optioned.

The Liberal candidate declared that there were no grounds for the rumor that the Ontario Hospital here would be transferred to Belleville.

"Ask your mayor," he advised. "His politics are different from mine, but he is fair enough to admit that what I have told you is correct."

Mr. Carr declared that the Conservative Government had preferred to buy power from Quebec and that Campbellford's $10,000 bloc of power went unpurchased until the Hepburn Government had cancelled its Quebec contracts and commenced to buy from Campbellford.

Hon. Harry Nixon, Provincial Secretary, who also spoke, denied the truth of Hon. Earl Rowe's claim that Ontario was facing a power shortage.

"We have plenty of reserve power on which we can draw and for which we are paying, not $15 as did the Henry Government, but only $1.75.

Mr. Nixon also challenged the contention of the Conservative leader that taxes had increased under Hepburn.

"We found that the debt was worse than the provincial audit indicated because of juggled figures and bank overdrafts, amounting to $67,000,000. It was not until March of 1935 that we paid these debts off and had a chance to apply our own system. From then on we checked spending, balanced our budget and attained a surplus," said Mr. Nixon.

KEENE

Miss Isobel Short has accepted a position at the Post Office here.

Master Walter Koiller has returned to his home in Toronto after spending the summer holidays here.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 103

HOW OFTEN CAN YOU KISS AND MAKE UP?

FEW husbands can understand why a wife should turn from a pleasant companion into a shrew for one whole week in every month.

You can say "I'm sorry" and kiss and make up easier before marriage than after. If you're wise and if you want to hold your husband, you won't be a three-quarter wife.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

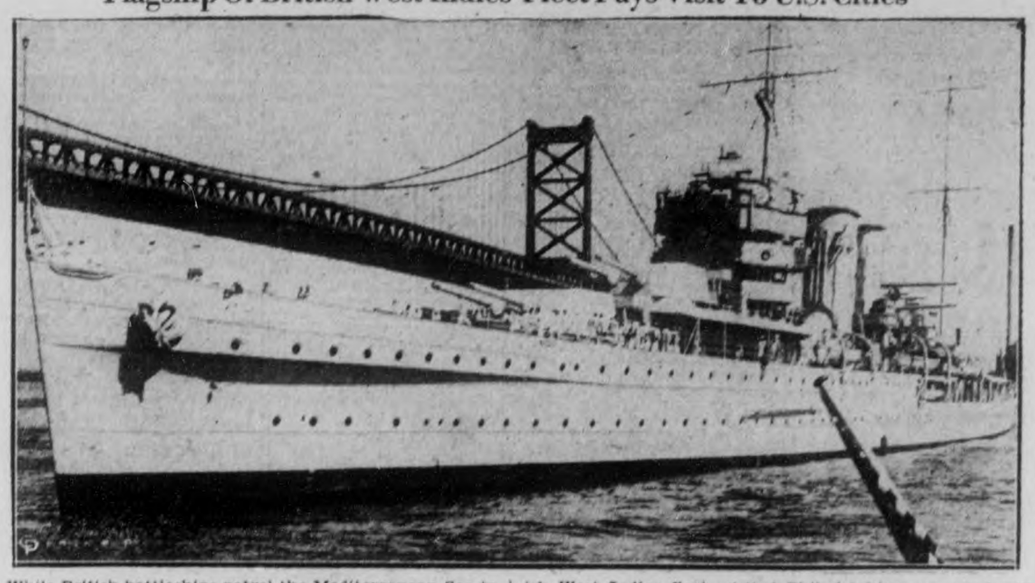
Flagship Of British West Indies Fleet Pays Visit To U.S. Cities



While British battleships patrol the Mediterranean Sea to protect merchant shipping against attacks from "pirate submarines," the H.M.S. York (Above), flagship of the British West Indies fleet, visited Philadelphia on a good will tour. The British boat is shown being warped into her pier shortly after arrival from Boston, Mass. Following the visit the boat will head for Bermuda.

Fiery Session Preceded Ontario's Call To Polls

Hydro Contracts Cancelled, Closure And Censure Applied In House

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (CP)—Ontario's 20th legislature will be elected Oct. 6, but Ontario will long remember the spectacular 19th with its bitterness and drama. With youthful Premier Mitchell Hepburn at the helm of a Liberal government, the legislature was lively, particularly in its third and final session.

There were two legislative highlights—cancellation by the government of contracts for power between the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission and four Quebec power companies; and a bill, later repealed, dividing corporation taxes between public schools and Roman Catholic separate schools.

Much of the heat generated in Ontario politics developed over these measures. The 1935 legislation cancelling power contracts stands, though parts of it were declared invalid by Ontario courts and new agreements were made with three of the four companies.

Died One Year Later

The school tax bill, passed in early 1936 after bitter debate, died a year later. When the Conservatives introduced a bill to repeal the legislation, Mr. Hepburn accepted it, refused to permit debate on the issue and thus lifted the curtain to greater dramatics than ever.

"The dirtiest trick in Ontario history," Leopold Macaulay, South York Conservative, called the premier's shutting off of debate. Disregarding the Speaker's efforts to put the closure motion, he went on shouting.

Veteran observers said the ensuing uproar was the noisiest in the House's history. Members shouted at each other across the floor. And it only ended when Mr. Macaulay, still defying the Speaker's ruling, was ejected bodily by the sergeant-at-arms—a precedent.

Behind the tax bill lay decades of controversy in Ontario over the school question. By the Settlement Bill of 1863 Roman Catholics could pay their taxes to the separate school system. They also could notify corporations in which they held shares of their desire to have their share of taxes go to separate schools.

The 1936 amending bill made such allocation of taxes mandatory on corporations and introduced a new principle—division of certain corporation taxes between public and separate schools on a school population basis. This applied to corporations wholly owned outside Canada and to corporations of which shareholders' religious preference was not easily ascertainable.

In accepting the repeal motion a year later, Mr. Hepburn admitted the bill had failed to do what was intended. Justice had not been achieved. The school issue had "opened up religious and racial sores which will not heal in the lifetime of this country."

Unusual Scenes In House

Two other explosive episodes marked the 19th legislature's last session. First was the formal expulsion from the Liberal party of Dr. A. D. Roberts, Sault Ste. Marie's representative, by Premier Hepburn. The second was the premier's move to adjourn the House because of the conduct of a cabinet minister, Hon. Peter Heenan, fiery Irishman from Kenora.

Premier Hepburn accused Dr. Roberts of attempting to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation in an effort to get a medical contract from the company. Dr. Roberts denied the charge and an inquiry was ordered. The doctor was moved by the premier to the Opposition side of the House.

The inquiry was not carried out. Dr. Roberts apologized to the premier after the session closed for accusing him of being "dictatorial," an accusation made when Dr. Roberts said the premier had permitted Sir James Dunn, Algoma Steel president, instead of Dr. Roberts, to announce a government bounty on beneficiated iron ore. Dr. Roberts is not a candidate for re-election.

Kenora's roads caused the flare-up involving Mr. Heenan. The premier had announced the House would sit all night to pass the estimates. Mr. Heenan, minister of lands and forests, and Kenora's representative, arrived just before midnight—just in time to hear George S. Henry, Conservative House leader, say money had been squandered in Kenora constituency.

Adjourned House

Mr. Heenan resented Mr. Henry's charges and disregarded the Speaker's rulings to keep his seat. He started across the floor of the House toward Mr. Henry. Restrained, the minister kept up his interruptions. Finally the exasperated premier adjourned the House "because of my colleague's conduct."

The next day Mr. Heenan apologized to the Speaker and he and Mr. Henry smiled at each other.

Legislative highlights of the session included the formation of a Labor and Industry Board to administer hour and wage codes in Ontario industries. The board now is functioning and codes have been set up under the Industrial Standards Act. Along with the bill setting up the board was a measure to empower it to fix minimum wages for men in industry.

The budget, with its $9,000,000 estimated surplus for the present fiscal year and many tax reductions, came near the end of the session. The amusement tax was wiped out. Municipalities were given a subsidy of one mill on their rateable assessment, a new departure in Canadian public financing.

ACCURACY SLOGAN CANADIAN PRESS

SHERBROOKE, Que., Sept. 15.—(CP).—History and the work of the Canadian Press, Canada's co-operative news-gathering organization, were described last night in an address before the Sherbrooke Rotary Club by J. A. McNeil, second vice-president of The Canadian Press, and managing editor of the Montreal Gazette.

The Canadian Press, Mr. McNeil said, was a co-operative association formed by the Daily Newspapers of Canada to acquire, distribute and exchange news of their own localities, the Dominion and the world. It included practically every daily paper in Canada, operating on the democratic principle that each had an equal voice in the formation of the Association's policy.

"Two essentials of a successful and satisfying news service are impartiality and accuracy, and in both of these The Canadian Press has a deservedly high reputation," he said. Best proof of its impartiality lay in the fact that its reports of parliamentary proceedings and election campaigns were accepted by all shades of political opinion.

Every effort was made to ensure accuracy, not an easy achievement in the haste and excitement attendant upon a big news happening, Mr. McNeil said.

'SIT DOWN STRIKE' WORKED

CINCINNATI, Sept. 15 (AP). — A "sit down strike" against one of their playfellows brought dividends to a group of boys.

City Welfare Supervisor Albert W. Pecsok said one of a group of boys over which he presides was borrowing dimes from others in the crowd and not repaying them.

Last night the entire gang called on the boy and sat on his doorstep. The youngster's mother paid off.

LEAGUE ASKS U.S. TO HEARING OF CHINA'S APPEAL

WILY GERMAN ADVISERS HOLD CHINESE LINES

SHANGHAI, Sept. 16—(AP). — Chinese counter-attacked to-day from the centre of their Shanghai defence line and drove the Japanese from Lotien, 15 miles northwest of the International settlement.

Despite a steady rain, the Chinese troops were said to have broken a mechanized Japanese attack. Counter-charging, they drove out the Japanese who had entered the town with armed cars and tanks. Lotien has changed hands countless times in the five weeks of battle in the delta.

The Chinese spokesman said the heavy rain had slackened activities along the 30-mile front from Shanghai's north station northwest to the Yangtze River.

Major operations in the Shanghai sector can be expected shortly, a Japanese army spokesman said, now that Gen Iwane Matsui has taken over the high command in the area. He indicated that the long-heralded big push to drive the Chinese into the interior might be in the offing. The Japanese strength at Shanghai has been variously estimated at from 60,000 to 120,000 men.

Expert Advice Telling.

The Japanese spokesman said the Chinese have 29 divisions of 300,000 men in the Shanghai and Soochow areas with 13 divisions in the immediate Shanghai area.

At least one German field officer, acting as technical adviser to the Chinese commander is attached to each division in the field, while other German experts are attached to the various military organizations in Nanking.

The highly efficient, unofficial general staff of 60 German Great War veterans is headed by China's ranking tactician, General Von Falkenhausen. He is working in close co-operation with General Chen Cheng, chief of the general staff, and General Pai Chung-Shi, general field commander.

Jap Warship Halts British Liner.

HONG KONG, Sept. 16 (CP).—The British liner Rawalpindi reported today it had stopped off Chapel Island, en route from Japan, to answer the signals of a Japanese destroyer blockading the south coast of China.

The destroyer approached from inshore, the Rawalpindi's skipper, Capt. G. M. Draper said, and followed her for 15 minutes flying signals which could not be made out. Capt. Draper said the destroyer was obviously intending to head off his ship and he hated to prevent a shot being fired across his bow.

The destroyer approached within half a mile, he said, and signalled "Whither bound?" After receiving the reply "Hong Kong" the destroyer turned about and the Rawalpindi proceeded.

Two Drown In Car Harbor Bottom.

QUEBEC, Sept. 16.—(C.P.)— Bodies of Ovila Turcotte of Limoilou Ward, Quebec, and an unidentified woman were found in an automobile raised today from the bottom of Louise Basin, where it plunged just after midnight.

Edouard Laverdiere, a railroad brakeman, was the only witness as the car plunged over the south wall of the outer basin on Quebec's harbor front. In more than 30 feet of water and partly covered with mud, the machine was discovered by Alphonse Roy, harbor commission diver who searched more than two hours.

Turcotte's body was crumpled beneath the steering wheel on the mud-covered front seat. The woman's body was also on the front seat.

Chinese Aces Sink Jap Cruiser.

HONG KONG, Sept. 16—(AP). — Claim a Japanese cruiser had been sunk by Chinese airbombs off the south China coast was made to-day in Chinese reports from Canton—unconfirmed from other sources—of two successful air attacks on Japanese naval units.

Three Chinese bombers and two pursuit planes, the reports said, attacked a Japanese cruiser, three destroyers and a torpedo boat off the port of Swatow.

"Three large bombs struck the cruiser, which sank," an unconfirmed Canton dispatch asserted.

A similar raid out to flight a group of Japanese destroyers along the coast between Swatow and Hong Kong, the Chinese said.

Chinese at Canton asserted the Japanese have lost one cruiser, two destroyers and seven planes in South China while "there were no Chinese losses."

How Denton Massey Dealt With Heckler.

Lindsay, Sept. 16.

FREQUENT interruptions of Denton Massey's speech at a Conservative rally came last night from Walter Winterbottom, Liberal party chairman in Mariposa township. But Mr. Massey, Toronto M.P., ended the heckling in novel manner.

Advised Mr. Winterbottom was adept at singing the old music hall ditty, "The Seaweed." Mr. Massey brought Mr. Winterbottom to the platform and induced him to sing his favorite, with piano accompaniment. The song concluded, Mr. Winterbottom took a seat on the platform while Mr. Massey continued his speech.

Ten Irish Lads Perish As Hut Burns In Night

2 Men, 14 Women Flee By Window Separate Section

A.E.F. To Parade On Fifth Avenue

New York, Sept. 16.

NINETEEN years after the Armistice, the boys of the American Expeditionary Force will march up Fifth Avenue again next Tuesday in the American Legion's National Convention parade.

Wide, straight, staid old Fifth, stretching from Washington square to 141st Street, became a triumphant avenue at the war's end. Next week, for the first time since their home-coming the heroes of 1918 will tramp the same route again. The crowds will be as thick—or thicker. The parade will be as long—or longer.

Victims, Scottish Potato Field Workers Trapped By Locked Door

KIRKANTILLOCH, Dumbartonshire, Scotland, Sept. 16.— (CP) Cable).—Ten youths brought from Ireland to earn a few shillings during the potato-picking season were burned to death to-day when fire destroyed the "bothy"—a rude hut for accommodating laborers— in which they were sleeping.

Two men and 14 women of a party from Achill Sound on the west coast of Ireland, sleeping in the same building, escaped from one section by smashing windows.

It was one of the worst fire disasters in the British Isles in many years. Not since the cinema fire at Paisley in December, 1929, when 70 lost their lives, has the toll reached 10, although in January, 1936, the wife and eight children of a Lancashire miner were burned to death in their blazing cottage at Tyldesley.

Oldest Only 23.

The dead:

John, Thomas and Michael Mangin, brothers; Thomas and Patrick Kilbane, brothers; Guy and Martin M'Laughlin, brothers; Owen Kilbane (no relation to Kilbane brothers; Thomas Cattigan and Patrick McNeill. The oldest was 23. Their average age was 16.

Cause of the blaze was not ascertained. The fire spread rapidly and quickly enveloped the hut in flames. The alarm was raised by Neil McCaffer, living nearby, whose story follows:

"I was awakened by loud shouting. I thought it was a midnight celebration of some kind, but my wife went to the window and cried out there was fire. Seeing the dense smoke from the hut, I picked up an axe and dashed.

"When I reached the hut I saw women at the windows, desperately trying to crash the glass with clenched fists, screaming to their sisters in the other section, which by this time was gripped in flames and dense smoke, from which were heard groans and yells.

Helped Women Out

"I broke the glass in the windows of the women's section and helped out five or six women who had collapsed. The remainder made their own way. Then I attempted the men's section, but the communicating door was locked and I was unable to smash it with my axe."

When the flames subsided firemen and police entered, searching for bodies amid an indescribable mass of debris.

A second eye-witness paid tribute to the work of firemen and rescuers, but said he was certain rescue of the trapped men was impossible in the face of the heat and locked doors.

The women who escaped were housed in the church hall of the village and put in the care of Salvation Army workers.

Village in Mourning

ACHILL SOUND, County Mayo, Sept. 16—(CP Cable).—This desolate village of crofters on the west coast of Ireland was plunged into sorrow to-day when a telegram was received telling of the deaths of ten village youth in a fire at Kirkintilloch, Scotland.

The parents of the dead youths and boys are all crofters, whose sons spend from June to November in Scotland seeking to add to the scanty incomes of their parents by digging potatoes.

The crofters—people who rent small parcels of land—obtain a precarious living from the soil. Many of the older men also leave Ireland during the summer to do farm work in England.

Forty concerts devoted to music of the various peoples of Russia will be given in Moscow.

LABOR CONGRESS VETOES FEATURES OF WAGNER ACT

OTTAWA, Sept. 16 (CP). — The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada today killed a move to include in its draft Legislative bill, "the right of employees to organize," clauses containing features of the Wagner Labor Disputes Act of the United States.

The resolution, sponsored by the Winnipeg Trades and Labor Council, was debated early in the week and referred to committee for redrafting after objection developed to mention of the Wagner Act. The vote came today after President P. M. Draper said he felt it would be difficult to obtain passage through Provincial Legislatures of the Wagner Act features.

The redraft was made to eliminate a feature of the Wagner Act which provides for establishment, of a national labor relations board to conduct elections in various industries to determine the unions to which workers wished to belong.

Features To Be Pressed.

As adopted the resolution provides that all Provincial federations of labor and Provincial executives be instructed to use their best efforts to have the "right to organize" bill strengthened to include these features:

That employers shall be compelled by law to conduct collective bargaining with their employees; that company unions be forbidden by law; that a method be established to determine the exclusive bargaining union in cases of dispute between two or more unions.

The original bill drafted last year and presented to all legislatures except that of Prince Edward Island was adopted by Alberta and Nova Scotia Legislatures and its principle approved by the Government of Manitoba.

President P. M. Draper told the convention that last year he saw Premier Duplessis of Quebec who said: "I wrote the Ontario Government. The Attorney-General replied it was good criminal legislation and up to the Federal Government."

Canadian labor in dealing with Provincial governments, the president said, is "in a very different position from labor in the United States dealing with the Roosevelt government," which he described as "very favorable to labor."

Support Lacking.

He added: "I regret to say on the floor of this convention that I did not get the support of the Labor organizations I should have got to put this bill (the right to organize) through in Ontario and Quebec."

Find New Kind Of Lung Disease Attacks Only Farmers

Caused By Breathing Mould From Hay Or Grain—Mistaken For T.B. Or Asthma

CHICAGO, Sept. 16 (AP) — A new kind of lung disease resembling tuberculosis, which attacks only farmers, was reported today to the international congress of radiology.

Dr. Richard Fawcitt of Ulverston, England, said the ailment, caused by breathing mold from hay or grain into the lungs, is similar to silicosis in the lungs of miners produced by breathing fine dust.

Apparently, he added, many farmers in Canada, the United States and other countries of the world have the disease but it has heretofore been diagnosed as tuberculosis or asthma. It is definitely an occupational disease which appears in epidemics whenever mouldy hay or grain carrying the fungi of mold is handled.

Signs of the disease, which he urged all physicians in rural areas to look for, are difficult or labored breathing, progressive inability to do any work, coughing, slight fever, and evidence of tubercular signs even though no sign of the tuberculosis germ can be found.

Treatment of it is comparatively simple, he added, consisting of administration of potassium iodine and vaccines.

Crew Asks Bonus To Run War Zone

PORT ALBERNI, B.C., Sept. 16.—(CP)—British Columbia police today kept watch on the situation created by refusal of crew of British steamship Dalcroy to work the vessel in the Sino-Japanese war zone unless a bonus of $75 is paid each of the 35 British and Malayan seamen.

The Dalcroy, under charter to the Ocean Shipping Company, is loaded with logs for Dairen, Manchoukuo. The men first demanded bonuses at New Westminster, B.C., last week, but agreed to carry on as far as this port on Vancouver Island's coast pending instruction to the captain from Campbell Brothers, the owners, in Newcastle, England.

The men refused to work after arrival here Sunday, claiming the voyage will take them through the Sino-Japanese zone of conflict. Three provincial policemen boarded the ship yesterday to stand by as Captain O. Russell read the "log book" explaining the gravity of the action.

Foreign visitors in Antwerp, Belgium this year numbered many more than in 1936.

Hitler's Double Waits With Party Leaders At Festival

At first glance one would think that the man on the RIGHT of this picture was none other than Chancellor Adolf Hitler but in reality he is Ritter von Epp, who bears a striking resemblance to the 'Fuehrer.' He is seen at the Nuremberg congress with arty leaders Dr. Goebbels and General Herman Goering (LEFT), as they wait outside the Luitpolo Hall, for the arrival of Hitler to open the congress.

Ontario Out to Conquer Dread Tuberculosis

$768,000 Spent Since 1934 Dr. Faulkner Announces Opening New Sanatorium

CORNWALL, Ont., Sept. 16 (CP). —The Ontario government "is most concerned in defeating tuberculosis," Hon. J. A. Faulkner, provincial Minister of Health, said yesterday in an address opening the St. Lawrence Tuberculosis sanatorium, five miles east of here.

Ontario had spent $768,000 since 1934 in aiding tuberculosis institutions, and institutions now under construction would provide 360 additional beds for patients by next summer. "We are interested in seeing that every person afflicted with the disease is admitted to sanatoria where he can receive treatment which may, in time, fit him to return to society," Dr. Faulkner said.

The 108-bed institution which the health minister opened here was built and will be operated by the United counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry. It cost approximately $270,000 of which the Ontario government and the counties each contributed $135,000.

Dr. Faulkner told of tuberculosis work being done by travelling clinics at Ottawa, Belleville, Toronto, North Bay, and said two more were being established at Timmins and Fort William. It was expected 10,000 to 12,000 persons would be examined by these clinics in a year.

M.O.H. PLACES BAN POLITICAL RALLY

Because of the prevalence of infantile paralysis the medical officer of health for Hastings has placed a ban on a Liberal meeting that was to have been held in that village on Wednesday next in the joint interests of Harold N. Carr, candidate in Northumberland constituency and Alex L. Elliott, candidate in Peterborough constituency.

Posters advertising the meeting had been issued by Mr. Carr containing announcement that W. A. Fraser, M.P., was to speak in addition to the two candidates, while Mr. Elliott had his "copy" in the hands of the printers with a view of issuing posters advertising the meeting almost immediately.

This morning, Mr. Elliott stated he received a communication from James Cox, secretary of the Central Ontario Liberal Association announcing that on the order of the medical officer of health for that municipality the meeting has been cancelled owing to the prevalence of infantile paralysis.

Fighting Mayor Wins Four Round Bout

Bremerton, Wash., Sept. 16.

MAYOR JESSE "Knockout" KNABB, huffed and puffed four rounds to a decision last night over an opponent billed as the "Masked Marvel of Alaska."

The mayor originally had challenged his personal and political enemy, prosecutor Ralph E. Pures, 27, to the four-rounder. The prosecutor ignored the challenge.

Knabb, 55, wore a gaudy bathrobe bearing the words "The Fighting Mayor." His weight was announced as 150 pounds.

Then he wheezed and sparred the four rounds with the "Marvel," who contented himself with fending away most of "Hizzoner's" blows.

ORANGE MANIFESTO CALLS ON COHORTS TO FIGHT HEPBURN

TORONTO, Sept. 16 (CP).—A manifesto issued today by the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario West called upon Orangemen to vote against Premier Hepburn's Liberal government candidates in the October 6 election.

The document, signed by W. J. Miller, Grand Master, and C. M. Carrie, chairman of the legislation committee said:

"A vote for Premier Hepburn and those members of his government who supported the iniquitous Separate school legislation (Bill 138) is a vote for the Separate Schools. Beware a revision of the entire tax system that will place school taxes in one fund to be pilfered for the benefit of Roman Catholic schools."

Only reference to the Conservative party was this: "The Conservative convention was pledged to the support of the Public Schools. That gathering rang with a clarion note for the protection of our school system."

ELLIS TO RUN

OTTAWA, Sept. 16.——(CP). — Arthur Ellis of Ottawa announced yesterday he would run as "straight" Conservative" in Ottawa South in the October 6 Ontario election. Although Hon. Earl Rowe, Provincial Conservative leader announced Controller George H. Dunbar would be the official candidate in the riding, Ellis said he would remain in the field.

MOOSE JAW FACED BY WATER FAMINE DROUGHT CLIMAX

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Sept. 16. — (CP).—Water famine of indefinite duration today faced Moose Jaw residents as City Council sought sources to increase the failing supply.

With requirements approximately 1,000,000 gallons daily, four sources provide only 850,000 gallons compared with capacity supply of 1,200,000. Nevertheless, council has rejected proposals for rationing and decided to pump the available supply for as long periods as possible.

Drought is responsible and only copious rains can relieve the situation unless further water sources are found. City Engineer Hugh C. Ritchie estimated a four-inch rain spread over a week would be required to restore normal supply.

Downtown section of the city of some 20,000 persons has not suffered from water shortage to any extent, for it lies in a valley, but in the residential sections, on both north and south slopes, where more pumping pressure is needed, the water supple has been cut off frequently.

Sextuplets All Well Holstein Record

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 16 (AP)—A Holstein cow at Pieter Poth's Dairy is the mother of an entire herd of calves.

She gave birth to sextuplets nine days ago and all were reported physically perfect today. Another Holstein and a Guernsey are helping out with the feeding problem.

Dr. H. O. Henderson of Morgantown, head of the department of dairy husbandry at West Virginia University, said he believed the multiple birth a record for the United States.

3,000 Specialists In Huddle On Youth Whose Bones Becoming Stone.

Chicago, Sept. 16.

MOST extensive consultation ever held in the world today pondered the case of a young Cleveland, O., man whose bones, joints and backbone are gradually changing to a stone-like hardness with complete rigidity setting in.

Dr. Eugene Freedman of Cleveland presented the case to the International Congress of Radiology as one unparalleled in medical history and asked the 1,000 x-ray and radium specialists attending the congress to enter into consultation and advise him what to do.

In spite of every examination which could be made during the past six years the real cause of his trouble cannot be diagnosed, Dr. Freedman said. For the past year his bones and joints have become progressively more rock-like. The case was presented, he added, "in the hope that someone may help to elucidate the true nature of the disease."

Honey Crop Slumps With Clover Scarce

Guelph, Sept. 16.

HONEY crop this year is one of the lowest in the past decade, according to Dr. E. J. Dyce, head of the Agriculture Department at the Ontario Agricultural College here. The extraordinary shortage of honey is due to the shortage of clover last year and to the wet weather early this year, he said. There has been no clover available.

SUB PATROL DOOR OPEN TO ITALIANS NEXT MOVE THEIRS

LONDON, Sept. 16.—(CP Cable.) —The piracy patrol of the Mediterranean goes ahead without Italy. If Premier Mussolini wishes to join in, the door is open. But the next step lies with Rome.

That briefly sums up the British attitude towards Italian participation. In her reply to the invitation to join the Nyon scheme, it is pointed out, Italy does not make any formal request for parity. She observes she is not granted parity, but makes no proposals.

If Italy has proposals to make, it is observed, she can be assured they will receive most careful consideration. Italian participation will be welcomed.

But ridding the middle sea of submarine pirates is too urgent to brook delay. The Nyon scheme must go ahead.

Working in closest collaboration since the Great War, the British and French fleets are operating in all Mediterranean waters except the seas around Italy.

No doubt it is felt in authoritative circles that the pirate menace is ended. If the seaways are again made safe for peaceful traffic, although no pirate submarine is actually caught, the purpose of the Nyon agreement will have been accomplished.

Italy Fails In Own Pit.

"By her policy in relation to the Spanish civil war," says Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard, "Italy digged a pit."

"Now she has fallen into it. For consider her position to-day. Great Britain and France have replied to Italian policy by entering into partnership. By the Nyon agreement to prevent piracy they are working together in closest concert. They control the Mediterranean.

"Italy has suffered a humiliating diplomatic reverse. She has been compelled to ask Great Britain and France to admit her to the anti-piracy patron. She realized that the other two acting in combination would deprive her of any possibility of profit from her Spanish adventure.

"Whether Italy is admitted to the patrol or not, the understanding between France and Great Britain has now taken such concrete shape that Italy's plan to establish herself in the Balearics is very likely doomed in any case."

TODAY'S TRAGEDY

WESTFIELD, N. Y., Sept. 16. — (AP).—Methodist Episcopal speakers at the Church Erie Conference today described "Japanese aggression" as a "tragedy of modern life."

Speaking of the Japanese, Dr. Ralph Diffendorfer of New York City, chairman of the Board of Foreign Missions, said they "intend to conquer China." He called the situation in the Far East "a crisis in Asiatic History" and predicted if Nippon conquers China "Western influence will wane."

Spanish Government Protests Exclusion Of Shipping From Collective Protection

GENEVA, Sept. 16.—(AP).— The League of Nations Council put China's appeal against Japanese aggression in the hands of a revived Advisory committee to-day and asked the United States to take part in its deliberations.

Quick dispatch of invitations to Washington and 22 other capitals made it certain that the United States must soon decide is she will cooperate with the committee, on which her representative formerly served.

By its action the League also pushed into the background any question of sanctions against Japan—at least for a time. With China's conditional approval, the Council shelved her appeal under Article XVII of the covenant—the sanctions section.

Protest By Spain.

A short time later the council in public session took up Government Spain's appeal against Italy, and Dr. Juan Negrin, Spanish Premier and League delegate, launced into a vigorous protest against the fact that the Nyon Accord excluded Spanish shipping from the system of collective protection.

The Spanish Government had charged its vessels were sunk "by Italy."

Negrin said Spanish vessels can be sunk by submarines or surface vessels by any method without infringing the accord of Nyon.

"This is all the more serious," the Valencia Premier said, "because the rebels (Spanish Insurgents) have no submarines. Submarine attacks to which Spanish vessels may fall victims can therefore be made only by submarines of so-called "unknown" nationality.

Negrin therefore urged that the provisions of the Nyon accord excluding Spanish shipping from protection be eliminated.

He indicated he would bring Spain's complaint before the league assembly.

Negrin referred to the "criminal bombardment" of Almeria, Government port of the Southern Spanish coast, by German warships last May 31, and said that Spanish airplanes had been obliged to reply to an attack first made on them by the German warship Deutschland in the Balearics May 29.

Then he continued:

"The anonymous state whose warships are trying by means of constant acts of aggression to create a state of terror in the Mediterranean is Italy.

"The evidence XX of the Italian Acts becomes more categoric and irrefutable when one considers that such behavior represents only one of many forms of Italian intervention in support of the military rebellion in Spain — an intervention of naval character the purpose of which is to prevent the republic from securing supplies by sea."

ROBERT W. WILSON DIES AT HIS HOME

Seventeen years a member of the Peterborough Fire Department before taking a post as caretaker of the Prince of Wales school, Robert William Wilson died at his home, 279 Thomas street, yesterday. He was 67 years of age and had been ill three weeks.

Born in North Monaghan, son of the late Thomas Wilson and Sarah Ferguson, he spent the past 32 years in this city. On his retirement from the Fire Department, he held the rank of lieutenant and was made a life honorary member. He served at the Prince of Wales school for the past nine years.

Sen. Logan Breaks Down, Sobs Ottawa Hatfield Trial.

Persecuted 6 Years He Protests When Pressed To Recall Late Wife's Evidence

OTTAWA, Sept. 16.—(CP)— The Hatfield trial was interrupted today by a dramatic interlude. Sobbing as he sat in a chair facing the jury, Senator Hance J. Logan was unable to proceed with cross-examination by Colonel Warwick Beament. Tears coursing down his cheeks, the aged and enfeebled Senator complained that for six years he was persecuted on account of his connection with the Hatfield case.

The climax came, however, when defence counsel strove to recall to him evidence presented on a former occasion by the late Mrs. Logan. The Senator broke down, and Justice Keiller Mackay adjourned the proceedings to enable the Nova Scotia Senator to recover his composure.

Refusal Is Feared Eve Of Mussolini's Visit To Germany

Definite Nyon Stand Still Undecided As Yet—See Pressure In Spain

LONDON, Sept. 16 (C.P.-Havas).—Conflicting reports circulated today concerning the action to be taken on Italy's demand for full parity with Great Britain and France as a condition for joining the nine Nyon Powers in patrolling the Mediterranean.

Usually well-informed British diplomatic circles insisted Italy would soon be given a favorable answer.

On the other hand, a Reuters News Agency despatch from Geneva said strong opposition had developed to the Italian demand for a change in the patrol plan which would give the Italian navy a more important region than the Tyrrhenian Sea.

"Britain to Grant Italy's Demands," The Daily Mail proclaimed in a streamer headline.

"Italy Refused Large Share in Mediterranean Piracy Patrol," The News-Chronicle said in presenting an opposing version of probable developments.

Other Differences.

Paragraph III. of Article IV. of the Nyon accord provides for possible modification of the patrol plan, but it was said at Geneva that the Nyon Powers, all members of the London Committee, would be unlikely to renounce their own decisions.

London diplomatic sources, however, told Havas Italy would be permitted to join the patrol with the same number of destroyers assigned to it as France.

These quarters said the decision to grant parity to Italy has been reached after careful consideration of two opposing arguments.

A refusal to allow Italy to join the patrol on her own terms, one thesis ran, might lead to further strengthening of the Rome-Berlin axis just prior to Premier Mussolini's visit to Chancellor Hitler.

It was argued on the other hand a united Anglo-French stand against the Italian demand might lead Mussolini to reflect before his conversations with Hitler, which will possibly touch on future Fascist action in Spain.

Hope of gaining her point directly has led Italy to abandon plans for insisting on discussion of the Nyon agreement at the next session of the Spanish Non-intervention Committee, it was said here.

New Conference Shortly

Italian observers in London said Anglo-Italian negotiations for a general understanding based on the "gentlemen's agreement" of last January would begin before the end of this month. Confirmation from British sources was lacking.

The Earl of Perth, British Ambassador to Rome, will return to his post from vacation a few days before September 29, when Mussolini is due back after his visit to Germany.

An article by Philip Jordon in The News-Chronicle, less definite than the headline used over it, said that "doubtless" the Italian demand would not be acted upon favorably.

"Rumors that Mussolini," it added, "is prepared at least to double the forces he has already put at the disposal of General Franco must now be considered a serious possibility."

In this event, Jordan said, "France would immediately open the Franco-Catalan frontier."

CUTTERS HUNTING ATLANTIC COAST FOR ENDEAVOUR I.

BOSTON, Sept. 16 (A.P.). — Two crack coastguard cutters, the Cayuga and Chelan, to-day sped to a spot 200 miles east of Nantucket in search of Endeavour I, British racing yacht which parted from her convoy's towline in a gale on Monday night. The yacht was en route to England with a crew of 19.

Endeavour's plight was made known yesterday when the coastguard was notified by T. O. M. Sopwith's power yacht Philante, which is towing Endeavour I., defeated America's Cup challenger, home to England.

The Cayuga and Chelan left when Viva, convoy for Endeavour I., limped into Newport, R.I., last night and reported the loss.

Captain Wallace Grist, master of the Viva, told the coastguard the towline parted during a gale of "more than 100 miles an hour."

Aged London Man Killed By Car

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 16 (CP).—Col. William H. Moore, 81, formerly an official of the United States good roads congress, was struck and killed by an automobile near here last night. Gordon Dill, 20, alleged driver of the car, was charged with reckless driving and will appear in court today.

Col. Moore had stepped from the curb to cross the road in front of his home when struck.

A native of Sheffied, Ont., and resident of Lambeth in his youth, Col. Moore spent more than 40 years in the United States. He devoted many years to development of safety features on highways.

RANK PATRONAGE GOVERNING NORTH IS ROWE'S CHARGE

SUDBURY, Ont., Sept. 16 (CP)—Patronage in its most "vicious" form held sway in Northern Ontario under the present Liberal government, Hon. Earl Rowe told northern audiences yesterday when he delivered four addresses in his election campaign tour. He spoke at Sudbury, Espanola, Thessalon and Blind River.

Mr. Rowe who journeys to North Bay, New Liskeard and Kirkland Lake today, charged "the most vicious form of patronage that has been put in force anywhere in Canada has been put in force in Ontario." He declared in most districts "you have got to show your ticket that you belong to a Liberal ward association before you can get a pick and shovel job on the roads."

He coupled his patronage charges at Espanola with an attack on the government's road building program which, he charged, was sped up after announcement of the Oct. 6 Ontario elections. He asked if Premier Mitchell Hepburn proposed "to starve men for three years and give them three weeks work before an election."

No Gas Tax Distribution

If his party was elected, Mr. Rowe promised, a constructive road-building program would be inaugurated. Before the Blind River meeting he maintained the highway development of the north was "ruthlessly neglected." The premier failed to keep his pre-election promise to distribute gasoline tax and motor-license revenues for highway building.

During the Oshawa General Motors strike the premier played politics, Mr. Rowe said at Sudbury. The government head failed to even visit Oshawa during the strike.

"If Premier Hepburn had not played politics and left it for the men to settle their own disputes and, to put it roughly, minded his own business as premier, I have reason to believe the strike should have been settled; could have been settled and would have been settled

Transport Probe Gets Under Way

TORONTO, Sept. 16— (CP). — Headed by Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier of the Ontario Supreme Court, the Royal Commission appointed to investigate motor vehicle and transport problems in the province opened its sessions here to-day. Mr. Justice Chevrier is assisted by Professor C. R. Young and E. R. Sayles who have made a study of the situation.

The commissioners will report to the government on all matters pertaining to or affecting the business of transporting freight and passengers by motor vehicles. This will include tolls and rates for freight and passenger service and methods used in fixing these rates and tolls.

Inquiry will be made into wages and hours of labor and comparison will be made with the rail, water and air systems. The commission also will study taxes, licenses and other charges on the motor transport industry.

U.S. Capitol Damaged By Fire

Heavy smoke clouds pour from the Portico, under the United States capitol stairs at Washington, as two tons of cork, stored for future use in air conditioning plans, were set a fire. It took four fire-fighting companies a full hour to subdue the blaze, which officials claim might have been caused by a short circuit in the electrical wiring. Three of the capitol's arches were damaged and the loss estimated at $20,000.

ITALIANS WAITING NEXT PATROL MOVE

ROME, Sept. 16 (AP)—Italy waited in silence today for Great Britain and France to make the first move to win Italian collaboration in the Mediterranean anti-piracy patrol.

The Italian attitude as disclosed by various reliable sources was that Premier Mussolini had stated his minimum demands and was waiting to see if the other fellow wished to discuss them.

The Fascist government, in a note to France and Great Britain, sponsors of the Nyon conference, protested Tuesday against the minor assignment under the Nyon accord which would restrict Italy's part in the anti-piracy campaign to policing only the Tyrrhenian Sea off her western coast.

A share in the patrol work equal to that of France and Great Britain was demanded.

The tendency of the Italian press was to blame the French for the Nyon pact and the proposed obscure role for Italy. According to this version, Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos of France "pushed" Great Britain into the pact in order "to flaunt the Franco-British front."

That the Nyon accord still would go before the 27-nation Spanish non-intervention committee in London—where Italy and Germany said piracy should be dealt with when they refused invitations to Nyon—was predicted by the Vatican organ Osservatore Romano in a leading article.

Osservatore said "It will be in that committee, to which Italy proposed all questions of Mediterranean vigilance be referred, that the question of patrol parity outlined in the Italian note must be raised."

$3,500,000 SOUGHT J. R. BOOTH ESTATE HEPBURN REVEALS

PORT HOPE, Ont., Sept. 16. — (CP).—Pursuing more millions in unpaid succession duties the Ontario Government is now pressing a claim for $3,500,000 against the estate of the late John R. Booth, of Ottawa.

Premier Hepburn announced here last night the government had appointed Albert J. Gordon, K.C., of Windsor, to conduct a probe of the Booth estate under the provisions of the Succession Duties Act.

Mr. Booth died in 1925. A pioneer lumberman of the Ottawa Valley, he built up a veritable empire of timber lands, railways and lumber mills in his long lifetime.

His estate, Mr. Hepburn said, was probated originally at some $25,000,000 and was one of the largest ever handled by the Succession Duties office. Payment of succession duties was settled after some discussions and the last payment was made in 1927.

$7,000,000 From Three?

The Booth estate was one of five large Ottawa estates which have been under the review of 12 officials in the Treasury Department for the past four months, Mr. Hepburn said. It is the first to reach the stage of a public inquiry. The officials had found certain gifts which should have been taxable had not been taxed and certain securities had been undervalued.

Hence the claim for $3,500,000. Lumping the Booth estate with two others already under public scrutiny, the Byrnes and Laidlaw estates, Mr. Hepburn said the government expected to collect $7,000,000 from the three.

It was not too much to expect, he

NASCOPIE HEADS OUT FROM ARCTIC

ABOARD S.S. NASCOPIE, Davis Strait, Sept. 16 (C.P.-By Wireless).—The Federal Government's Eastern Arctic Patrol was steaming south to-day, just inside the Arctic Circle on Davis Strait, while thousands of waterfowl streaked south through the skies, indicating approach of winter.

The Hudson's Bay Company's ship Nascopie, convoying the patrol, has spent twenty-two days within the Arctic Circle, and has travelled 2,200 miles. The patrol is due in Halifax on September 27, several stops being made in the meantime along the east shore of Baffin Island.

The Nascopie reached Pond Inlet on Bylot Island at the northern tip of Baffin Island last Saturday. Passengers were given the opportunity of seeing the coal mines. Royal Canadian Mounted Police post, Anglican and Roman Catholic missions, and the trading post.

Proceeding south, the snow-covered mountains that fringe the shoreline of Baffin Island were brilliant in bright sunshine. Many icebergs were passed. At Clyde River, Baffin Island, the scow was mostly go and Hudson's Bay Company agents reported the natives well stocked with seal ,caribou and fish.

Yesterday the day was spent at Dowekies, and the next call will be Pangnirtung on Cumberland Sound.

Japanese And Chinese Bishops Met As Brothers At Synod

Archdeacon Simpson Reviews Work Of Recent Anglican General Synod

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Sept. 16.—"It was wonderful to see these two men, while the war continues in Shanghai, meet together as brothers, each interested in the other's aims and field, and each apureciative of the other's work; only the religion of our Lord Jesus Christ could make it possible," was a statement made by Venerable Archdeacon William Simpson, B.A., speaking during his sermon hour on Sunday evening in St. Thomas' church of the Bishops heading the Anglican missions in China and Japan, as he gave some interesting personal impressions of the recent General Synod at Halifax.

The comfort in which the delegates travelled to the city by the sea, owing to the air conditioning of modern trains, during the sweltering heat of August, was mentioned by the speaker, who also spoke of the special coach in which the W. A. delegates journeyed and of the fact that lay and clerical delegates gathered for evening prayers, in this coach, that the service might be held in unison for one occasion just before the end of the trip was reached.

27 Dioceses Represented

Twenty-seven dioceses were represented at the Synod, which holds its sessions in two Houses, Upper and Lower, the Bishops and Archbishops forming the first, and the clergy and laity the latter. But when questions of common interest and importance were to be discussed, both Houses met in joint session. Seventy-five of the delegates were housed in King's College, and the remainder in the Anglican Girls' Boarding School. While a great dignity and solemnity marked the opening service, with the Primate of all Canada presiding, the rector said he found the evening gathering in St. Paul's Cathedral, the oldest church in Canada, "more homey and appealing; the sermon was preached by the visiting Bishop from Ireland, and as the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the consecration of Bishop Inglis, the first Anglican Bishop in Canada, was being marked, it was fitting that the guest speaker should come from the parish where the pioneer clergyman had been born and brought up."

A visit of a number of the delegates to St. Paul's in the afternoon had given opportunity to see the tablet to the memory of Bishop Inglis, which was unveiled and consecrated at the evening service; it is in the floor and just over where the remains are resting in the crypt below. Other treasures of the cathedral were a solid silver communion service, the gift of King George IV; the pews where royalty sat when attending St. Paul's; carvings and tablets and other things rich in historical value and interest.

Lasted Eleven Days

The Synod sessions lasted for eleven days, and an outstanding gathering was the big mass meeting held in mid-week, the procession to the Forum including three hundred members of the robed choirs of the city leading, the lay delegates following, and then the clergy, while at least six thousand of the Halifax citizens filled the building to overflowing. The Bishop of Leicester, England, was one of the speakers, bringing an informative and inspiring message.

"I think I should tell you that a whole day was spent, in joint session, in discussing the new "Book of Common Praise," on which the committee has spent six years of Preparation, with intensive work during the last three years. It was adopted and that means that about Easter this new book will be available for use. Churches will suit their individual convenience in taking it into use, the condition of their present supply of hymn books having something to do with the purchase of the new publication. One hundred and fifty-seven hymns have been replaced by a equal number of hymns, written within the past thirty years, in the new book of praise."

"The matter of a revision of the Prayer Book also came up for discussion, but the message of the Primate stressing the disturbed condition of the world today, and the inadvisibility of starting any movement that might create any dividing movement within the church itself, voiced the feeling of the majority of the delegates and it was voted down for the present."

Thirty-three Bishops were given the Honorary Degree of Doctor of Divinity at the mid-week mass meeting, a peculiar fact noted being that they represented six nationalities. "All the way through the Synod sessions, one could not help the feeling that one belonged to a big church."

On Sunday practically every Anglican pulpit in Nova Scotia was filled by a visiting clergyman, Rev. Mr. Simpson driving one hundred and fifty miles to the parish of Pictou where he preached in the afternoon, and at River John in the morning. "It was noteworthy that the country passed through is much like old Ontario, and much of it comparable to historic Cavan Parish."

A new vision of the Kingdom and its needs; a new joy in, and consecration to, service, were end met in the gathering togither of the General Synod delegates.

Fears Nazi

Because he feared Nazi agents would track him down, Dr. Heinrich Bruening (ABOVE), chancellor of Germany from 1930 to 1932, requested that unauthorized persons be prevented from attending a lecture he delivered before the Canadian Institute of International Affairs at Toronto. Dr. Bruening escaped from Germany a few days before the great "purge" of 1934. So private was the lecture the newspapermen were not allowed to attend for fear undue publicity would direct the attention of German agents to him.

OLD DUMMER BOY RETURNS TO EAST YEARS IN WEST

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Sept. 16.—Cecil Freeburn, an old Dummer boy who went to Saskatchewan years ago, has returned home with his wife and son. Mrs. Freeburn had never been out of Saskatchewan before, but the drought this year made them feel it would be well to leave for a time anyway.

Mr. Freeburn plans to rent a farm until conditions in the West are better, and brought with him some splendid horses and cattle, also farm machinery.

Last Spring he sowed 130 acres in wheat, which came up and grew well until about nine inches high. Then a wind arose and soon all that could be seen was dust. A team and wagon, a short distance away were invisible. Everything was covered with sand and not a shred of wheat was to be seen, nor were they able to see a green thing for the rest of summer.

Mrs. Freeburn said it seemed so good to see people who had always enough to eat. It is long since they or anyone else in their area have had abundance on their tables.

Before the family left, a large party gathered at their home. A collection was taken, as is the custom, and the amount was $3. The people did not have it. Ordinarily, on such occasions, there are a good many $5 bills.

Collectors Named

J. A. Crowe, president of Warsaw Branch Bible Society, called a meeting of the executive on Tuesday evening. The collectors were appointed, and the collecting will be done in October.

With threshings and silo-fillings in full swing, there are no idle men around Warsaw.

There is one case of scarlet fever isolated in the village. The house is placarded.

FIND COMMON DYE SLOWS UP CANCER

CHICAGO, Sept. 16 (A.P.). — A common dye, Congo red, was proposed to-day as the newest tool of medical science in the fight against cancer.

Two New York physicians, Dr. Isidore Arons and Dr. Boris Sokoloff, told the International Congress of Radiology they had found the dye materially slows down the growth of some types of cancer. And, in some cases, it caused cancer growths to be absorbed in experimental animals and enabled the natural disease-fighting machanisms to control them.

Previously the dye was found useful in controlling hemorrhages due to tuberculosis, pleurisy, cancer and ulcers. It was also used successfully in the treatment of anemia.

Now it has been found, the New York specialists said, that the dye apparently stimulates the activity of some of the blood cells which fight disease and the disease defence mechanisms of the spleen, lymph glands, and bone marrow.

In a series of experiments on mice, they transplanted a form of cancer grown and used experimentally in a number of laboratories. When it was planted under the skin injections of Congo red caused it to reduce 50 per cent. in size. However, when it was transplanted into the skin injections of the dye caused the cancer to be absorbed in 25 per cent. of the animals infected. In the remainder the size of the cancer was reduced 600 per cent.

Going still further Dr. Arons and Dr. Sokoloff re-infected the animals which had absorbed the cancerous growths and found that most of them had developed a complete immunity to them.

A Final Warning

I. A. Humphries K.C. the Chief Election officer for Ontario has issued a final notice to voters in urban district, warning them that no one can vote at the coming provincial election unless his or her name is on the list.

As The Examiner has already pointed out if any elector finds himself without a vote when the time for using his franchise arrives the blame in nearly every case will be on his own shoulders. The election act has made it possible for the voter to protect himself even when an error or omission on the part of an enumerator has left his name off the list. Enumerators being human beings and not magicians there will be mistakes. Names will be left off, a person here or there may have been overlooked, houses have been missed, in fact one enumerator in Peterborough succeeded in missing both sides of a street for three blocks. However there is provided means by which the electors who have been victims of mistakes of this kind may appear before the revising officers and have the thing straightened out. It should be everybody's job in the next day or two to find out whether or not he is on the list and to get there if the enumerator's census has left him off.

Helping A Good Cause

The Kiwanis Karnival in the armouries tonight and Friday night offers an opportunity for Peterborough citizens to have a few hours fun and entertainment and at the same time have the satisfaction of knowing that they are materially helping an organization that is doing much for under-privileged children in this community.

The Peterborough Kiwanis club has a record of achievement in community service that entitles it to public support in a generous degree. Notable of course is the summer camp for undernourished children which Kiwanis operates in association with the Peterborough Health Association and which has been such a potent factor in building up the health of youngsters found to be below par. That is a very fine piece of public service and the manner in which it has been carried out and the results that have been obtained justify the organization appealing with confidence for the support of their fellow citizens in carrying on this enterprise.

Upon the financial patronage accorded this annual Produced-in Peterborough Karnival the Kiwanians depend in a large measure for the funds with which to budget for their community work for the next year. It is essential therefore that they should not be let down upon this occasion for the camp at Jackson Park next summer must go on. It is of too much value to hundreds of underprivileged children, the citizens of tomorrow, to be allowed to fold up.

The Exhibition itself featuring interesting and educational displays of the products of Peterborough industries and with other attractions of importance is well worth a visit to the armouries on its own account and when coupled with that is the knowledge that a most worthy cause is being helped the urge to attend this annual function should prove irresistible.

It's A Big Job

Even although it was made in the course of a campaign speech the announcement of Premier Hepburn that his government proposes to inagurate a systematic and progressive system of replenishing Ontario's lakes and rivers with fish had a pleasant sound. It is a promise that we would like to have repeated from Hon. Earl Rowe just to make sure that no matter upon which party the fortunes of war may smile on October 6 this important business will not to be pigeon-holed.

The re-building of Ontario's supply of game fish is inseparably bound up with the future of the tourist industry. Next to the Dionne quintuplets the greatest attraction that the province offers to the tourist is the chance to land a hard-hitting musky or a fighting black bass and it is perfectly obvious to a good many citizens that unless an adequate program of re-stocking is put into effect it will not be long before that attraction will have vanished into thin air. Already there are stretches of water once noted for their maskinonge fishing where a musky nowadays is about as scarce as the wild pigeon.

The situation demands action and we believe that the first step in dealing with it should be the creation of a fish and game department presided over by a minister whose sole job it would be to give effective leadership to such a government unit. The job linked up if you like with the whole question of tourist promotion, is a full-time job for an energetic and business-like member of the cabinet and well done would be of enormous value to the province.

Frankly It's Puzzling

So far as what may be for brevity's sake called the C. I. O. issue in this election is concerned the average elector may be pardoned if he throws up his hands in despair when it is dragged to the front. There seems to be so much confusion over the question that the man on the street has a reasonable excuse for being bewildered.

When he finds the Telegram which normally would be supporting Mr. Rowe saying that he is wrong on the C. I. O. issue and the Star which should be furnishing a strong ballyhoo for Mr. Hepburn condemning the Premier's attitude on the same issue he is naturally puzzled. And then when he sees that Col. George Drew who was Mr. Rowe's chief lieutenant differs from his leader on the question and knows that David Croll and Arthur Roebuck, former Hepburn cabinet ministers are running as Liberal candidates but opposed to the Premier's C. I. O. stand there is further cause for head scratching. On top of that along comes the Liberal Federal Minister of Labor, Hon. Norman Rogers, to take the platform at Kingston in support of a Hepburn candidate and to use a considerable portion of his time in explaining that his views in regard to the rights of labor in this matter are identical with those voiced by Mr. Rowe.

In short the conscientious elector who reads of all these and other similar developments and tries to boil them down into the right answer must be running close to developing a brainstorm at the present time. There is a popular song of the moment with a title that seems singularly appropriate to the point at issue. It is 'Let's Call the Whole Thing Off."

The System Is Unfair

Meeting at Whitby a short time ago, the Rural Mail Couriers' Association passed what seems to us an important resolution. It read as follows: "Realizing that the Postal Department has no intention of attempting to remedy the present cutthroat system of contract employment that a strong presentation of our case be made to every member of parliament." This of course has been a vexed question for years. Time after time the mail couriers have endeavored to have the system changed and year after year their case has been almost unanimously supported by the newspapers of the country and by a large measure of public opinion and yet no matter what government happened to be in power at Ottawa has flatly refused to depart from the contract method of employing rural mail couriers. The present Postmaster-General has taken the same position as his predecessors. He points out that the work of the carriers is only part-time employment and that therefore the tender system must be retained.

Granted it may be somewhat cheaper than paying the rural mail men a decent salary for doing the work but at the same time the tender method has obvious disadvantages. One obvious one is that there is no guarantee of permanent employment. No carrier can be sure that the next time the contract is let for the particular route he happens to be covering some one will not under-bid him and secure the appointment. The result is that everybody scales down his tender to a point where there is inadequate remuneration for the service rendered and that is not a satisfactory condition. Uncle Sam does much better than that. He pays his rural mail carriers a proper wage and there are many folk who feel that it is time we in this country adopted a similar policy.

Drinking And Driving

Magistrate Gee said something in police court the other day that a good many folk who drive automobiles should note carefully.

Addressing a man who had been found guilty of driving a car while drunk His Worship said "If you choose to take your liquor before driving you must be prepared to take your gaol term after." That is something that many drivers seem to be able to forget. They imbibe before taking the wheel and then when they get into trouble they apparently arrive at the conclusion that an injustice has been done them when they find that the only course the magistrate has is to send them to jail.

We confess that we find it impossible to work up much sympathy for the motorist who tries to mix gasoline and alcohol. He may be a good fellow and a good citizen in every other respect but when he tries to handle a machine as dangerous as the modern high-powered motor car after he has beclouded his judgment and slowed up his reactions with firewater then he ceases to be a good fellow and becomes a menace to the public safety.

The law says he must go to jail for such conduct and it would be difficult to argue that the punishment is too severe for an offence of that nature. Our own opinion is that in addition to a jail sentence he should also be punished by being deprived of the right to drive for a long enough period to convince him that drinking may be all right in its place but that it is all wrong when it serves as preparation for driving an automobile. And if that does not complete his education the period of license suspension should be materially lengthened on a second offense and made permanent if there should be a third case.

We Don't Get Excited

We have heard several people comment upon the fact that there was little heckling at the huge meeting addressed by Premier Hepburn here the other night. We would have been surprised if there had been very much. The simple truth is that this is not a community in which the fine art of interrupting speakers with more or less pertinent questions has been successfully cultivated. Occasionally an individual who has been helping to build up provincial revenues and slaking his thirst at the same time may drop into a meeting and contribute a few rambling remarks in a stage whisper but that is the sum total of interruptions as a usual rule.

Sometimes we are inclined to believe that our political meetings would be more interesting if we did have a little more heckling "as they have it in England." The British electors do a lot of that kind of thing and they do it well and incidentally the British politician makes a good job of handling the questions that are flashed at him from his audience. Lady Astor is a notable example and her quick replies and caustic wit have become famous.

Here in Peterborough we take our elections rather tamely. There is not only no heckling but there are no joint meetings and the practice of the rival candidates getting together in a heated debate following the official nomination proceedings is never followed.

We do manage to turn out in reasonably large numbers on election day to mark our ballots but as a whole we refuse to get excited over the thing in advance. That may be the best attitude but somehow we feel that in taking it we are depriving ourselves of a lot of the fun and excitement that seem to get into election campaigns in other centres.

NOTE AND COMMENT

There is one thing about being a political candidate. You see a lot of the country and meet a lot of people.

A scientist says that no other age had such torturing noises as exist at present. Evidently he never heard the third book pupils writing on slates in the old days.

Reports from China say that a bridge party went right on during the bombing of a Shanghai hotel. You cannot expect war to interfere with serious business.

Dramatized political broadcasts are prohibited by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporations. That is an order that can be traced back to the last Federal election.

Somebody has stolen a 300-pound gate connecting the Halifax City Hall and the police garage. Now the department is keeping a close watch on the police station itself.

Beauty contest winner at Atlantic City declined to be photographed in bathing suits and getting in and out of bath tubs. That is an item that belongs in the man-bites-dog category.

We notice an item on a sport page that says the United States Olympic committee is greatly worried about hockey amateurism. Why be concerned about that when nobody else is?

New regulations have been announced by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. We are sorry however to note that no age limit has been set for jokes over the air.

Blairmore Alta has decided to change the name of Tim Buck Boulevard back to its original name of Victoria Avenue, and the news will probably make the Communist leaders face Red.

Independent candidate in Huron-Bruce is running on the platform that every man should have a decent wage and the general opinion will be that he has got something there.

The Conservative candidate in Dufferin-Simcoe was erroneously announced as a Liberal standard-bearer. Wars have been declared for less weighty reasons than that.

Peterborough has already had a chance to hear the leaders of the two old parties and from now on succeeding speakers will be working under a handicap. That is the worst of firing off the big guns early in the campaign.

Lindsay is having the Peterborough-Oshawa lacrosse game, Premier Hepburn, Denton Massey and the fall fair all in one week. One thing is certain, no matter how the politicians handle figures they will look like amateurs alongside the fellow who estimates the attendance at the Lindsay exhibition.

ON A RAINY NIGHT

Now distant voices whisper,
Forgotten dreams awake,
And memory is weeping
As if her heart would break,
For mirth and jest and violins,
That were a song for me
In days when love and laughter
Were one sweet symphony.

But night must cease her weeping
And memory must fade,
And bear with them these longings,
These thoughts that fret and jade.
And with the wild storm's passing
And drying of her tears,
A taper in the heavens,
One lustrous star appears!

TREMENDOUS losses have been suffered in Shanghai as a result of the Japanese attack. Foreign investments in China which amounted to about $750,000,000 in 1902 are estimated to have reached the huge total of $4,000,000,000 of which the major portion is British. However reports from London say that business men in Great Britain are not at all distressed. Some of them already announce having gained useful orders which Japan, now being organized on a war basis cannot carry out. Arms dealers are also having a grand time.

It is little realized that since the "war-to-end-war" closed on November 11, 1918, there have been seventeen wars including outbreaks in Russia (1919), Morocco, (1919), Arabia (1919), Armenia (1920), China (1920), Greece (1921), Paraguay (1925), Abyssinia (1935) and Spain.

A London story says that questions are being asked about the Queen Mary, pride of British transatlantic liners. Every trip across the Atlantic sees her packed, but she has not yet wrested the blue ribband from the French-built Normandie and the French boat is accordingly becoming more and more popular. Sheer speed across the Atlantic may not be the aim of shipbuilders but experience proves that it is the dominating factor with many travellers and British seamen are hoping the 552 now lying half-finished in John Brown's Clydebank shipyard will be able to put up better speed performances than her sister ship.

Berliners were recently persuadad to forget all about the bread shortage by celebrations of the 700th birthday of their city. The festivities included a magificently staged exhibition titled Gebt mir vier Jahre Zeit ("Give me four years"). These were the words spoken by Adof Hitler in March, 1933, when he brought the Weimar constitution to an end and set up his own Reichstag which now meets for about five minutes once or twice a year to sing Nazi songs and give the party salute.

How Can They Fight

THE MANCHESTER Guardian quotes a Heidelberg industrialist as saying that the present industrial chaos in the Third Reich is such that "it is likely to become dangerous enough for our generals. Can they fight, can they hold out, even for a short time" he asked "with an industry which is sick, mortally sick? The whole of the Reich has become one vast subsidy-maintained enterprise whose bills will never be met—it is appalling. For four years Germany has been squandering ceaselessly her substance, mentally, morally and materially and nobody can say what will be the end of it."

Haile Selassie, Emperor of Abyssinia has twice turned down offers by Mussolini to restore his throne. He refused during the war when he thought he could win. He rejected a more recent offer because he thought Britain and the League of Nations would resist Italian seizure of his country. It was intimated a short time ago that Selassie would now consider the matter if the League of Nations made Abyssinia an Italian mandate. If this should fail his last weapon against Mussolini is an action due to come up in the French courts next month. Meanwhile the Abyssinian emperor has been forced to sell for $15,000 some 4,000 pieces of silverware to provide living expenses for himself and his family.

It is reported that France has 5,000 tanks, Germany 5,000, Russia 6,000, Britain 500, and Italy 400. Japan's tank force is a secret but it is known to be formidable. The latest Japanese models weigh fourteen tons, carry a crew of five men, have three guns and cruise at a speed of 25 miles an hour. In Spain Rebel Generalissimo Franco possesses nearly a hundred two-men German and Italian models while the Government has a number of three-man Russian types carrying light automatic guns and flame-throwers.

Material Will Count

IN A BOOK recently published under the title "The Evolution of the Tank." Rear-Admiral Sir Murray Fraser Sueter says that wars of the future will be won not so much by courage as by the most modern and powerful material. The factories of Great Britain are her greatest asset he declares. Contrary to the opinion held by some folk Admiral Sueter says that the infantry soldier is not a back number. No final decision is likely to be made until ground forces, including tanks, are in possession.

According to Sir Arnold Wilson expenditure on luxuries and semi-luxuries such as tobacco, cosmetics, liquor and pictures has increased in Britain in the last six years by 20 per cent. to a sum between $1,000,000,000 and $1,500,000,000 a year.

According to the Christian Monitor between 200,000 and 350,000 Soviet citizens have been exiled for political offences during the past twelve months. A current joke, not openly told in Moscow is that Stalin has had all his old friends executed; now he is falling back on mere acquaintances. The most feared criminal lawyer in the Soviet Union is State Prosecutor Andrei Januarl Vishinsky who in three years has sent to death all the leading anti-Stalinists in the country.

Professor Charles Bungay Fawcett of Great Britain predicts that eventually agricultural workers will live in the city suburbs and commute each day to their country fields. He points out that human beings migrate when they desire better conditions of life.

Drake Held Up As Perfect Gentleman

Bird Would Rather Starve, Admirer Says Than Act in Ungentlemanly Manner

(From the Listener, Official Organ of the British Broadcasting Corporation.

WHY THE drake has never been used as the type of perfect gentleman, I can't understand," said Miss L. F. Ramsay. "He never dips his beak into the food bowl till all his wives have eaten. He would rather starve than be so ungentlemanly. He will protect his ladies against terrible odds, if a dog attacks for instance. I remember that happening once when our brood was on the way home to supper. They all vanished and, though we hunted till dark, we couldn't find them. Then, at midnight, the voice of the drake was heard under the bedroom windows. He had brought all his wives home safely."

Ducks and drakes have other endearing ways. The attachment they have for their owners, it seems, can be rather embarrassing.

"Once we had been away for the week-end," continued Miss Ramsay, "returning just as the people were coming out of church on Sunday evening. The dog and the cat were both outside the gate waiting for us: that was not unnatural. But the ten ducks were also there and greeted us with quacks of joy. The hens wouldn't have cared if we had stayed away forever, but the ducks had missed us....

"Ducks lay early and often and say nothing about it. Hens make the welkin ring when they are about to lay, have laid, or see an egg that somebody else has laid. Every duck in the pen may plank down an egg and you won't hear a sound from any of them. It sometimes happens that you hear sounds of strife in a hen run and when you go to investigate, you find two infuriated females tearing out each other's feathers, their combs bleeding profusely. Nothing of that sort happens among ducks. They live happily together and never seem to be jealous, though a drake usually has a favorite wife.

The Atmosphere of the Home

Its Spirit Sets the Pace and Forms The Whole Background of Society

(By Charles A. Shearson in Social Welfare.)

IT IS rather difficult for any one, brought up from childhood to maturity in agreeable surroundings and accompanied by a pleasurable sense of safety, to divorce his thoughts on life from his recollections of those happy and formative years whose greater part was doubtless spent in some sort of home. Most of us look back upon childhood as being a happy enough time, especially in its particular aspects, its holidays by the lake or sea, its recesses of garden and largeness of space where we scampered from room to room and from attic to cellar in search of adventure and frolic. Our childhood was free from care, as is indeed all childhood. Our parents watched us grow and change, and in spite of all the multitude of worries besetting them, somehow we, the young, were of importance. In many ways they lived for us.

And that was home. Sentimentalists and realists alike look up to it; it is our first educational experience, and for most of us it will be our last. It is from there that we first looked from a window upon the outer world, and it is from there that we will be borne, some day, somehow, to our final rest.

It is there that we were brought to manhood, and in the course of time we move elsewhere and among strangers, and in the course of time, too, we marry and settle down, and that place where we agitle is our home. It may be a small and chintzy flat overlooking our neighbour's kitchen, it may be but one house in a row in the suburbs, or it may even be one of those dignified and reliable mansions to be found in the residential districts of all cities worthy of the name. Most of us in our young and eager lives look forward and upward, and until middle age has taught us disillusion or acceptance, and old age the wisdom of contentment, our home, the place we live, comes second only to our work. It should come first. It is there that our children, more important than our common selves, must eat and sleep and live each hour of the day; it is there that most wives, not so ambitious as to be feminists, content mersily to be feminine, must wash and cook, must keep the house in order, must look day in and day out upon the same surroundings until evening comes and the children are in bed and the last meal eaten and the dishes washed.

Then truly can she say, "This is our home." The chesterfield is there and the book handy, the game of cards progresses and the husband laughs. How pleasant to hear him laugh so, and suddenly it strikes her that she should be happy. He's not a bad fellow, this husband, who goes each day to his work, with dinner pail or brief case, it matters little which. She does not consider the reason of his laughter, the thought that has quickened that hidden mind. He has been reading, or digging in the garden, or he has been silent awhile among his friends. And there is no reason for that laughter save that he looks at her, and in that pleasurable and secure domesticity, in this garden and in this home, in this human warmth and sympathy, he winks a large wink and laughs.

The atmosphere of the home—how many times have we heard these words spoken. And must not this atmosphere be put into the realms of humanism where different values than the altogether material are concerned, where a kind of disposition and the wisdom of a knowing smile is worth all the comfort of arm chairs and conveniences of modern bathrooms? A city's quality, like an old suit of clothes or a good oil painting, like a fine piece of furniture or a well-proportioned room, is what provides the setting for its citizens, and this rather than the advantages to be gained from an efficient fire department and police force, a good educational system and financial well-being. The two do not always go hand in hand, and not always is a wealthy and aristocratic home a necessity for the good life. But of one thing can we be certain, and that is that one or the other, the efficient or the aesthetic, is necessary for the conduct of life, and where there is neither then truly can we say, "This is no place to live."

The atmosphere, the spirit of the home, its quality is what sets the pace and forms the family background, the human background and the whole background of society. It is by it that society is judged, it is from it that the good life is received, it is through its windows that the light of the sun is had, and around it that dreams are woven. It is in its setting that is received the breath of life, and it is from it that we go and to it that we always return.

A sentimental vision is our viewpoint upon the home. The intellect wanders elsewhere, but the affections always remain, and whatever their reality it is to the charm of its familiar memories that we turn when, disgusted with the world and with ourselves we look to it for peace and understanding.

We do that, but they do not. How, therefore, can they live, those little ones, confined to sunless rooms, their outlook a treeless yard, their companions a diseased neighbourhood, their playing fields a street? How, therefore, can they live, those men and women, who must spend tormented lives among squalid alleys and in single rooms? How can they live, who have no other place to go, no home, no earth to call their own? How can they live?

To the Editor

RELIGION IN SCHOOLS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The Department of Education has revised the teaching of religion in the public school system. It is now to be regarded as blended with the teaching of the virtues and religion is especially to be taught not as an external and supernatural revelation and message from God to man but "as neither apart from nor superimposed upon the school from without or in any way external to it," what there is left of it is to be taught by the teachers (and not by ministers). This of course is pure modernism on the assumption that religion proceeds from man and not from a personal God. Why the department should have undertaken such a radical change without any mandate-from-the-people remains to be seen, and unless people have forsaken their belief in a personal God and a supernatural religion altogether there will be a prompt and vigorous protest. It is going pretty far it would seem to change a people's religion over night and that without their knowledge or consent.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS.

(Niagara Falls Review)

NOWHERE can one find evidence of sympathy with the drunken driver. Here, for example, is an editorial paragraph from the Hotel World-review.

It may seem a little harsh, but no intelligent person can object too much to the treatment accorded to drunken drivers in a Southern city where they are finger-printed, their pictures taken in stripes, with numbers on their chests and these pictures made available for publication. Drunken drivers are a menace to life and limb...and no sympathy need be wasted upon them.

The time is coming when not only will a drunken driver be committed to jail for a longer period, but he will discover on release his permit to drive on the highways has been revoked for a considerable time. The drinking driver is a menace not only to him[illegible] but to everyone on the highways.

FRANC TOPPLES

PARIS, Sept. 16 (AP).—A selling wave today toppled the French franc to its lowest depth in more than a decade.

The franc closed at 30.35 to the dollar and 144.75 to the pound sterling. In terms of the dollar that is 3.407 cents. The government currency stabilization fund has abandoned attempts to bolster it for the time being, and, some believe, it may go eventually to 30.00 to the dollar.

"Bring 'Em Back Alive Mac" New Title For Motorcycle Constable McClure.

Provincial Motorcycle Constable L. A. McClure is some to have quite a time living down his new-found title "Bring 'Em Back Alive Mac" which has been tagged to him by his duck hunting companions.

Up bright and early as the duck shooting season opened north of Highway 7 on Wednesday morning McClure journeyed to Pigeon Lake with a party comprising Art Metcalfe, Colin Althouse, Dr. Gordon and a guide.

The entire party got their quota bag of ducks, but McClure not content merely with dead ducks took home a live one for his little daughter to play with.

A member of the party who vouches for the truth of the story, declares McClure was eating his lunch in the "hide" along with the others just before the start of the return trip to the city around eight o'clock, when he felt a movement at his side.

To his great surprise and amazement he discovered it was a wild duck that had nestled up against the warmth of his body. Wounded badly enough that it could not fly, but exhibiting a lively concern withal, the bird was believed to have been "winged" by one of the many fusillades of buckshot and to have waddled from the reeds fringing the marshes after being overlook by the huntsmen.

Not having the heart to kill the bird and not wishing to leave it behind in its wounded condition, McClure brought it back alive, hence his new found title.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Wheat futures on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange traded at lower levels to-day in sympathy with declines at Liverpool. Sales of 300,000 bushels of Canadian wheat for export failed to rally prices and closing quotations were ⅝ to ¾ cent lower, October $1.24⅝, November $1.24½, December $1.22¾ to ⅞, and May $1.23⅝ to ½.

Prices eased from the start and throughout the session traded 1 to two cents down. Trading was not broad and it took little buying or selling to move prices.

Exporters offered support on recessions but the 300,000-bushel business reported worked since yesterday was insufficient to cope with liberal southern and hedging selling-orders.

WATER-WAGON WELL LOADED IN HURON-BRUCE

WINGHAM, Sept. 16. — A strange and complex situation has arisen in the political battle for the riding of Huron-Bruce.

"I am in perfct accord with the policies of Premier Hepburn," states H. T. Thomson, who will contest the riding as an Independent-Liberal because he feels that Charles W. Robertson, former M.L.A., has not the endorsation of the Premier.

Thomson, owner of the Wingham Creamery, a lifelong Liberal, present Wingham Street Commissioner, and probable candidate for this year's Mayoralty, was expected to appear on a straight temperance ticket. Now, however, he feels that he will allow the two party candidates to battle it out for the "liquor" question, while he supports Hepburn.

The Liberal executive, however, is emphatic in its statement that Robertson is the official Hepburn candidate for the riding. Charles W. Robertson was nominated at the Liberal convention, and at that time stated:

"I am a 'dry,' and do not believe in beverage rooms. We are all living in a democratic country, and for that reason must do as the majority wills. If I am elected, I will do my best to see that the beverage rooms are curbed and restricted. I predict that the time is not far distant when ladies will be excluded from all beverage rooms."

"I believe that beverage rooms are a curse," states Harry Logan, the Conservative candidate, "and, if I am elected, will see that they are abolished in Huron and Bruce. Huron-Bruce election is a test case to see whether you want to be free of beverage rooms or not."

T. J. McLean, Independent, is fighting strongly for the "restoration of the old bar-room, because it is the sane way of handling the liquor question."

In the meantime, the temperance forces have declined to endorse any candidate. Plans are afoot for a general meeting of the various temperance societies, when they may bring out a fifth candidate.

125 DELEGATES AT CONFERENCE

One hundred and twenty-five delegates are this week in attendance at the annual conference of Eastern Ontario and Quebec District of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, sessions of which are being held in the Full Gospel Pentecostal Church with the Rev. George Chambers, district superintendent, presiding.

While the business of the conference is expected to be terminated by Friday, it was intimated by the Rev. A. G. Ward, secretary-treasurer, that many of the delegates would be staying for special week-end services to be featured by an ordination service on Sunday morning.

This morning Mr. Ward presented a report bearing on the general work of the church throughout the district, and was able to show steady and healthy development in all departments both in Canada and in the foreign mission fields.

Earlier during the sessions he spoke on the topic, "Our Religious Convictions," other speakers being the Rev. O. Moore of Picton and the Rev. George Chambers, who voiced a warm welcome to the visiting delegates.

It was reported that the various sessions have been well attended, not only by official delegates, but by members of the general congregation.

Officers of the conference are elected for two-year terms, obviating the necessity of an election at the present business sessions.

The conference endorsed the proposal that a Bible School be established in Ontario, but it was pointed out that further action would not be possible until the matter had been placed before the Western Ontario Conference.

Future development of the Lakeshore Camp at Cobourg was also discussed, and will probably result in enlargement of this activity during next summer.

FRANK LAPLANTE DIES IN BOSTON

The sudden death of Frank Laplante on Wednesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Leslie Bauman, in Boston, was a shock to his relatives and friends in Peterborough, following so soon and unexpectedly his visit here only two weeks ago. He had returned to his home in Rochester, and then decided to go on to spend some time with his daughter. He got up in the morning on Wednesday feeling well, but was stricken with a heart attack and passed away at noon.

CAMPBELLFORD

SCHOOLS WILL REMAIN CLOSED

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 16.—Despite pressure being brought to bear in certain quarters it was deemed prudent by the Board of Health which met on Wednesday, to keep the school closed for "a short while longer." Mayor F. Long told the Examiner that although the situation in the town was most satisfactory with only one case during the present epidemic, it was deemed wise to continue all precautionary measures.

Due to the rumours which are current throughout the township regarding the number of "polio" cases being treated in town, which runs anywhere from seven to sixteen, the Medical Health Officer issued the following statement: "In order that the true state of affairs may be known and the false rumors that have been passing around corrected, I would like to state that there has been only one case of poliomyelitis reported in the town of Campbellford and only one case in the Township of Seymour."—(Signed) F. de F. Free, M.O.H.

Rev. C. C. Boyter Addresses Circle

Rev. C. C. Boyter, pastor of Park Street Baptist church was the guest speaker at the Fall Rally of the Mary Nicholls Mission Circle of Murray Street Baptist church on Tuesday evening, giving a very helpful talk on the interests of Missions.

Miss Myrtle Knapp presided in the absence through illness of the president, Mrs. S. Malsch, and Miss Barnard, president of the Women's Circle brought the devotional message.

Mrs. Percy Johnston was asked to represent the Circle at the Association meetings being held at Brighton this week, and arrangements were made for the presentation of F. L. Roy's coronation pictures which are to be shown on October 29.

The supper which preceded the meeting was in charge of Mrs. S. Valentin and her social committee.

Ont., favored the original resolution. He said that in his area the Lumber Workers' Union had been struggling for years for collective bargaining. Because of employers' refusal to bargain collectively, he said, many strikes had occurred which brought hardship to workers.

"I don't see why so many well-meaning people here are so afraid of an addition to the bill, making it obligatory for employers to deal with the majority of their employees.

"Our experience with politicians and heads of governments is that while they profess to recognize the right of organization they use every opportunity to recognize the right of organization they use every opportunity to jump at employees and never on employers. Hepburn never misses a chance to attack workers. It is clear and simple that when the majority of the workers form unions, the law should compel employers to deal with them. It will not solve all our problems but it will bring thousands of new workers into our unions."

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

IT is related by a peasant that he had persuaded himself that beyond his fields there were no others, and when he happened to lose a cow and was compelled to go in search of her, he was astonished at the great number of fields beyond his own few acres. This must be the case of many theorists who have persuaded themselves that beyond this field or little globe of earth there lie no other worlds—simply because he has not seen them."—Spinoza.

Dear Friends:

That peasant wasn't the only one who has thought there was no field but his, for all around us we see those who think they are the most important people doing the most important work. Your work and my work, we-ell, it's all right, you know, but the word would stop if it weren't for them and what they do.

And it is the same with some people and their religion, they're all right and we are all wrong. Same with their politics, or their fineness, their friends, or their trips, all they can see is their own side of things.

Never do they realize that all they can see is their own small horizon. Some even think this world is all there is of life, nothing at all beyond. They remind me of Thomas who said he would not believe our Lord had risen until he saw the nail marks, and the wound in His side.

It does not seem to penetrate their brains that all who could prophesy must have seen with an inner eye, must have had a larger vision. You have to "Know Thyself." But you must also realize that we use othe people's ideas, as they use ours, and that it takes all our ideas to make living worth while for each one of us, and putting all your concentration on yourself without thinking about others, is simply putting yourself into a shallow grave.

Shelley tells us:

"The seed ye sow another reaps: The wealth ye find, another keeps; The robes ye weave another wears, The arms ye forge another bears."

So that, no matter how important you may think you are, you are only so because of all the minds that have lived before you, all that are living now, and all that will come after you. Many's the one lives in a small city or town, because they are a big frog in a little puddle whereas if they lived in a larger place the size of the other frogs would swamp him, and his croak would never be heard at all.

Any knowledge we get only shows us how much there is to learn, but life is fuller and nicer when you have a large horizon. When you are on a ship at sea, all you can see is water for miles on every side, but the captain knows how many days sailing before we reach land.

So, when you get thinking that YOUR work, YOUR life, YOUR ideas are the best, just look beyond your own field of work, and see how all the rest of the work of the world dovetails together, and that your part is only important when you do it well, so that it doesn't spoil the work of the fellow next to you.

You have to have a decent conceit of yourself, you have to feel that what you do is worth while, but when you begin to say you don't believe this or that because you haven't seen it, look around and think of the many things you never see, yet enjoy them.

Ever seen a radio wave-length, or electricity come along the wires to give you light, or your voice going over the 'phone, or gas before you light it? Ever seen thoughts working inside of your brain or anyone else's, or sickness working inside of your body? Yet you enjoy or suffer from many things you will never see, and that are far beyond your own scope of work. And to rep you up, you never know how important your smile is. You rarely see it, but others do; so keep smiling.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

St. James' W.M.S. Meets at Parsonage

The September meeting of St. James' United Church W.M.S. Auxiliary convened Wednesday afternoon at St. James' parsonage, with Mrs. F. W. Craik as hostess.

The president was supported at the table by the secretary and treasurer, each of whom gave a detailed report of the business and finances of the society. This meeting has come to be known as the "holiday self-denial," and is one of the most popular of the year.

Inspiring hymns, with Mrs. B. Pitchford at the piano, interspersed the readings of the day. The scripture was read by Mrs. Pearson who chose the first chapter of St. John's gospel for her message and after a two-minute period of silent prayer, Miss M. Hanbidge offered the opening prayer. A very appropriate devotional story was read by Mrs. Craik.

"In the Secret of His Presence," a beautiful poem written by Ellen Lakhshini Goreh, who died recently at Cawnpore, India, was read by Mrs. R. B. English. Miss Goreh was the daughter of a Brahmin convert. After her parents' death, she was brought up in England by missionaries, and later returned to her own people as a Church of England missionary.

A delightful duet "My Lord and I" was sung with fine harmony by Rev. F. W. and Mrs. Craik.

India, being the country under study, a brief, but comprehensive account of the medical missionaries' work, with facts and figures of interest to W.M.S. women, was given by Mrs. A. Davis. This included reports from preachers and teachers, doctors and nurses, who told of both encouraging and discouraging features of their work.

Mrs. Davis urged that the members read and study their Blue Book for data indispensable to successful work on the home base.

Regrets were expressed at the loss of our efficient and valued secretary of Christian Stewardship, Miss Margaret Kidd, who has moved to Kingston. In appreciation of Miss Kidd's fine work, the auxiliary voted upon suggestion of one of the members, and voiced by the president, that a "Magaret Kidd fund" toward a life membership for some member should be started, and was carried unanimously. A letter was also asked to be sent to Miss Kidd expressing the regret of the auxiliary. Mrs. Frances Curtis, who is also leaving St. James' Auxiliary to reside at Cobourg was remembered.

After the generous "Self denial" offering the doxology was sung and prayer offered by Mrs. W. H. Buckler. This very fine meeting was brought to a conclusion with the hymn, "O Master let me walk with Thee" and prayer by Mrs. W. Sollitt, and prayer by Mrs. W. Sollitt.

Hazel—Hall

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 16—Mildred Eileen Hall, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Hall, Canrobert street became the bride of William Ronald Hazel, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hazel in a quiet wedding solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Hall at high noon on Wednesday. The double ring ceremony was used as the couple stood under an arch flanked with white boltonia and autumn flowers in various shades of pink. Rev. Ernest Harston of North Young Street United Church, Toronto, officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore pink taffeta made on princess lines with jacket and relieved by a sash of variegated colors in blue, green and fuchia shades. She carried a bouquet of talisman roses and lily of the valley. Mrs. Preston Hall, her only attendant, wore a picturesque directoire frock of saphire blue velvet and carried briar-cliff roses. Mr. Preston Hall, the bride's brother, attended the groom, and the wedding music was played by the groom's father, Mr. Albert Hazel.

After the ceremony the guests which included only the immediate members of both families, sat down to dinner. On the long table, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion, was centred the wedding cake which was swathed in pink and white tulle with touches of silverand green. Pink tapers in silver candlesticks and bowls of pink roses, pink and white sweet peas and white boltonia completed the setting.

The bride's mother wore a navy blue georgette gown with touches of white and a corsage of roses and maiden hair fern. Mrs. Albert Hazel was lovely in beige silk with green and brown accessories and corsage of roses.

The bride and groom left for a motor trip to Montreal, Quebec City, Boston and New York and on their return they will reside in Campbellford. A brown sheer suit relieved by touches of white, brown hat and shoes were the bride's travelling costume.

Out of town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Darwin Bager, Trenton, Ont., and Miss Margaret Covert of Oshawa.

Double Wedding in Sacred Heart Church

CROWLEY—McCARTHY AND McCARTHY—COLLINS

An interesting event of this week was the double wedding of a brother and sister solemnized by the Rev. Father Maloney in the Church of the Sacred Heart. The grooms with their brides are shown as they were photographed after the ceremony, and reading from Left to Right, they are: Vincent P. Crowley, son of Mrs. Crowley and the late Thomas Crowley and his bride, formerly Miss Emma McCarthy, daughter of Denis McCarthy and the late Mrs. McCarthy. The former Miss Marie Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Collins of Biggar, Sask., is the bride of Timothy Mel McCarthy. The young couples will reside in Peterborough. (Cripps Studio Photo.)

A narrow bow tied sash adds a pretty feminine touch to these mannish tailored type two-piece pyjamas. They are as practical as they are popular in satin-finished cotton broadcloth in marine blue scattered with navy dots. The sash, bias trim and buttons are in the deeper blue shade. Wine satin with turquoise blue trim, natural mercerized cotton shantung with bright red trim, and slide fastener, store blue wool crepe with wine, etc.

There's a choice. I feel quite certain you won't hardly be able to wait for the pattern to arrive to cut and stitch up several sets. You'll marvel at the saving in cost.

one week before it was," he continued.

The Conservative leader, who said he favored collective bargaining and believed in the individual's right to free association, said he hoped to see All-Canadian unions. However, if General Motors could bring into Canada foreign exports and Mr. Hepburn could engage foreign engineers, labor should be able to engage any experts it wished.

Not Over 30 Seats

Mr. Rowe predicted the Liberals would fail to obtain more than 30 seats in the Oct. 6 voting. He reached this conclusion after a survey of the province, the Conservative leader said.

Support of the pulpwood industry would be forthcoming from a Conservative government. The Liberals gave a 14,000 square-mile timber grant to a United States firm and agreed to build a $250,000 road into the district.

Canadian workmen would cut the timber but it would be processed by United States workers at higher prices. Mr. Rowe declared if elected his governmet would investigate just why Canadian mills were closed while pulpwood was exported.

LABOR CONGRESS FIRM AGAINST WAR

OTTAWA, Sept. 16 (CP).—Its unalterable opposition to war reaffirmed, the trades and Labor Congress of Canada continued today to tackle numerous resolutions on the agenda of its 43rd annual convention, which entered its third day.

The Congress, in passing the war opposition resolution yesterday, expressed the opinion there should be no declaration of war "before the people of Canada are consulted by way of a referendum on the question."

A clause in the resolution which would have committed the congress "to call for and pursue every avenue possible to enforce a complete stoppage of all work until such a referendum has been granted and held," was deleted on recommendation of the congress' resolution committee.

Lengthy debate arose on the clause in the resolution. The vote came after president P. M. Draper of Ottawa made a plea on behalf of the committee and urged the congress not to take any action which might result in splitting congress ranks.

The convention adopted a resolution from the Alberta Federation of Labor asking abolition of the federal sales tax, and another from the London Lodge No. 488, Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America, opposing reduction of truck license fees and asking that they be at least doubled "in order that they will pay their fair share for use of the highways."

ABDUCTED WOMAN IS REPORTED DEAD

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (UP).—Mrs. Alice McDonnell Parsons, missing since June 9, died in her kidnappers' hands a month later, according to information in the hands of Federal agents, Benjamin Shiverts, an attorney, said today.

Shiverts, counsel for Mrs. Anna Kupryanova, Russian-born housekeeper at the Parsons farm, said the information was contained in letters the Department of Justice received from the supposed abductors of the society woman.

The letters, he said, stated Mrs. Parson's body had been disposed of.

Proof that the letters were genuine, he said, was a brooch she wore when she disappeared and which has been sent to the agents by the abductors.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Sept. 16.—The Young Women's Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church met on Thursday evening for their opening meeting following the holidays, at the home of Mrs. H. Morgan.

The topic was taken by Mrs. J. Rogers and Miss L. Burgess, which was about the work with the Ukranians.

The meeting was placed in charge of the president and plans regarding the sale were discussed.

The meeting was closed by singing a hymn followed by repeating the Mizpah benediction.

Mrs. Morgan served a dainty lunch followed by a social half hour. A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess by Mrs. Waddell.

$3,500,000 SOUGHT J. R. BOOTH ESTATE HEPBURN REVEALS

said, that from 44 estates settled under the former Conservative regime and now under review a total of from $50,000,000 to $70,000,000 would be realized.

Conservative Leader Earl Rowe had said he would collect this money if he were returned to office, but he could not do it. His hands would be tied because whatever moves he made towards collections would involve the exposure of the maladministration of his own friends.

Disputes Rowe's Claim.

Mr. Hepburn took issue with Mr. Rowe's statement the collection of back succession duties had been made possible by a Bennett amendment to the Income Tax Act relating to disclosure of ownership of bearer bonds.

The Government had only dealt with one estate since that amendment went into effect. That was a London estate the Henry government had settled after a succession duty payment of $32,000. The Liberal administration had re-opened the estate and collected $627,000.

Ex-Premier Henry was Provincial Treasurer when many of these estates were settled. He had been asked to run in the present election by Mr. Rowe and was likely to be Provincial Treasurer again if Mr. Rowe was elected.

"If the Conservatives had done their duty when in office," said Mr. Hepburn, "all this work would not be necessary and the province would not be so far in debt."

Mr. Hepburn will speak at Beaverton to-night.

Japan has nearly twice as many strikes as a year ago.

Utilities Forced To Increase Capacity At Sub-Station

General Manager Instructed To Obtain Prices For Transformer

A necessity of increasing the capacity of the Aylmer street sub-station by addition of a 3,000 KVA transformer at a cost of about $13,000 was agreed upon by the Utilities Commission at a meeting Wednesday. Manager Ross Dobbin was instructed to obtain prices for a transformer and necessary switching.

Steady increase in the demand for power has forced the expansion, it was revealed. At present the station has three 3,000 KVA transformers with a total capacity of 9,000 kilowatts or 12,000 horsepower, Mr. Dobbin reported. The maximum peak on the station has increased from 7,344 horsepower in 1934 to 9,800 horsepower on September 9, 1937. With the overlap in lighting and power loads in November and December, a total load of 10,000 horsepower can be expected, Mr. Dobbin predicted.

"Should anything happen to one of the sub-station transformers we would not be able to carry the load on the remaining units," the manager's report stated. "It is therefore evident that we should immediately place an order for an additional 3,000 KVA transformer with necessary changes in switching. This will cost about $13,000."

Another big gain in the peak power demand for the city as a whole during August as compared with August 1936 was reported. The peak was 8,600 horsepower during the month against 7,200 last year.

Gains were revealed in the kilowatt hour totals sold in all three classes, domestic lighting, commercial lighting and commercial power. The gain in domestic lighting over last August was 12.6 per cent., in commercial lighting 16 per cent., in commercial power, 6 per cent.

Manager Ross Dobbin reported the Canadian General Electric continued to take 1,500 horsepower during the month and that the power demands from the Auburn and Bonner-Worth plants were back to normal with re-opening of the plants.

An operating statement from the Gas Department for the months of July and August showed a net gain of $2,934.92 as compared with $3,066.26 for the same two months last year.

Reconstruction of the Utilities circuit No. 10 from the Aylmer street sub-station to the central portion of the downtown district is underway.

TAG DAY IN OCTOBER.

The Children's Aid Society will make its annual appeal for funds with a tag day during October, it was decided at a meeting yesterday. The objective of the appeal this year will be $1,000.

SIAMESE TWINS.

A case of Siamese twins in golden bantam corn was demonstrated by Fred Bisonette of the River Road to-day. He found the double-cobbed cob in the corn field of Albert Wilson in Douro township.

NO COURT TODAY.

Following an extremely heavy docket on Wednesday when Magistrate A. E. Gee dealt with a total of thirty-eight cases, including those concerning traffic infractions, there was no court today.

SEEK STOLEN CAR.

City police are anxious for information that will lead to recovery of a 1936 model Chevrolet coach automobile license 10-R-35 which was stolen on Tuesday from Monaghan Road in the vicinity of Canadian Johnson Motors plant. The car is owned by Donald Wood, 417 Weller street.

CHARGE WITHDRAWN.

Magistrate A. E. Gee on Wednesday permitted the Crown to withdraw a charge of theft against John Gibbs, who was accused of stealing water-melons, the property of Stanley Clark. His Worship did not decide upon the question of title to property, which was the subject of the alleged theft. W. B. Gordon acted for the defendant and E. F. Borbridge appeared for the Crown.

INVITED TO SPEAK AT OSHAWA.

Alex. L. Elliott, Liberal candidate for Peterborough, was invited to speak over CFRB from nine to ten on Saturday evening at a broadcast from the Genosha Hotel, Oshawa. Gordon Conant, K.C., of Oshawa, is the Liberal candidate for the Ontario Riding, and other candidates invited to speak besides Mr. Elliott were Daniel Lang, K.C., Ian Strachan, K.C., and Lionel Conacher, all of Toronto. Owing to the fact that a large Liberal rally in Apsley had previously been arranged by the campaign committee for Saturday evening, Mr. Elliott had to refuse the invitation.

A CHRISTMAS TAG DAY.

Another reminder of the steady paced approach of the end of the year sounded today in a request of the Workers' and Unemployed Association for support of their Tag Day on Saturday for welfare work and their Christmas tree fund. The association's welfare work is going on all the time to the best of its resources. This is the only appeal for the Christmas tree fund that will be made by the unemployed. Charles Lambert and H. Martin said that the assistance of the public would be greatly appreciated mainly because the bulk of the money will be spent in making the Christmas holidays happier for many children.

EIGHT NEW HEATERS.

The local demand for electric power for use in flat rate water heater advanced to 743.58 h.p. with the installation of eight more heaters during August. Since January, 164 have been installed and now a total of 1,225 are in operation in the city.

LESS WATER PUMPED.

Although average temperatures during August this year were higher than those of August, 1936, the water pumpage total for the city showed a decrease, Utilities Manager Ross Dobbin reported to the Commission yesterday. The figures were 87,370,000 gallons as compared with 110,102,000 last year. He accounted for the difference by the greater fall of rain this year.

18 NEW SERVICES.

Eighteen new water services were laid by the Utilities Commission during August, and two were repaired. Laying of a 2-inch main on Dunlop street was completed and work was begun on the connecting of two dead ends on Victoria and Park Hill road. A 3-inch service was laid to the Queen Alexandra School, replacing a 1¼-inch service.

MISSIONARY AS SPEAKER.

His address will deal with his missionary work in Kenya Colony and promises to be of unusual interest. Adjutant Neil Warrander head of the local corps of the Salvation Army who was responsible for extending the invitation, will introduce the speaker it is announced.

MISS D. WALKER FOUND JAPANESE VERY COURTEOUS

Back from the war-troubled Orient some days overdue, Miss P. Daisy Walker has resumed her duties on the teaching staff at Queen Alexandra School.

After the SS "Empress of Asia" docked at Vancouver on Saturday four days behind schedule, Miss Walker caught the first available train east an don arriving in Peterborough on Wednesday noon went almost at once to her classroom and is now undergoing the experience of readjusting herself to normal conditions after an absence of three months. As a delegate from the Canadian Teachers' Federation to the World Federation of Educational Associations, Miss Walker attended a big international convention of teachers at Tokyo. The convention was made up of 2,300 delegates from 38 different countries, China being one of the countries that was not represented.

Ship Was Commandeered

Miss Walker, who had been expected back here some days earlier, explained the delay as being due to the fact that the "Empress of Asia" was commandeered by the British government to carry troops from Hong Kong to Shanghai and to carry refugees out of the stricken Chinese city.

Miss Walker was in Shanghai during July and at that time she saw no apparent signs of the trouble that was to follow so shortly afterwards, although war was raging around Peiping further north.

She had been much impressed with the beauty of Shanghai and found it hard to believe that many of its fine buildings had since been wrecked by Japanese gunners and warplanes.

Her itinerary was to have taken her to Peiping, but wisely accepting the advice of transportation officials who told her she could be transported there with no guarantee of getting back, she decided to give it a miss. A party of American delegates who did go to Peiping against advice they received were for ten days delayed at the United States legation owing to the serious state of warfare that existed in and around that city, she said, and they told of other devastation there.

Loses Shanghai Souvenirs

When in Shanghai Miss Walker recalled she bought a whole grip full of souvenirs, leaving the grip with the C. P. R. agent to be forwarded on. The grip and the contents has not yet caught up with her, if it ever will, though Miss Walker expressed the opinion with a merry twinkle in her eyes, "It might arrive in time for Christmas."

She believed it was more than probable that the grip had been blown to fragments during one of the many raids on Shanghai, but was grateful that it was only the grip had suffered such a fate and not any of her friends or herself.

Of actual warfare, Miss Walker saw none. She had returned to Japan before the trouble developed in Shanghai. The only warlike scenes she witnessed were the departure from Japanese centres of troop trains and the occasional column of troops that were seen on the march through the streets.

Friendly, Courteous People

Her own treatment at the hands of the Japanese, she said, left nothing to be desired. She found the people of that country courteous to a degree and most friendly. She noticed a general feeling of "repression" amongst the people so that they appeared as if afraid to voice their own opinions in public, and she said there was also a rigid censorship of mail.

Letters she mailed to her relatives and friends here apparently failed to reach them, and letters written to Miss Walker by her cousin Harold G. Walker failed to reach her.

Among the last letters received here by Mr. Walker from his cousin were those dated from and near Shanghai around July 17 and 18 last.

Miss Walker described Tokyo as a city of modern buildings which has arisen from the ashes of an earthquake there twenty-three years ago. She said during their stay in Japan delegates were welcomed cordially everywhere and were entertained freely at banquets, theatre parties and so on. One of the most impressive things she witnessed was the beautiful Obon Festival—the festival of departed spirits staged with a typical Japanese disregard of "the fittingness of things."

No Comparison

There was no comparison, Miss Walker said between the railways of China and Japan and the great transportation systems of the Dominion. In Japan she found first class coaches were extremely scarce. Delegates travelled second class chiefly, while on one occasion when she was not travelling with the party, Miss Walker ventured to journey third class from Nojiri to Tokyo.

"Such crowds I never saw," Miss Walker laughed recounting some of the customs she observed among the natives that were strange to foreign eyes.

Glad to be back home, Miss Walker said she got the opinion while in the Orient that should the war have the effect of establishing a united China, the Japanese would find they had bitten off more than they could chew and would probably find the Chinese more than a match for them.

FULL ENTRY LIST AT LINDSAY FAIR

LINDSAY, Sept. 16.—With every stall in the horse, cattle, sheep and swine barns full and with every inch of available space in all other buildings taken by exhibitors, the Lindsay Central Exhibition opened its gates yesterday for its sixty-first annual showing.

Rain fell intermittently during the morning.

The poultry house is filled with all breeds of fowl and the exhibits of fruit, flowers, seed and grain are the largest in years. The second floor of the main building is packed with exhibits of ladies' work, cooking, preserving, etc., while the main floor is occupied with exhibits by the leading manufacturers and merchants of the district.

To-day is Citizens' and Children's Day, when the schools and places of business will be closed. First showing of the grandstand acts will take place Friday afternoon with two horse races and concerts by the Lindsay Citizens' Band.

With more than $6,000 spent on improvements to the grounds and the race track this year, Exhibition Park presents a great change in appearance to visitors. A large piece of land at the northern end of the grounds has been purchased and levelled and will be used for the parking of cars, thus leaving the centre green open for softball games and other sports. This afternoon the finals in the Lindsay Men's Softball League will be a feature attraction when Red and Whites, Warders and Jones Boys will battle for the championship and the London Life trophy.

Yesterday, judging was commenced in ladies' work, fruit and flowers; to-day the livestock judges will commence work, with judging in the various classes continuing until Saturday.

FREE STATE REMITTANCES

AUTUMN ASSIZES OPEN ON SEPT. 27

Fall assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario are scheduled to open here on September 27, with Mr. Justice Hogg presiding, it was announced by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. today. So far only two criminal matters are set down for presentment to the Grand Jury. They constitute a charge of publishing false information against Harvey Murphy, president of the Ontario Federation of Unemployment; and a serious charge against George Selmes of this city in respect to an alleged offence against his daughter. Selmes was previously convicted of the offence and on appeal was granted a new trial. Alex. Welch, United Textile Workers' organier, balled for trial on a charge of assaulting the Chief Constable in the execution of his duty, will not come for trial at the assizes. He has elected trial at the General Sessions of the Peace in December, but meanwhile has the option of electing a speedier hearing before the county judge at a non-jury sitting.

WATER SPORTS BEING PLANNED FOR SATURDAY

Generally acknowledged as having been the best of waterfront attractions on the official program at Canadian National Exhibition, an aquatic display of skill and daring sponsored by Peterborough Canoe Company is to be staged specially for local audiences. The aqua-planing and skiing program will be presented Saturday afternoon on Little Lake in front of George Street Wharf, weather permitting, it is announced by D. A. Loomis, M.C., director of the group of water performers.

All through the C.N.E. the group gave two performances daily on the waterfront and proved to be a popular item on official exhibition program. The majority of the aquatic acrobats, if that term can be rightly applied, are local and district swimmers who have taken the spotlight at the Rice Lake and Kawartha Lake regattas, for proficiency in swimming, paddling and so on. The group includes: Doug Loomis, director; Miss Norma McIntosh, Bobcaygeon; Margaret Smith, Dundas; the sisters of Pat and Marjorie Perrin of Toronto and Bewdley, Ronald Rennie, Keene; Mel Hunter, Bill Taylor, Eric Dinesen, and Jack Holland, all of Peterborough. With exception of Miss Smith, all are expected to take part in Saturday's exhibition program, and spectators are promised something novel by way of a thrilling performance. There will be demonstrations of both water skiing and aqua-planing.

Doug Simpson will drive the 110-horsepower "Peterborough Seafarer" having an overall length of 125 feet, and which will be used to tow around the lake the various performers as they give their exhibitions of daring and skill.

Drills For Coal With Car Engine

Lougheed, Alta., Sept. 16.

USING a self-produced appliance operated with power from an automobile, R. Lees, farmer and prospector from Galahad, is prospecting for coal in this vicinity of northern Alberta.

Children's Shelter Crowded Wards Must Be Boarded Out

Adequate Room For 15 Children—July's High Was 25 Children

Accommodation in private boarding homes for five of their wards will be obtained at once by the Children's Aid Society. At their meeting Wednesday, attended by thirteen of the members, with Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr presiding, it was stated that the Shelter affords adequate room for fifteen children, but the number of them in the Society's care recently has exceeded twenty. In July the registration reached twenty-five and the peak number in August was 24, declining recently to twenty-one and twenty-two.

Investigators of the Department of Public Welfare advised the Society that some provision would have to be made for the proper housing of the children, and the Society authorized John Edgar, superintendent, to place five of the children in private homes.

Arrangements for Tag Day were left to Mr. Edgar, who will be assisted by some of the members.

Members present were Warden Brown, Mayor Macdonald, Reeve James Gifford, Reeve John McCaul of Asphodel, Alderman Stocker, R. L. Dobbin, E. Bruce Fowler, Dr. R. P. Nott, Mrs. E. F. Lawrence, Mrs. Jos. Welsh, Mrs. J. J. Lynch and the president, Rev. Dr. Barr.

The controversy of pasteurized milk vs. raw milk arose for debate in a new civic quarter when a brief argument on the subject took place.

Superintendent John Edgar reported Shelter costs had been reduced by contribution of 10 quarts of milk a day by a milk producer at the south end of the city, who pastures his cows on the Sewage Disposal plant lot.

"I understand that milk is not pasteurized," Alderman Walter Stocker said. "We should not accept the contribution." He pointed out that Society regulations forbid use of raw milk at the Shelter.

Superintendent Edgar reported the cows had been T.B. tested at the direction of M.O.H. Dr. G. Murray Fraser and a satisfactory report returned. No action was taken by the meeting on the suggestion of Alderman Stocker.

MANY CASES

Very lively affairs, with much stirring in both private and business affiliations, are indicated by the lunar as well as mutual aspects of the ruling planets. Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a very lively and pleasant year, full of excitement, adventure and merriment. This may be due to a sudden climax in a romantic affiliation which may call for a hasty readjustment of all plans and objectives, as well as environs.

DENTON MASSEY BACKS POLICIES OF EARL ROWE

LINDSAY, Sept. 16. — To an audience estimated at more than 3,000 which packed the Armouries here to capacity last night, Denton Massey, M.P., described Hon. Earl Rowe's labor policies as being identical with those obtaining in Great Britain at present. The Toronto Federal member was speaking in the interests of L. M. Frost, candidate in Victoria, and brother of Cecil Frost, Conservative provincial organizer.

T. H. Stinson, M.P. for Victoria, describing Mr. Hepburn's car license fee reduction as a bribe for votes, claimed that this reduction should have been made at least one year ago. "In 1934 Mr. Hepburn promised to spend every cent derived from gasoline tax on roads. In the past three years he has collected $62,000,000, and expended only $11,269,000. Why wasn't the surplus of $51,000,00 used to the benefit of motorists?" he demanded.

L. M. Frost flayed William Newman, Liberal candidate, for his stated intention of refusing to discuss the liquor or Separate School questions during the election campaign. "I will debate these matters on any platform at any time with my opponent," he said . Mr. Frost pledged himself to an extensive road-building program throughout Victoria and Haliburton Counties if a Conservative Government is returned on October 6.

The coming election in Ontario will have a vital effect throughout the Dominion, prophesied Mr. Massey. "British principles are at stake; principles which have been flouted by Mr. Hepburn. We cannot sit back and watch British principles and ideals desecrated and ravished," he said.

Mr. Rowe's labor policy was identical with that enunciated by the Prime Minister of Great Britain, Mr. Massey pointed out, quoting from the English Hansard wherein the British Premier stated that collective bargaining was the only sane method of ending industrial disputes. "Labor is entitled to free association as its inalienable right," he said.

MILLBROOK

The Women's Institute meeting, which was to have been held at the home of Mrs. J. L. Byam last Saturday evening, was postponed, owing to the storm, until Saturday, September 18, at the same place, at 8 p.m. Dr. J. W. Wright is the speaker for the gathering.

The annual Harvest Home service of St. Thomas' Anglican church will be on Sunday, September 19, with Holy Communion at 8 a.m., and morning worship at 11. The following Sunday evening The Bishop of the Arctic will be the guest speaker, the service being at 7 p.m.

Mrs. A. S. Hall has returned home after spending a week with her son-in-law and daughter, Rev. Franklin and Mrs. Bannister, Bowmanville.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hall, and daughter, Mrs. Fife, and Mr. and Mrs. Willis Hall motored to Campbellford calling on friends there and at Hastings, Warkworth and Keene.

The anniversary service in connection with the United Church at the Zion appointment were successfully carried through, with Rev. Clarence Ferguson of Bethany as the guest speaker. Congregations that filled the church gathered at 2.30 p.m. and 7.30, the choir from St Andrew's church, Millbrook, providing special music for the services. Late summer blossoms banked the altar adding their fragrance to the beauty of worship.

Rev. A. L. Siscoe and Mrs. Siscoe expect to leave at the end of this week for a two weeks' vacation in Quebec province. Rev. George Williams of Toronto, will preach on Sunday, September 19, in St. Andrew's church at 11 a.m., and the Young Peoples' Union will have charge of the evening service.

Th following Sunday will be in charge of the Sunday School when the annual Rally Day program will be carried through.

The Millbrook circuit, this year, is trying the plan of having its anniversaries two weeks apart, instead of on the first three consecutive Sunday's in October. Consequently the Fallis Line church will observe its anniversary occasion on October 3, afternoon and evening.

'Schools Here!' But This Time By Radio

"Something new under the sun!" That's, perhaps, what a lot of people thought when the Chicago board of education began using radio to teach 315,000 elementary grade school children their lesson while school opening has been deferred until the wave of infantile paralysis, sweeping over the city, subsides. The scene in the lower photograph shows the start of the radio-school lessons as they were broadcast by Robert D. Gregg, principal of Mulligan school, Chicago, who teaches certain age and class groups. The photography at the top shows two of the youthful pupils as they listened to their lessons via loudspeaker. The boys, Albert Kaupas and his brother, Adolph, are in the fifth and seventh grades respectively, but they did their school work together and at home. While school opening has been delayed in Toronto and other Canadian cities, teaching school by radio has not yet been started or contemplated.

LIBERAL RALLY IS HELD AT BUCKHORN CANDIDATE SPEAKS

Amplifying Alex L. Elliott's summary of tax reductions by the Hepburn government, T. J. Carley recalled at the Liberal rally at Buckhorn Wednesday night that Cecil G. Frost of Lindsay, Ontario organizer of Conservative party had made a series of addresses last winter, one of them in Peterborough, advocating that property should be rescued from the mounting burden of taxation.

"Mr. Frost's address was an excellent one and received general commendation," Mr. Carley said. "He pointed out that too many taxes were being imposed on real estate, but while Mr. Frost was talking about that unfavorable condition, Premier Hepburn was doing something about it. As Mr. Elliott and Warden Brown have told you, Mr. Hepburn succeeded in lowering your taxes as ratepayers of Peterborough county to the extent of $6 on every $1,000 of your assessment."

Warden Roy Brown stated that in 1934 Peterborough county was billed for $88,000 as its contribution for the payment of provincial highways.

"That was the year the Henry government went to the people, and prior to the elections they undertook a great deal of extra road construction," Warden Brown said. "Leave that year's cost out of the reckoning because it was exceptional. For the previous five year, beginning with 1929, the average levy on this county for provincial highways was $32,991, which represented three mills in the county tax rate charged to you and me. The Hepburn government assumed the entire cost of provincial highways, and also the taxes you had to pay for old age pensions and mothers' allowances which amounted last year to $22,000 in this county. That meant another two mills off your tax rate, and this year the government handed back to you an amount equal to one mill, bringing the total of six mills. In other words, through the action of the Hepburn government your taxes are six dollars less on every thousand dollars of your assessment. I feel that the least we can all do is to help put the Hepburn government back into power.

The Liberal Candidate

Mr. Elliott told his Buckhorn audience that Peterborough county would have practically no debenture debt today if it were not for the cost of provincial highways prior to the Hepburn government's relieving the municipalities of this tax.

"Why should the people of Harvey township be charged for the cost of building a provincial highway in the southern part of the county?" Mr. Elliott asked. "The expense should be borne by the province. That was Mr. Hepburn's attitude on this question, and as a result of his action you have nothing to worry about when the province is paving No. 7 highway.

Because of the heavy tourist traffic in Peterborough county we are in a peculiar position. The summer population of Stoney and Clear Lakes is around 4,000, and on many of our roads 40 per cent. of the cars during the tourist season have United States licenses. Our county is one of the best tourist areas in Ontario with a great deal more traffic on our roads than in Durham and Northumberland, for example. I consider that we are entitled to thousands of dollars in road assistance more than is allotted to other counties not so situated, and if I am elected as your representative in the Legislature I shall do my best to see that we get a maintained road program for our rural sections."

Says Promises Kept

Mr. Elliott said every citizen appreciated the reduction of taxes. Municipalities were relieved of the cost of provincial highways, mothers allowances and old age pensions; the amusement tax was done away with; the Henry government's school examination fees were eliminated; license fees for trucks were reduced 25 per cent; and beginning October 1 licenses for automobiles would be reduced five dollars. On a 4-cylinder car the new license fee would be $2 as compared with $7 in the past.

"Premier Hepburn promised to cut the cost of government and he kept that promise," Mr. Elliott continued. "In the last fiscal year of the Henry administration the cost of carrying on the government was $113,000,000, and in the fiscal year recently closed Mr. Hepburn reduced it to $81,000,000, a reduction of $32,000,000; and after all the bills were paid he had a surplus of $6,000,000, after paying off $38,000,000 of the provincial debt.

Those figures tell the story of a balanced budget with a surplus, the first province in Canada to balance its budget in the last ten years. It is the pay as you go policy that every farmer knows is the only sound way of doing business."

Succession Duties

Mr. Carley spoke of the Hepburn government's record in collecting succession duties from the estates of rich people. The amount collected last year was $16,000,000, and the total for two years was around $28,000,000, and Mr. Hepburn expected that $60,000,000 would be paid into the provincial treasury before he was through, if the people gave him a new mandate.

"This is not a policy of soaking the rich," said Mr. Carley. "It means that when a rich man dies there should be no evasion of the law in regard to the monies which should be paid to the province from those estates. Under the previous administration monies were not collected from estates that should have been collected. The Hepburn government has simply taken the view that wealth should not be let off at the expense of poor men, and that succession duties should be collected in accordance with the law."

WORKER CONTROL STRIDING ON IN LOYALIST SPAIN

By Edwin S. Johnson
Canadian Press Staff Writer).

BARCELONA, Sept. 16 (CP)—Collectivization has emerged from the experimental stage in republican Spain with the official stamp of approval from government officials.

It has taken the form of co-operative operation and management of industry, public utilities, wholesale and retail distribution and farms.

In Catalonia, most progressive and prosperous province in Spain, collectivization has made tremendous strides. Factories abandoned by Fascist sympathizers have been taken over by the trade unions and operated under a system of worker control.

The entire transportation system—railways, tramlines, coaches and taxi services—in Barcelona has been under the management of the Anarchists since the outbreak of the rebellion. Huge estates formerly owned by wealthy landowners are being run co-operatively by the very peasants who tilled the soil for the grandees.

"But isn't this outright confiscation?" an official guide escorting a group of British newspapermen on a tour of inspection, was asked.

"We do not regard it as such," he replied. "There's no ban on individual or private enterprise, but where plants and farms were abandoned we stepped in and took over control rather than see them deteriorate." He added the government at Valencia had under consideration promulgation of a decree offering the return of property, under certain conditions, to former owners willing to return.

"Of course these properties under private management would have to be operated to conform with the new order of things," the guide added. The various regulations applied to industry, relating to working conditions, wages and profits, would be enforced. Although details of the decree would not be published for some time, considerable interest had already been shown in the proposal by Spaniards now living abroad.

State Takes Share.

Some idea of the success of collectivized farming was afforded by a visit to a large estate formerly owned by the Count of Belvedere. The farm has a population of 70, including a number of refugees from Madrid, Malaga and Ronda. All live on the farm in solid, white-washed buildings built in the Spanish manner around a courtyard.

They grow their own wheat, vegetables, olives and many varieties of fruit. Of the produce a third goes to the estate, another third is applied to liquidation of loans for improvements. The remainder is distributed in equal portions among the families working the estate. Farming methods are primitive in Spain compared with Canada. Harvesting was in full swing with women and children laboring under the broiling sun while the men were at the front or in training. In some areas troops had been released from the reserves to assist in gathering the harvest which the peasants declared was one of the best in years.

Reaping is done with a sickle while the grain is usually threshed by spreading it out on a stone floor with donkeys dragging over it a stone roller or sledge on which the driver stands. Wheat is winnowed by casting it in the air with wooden forks, the wind blowing the chaff away. In some sections, however, the farmers employ old-fashioned winnowing machines.

Woman's Body Is Found In Gorge

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Sept. 16 (A.P.). — Nude body of a woman was taken from the Niagara Gorge to-day, and Coroner Harry R. Emes said it had been identified as that of an Eggertsville, N.Y., housewife.

Emes said the body was that of Mrs. Lloyd W. Jenkins, 48. A note addressed to her husband was found in a parked automobile here last night about the same time that three tourists picked up a purse and a bunch of keys near the brink of the Horseshoe Falls.

The skull was fractured, and there were other body injuries, all apparently caused by a plunge over Niagara Falls, the coroner said. He did not immediately give a verdict.

He served a lengthy term as vice-president of the Flushing National Bank and was a past-president of the Authors' League of America.

BOSS QUINN FITS ANOTHER VETERAN INTO HUB MACHINE

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 16—From this time on, big league scouts and managers may take a leaf from Bob Quinn's notebook, pay less attention to untried youngsters and come to the conclusion that the major league life of a ball player does not end at 30. Minor league stars who lack the necessary experience may do occasionally to round out a team and serve as needed replacements, but hereafter the Bees' prexy will do far more scouting on his own hook and other major managements may profit by his example.

The National League sat up and took notice early this season when two minor league veterans, passed up repeatedly by scouts who paid more attention to younger men, started to achieve pitching records that soon aroused the envy of many an outstanding star. These two pitchers, Lou Fette and Jim Turner, had won 33 games between them, up to the time the Giants struck town September 10. Both of these freshmen, one 30 and the other 31 years of age, compiled a showing that was a real indictment of the sagacity of big league scouts and made it manifest that Quinn knew what he was doing in prying these competent moundsmen from the ranks of the American Association.

Long since it became a matter of common knowledge that Quinn himself was the man responsible for the acquisition of this pair, relying upon his own judgment and that of nobody else. And when reports of failure from various scouts this season came to Boston and most of the other major league managements, Prexy Bob made up his mind to scour the brushes once more on his own hook. As a result, the Bees bobbled up with another old-timer, whose debut with the team was featured by a shut-out achievement, in which the big left-hander limited the Phillies to three well distributed hits.

Newcomer Is Nearing 32

Milt Shoffner, 31 years of age (he'll be 32 next November 13), was purchased five years ago by the Cleveland Indians for $35,000, and with them for two years. Consigned to minor league obscurity again, he might have remained there, had not Quinn made a flying trip to Scranton, a Bees' farm, and looked him over. Although the tall southpaw, who is much of the same build as Fette, won 19 games for Scranton last year, while losing ten, no one gave him any consideration, as the Bees started for St. Petersburg, Fla., and spring training. This year, with a team that finished in seventh place, Shoffner won 17, and it was after this fact was brought to Quinn's attention and he had looked up the veteran's last year's record that the Bees' head made that trip to Scranton. When the pitcher came to Boston, faced the always bothersome Phillies and was able to limit the second-hardest hitting club in the National League to three hits, the fans had just another reason for being convinced that Quinn is a shrewd judge of players.

In explaining his policy of signing up veterans, Quinn states emphatically that there is no reason in the world why any player, pitcher or otherwise, should be regarded as old at 30.

BIG CROWD ENJOYS DONKEY BALL TILT

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 16. — One of the largest crowds ever seen in the Lakefield rink turned out on Tuesday night, Sept. 14 to witness the first game of donkey baseball ever played in the village. Members of the Lakefield Volunteer Fire Brigade held the local Business Men to a 5-5 tie in a four-innings game, and provided spectators with enough laughs to last all season, as they struggled with, or cajoled their steeds in an effort to get them from one base to another. Comic costumes on some of the players lent additional fun to the evening's entertainment, and as far as could be ascertained, no serious injuries were sustained by the donkey riders.

The proceeds, which were in aid of the Fire Brigade, were very satisfactory. The brave souls who participated were:

Firemen—H. Hamblin, T. Simpson, J. Hendren, B. Johnston, F. Payne, P. Hill, C. Chittick, B. Charlton, G. Graham, C. Hunter, D. C. Darling, J. Leonard, W. Hamblin, G. Stabler and K. Mackenzie.

Business Men—J. R. Hall, F. L. Erskine, Dr. Renwick, B. Blade, A. Allen, J. Ryan, S. Trude, E. H. Northey, G. Wannamaker, H. McNaughton, V. Harvey, F. Wannamaker, T. W. Chaplin, Charles Lake, J. McKerchar and F. Stott.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

TED REEVE, coach of Queen's, has taken a holiday from his chores as columnist to rthe Toronto Telegram, to take up the important task of rebuilding Queen's senior intercollegiate entry. Just what the Tricolor will have is a mystery at present as the team will have to be rebuilt with most of last season's regulars graduated. Prospects are for a good wing line, backed up by Reeve's defensive power but the rear guard is a doubtful department. Local alumnae of Kingston college will be interested in following the fortunes of The Moaner, win or lose during the autumn schedule, the season opens with Queen's at Toronto Varsity on October 9.

IF ANY of our local turf and hide followers should ever have money enough left to get beyond the Toronto tracks and down into the New England states there to rest the weary bones at the Suffolk Downs plant they will often see a big colored fellow shuffling along at the business end of a broom sweeping up discarded mutual tickets and the other litter that a race track crowd leaves in its wake. His shoes are split to allow more comfort for the feet that are large in proportion to the rest of him. He walks on his heels, seeming to sort of weave along with a curious gait. His face looks battered and scarred, but is redeemed by an expression that is perpetually genial. He always has a wide and ready grin. There is a lot of fat on his paunch now and his shoulders slope. His arms are thick and long and he has mammoth hands. You are reminded of a race horse turned to pasture, high in the flesh, lacking co-ordination of action, but still somehow suggesting an underlying physical power.

ONE night in 1927 the black and a German boy climbed into the ring at Cologne, Germany. Neither was well known, the former was named Rocky Knight and the pair engaged in a slugging match for many rounds as the crowd cheered them on. At the end, the referee held up the black boy's arm, he'd earned the decision in a hard fought match. The shine seems to be content to have a job in the sweeper crew at Suffolk Downs, to be at the business end of the broom....The name of the German boy that Rocky Knight licked that night is Max Schemling. Der Maxie later became heavyweight champion of the world and not long ago he knocked the tar out of another black boy by the name of Joe Louis but that same black boy, Joe Louis, is now champion of the world. Such are the ways of the fistiania world....But the black boy named Rocky Knight, shuffles along at the business end of his broom, sweeping up the litter that race track customers leave behind them and seems to worry not at all about Louis and the German boy he licked and the heavyweight championship.

THERE'S a sign over the first cage in the Rockingham clubhouse that reads "Ten Dollars Straight." There's a sign over the first cage on the mezzanine at Suffolk Downs that reads the same. Folk go up to those windows, plank down a sawbuck, get a little pasteboard with a number on it in exchange. They hardly notice the big fellow behind the wicket who punches a button to release their tickets. The big fellow's head is sort of cocked to one side. He has what is called a "wry neck." It is in no sense a deformity, just a funny little physical mannerism that some folk have. It's hardly noticeable. But once that little physical mannerism was famous. Once thousands of sports fans were as familiar with it as they were with the physical mannerisms of their wives and children. For the man behind the wickets once pitched twenty straight big league ball games without losing one. Crowds that ogled and cheered him then hardly notice him now when he serves 'em up a tote ticket. But old-time sports writers remember him, still call him one of the greatest pitchers that the national game ever produced. You might not notice him when you buy a mutual ticket from him, but if you're a baseball bug you know his name. It's Rube Marquard.

A FOUR TEAM circuit was organized at the rugby meeting held in Cobourg on Wednesday, the league to include Cobourg, Lindsay, Peterborough and the Eastsides of Toronto. The Oshawa Blue Devils decided not to enter at the last moment. With a fourth eam in the loop no hookup wih the eastern circuit was deemed necessary, therefor no agreement was reached regarding exhibition games with the lakeshore clubs. The new group schedule opens on Saturday, September 25 with the Orfuns at Cobourg and the Westsides at Lindsay. A further motion was carried that all games must start at 3 o'clock prompt.

* * * * * *

AS FAR as the eastern circuit is concerned, there is a possibility that a fourth team may be included in intermediate group No. 1 of the O.R.F.U. Harold Bailey, energetic Secretary of the Association, has been doing some missionary work down in Kingston, with rather prolific results. A body of civic-minded football persons in Kingston are seriously considering sponsoring a rugby team to be known as the Kingston "Grads". If this new club is finally organized, and more concrete information is expected before the end of the week, it will give the local group a well-balanced four teamed loop, including the R.C.A.F. "Flyers", Belleville, Kingston Garrison and the Limestone City 'Grads', if they finally come into the fold.

* * * * * *

WE ARE afraid we will have to tangle with our friend George "Soup" Campbell of the Oshawa Times for saying that Umpire Ken Colling was wrong in not allowing Miller of Oshawa to go to first base when hit by a pitched ball. The Times man argued that a player "does not have to make an attempt to get out of the road of a pitch." But he must make the umpire think that he did try to get out of the way, George, if he wants to be sure of being awarded first base. The rule is quite clear and we are afraid the Oshawa writer didn't look it up before he rushed into print. Rule 46, Section 4 makes it plain that the batter is entitled to go to first base without being put out "if without making any attempt to strike at the ball his person or clothing be hit by a pitched ball, unless—and here is where the Motor scribe slipped up—"in the opinion of the umpire, he plainly makes no effort to get out of the way of the pitched ball."

Sam Breadon To Offer Frisch New Contract As Card Pilot

But Redbird Boss Will Probably Ask Club Manager To Take a Cut

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 16.—Frankie Frisch's contract as manager of the Cardinals will be renewed—that is, if he wants the job. This much can be stated positively, and, in view of the fact that Old Flash likes his Gas House Gang, and that a more lucrative spot hardly will present itself to him, it is an odds-on shot that he will be doing business at the same stand next season. In the near future, President Sam Breadon will call in Frisch, lay his cards on the table, and spread out a contract before him. Because Frankie no longer can play without the aid of crutches and a wheel chair, it is likely that there will be some alteration in the reputed $18,500 he is drawing down this season, but insiders say this will not be sufficiently drastic to cause him to turn up his nose at the offer.

There have been hints from time to time that Frisch was rounding out his final campaign with the Cardinals, reports linking his name with the Giants and the Cincinnati Reds. However, Breadon likes Frankie, who has been a good soldier all the way, and, despite the club owner's flair for changes—sometimes for psychological reasons—there has not been one time during this disastrous season for "the club" when Sam considered giving his manager the heave-ho. And, as one St. Louis writer recently put it, the Cardinals should be going after Frisch, instead of Frisch asking for a new contract. The former is what Breadon is going to do.

This information came to the writer in the wake of the latest Branch Rickey-Dizzy Dean verbal dart throwing. Rickey became embroiled with Diz again, September 8, when he declared that the great pitcher of other years, who had won only one game since July 4—and that a shaded victory—might do himself and the club a favor by going into voluntary retirement for a year. Rickey's remarks were made just before Dizzy suddenly decided to pitch against the Cubs in Chicago the same afternoon. He lost a 4 to 0 decision because his mates couldn't do a thing but wave their caps at Larry French's southpaw tantalizers.

The Rickey inference was that Dizzy, who is suffering from bursitis of the throwing arm and pig tee-itis, or something, was not displaying the proper attitude toward the club. In plain words B.R. said: "I believe Dizzy would be better off physically and mentally if he would quit now and remain out of base ball all of 1938. I know our prospects for rebuilding would be better off without him. I am sincere in that statement. I made it last spring when Dean tried to bluff us with his application for retirement. And I make it again."

HASTINGS

CLERKS DEADLOCK SOFTBALL FINALS

HASTINGS, Sept. 16.—The Clerks evened up the local softball finals last night (Wednesday), when they took a hard-fought 7 to 4 decision from Elgin. It was featured by the pitching of Gordon Gibson, on the mound for the Clerks, as he blanked Elgin after the first innings.

The Clerks scored their first runs in the third innings when Calbery, the first batter, tripled to centre, and scored on Wilson's single. Wilson went to third on an error and scored on L. Gibson's single. Gibson went to third when Crate was safe on an error, and scored on a passed ball for the third Clerks' run. After a scoreless fourth, the Clerks opened up again in the fifth. J. Gibson singled, went to third when Crate was safe on an error, and both runners scored on G. Gibson's double. Whitred scored G. Gibson with a single to left. Their final run was scored when G. Gibson singled; stole second and scored on an overthrow.

Elgin scored all four of their runs in the first innings. J. Preston was safe on an error and raced to third on Scott's single. G. Richardson then singled, scoring Preston and sending Scott to third. Roy Richardson sent a long single to centre, scoring Scott and G. Richardson, and took second on the throw to the plate. He scored Elgin's fourth and final run when Fleming singled.

The feature of the game was Gord. Gibson's pitching, as he mowed down the Elgin batters after the first innings. He had the bases loaded in the fifth and eighth innings, but retired the side without any runs being scored. He allowed 8 hits, struck out 7, and walked 3. Jack Richardson, the Elgin pitcher, allowed 10 hits. He failed to strike out any and passed none. Roy Richardson, Elgin shortstop, featured the fielding while L. Gibson of the Clerks led the hitters with three safeties in five times up. The third game will be played Friday.

The teams:

Road Trips Nothing To Worry About, Says Pilot Bill Terry

New York Leader Almost Gay At The Thought Of Going Away

Shanghai is almost a shambles, the Spanish fandango is still going on, and you may be out on strike, so you might possibly have overlooked the fact that the National League pennant race will be won and, of course, lost within the next fortnight.

During that time the New York Giants will be on the road, exposing their none-too-secure advantage in a 17-game tour that will keep them away from the Polo Grounds until Sept. 26, one week before the season ends.

Their jaunt, begun at Brooklyn, takes them to Boston, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, St. Louis, and Chicago. (And there, citizens, should be a series what am a series, a crooecial set-to to end all crooecial set-tos, since the Cubs have apparently out the brakes on and are aiming to dig in for a fight to the finish.)

The experts view the Giants' road trip with alarm. They wag their heads sympathetically, cluck a couple of tut-tuts, and allow as how it's going to be tough sledding for the boys. The experts, you see, seem to think that pennants are won at home and lost on the road.

Terry Almost Gay Going Away

Mr. Will Terry, who has gallantly and generously volunteered to pilot the Giants for another five years at only $40,000 a season, refuses to share the experts' alarm.

He embarked on the trip almost gally, if Mr. Webster doesn't object to such a free use of the word in connection with the sour Mr. Terry, "Why should I worry about a road trip?" says Mr. Terry. "In the first place, my team is stronger now than it has been at any time this year. In the second place, those fellows of mine have had too tough a fight to get up there where they are to bog down now. They'll be tougher than ever to beat now.

"And, in the third place, I don't believe playing games away from home makes such a big difference as so many people think. A good team will win no matter where it plays. It's the pitchers and hitters and breaks that win ball games—not the schedule makers.

"And, as a matter of fact, I think the records sort of indicate that a pennant-bound team does best on the road. Look...

"In 1933, we won while we were out west. In 1934, we lost out to the Cardinals in a series at the Polo Grounds—right in our own home field. In 1935, the Cubs turned the tables on the Cards and beat them out right in St. Louis. And last year we just about clinched the pennant, didn't we, by swamping the Cubs in Chicago?"

Chicago Series Looks Interesting

Terry thinks his two southpaws—the mighty Carl Hubbell and the flighty Cliff Melton—should prevent any trouble in Pittsburgh; Cincinnati, he thinks, will take care of itself; St. Louis is almost helpless without an able-bodied Dizzy Dean and Pepper Martin; and Chicago—well, now, there's where he might have a time of it.

The Cubs have shown definite signs of recovery in the last few days—French is winning again, Lee finally got over that No. 13 victory, Gabby Hartnett is in stride and Ripper Collins should be on hand by the time the big series comes up.

"But," says Mr. Terry, "even if we do lose some ground out west we still have time to make it up back home. Although we've only a week left to play after we come east again, we have 11 games and we ought to win most of them since they are with Brooklyn, Boston and the Phillies."

All of which practically convinces us that it's going to be a Nickel Series again, although we won't give a dime for the Giants' chances against those Yankees.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

THIS IS THURSDAY, September 16, and we know that to most persons it means nothing else, but to us who are interested in summer sports it means that the season for playing our favorite sport is just about at an end. Maybe a couple of more Friday nights and our week-end tournaments will be wound up. We could give a lengthy report on activities of the past season but we would like to deal with one phase of lawn bowling and that is the system or systems under which lawn bowling tournaments are conducted.

AS WE GO AROUND to the different clubs on Wednesday afternoons to play in tournaments, the first thing that draws your attention, after you have made your entry and paid yor fee is the system under which this particular tournament is being conducted. It is quite correct to say that each club reserves the right to run their tournament as they see fit and we agree but we are offering a suggestion. How would it work out if each club was to send a committee of two or three men who are thoroughly conversant with running tournaments to a central point and have a round table discussion and probably adopt a system that would become standardized. No doubt many good points would be advanced by different delegates and ideas would be adopted that would do away with the confusion that has been so prevalent this past season. As we see it now in this district you have to spend half of the afternoon studying the system before you get the idea. We hope that some of the clubs will write us and maybe something can be done to eliminate all this unnecessary wasting of time and we believe the boys would enjoy the games better if they knew that there would be a fixed rule under which all tournaments would be run.

TONIGHT (Thursday) our club doubles commence and we expect a big attendance...Tomorrow (Friday) our men's weekly tournament starts at 7.30 p.m....Down at Campbellford on Wednesday afternoon, R. Bacon and Dr. Lawrence walked off with the first prize at the men's doubles tournament. Twenty-six entries from all round the district competed, our boys received auto rugs.

J. McTague of Cobourg came first in the mixed rinks tourney held in Cobourg on Wednesday, winning all three games with a total of 36 points and a plus of one. Second was T. J. Watson of Cobourg, and third was W. Felker of Toronto. Fifteen rinks took part in the tourney, coming from Toronto, Havelock, Cobourg, Port Hope and Peterborough.

BEARS HANG UP SECOND VICTORY CHIEFS' SERIES

NEWARK, N.J., Sept. 16.—It's 12 years since New York Giants went shopping for a second baseman. They were lucky then. Tony Lazzeri came up from Salt Lake City and helped Miller Huggins' wrecking crew win the first of three straight pennants in 1926. A dozen years after Lazzeri broke into print by hitting 60 homers for Salt Lake, the Yanks are out shopping and again they're lucky.

For Joseph Lowell Gordon, who is doing his best to turn the semi-final Governors' Cup series between Newark Bears and Syracuse Chiefs into a rout, is one of Col. Ruppert's hired help.

The 22-year-old Californian hit his second homer of the series and added a double for good measure to lead the Bears' attack as they knocked off the Chiefs in the second game of their four out of seven series, last night, 7-2, and made it two straight.

That is cheering news for the Colonel and Marse Joe McCarthy. Of the stars who play for Newark, none is potentially more valuable to the Yanks than Gordon, who next year will replace Lazzeri.

In two games Gordon has stolen most of the glory of the play-offs for Baltimore and Montreal, twice rained out, have yet to get under way.

Atley Donald, the young right-hander, who reeled off a string of 14 straight at the beginning of the season, stopped the Chiefs with nine hits.

Mountaineers Need Two Straight Wins

MIMICO, Ont., Sept. 16.—(CP)—Mimico's Mountaineers were still in the hunt to-day for the Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior title, but must take two straight games from the champion Orillia Terriers to win the crown.

Mimico scored their first win last night in the best-of-five series after Orillia had won the two opening battles. The Mountaineers' 13-9 margin was well earned, the home team outplaying the Dominion titlists most of the way.

The fourth game of the series will be played in Orillia Friday and a fifth, if necessary, on neutral territory, probably Toronto.

Feller Strikes Out 12 To Silence Yankee Bats

The big siege guns of the New York Yankees were silenced to a certain extent in a recent game between the American league leading Yanks and the Cleveland Indians. Bob Feller, 18-year-old pitching sensation with the Indians, struck out twelve of the Yanks' heavy hitters to give the Indians a 4-2 victory. He is seen at RIGHT as he changed his perspiration soaked shirt after his 12th strikeout of the game. The Indian's trainer, Lefty Weisman is seen assisting him in his changeover. The player on the LEFT is Larrupin' Lou Gehrig, who has just taken a hefty cut at the ball for strike three. Feller struck out the "iron man" three times during the game and let him get on base once with a walk. Feller is American league strike-out champion and co-holder of the major leagues' record of 17 strike outs.

Harry Danning Responsible For Giants Victory March

Relief Catcher Snapped Terry's Pitching Staff Out Of Doldrums

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—In the baseball business to-day, they're saying the luckiest thing that happened to the Giants this year was the injury that put their first-string catcher, Gus Mancuso, in the hospital back in July.

If Gus hadn't been laid up with a broken finger, the Giants never would have "found" Harry Danning—who had been warming the Giant bench for over six years.

And if they hadn't come across Harry, sitting there minding his own business day after day, it is doubtful the Giants would be up there sporting a 2½-game lead for the National league pennant to-day.

Harry is the hero of the piece because of the way he has brought the right-handed department of the Giants' pitching staff out of the doldrums, and because he's been waving that big bat of his in rival hurlers' faces till they're scared to death of him.

When Mancuso went on the shelf, Danning had to take over. It was either him or the bat boy. And from the moment he put on his mask and pad, the pitching began to look up.

Pepped Up Pitching Staff

For instance there were Prince Hal Schumacher and Harry Gumbert, who had been about as much use as a couple of bats with holes in them. But since Harry began handling them, Schumacher has started nine games, completed seven and won six, while Gumbert has taken half a dozen decisions.

Schumacher did it again with Danning yesterday. He turned in a neat nine-hit effort while his mates clubbed the Pirates 7-2. Since the Cubs also won their game, taking a 5-2 decision from the Bees behind Curt Davis' six-hitter, the pennant situation remained as was, in this form:—

	Won	Lost	Games Behind	To Play
Giants	81	52	...	21
Cubs	80	56	2½	18

over the Tigers. They split a twin bill Cleveland Indians, taking the nightcap 3-1 with Monte Pearson pitching a four-hitter, while the Tribe came through 5-4 in the 10-inning opener, although Bob Feller was belted to the showers. The Tigers won their single game with the strength of a three-run rally in the ninth.

The White Sox got to Lefty Grove and topped the Red Sox 5-3. The Athletics took their opener 8-2 from St. Louis, but dropped the nightcap 3-1 as Bill Trotter won his first victory of the year.

Cincinnati Reds routed the Dodgers 6-0 in their opener, and then dropped the afterpiece, 8-5. The Phillies and Cardinals went 13 innings to a 6-6 draw before darkness halted the proceedings.

GERMAN STAR BEATS BUDGE

LAKE FOREST, Ill., Sept. 16.—Red-headed Donald Budge of Oakland, Calif., was defeated yesterday for the first time since he won the National Singles Tennis championship and the crown at Wimbledon this summer.

Renner Henkel, Germany's great doubles player, subdued the Californian in straight sets, 6-4, 10-8, in an international match at Onwentsia Club. Budge overcame a five-love advantage to even the second set at six-all, but then he was unable to cope with Henkel's accurate baseline drives.

Baron Gottfried von Cramm, German Davis Cup star and second ranking player in the world, came from behind to defeat Bobby Riggs, National Clay Court titleholder, Los Angeles, 2-6, 8-6, 6-4.

Senorita Anita Lizana, winner of the United States singles championship at Forest Hills last week, defeated Gracyn Wheeler, Santa Monica, Calif., 10-8, 7-5. Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, Poland, and Marie Horn, Germany, called off their match in the second set because of darkness. The Polish star had won the first set 6-4. Riggs and Wayne Sabin, California, defeated Charles Hare and G. Patrick Hughes, English Davis Cup team, 6-0, 6-4.

SUNDERLAND CLUB WINS FIRST GAME

SUNDERLAND, Sept. 16. — In the first game of the second-round O.B.A.A. Intermediate C playdowns here yesterday, Sunderland defeated Napanee 3 to 1 in a brilliant hurling duel between Switzer of the visitors and Lefty Junkin.

Junkin held the enemy to four scattered hits and shut out Napanee after allowing one run in the first inning. Sunderland won the game in the eighth when Tompkins doubled and came home on Johnson's triple. The latter scored as Hamilton beat out an infield safety. The play of St. John at shortstop for Sunderland featured the game.

You can get a pretty good idea of how important the feet are in making any kind of shot when you consider the rule that no part of your swing can be any better than your ankle action. If the ankles are tense the wrists will be tense, and your whole body will be handicapped throughout the swing.

Tension in the ankles means tension in the whole body. And the ankles will be tense whenever the feet are in an uncomfortable position. Such things as rocks and even small pebbles under the feet will make them uncomfortable. You may not notice a pebble or two under foot until you have made your swing, and even then you probably will blame the errors in your swing on your faulty wrist action or something far removed from the real cause.

If you have any doubt in your mind as to these small objects being the cause of so much trouble just place a couple of wooden tees under either foot before you start your swing. You'll find that the shot is different in one way or another. Your swing, under these conditions, will not be as smooth, powerful or as accurate as it would be without the obstructions under foot.

How are you to avoid them? Simply by kicking them out of your way, or if you are on the teeing ground, by placing the ball where your feet will be comfortable.

Montreal Rugby Officials Worried Over Disappearance Of Jim Allen

MONTREAL, Sept. 16 (CP)—These Montreal Indians are as mysterious as a magician's tricks.

First there was Pop Poplowsky, a native Montrealer who got away with his little scheme for two weeks of being known as Aloysius D'Oape. Pop told the officials of the Big Four he was a United States footballer from "La Salle university in Utah."

Now nobody can fathom the disappearance of halfback Jim Allen. Allen, a Montreal boy who gained his football fame with Dartmouth University in the United States, hasn't shown up for a practice during the last week and Indian officials are beginning to worry. All they know about the case is that Allen is reported "out of town."

While the Indians wondered about Allen, Coach Ted Reeve had his Queen's University students out for the first time this season. About 25 players reported and Reeve started to whip them into shape for the college's first exhibition game Sept. 25 with Toronto's big four Argonauts.

At London, Coach Bill Storen received good word when Wally Hilton and Fred Smith, members of last year's team, made an appearance at the workout. Hilton plays outside and on the halfline, while Smith works at middle wing.

Coach Doug Kerr, faced with the problem of finding a booter, tried out Cam MacArthur last night and seemed satisfied with the big McGill blond's showing.

Joyner White, Tigers—Drove in two runs to beat Senators, 4-3.

Hal Schumacher, Giants —Allowed nine hits in beating Pirates 7-2.

Rip Radcliffe, White Sox—Drove in two runs in 5-3 win over Red Sox.

Almon Williams, Athletics, and Bill Trotter, Browns— Williams pitched seven-hitter for 8-2 opener win; Trotter fanned four, allowed seven hits to take nightcap 3-1.

MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER 35

INSTANTLY when she had asked if Mr. Sutherland would accompany Mari on her trip, Miss Higgins regretted it. Certainly she hadn't meant to say it ever. Except that the girls, the mannequins, everyone had thought that Mr. Sutherland was...

Well, it was Mr. Sutherland who had done everything. He was the rich man...and Madame, as they all knew, had been an obscure, penniless person...and it was Mr. Sutherland who always came when there were decisions to be made...and Mr. Sutherland who was always her escort...and only yesterday Mr. Sutherland had brought the travel folders to Madame's office.

Miss Higgins' ears burned and a flush rose unhappily in her plain face. She wished she were back home in Kansas City. Not for anything in the world would she have embarrassed Madame.

A sardonic smile flitted about the corners of Mari's lips. She could read every thought in her secretary's anguished mind at the moment. She marvelled at her own stupidity for not having read it before. And all the others? Perhaps even Ellen Verlaine. They must all have thought the same thing. It wasn't possible in the sophisticated world in which she moved for them to think otherwise.

In these years past, all who had known her had known Mark. They had seen his unconscious possessiveness, the natural familiarity which marked his manner toward her. All who knew her—and many who didn't—knew the poverty of her beginning, her swift rise to success. It was the way of the world to look for a person and not for the chance that had skyrocketed that success.

Strangely enough, the sudden realization that others had interpreted their relationship as obviously as they had did not disturb her. Mariborat was a woman of the world. She dismissed the thought as of little importance.

If she had been an apprentice in Anetka's little shop on the Left Bank, it would have disturbed her into action. But she was Mariborat and what Mariborat did required no explanations. She would not even trouble to correct the impression.

Matter-of-factly she said, "No, the tickets are for you and me. We both need a vacation and we'll get it but we'll clear up several matters that we don't seem to be able to get to. Now send Apfel to me." Apfel was her head tailor. "I'll want some slacks and pajamas and that sort of thing."

To Larry Holk she said, "Larry, this is going to be a vacation. Friends, enemies, physicians have been urging me to have one for the good of my soul for years. But the reason I'm doing it is for the good of my business. I'm no more interested in lolling on the Riviera than I am in leading a parade, but I find myself suggesting brown for Mrs. Jessup and I know I need a rest when I do things like that."

"Great," Larry answered. "We'll get you a villa at Nice. Now, let's see who's there. I can arrange..."

Mari interrupted him with a very sweet smile. "You can arrange a vacation for yourself, my fine friend, as far from the Riviera as possible. I am going there as Mary Barrett, private citizen. I will not pose for so much as a snapshot for my best friends. I am not going to be a dressmaker while I'm away. And if anyone asks me about lines or color, I shall have a complete lapse of memory."

Larry swallowed his disappointment. The girl was a fool to turn down a break like that. Everyone was on the Riviera in January. She could do herself no end of good if she'd let him manage things for her.

On the other hand, she could do herself a lot of harm. He admitted to himself instantly that there was slight likelihood of that. Mari wasn't the kind of woman who would get herself into any mischief, go seeking adventure, trying to live her own life after the fashion of a lot of American girls he knew.

Then what was she up to?

Discreetly, he said he thought he'd run up to Switzerland if she really meant all she said.

The night express roared toward Marseilles.

Mari took off her close, confining hat and leaned her head wearily against the linen covered chair-back in her compartment. She closed her eyes, wishing she was seeing the new country yto which she was fleeing from herself.

"I wish I'd got away before," she murmured. She was thinking that this was the first time in longer than she could remember that she had had a feeling of anticipation. She had known triumph and excitement, but this was different. She had a pervading sense that something pleasant and happy was going to happen to her.

Sitting there with her eyes closed, she tried to remember what clothes she had brought. Things that made her look younger than she felt. There was the expensive casual items, the white flannels and beautifully handknitted things, the simple little daytime frocks that would have cost her clients about $100 apiece, the handsome evening clothes and her short ermine cape. In her jewel box there was the short string of real pearls she had bought as an investment, the longer strings of synthetic pearls that gave her such elegance. There was also the diamond clip that M. Choiseul had given her "on behalf of the grateful committee" on the anniversary of the opening of her shop. There was the diamond bracelet that Mark had given her for her birthday. "But, Mark, can I take it?"

"It's my very first vacation," she said loud enough for Letitia Higgins to hear.

Letitia closed her book, made certain once more that she had all the necessary papers. They were soon due at their stop.

"I had a vacation once," she said. "At camp."

"Fun?"

"Sprained ankle, icy water, lumpy food. Mosquitos. Athletic girls and poetic men."

"Umm. Well, it may not be that way here."

Letitia opened her book. "It says here, that foreign drinks such as gin or whiskey should be avoided here, as in other parts, since they are apt to be potent and homemade and the prices are often higher than in the most luxurious bars in Paris. The French book beer is, however, cheap and..."

Mari reached over calmly and took the book out of the girl's hands.

"Bock beer. You talk of such things, Letitia. We are going to see tropical flowers and cypresses against a star-hung sky, hear the Mediterranean lull us to sleep, perhaps...who knows...we may find more beautiful things?"

Letitia permitted herself a giggle.

It was at that precise moment that the train came to a stop. Mari looked at her watch. There were still three hours to go. She settled back in her corner.

Then, minutes later, she bade Letitia open the door of their compartment in answer to a knock.

"So sorry," the nicest southern voice Mari had ever heard came from the other side of the door. "I wonder if you ladies would permit me to finish the journey in your compartment? There's been an accident in mine...and..."

Mari called out, "Certainly."

Before she saw him, she saw his "gear"—the not unfamiliar collection of paint boxes and portable easel.

He was tall, slim, fair and he said he was Alec Garland, "from Atlanta, Ga., U.S.A., Ma'am."

VIVA LOSES TOW

BOSTON, Sept. 16—(AP).—Coast Guard headquarters here today reported the yacht Viva radioed that Endeavor I, which she was towing back to England after the international class J sloop races, had broken her tow line 170 miles east of Nantucket, but did not need aid.

Coast guard officials said the Viva advised headquarters here that she lost her tow at midnight Monday.

The Viva's captain, coast guard officers said, apparently was not apprehensive for the big sloop's safety.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S READING

"Baby Bunty, will you please see who is at the door?" asked Uncle Wiggily who was teaching in the Hollow Tree School.

"Oh, Unkie Wig!" spoke the orphan rabbit and she almost used more baby talk words than she was allowed. Because it was rather startling to hear a loud knock at the door and not know who was on the other side and then to be told to open the door.

"Don't be afraid, Baby Bunty," said Mr. Longears kindly. "Open the door and invite in whoever is there."

"But—Unkie Wig—maybe it's a Bad Chap!" said Bunty.

"I wouldn't tell you to open the door if a Bad Chap had knocked, my dear," said Uncle Wiggily kindly. "Don't be afraid."

So Baby Bunty wasn't afraid and went to the door. She noticed that from where Uncle Wiggily sat in the chair of Miss Mouse, he could look out the window and see who had knocked.

Visitor

Surely enough, Baby Bunty need not have been frightened. For no sooner had she opened the door than fat, jolly Mr. Twistytail, the gentleman pig friend of Uncle Wiggily, waddled in.

"I thought I would visit the school and see how my Curly, Floppy and Baby Squealer are doing their work," said Mr. Twistytail. "But where is Miss Mouse?" he quickly asked when he saw Uncle Wiggily at the teacher's desk.

"She is ill in the hospital, Twisty," said Mr. Longears. "But come in. We're glad to have you visit the school where I am teaching."

"You teaching?" grunted the jolly fat pig.

"Why not?" asked Uncle Wiggily twinkling his pink nose. There was something in Mr. Twistytail's grunt he didn't like. "Don't you think I can teach school, Twisty?" asked the rabbit.

"Oh, I suppose so. Only you look sort of—well—funny."

"What's funny about me?" asked Mr. Longears.

"Well, the way you twinkle your pink nose for one thing," said Mr. Twistytail. "It really is very jolly! Ha! Ha! Ha!"

Tells Why

Then Uncle Wiggily laughed and so did the animal children and there was a very jolly time for a while. Once Wiggily told the fat pig how Miss Mouse was in the hospital because some fox boys had mauled her at camp and then the new school teacher said:

"We must get busy with our reading lesson first. I shall read you a little story and then you shall tell it back to me. I will see how good your memories are. Are you going to stay, Twisty?"

"Yes, I'll stay and help you teach school," grunted the pig.

Uncle Wiggily started the reading lesson. He read a story about a rabbit boy who wouldn't mind his mother when she told him to be watchful of traps baited with carrot.

"And one day," read Uncle Wiggily, "that little rabbit boy saw a lovely carrot in a box. He hopped in, started to nibble the carrot and, before he knew it, he was caught. The box was a trap baited with carrot. That was the first part of the reading lesson.

"Now, Buster, let me hear you tell me that story," said Mr. Longears. Buster rose in his seat and began:

"Once upon a time there was a Fox—"

"No! No!" cried Uncle Wiggily.

"Yes! Yes!" insisted Buster. "Look out the window!" Surely enough there was the Fox peering in.

And what he wanted you shall be told in the next story which will be about Uncle Wiggily's writing. That is if the Bumble Bee doesn't take the dish of strawberry jam and try to spread it on a slice of watermelon.

MONKEY OWNER FIGHTS TOWN BAN

RICHELIEU, Que., Sept. 16 (CP). —Municipality of Richelieu and Leonide Gingras were at odds today over two monkeys and a good-sized black bear.

For several years the animals were an attraction at a garage and refreshment stand owned by Gingras, but the municipality decided last year they should go and in June adopted a by-law prohibiting the keeping of live "wild animals" in municipality limits.

Yesterday suit was started in Superior Court by Gingras asking the by-law be annulled, on grounds it was ultra vires. Gingras claims the animals amuse the public and give the municipality a certain amount of publicity.

The municipality contends the by-law is for the public good and many citizens of the village on the south shore of the Richelieu River, a short distance from Montreal, were frightened by the animals and that some persons have been slightly injured by them.

"MY HANDS ARE FREE—MY DUTY IS CLEAR, AND I AM DETERMINED TO COLLECT EVERY DOLLAR OWING TO THE PROVINCIAL TREASURY"

—Hon. Earl Rowe

CONTRAST this clear-cut, forthright statement by Hon. Earl Rowe with the blustering, changeable promises of Premier Hepburn.

At the time of the East Hastings by-election, Mr. Hepburn claimed 20 million dollars in Succession Duties outstanding. A few weeks later, he changed his figure to 50 millions. Within the last few days, he raised it to 75 millions.

Will he call it 100 millions by election day?

Now Examine the FACTS

Ontario's collection of Succession Duties during the three years of Hepburn rule (on a tide of rising prosperity which has increased the value of estates) has been only $31,445,538.35 to date.

The previous Conservative Government, during the four years—1930 to 1934 inclusive—of the worst depression Canada has ever known, collected $34,952,198.00. In one year, 1930, when markets were crashing in the plunge of the depression, this Conservative Government collected $11,229,438—practically the same as the Hepburn Government collected in 1936 when bond and stock values were booming.

READ THESE FIGURES

To refute once and for all the Hepburn attempt to stamp Conservative Governments as the aiders and abettors of big tax evaders, here are the figures of Succession Duty collections in Ontario from 1930 to date:

	Year	Succession Duties Collected
Conservative Govt.	1930	$11,229,438.00
" "	1931	9,504,814.00
" "	1932	6,136,624.00
" "	1933	8,081,322.00
" "	1934	6,515,071.00
Hepburn Govt.	1935	3,469,467.00 (8 month period)
" "	1936	11,984,720.55
" "	1937	15,991,350.80

Why Isn't Hepburn FRANK?

When Premier Hepburn boasts of collecting evaded Succession Duties, he should be frank enough to state that this has only become possible because of legislation passed in Ottawa by a Conservative Government in 1933—legislation that made it possible for the first time to check on the holdings of the large estates.

The previous Ontario Government, thus armed, as the records will show, had already started to collect evaded taxes.

THE FOLLY OF HOLLOW BOASTING

Thinking people will recognize Premier Hepburn's hollow boasting and misrepresentation about Succession Duties for what it is—an effort to side-track the real issues of the election. Mr. Hepburn wishes to confuse the issues because he dare not face the electors on his record of betrayal of all classes and creeds, his forty million dollar tax increase and his one hundred million dollar increased public debt.

C.I.O. LEADER ISSUES THREAT TO THE C.G.E.

Declaring the Canadian General Electric management is practising intimidation and using unfair tactics to prevent organization of workers in the Peterborough C.G.E. into the C.I.O. United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, C. S. Jackson, international vice-president of the union and prominent international C.I.O. leader, said here today strike trouble may result.

"In view of the present tactics of the company there is a likelihood of serious repercussions setting in," Jackson said. "The tactics of intimidation and coercion if continued will undoubtedly result in a spontaneous reaction on the part of employees, which would be damaging to all concerned."

Appealed To Workers.

The Electrical Union organizer has been in the city since August, and states he started a drive to organize workers in the C.G.E. into his union two weeks ago. Yesterday he supervised distribution of a thousand sheets containing union appeals to workers leaving the plant.

Asked for specific details of his complaint against the company management, the C.I.O. leader said he came to this city to organize the C.G.E. after between 150 and 200 spontaneous requests from C.G.E. workers had been received. In the face of this free desire of employees to be organized, the company is taking recourse to unfair tactics against the union in depleting the union as unnecessary to workers in the plant, in depicting the union organizers as vultures preying on the pay envelopes of the workers, and in outright threats of discharge for union activity, he claimed.

Asked whether the union has gained any considerable membership, Jackson said definite progress has been made. He declined to state figures.

Not Many Signed Up.

Inquiries by The Examiner directed to a number of C.G.E. workers today brought opinions that the C.I.O. has yet only a very few members signed up in the C.G.E. here, not enough to call a strike in even one department of the company. The workers said they had no knowledge of any instance of intimidation by the company.

Jackson said his union has between 18,000 and 20,000 G.E. workers in the United States on its rolls, and that 13 out of 15 American G.E. plants have collective bargaining recognition.

"In our campaigns we at all times conduct things with an eye to peaceful relations between the union and the company," he stated. "If there is any trouble it will be the company's fault."

SIR JAMES BARRIE LEAVES $867,335

LONDON, Sept. 17 (AP) — Sir James Barrie, novelist and playwright who died June 19, amassed a fortune of $867,335, probate of his will showed today.

The largest gifts listed in the will were to Lady Cynthia Asquith, his secretary, and to Peter Davies, his adopted son who inspired the story of "Peter Pan."

One of the bequests was of $10,000 to actress Elisabeth Bergner for "the best performance ever given in any play of mine." Presumably the author referred to her work in "The Boy David," which opened in London last December.

Sir James left $150,000 and all rights to his plays and books other than "Peter Pan" to Lady Cynthia. Davies was given $30,000. After other bequests are taken out, the remainder of his estate is to be divided equally between Davies and Lady Cynthia. The rights to "Peter Pan" previously had been transferred to a London hospital for sick children.

The author's personal effects, manuscripts, books and papers will be divided among friends. He left instructions that "I urgently desire that all my private letters be destroyed."

One of the bequests was of $5,000, with an annuity of $3,500, for "my dear Mary Cannon," Sir James' former wife.

Friends revealed that she now is "Mary Cannan," wife of novelist Gilbert Cannan, and that the different spelling probably was an error. Barrie's marriage was dissolved 26 years ago.

It occurred as violent storms swept the North Atlantic and the British Isles.

William Johnson Is Named C.C.F. Candidate

Third Man Entered Provincial Contest Peterborough Riding

Industrial Worker Nominated As C. C. F. Candidate In Provincial Election

A third candidate tossed his hat into the Peterborough election ring when William Johnson, local industrial worker, was chosen unanimously to carry the C.C.F. banner in the Peterborough riding in the Provincial election at a nomination convention in the Moose Hall last night. Two hundred attended the convention.

Dr. Lorna Cotton-Thomas, vice-president of the Provincial C.C.F. organization, and long the leader of the Federation in Peterborough, endorsed the candidate as "the hardest worker in the constituency." He is a charter member of the local club. Proposed by Harry Shearer and Mike English, recently prominent as chairman of the Auburn and Bonner-Worth strike, Johnson's was the only name placed before the meeting.

Foreman machinist at the Peterborough Machine and Lubricator Company operated by Alderman Roland Wilson, Mr. Johnson is 51 years of age. He was born in Newcastle-on-Tyne, and has lived here more than twenty years. He is vice-president of the Peterborough C.C.F. Club and has been a member of the club's executive since it was formed in 1934.

In a brief speech of acceptance, the candidate declared: "We hold the C.C.F as more than a political party. We hold it to be a great ideal." He pledged his word that his campaign will be free of mud slinging. He said that, after listening to Earl Rowe, Conservative leader, he was convinced there is not an honest man in the Liberal ranks and that Premier Hepburn had convinced him the Conservatives are all likewise dishonest.

"When people call you as C.C.F. members crazy idealists you can let the 'idealist' stand but not the word 'crazy,' he declared. He pointed to Sweden and New Zealand as examples of countries where that same idealism has prospered.

Dr. Cotton-Thomas.

Dr. Cotton-Thomas served as chairman of the short and business-like convention. In the principal address of the evening, she outlined the C.C.F. Provincial platform on which the party is to stand on October 6.

"We must recognize the fact that even as feudalism passed away so is the economic system of our fathers breaking up," she said. She said the only possible system to replace it is that of a co-operative commonwealth built step by step without bloody revolution. In Canada such a result can be obtained only on a federal scale with the assistance of the Provincial legislatures, she said.

"We are completely democratic," she continued. "We do not believe in dictatorships, either Fascistic or Communistic." She said her party will appeal for a mandate to make Ontario a province of fair taxes, fair prices and fair wages.

Summing economic considerations in the C.C.F. platform, she said the party stands for drastic reduction of taxes on the property of farmers and home-owners, reductions in license fees on lower-priced cars, a balanced budget and a reduction in the Provincial debt made possible by immediate increases in succession duties, income tax on wealthy individuals and in the corporation profits tax. By such means it is possible to increase the Province's income by 65 million dollars a year "without, as Hepburn did, taking it out of the stomachs of those unfortunate people on relief," she claimed.

Fair Prices.

"Fair prices for farmers and consumers will be obtained by placing the monopolistic milling, packing,

COPELAND BEATEN IN BITTER BLOW TO TAMMANY HALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 17—(AP). — Tammany Hall, fighting for its life in a comeback effort, was set back on its heels in yesterday's primary election, when United States Senator Royal S. Copeland lost the Democratic Mayoralty nomination to Jeremiah T. Mahoney, pro-New Deal candidate.

It was a double defeat for the state's 69-year-old senior Senator, frequent critic of New Deal policies. He was swamped in the Republican primary by Mayor LaGuardia, who ousted Tammany four years ago as the spearhead of a fusion Reform movement.

Both LaGuardia and Mahoney carried their running mates on the city ticket to victory with them on the basis of incomplete returns. Unless the trend is upset the opposing tickets in the general election November 2 will present:

Republican—Mayor Fiorella H. LaGuardia; President of the City Council, A. Newbold Morris; Comptroller, Joseph D. McGoldrick.

Democratic—Mayor, Jeremiah T. Mahoney; President of the City Council, Max Schneider; Comptroller, Frank J. Taylor, incumbent.

Swamped in Four Boroughs

Copeland gained a wide margin in Manhattan, stronghold of Tammany, but was inundated by a tidal wave of ballots from the other four boroughs.

The city-wide result showed, out of a total of 3,797 elections districts, the following:

Democratic, 3,260 districts: Mahoney, 341,545; Copeland, 195,228; LaGuardia, 46,087.

Republican, 3,100 districts: LaGuardia, 64,449; Copeland, 37,719.

LaGuardia's showing in the Democratic Primary was one of surprising features of the election. His name was not on the ballot and the thousands of votes he obtained were the result of a last minute write-in campaign.

The outcome was bitter a blow to Tammany's new leadership, headed by Christopher Sullivan, and Alfred E. Smith, Tammany Sachem, as it was a sweet to the New Deal chieftains of the Boroughs of Brooklyn, The Bronx, Queen's, and Richmond.

Sullivan and the former Governor won the Tammany designation for Copeland over leaders friendly to the New Deal. The latter opposed the Senator because of his opposition to many Roosevelt policies and finally united on Mahoney as their last-minute choice.

As Mahoney and his supporters quickly hailed the result as a victory for President Roosevelt, who years ago as a young Senator fought Tammany, Copeland and Smith who took the stump for Copeland remained silent.

C.C.F. Holds Nominating Convention

Dr. Lorna Cotton-Thomas, vice-president of the provincial C.C.F. organization is seen in the above picture as she opened the proceedings at the C.C.F. nominating convention at Moose Hall on Thursday night. Secretary Gordon Powell is seated at desk, while William S. Johnson, the candidate is at the immediate left of the chair. Others on the platform are: Michael E. English and Stuart James, president of the Youth Group. SOLE BARGAINING AGENCY IS DEMAND U.A.W. UPON G.M.

DETROIT Sept. 17.—(AP)—United Automobile Workers of America to-day demanded of General Motors Corporation recognition as the sole collective bargaining agency for all employees in the Corporation's plants in the United States and Canada.

Ten other changes in the agreement it signed with General Motors following last winter's seven-week strike also were asked.

But despite the United Auto Workers' demand for International recognition, a General Motors spokesman said the Corporation's position that the existing agreement applies only to its workers in the United States, remains unchanged.

The Union's demand a revised agreement include also the Canadian employees is one of the subjects which will be discussed in the present negotiations. General Motors has steadfastly held that any Canadian negotiations must be conducted separately.

Charles Milliard, head of the Oshawa, Ont., local of the U.A.W.A., which closed the Oshawa plant of General Motors of Canada with a strike in April, attended the Union conference here.

Homer Martin U.A.W.A. president, notified company officials yesterday that the Board had approved a resolution providing that the Corporation "will discharge or otherwise discipline employees known to be or found guilty" of engaging in "wildcat" strikes.

Martin said the Union would ask for a general wage revision amounting to 10 cents an hour; vacations with pay for all workers and a seven-hour day and 35 hour week, with time and a half—and in some cases double time—for overtime.

DISCOVER WOMAN HURT ON TRACKS

OSHAWA, Ont., Sept. 17—(CP).—Critically injured about the head and chest, Jean Bartram, 35, formerly of Parkhill, was removed from beneath a Canadian Pacific freight train west of here last night. She suffered concussion, a deep scalp wound, and possibly a fractured skull, said Dr. F. J. Rundle. Several ribs were fractured and had pierced the lung. Dr. Rundle held hopes for her recovery.

The crew of a train saw the body lying between the rails as they approached Oshawa. The engineer tried to stop but did not succeed until the locomotive and several cars had passed over her.

The crew of the train believed their train had cleared her and that she must have been injured by a previous train.

Physicians from Ontario Hospital recognised her as a former patient of Ontario Hospital who was discharged three months ago.

She was boarding at a home in Whitby not far from the hospital.

Labor Congress To Avoid Party Dispute In U.S.

Call On Ottawa For State Production, Processing Distribution Of Life's Necessities

OTTAWA, Sept. 17.—(CP)—The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada to-day voted to maintain a status quo in its attitude towards the dispute between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization, pending outcome of a meeting between the Congress executive and that of the A. F. of L. at which an understanding on Congress affiliations will be sought.

The resolution passed after a debate of an hour and a half in which little opposition developed to the resolution a substitute brought in by th Resolutions committee for many others on the same subject of labor unity.

The Congress to-day voted to urge on governments in Canada a program of state production, processing and distribution of life's necessities and passed a resolution asking that the Quebec executives demand from the Provincial government the right for women to vote in Provincial elections.

The debate on relations with the Committee for Industrial Organization finally reached the floor.

The Resolutions Committee brought in a substitute for numerous other resolutions on the subject of labor unity, proposing the executive get in touch with both warring organizations, "offering their services in a mediatory capacity in the present dispute and to use every legislative effort to secure a meeting representative of both parties, with a view to bringing the present deplorable division in the ranks of labor to an end."

It also proposed the executive arrange a meeting with the executive council of the American Federation of Labor to outline the position of the Canadian Congress and seek a "clear and definite understanding regarding the continued affiliations with the Congress and other Canadian legislative bodies of our present affiliated organizations on terms acceptable to the international unions and thus avoid any disregard or defiance of their laws and policies."

It suggested "all affiliated international unions, provincial federations of labor and trades and labor councils be advised immediately such a meeting is being arranged and be requested to maintain the status quo pending the outcome of such negotiations or until the next Trades Congress convention.

PIRATE WARSHIPS, PLANES HUNTED

GENEVA, Sept. 17.—(CP-Havas).—The nine-power supplementary "anti-piracy" accords, providing for action against illicitly aggressive warships and planes in the Mediterranean, similar to that already put into force against submarines, were signed here to-night.

Originally scheduled for earlier in the day, the signing was postponed until to-night after a request by the Balkan Entente (Greece, Yugoslavia, Rumania and Turkey) that the new accords be outlined in more precise detail.

Three points were added to the accord signed at Nyon last week:

British and French warships on patrol in the Mediterranean are empowered to attack surface warships or aircraft which make piratical attacks against merchant vessels.

In the case of air attacks, the patrol ships will open fire immediately in an attempt to destroy the aircraft.

If the attacks are by surface naval vessels, the patrolling ships will "intervene" and summon additional assistance if required.

Police and Farmers Are Combing Bush Third Desperado

Fisher Goes Fishing Glad To Escape

Glace Bay, N.S., Sept. 17.

AFTER two escapes from maddened broadbills, George Lawrence is counting himself lucky.

The first time Lawrence went out in a dory to play with a swordfish that had been hapdooned. In an effort to free itself the fish plunged its 5ft-inch sword through one side of the boat.

Then another broadbill narrowly missed Lawrence when it drove its sword through the bottom of another dory.

Bandit And Squad Cars Hit By Bullets In Duel After Trenton Robbery

BRIGHTON, Ont., Sept. 17 (CP).—Two men were under arrest here to-day while police, aided by a posse of farmers searched surrounding bush country for a third after police and three gunmen in a stolen motor car exchanged shots in a 90-mile-hour chase along the highway near this town. Brighton is 15 miles south-east of Belleville on the Montreal-Toronto Highway.

Both captured men refused to give their names. The chase began at Trenton, where police were advised to watch for three men who broke into Picton Brewers' Warehouse and got away with several cases of beer.

Nine miles east of Trenton in the northern section of Brighton, the gunmen pulled their car into a lane and fled on foot. The first man was captured nearby. He was armed.

The second man, with a wounded right arm, was captured at nearby Colborne. It was not known how he injured his arm, but police said it was not a bullet wound.

During the highway chase, both bandit and police cars were hit by flying bullets.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 17—(CP).—One of two men captured after a running gun-fight with police gave his name as Fred Stevens of 239 Sherbourne street, Toronto, Police Inspector Frank Gardner said late to-day.

KIWANIS SUPPORT PROVINCIAL ROAD TO PORT PERRY

Members of the Kiwanis Club today pledged their support in efforts to have the provincial government take over the county road between Port Perry and Peterborough via Bethany and proceed at once with construction of that link in the Central Ontario Highways System.

By a unanimous standing vote the Kiwanians endorsed a resolution presented by Alderman James Dutton, president of the Central Ontario Highways Association, and also signed a petition requesting, "The Ontario Department of Highways to take over the county road between Port Perry and Peterborough, via Bethany, and proceed at once with construction of a provincial highway."

In speaking of the Orangeville-Peterborough highway project in which he has interested himself, Alderman Dutton declared that Peterborough was particularly interested in the completion of the link from Port Perry to connect with Highway 26 west of the city, for obvious reasons. One of the advantages, he pointed out would be a saving of eighteen miles between this city and Toronto and he thought the present time opportune to again press the matter because he had learned from a creditable source that the Premier and Minister of Highways were considering construction on some part of the system.

He intended, Alderman Dutton intimated to present the resolution from the association to other service clubs of the city and also to the local Chamber of Commerce with a view of getting the endorsation of those bodies before the resolution and petition were sent forward to Queen's Park.

REAR END SMASH KILLS 1, INJURES 3

CHATHAM, Ont., Sept. 17 (CP).—Leonard Davis, 24, Blythe, was killed, and three others injured, in a rear end motor car crash occurring on Highway eight miles east of Wheatley last midnight.

Roy Doherty, 30, of Blythe, suffered a fractured hip and was taken to Chatham hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Manson Gosnell, of R.R. No. 1, Wheatley, were taken to hospital at Leamington. Mr. Gosnell has a broken nose, and facial and body injuries. Mrs. Gosnell suffered a broken collar bone, cuts and bruises.

Davis received a fractured skull multiple cuts and bruises and died in Leamington hospital.

According to information obtained by Constable Jack Carpenter of Blenheim, the accident occurred close of the farm of Mr. Gosnell on No. 3 Highway. The couple was returning home, with Mr. Gosnell at the wheel. Noticing a fast travelling car coming from the rear, Mr. Gosnell hesitated to make the turn into the driveway of his farm, but, instead, decided to drive slowly along until the car had passed him. The car, allegedly driven by Doherty, smashed into the rear of Gosnell's car.

Davis was thrown through the windshield of Doherty's car. The force of the collision ripped off the end and the left side of the Gosnell car. The car driven by Doherty was wrecked.

Arrangements are being made for an inquest.

In a statement to police at the time of the accident Doherty gave the name of the dead man as Harry Johnson of London.

Interviewed later by Traffic Officer Carpenter, Doherty said the name of his companion was Leonard Davis, 24-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Davis of Blythe.

An inquest will be held Thursday at Wheatley.

SEEK ENDEAVOUR NOVA SCOTIA WAY

BOSTON, Sept. 17—(AP).—Four coast guard cutters to-day pointed their prows north-east to Nova Scotia as, in a fanwise formation, they scoured the sea for the missing British racing sloop Endeavour I and its crew of 19.

The cutters had searched unsuccessfully 200 miles east of Nantucket, where the Endeavour and her convoy, Viva, became separated when their towline broke in a gale last Monday night.

Meanwhile, Captain Wallace Grint, master of the Viva, which was towing the unsuccessful 1934 America's Cup challenger back to England, voiced fear that 15 fathoms of nine inch hawser attached to the Endeavour may have forced her nose under water.

The Viva, which put into Newport, R.I., Wednesday night, was considerably damaged during the blow which reached an estimated intensity of 106 miles an hour. Seafarers said the less sturdy Endeavour could not have escaped some damage.

Thebaud Skipper Wants Last Duel With The Bluenose

Acceptance Undecided As Champion Is Still Out On The Fishing Banks

HALIFAX, Sept. 17 (CP) — Supremacy of the North Atlantic fishing fleet, held by the staunch Nova Scotia schooner Bluenose and her Captain Angus Walters since 1921, was challenged today by the Gloucesterman Gertrude L. Thebaud.

Captain Ben Pine, owner of the American Banker defeated by the queen of the North Atlantic fleet off Halifax in the international tourney six years ago, sailed his craft back into Boston yesterday from Arctic adventures and said he wanted "one more try" at the champion.

The international champion, equipped with auxiliary engines, is out on the fishing banks and Captain Walters' reaction to the challenge could not be ascertained. The Bluenose is not expected back in Lunenburg until the end of the week at least.

But it was generally believed the Lunenburg skipper would be willing to defend his schooner racing laurels in a series as proposed by Captain Pine at the world fair at New York in 1939 if the race were "properly financed."

The Bluenose, undefeated in international races since she captured the trophy in 1921, and her younger challenger, Thebaud, have auxiliary engines that would have to be removed and new sailing gear rigged up before the two vessels would be ready for the series.

Duchess, 14 Trunks Full, 'Frockless' Wants Windsor To Shop In Paris

Vienna, Sept. 17.

THE Duchess of Windsor looked carefully through her 14 trunks of frocks and gowns and millinery and made up her mind she simply hasn't a thing to wear.

It's time to dash off to Paris to get a presentable dress or two, she suggested. The Duchess told a Vienna friend about the clothes crisis before the Windsors went to Nicholsburg, Czechoslovakia, yesterday for two days hunting.

Baroness Rochschild, long a friend of the Windsors, plans a trip to Paris shortly after the Windsors arrive at her castle at Enzesfeld, Austria, for a visit. The Duchess and Baroness, the friend said, feel they can get the Duke's consent for the Windsors to go along.

Queen's Head Raps Dr. Roberts On "No Prayers For Victory"

Claims Such Words Only For Some Who Sit By While Others May Be In Agony

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 17 (C.P.).—Dr. H. A. Kent, Principal of Queen's Theological College, to-day criticized an assertion by Rt. Rev. Richard Roberts, former Moderator of the United Church of Canada, that there will be "no prayers for victory in the next war."

Dr. Roberts, pastor of Sherbourne United Church, Toronto, made the statement on Wednesday at Hartford, Conn., in addressing the 30th Annual Pastors' Conference at Hartford Seminary.

"Dr. Roberts has no right to tell a United States audience that there will be no prayers for victory in the next war," said Dr. Kent. "What prayers are offered are between the soul and God. Men's hands may be and have been tied and their mouths closed by violence, but not even Hitler can stop pious Germans from praying.

"Words such as those reported to have been said by Dr Roberts are only possible in the mouth of someone who sits by while other people may be in agony.

"Dr. Roberts' words imply that there are no longer any moral issues between nations.

Fling Both Navies Into Chasing Subs From Ship Lanes

Non-intervention Pact Holds--Neutral Observers To Continue On All Vessels

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Sept. 17 (C.P. Cable).—The naval ring around Spain is ended. Great Britain and France, acting in concert, to-day notified members of the Spanish Non-intervention Committee that their warships engaged in patrolling the Spanish coast would be withdrawn. They will be employed in sweeping pirate submarines out of the Mediterranean.

The naval ring round Spain was part of the non-intervention scheme to prevent shipment of arms to Spain. The Spanish coastline was divided into sectors patrolled by Germany, Italy, France, and Great Britain. Germany and Italy withdrew, leaving gaps. The withdrawal of Great Britain and France now ends the ring completely.

Under the non-intervention agreement ships of signatory Powers proceeding to Spain still will be required to carry a neutral observer, who certifies that they are carrying no war material. The purpose of the naval patrol was to check up on incoming ships to see whether they had an observer on board.

Land control is now operating only along the Franco-Spanish frontier. Control along the Portuguese sector was suspended some time ago although the Portuguese gave assurance of full intention to respect the non-intervention agreement.

The Only Course

British circles emphasize that withdrawal from the Spanish naval patrol does not mean withdrawal from non-intervention. Great Britain is as firmly convinced as ever that non-intervention in Spain is the proper course.

But the Nyon agreement presents a more pressing problem. Since the withdrawal of Italy and Germany from the Spanish patrol, it is felt, the British navy can be more usefully assigned to making the Mediterranean highways safe for merchant shipping.

Destroyers withdrawn from round Spain will, therefore, be employed chasing pirate submarines from the middle sea. It is expected about 40 British destroyers will be thus employed. France holds the same views as Great Britain and takes the same course.

Now, observing eyes will closely watch Premier Mussolini's next move in Spain. Will he, as frequently rumored, send sufficiently large numbers of Italian "Legionnaires" to make victory for General Franco certain before winter. If he does, it is expected France will reply by throwing the Catalonia frontier open to shipments of munitions. Then the last effective non-intervention control will be brought to an end.

NO FURTHER TAXES MINING INDUSTRY PLEDGED BY ROWE

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., Sept. 17 (CP)—Northern Ontario farmers and the country's great mining industry will find support in the Conservative party if it attains power at the Oct. 6 Ontario elections, Hon. Earl Rowe told northern meetings yesterday. He made four addresses, at Cobalt, Haileybury, New Liskeard and Kirkland Lake.

Mr. Rowe, who speaks today at Huntsville and Parry Sound, said his policy would be to permit men to work for relief and at the same time develop their farms. "Cold blooded evictions" would cease and the farmers would receive a square deal "which you have not had for three years."

He was opposed to any further taxes on the mining industry, he said at Kirkland Lake. It would "defeat the purpose for which they are intended." The security frauds prevention act would be revised with the provision preventing appeal to the courts abolished.

He promised a modern highway from North Bay northward and inauguration of a constructive highway policy. His government would not only complete work on trunk roads "but we will give the farmers on the back concession a square deal," said Mr. Rowe.

Where Is The Money?

Premiums under the Workmen's Compensation Act had been increased, said Mr. Rowe and he wondered where this money was going. The worker who suffered illness should receive fair play under the act but this was not forthcoming at the present.

In brief reference to the Oshawa General Motors strike, the Conservative leader said the premier's attitude during the situation was the greatest "political bluff" Ontario witnessed. Mr. Rowe said at the time he understood "some of Mr. Hepburn's millionaire friends had

GERMAN SYSTEM USED BY HEPBURN C.C.F CHIEF CLAIMS

OSHAWA, Ont., Sept. 17 (C.P.).—John Mitchell, Leader of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation in Ontario, last night charged Premier Mitchell Hepburn with "campaigning for a German system of Government in Ontario." He claimed Premier's promise of unemployment insurance was a "smokescreen for his plan to suppress international unions such as the United Automobile Workers."

"The man who takes it upon himself to decide what kind of union you want is aping Hitler and Mussolini," said Mr. Mitchell in opening his campaign for the October 6 Ontario voting. "Hepburn did not get his trade union policy from Great Britain or Australia or New Zealand. He got it from Germany and Italy."

Mr. Mitchell challenged the Premier to reveal his trade union policy. Crushing defeat would meet Mr. Hepburn if he disclosed his trade union legislation. The C.C.F. Leader mentioned that the Premier had said he would license trade unions.

"If he grants licenses to the unions he likes and refuses licenses to the unions he does not like, he will no longer be a Prime Minister. He will be a dictator." Workers should

ONTARIO FINANCES IN ENVIABLE SHAPE IS HEPBURN BOAST

BEAVERTON, Ont., Sept. 17. —(CP).—As a result of the financial policies of the present government, Ontario occupies a more enviable position than "any other province in Canada or any state in the American Union." Premier Mitchell Hepburn said here last night.

He had no apologies for collecting more revenue, he said. But there was a difference between collecting revenue and increasing taxation, with which Conservative Leader Earl Rowe had charged him. Ontario's budget was balanced simply by providing sound business administration.

Ontario, he said, was enjoying industrial peace and steadily rising export trade, in contrast to disorder prevailing in the United States, which left American industry unable to guarantee delivery of goods outside the country.

Premier Hepburn warned the people of Ontario not to be deluded into thinking the Committee for Industrial Organization has abandoned its designs on Ontario. He claimed defeat of the Hepburn Government would be construed as a moral victory for John L. Lewis, C.I.O. head.

Where European Warships Patrol Mediterranean Sea

European powers, meeting at Nyon, Switzerland, on the "submarine piracy" crisis in the Mediterranean, have agreed on the allotted policing zones for each nation in an effort to track down the phantom craft. The map ABOVE shows the policing zones allotted to the various nations. British and French admirals in the Mediterranean have been ordered to put a formidable fleet of almost 100 warships into action following the signing of the anti-piracy pact by nine nations. The pact stipulates that naval forces of the participating nations will "counter-attack" any submarines attacking merchant ships, excepting those belonging to either of the Spanish parties now at war, contrary to international law.

SPAIN GRATEFUL FOR BLOOD-GIFT BY CANADIANS

MADRID, Sept. 17 (C.P.).—Loyalist Spain is loud in its praise of voluntary assistance given by sympathizers in foreign lands, but few contributions have been so universally lauded as the Canadian blood-transfusion clinic organized by Dr. Norman Bethune of Montreal.

Neither medals nor decorations are awarded for bravery or outstanding service in the Republican Army, but an officer of high rank declared Dr. Bethune and his staff deserved the everlasting gratitude [illegible] for the humanitarian work they had done.

During the recent absence in Canada of Dr. Bethune the work of the unit was under the direction of Hazen Sise of Montreal. Assisting him were Allen May, former Toronto and Regina newspaperman, and Henning Sorensen, a Dane formerly of Montreal.

Although there had been little sustained activity on the southern fronts the staff worked long hours during the summer months administering to victims of the Brunete offensive and civilians wounded by the intermittent shelling of Madrid.

Since the beginning of the year more than 1,200 transfusions have been given. Of this total, 621 were transfused within three weeks during the Brunete battle.

"It was a pretty tough grind for a while, but I guess we didn't have much time to notice it," said May. "Our chief concern was to give relief to the critical cases and sometimes we had difficulties getting blood of the right group."

Graded After Tests.

Although the Canadians modestly declined to discuss it, all have given their own blood in emergencies and without interrupting the routine of their day's work. The list of voluntary blood donors has increased, however, and to-day the clinic has nearly 1,700 contributors on its books.

Ramifications of the unit have expanded rapidly during recent months. The Madrid clinic is now being used as a training and distributing centre and there is housed the main refrigeration plant. Tested and graded blood is bottled in the Madrid clinic and despatched by special cars to the various hospitals and clearing stations.

Auxiliary transfusion units have been established in Valencia and Barcelona. Another is in the process of formation at Jaen to serve the Cordoba front and plans have been prepared for additional clinics should an emergency arise.

From the modest pioneering effort Dr. Bethune has now under his supervision 12 Spanish doctors and a large staff of specially-trained nurses and orderlies—a unit which has become one of the most vital links in the Republican medical service.

15 Injured As Racing Flames Sweep Factory

Huge columns of dense acrid smoke billow from this flaming drug factory at Weehawken, N.J., and from an entire block surrounding it as a series of explosions spread the fire to adjoining buildings, with injury to 15 persons. Hundreds, including 280 grade school children, were menaced by the fire and explosions and an entire section of factories and tenements was in danger until firemen of 16 companies got the blaze under control. An estimated quarter-million dollars' damage was the toll. The school children, hemmed in by a ring of fire, were led to safety by their teachers. Firemen are investigating cause of the blasts.
